Mr. F. M. Carver, a son of the late Postmaster Carver, and brother of Mr. S. D. Carver, of North Monaghan, has recently been on a trip to California, and has written an interesting letter descriptive of the trip, and of the land adjacent to the city of the Golden Gate. It is as follows:

In receiving a letter from my friends in Canada I have been requested to furnish something that would be interesting on the State of California. I certainly could write a good deal for and against California, but refrain from doing so at present as it is the beginning of the fruit harvest and my time is limited. Besides it would be infringing on the columns of your paper.

I will give to your readers a rambling account of some of my side trips since I came here. On the 20th of May, myself and three other old boys started for the Nevada Mountains. We took a two horse surrey with a strong pair of brakes on the hind wheels, also blankets and a camping outfit. We started for the foothills, which we reached in the evening, a distance of forty-five miles. We stopped at the toll-gate where the road begins to ascend. The road is winding and very steep in places, following around the mountain sides, always rising, until we had reached an altitude of six thousand feet, where the large trees grow. Above this altitude nothing of any account grows except a little scrub and and a plant they call snow plant.

At that time of year the mountains are beautiful, flowering shrubs cover the mountains; also abundance of flowers, the scenery is delightful, the air is clear and light and everything is so still that you can hear your heart beat if you have a strong one. There are some very big sawmills at the altitude that I have mentioned, the large trees are cut down any old way to get them down. They can saw a six foot log into lumber with band saws and double circulars run one above the other, both passing through the log at the same time and cutting off a board the full size of the log; anything larger than six feet they dynamite them. The logs are hauled out of the gulches by a donkey engine and cables and the logs from the hills are skidded by oxen ten and twelve in a team, into log skid into skidways, where they are loaded on wide trucks and hauled to the mill by twelve mules or horses.

These mountains are the homes of the wonderful Sequoia-Gigantea, a red wood tree that grows to immense size, many of them measuring thirty-five feet in diameter and are from three thousand to five thousand years old. Silent sentinels that have stood throughout the ages keeping watch for the evolution period in the history of man which brought civilization to their homes. There are also white pine and sugar pine and fir (a species of cedar). The lumber after being cut in the mountains is carried down by means of flumes, one forty-three miles and the other fifty miles through and along the sides of the mountains to Sanger and Clovis, two railroad terminals in the valley for distribution over the globe. There are also many mines throughout the mountains of iron, gold and copper. The highest of the Nevada Mountains is Old Baldy and Mount Whitney at a height of thirteen thousand feet above sea level. Mount Shasta in Colorado is the highest in the north. I saw the Blue canyon where there is a blue haze hanging over it all the time and a lake at the height of six thousand feet that has no visible outlet. It is supposed to be an extinct volcano that has filled up with water. It has been fathomed to fourteen hundred feet and no bottom could be found.

I cut a walking cane from a shrub that grows high up on the mountains and also picked up a cone of the sugar pine that measured eighteen inches in length and twenty inches in circumference which I will bring home as souvenirs of my trip into the mountains. Thus endeth the first chapter.

My next trip was to Los Angles, the greatest resort in the world for consumptives and other invalids for recuperation. Los Angles is three hundred miles from my present abode south on the coast. I took the overland train on the Southern Pacific, leaving Malaga at 6.30 p.m., and arriving at Los Angeles 7 a.m., the next morning. I will say here that it is a pretty safe train to travel on, but considering the road through the Tehachipie Mountains it made very good time. Some places you can get off the train, walk across two hundred yards and wait for the train to come along the road. After leaving Malaga it passes through a fine section of the valley; for eighty miles fruit and alfalfa is to be seen all along that distance. Bakersfield is the first town of importance and is a junction of the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe roads; it is also a great oil centre of the great oil fields of Kern county. This country has about two hundred and twenty-five producing wells, the amount shipped from here last year amounting to 5,114,000 barrels and their resources are not yet developed here. The train, after a short run, starts to climb the foothills of the Tehachepie Mountains; after getting to the mountain proper the engineers in laying out the road were up against it. There was only one place where they could ascend to the upper plateau and a large sugar-loaf shaped hill stood in the way with a deep gulch on each side. The height they had to overcome was 120 feet. After a great deal of study the problem was worked out by a boy seventeen years old who was with the engineers. The way it was done, they took a 90-foot grade around the mountain, tunneling through the mountain on the opposite side and taking a complete circle once and a half around and coming onto the plateau above thus making as it were loop the loop. After passing through these mountains we enter the Maharrey desert over one hundred miles across. Nothing grows on it but small sage brush and two kinds of cactus. We next reach the coast range where there is the usual tacking and tunneling to get through. There are miles of tunnels, the longest being a mile and a quarter long. We arrive at the foothills and descend into the valley on the south side; in a few minutes we reach the city of the angels, a very beautiful city it is. Surrounded by its orange and lemon groves, strawberry fields and market garden truck. The gardeners are nearly all Chinese. You could put Hamilton market in one corner of the market and hardly notice it, that is not disparaging of Hamilton's market, for Los Angeles has a population of over 200,000, besides the floaters and ocean resorts have got to be provided for. The city is beautifully situated, being about 27 miles from the coast and its shipping harbour San Pedro. The buildings are both ancient and modern, the Spanish piazza and China town being the most ancient. All the buildings that have been erected of late years are up-to-date in every respect. The finest residential part is on Bonny Brae overlooking the business part of the city and is reached by cars and an incline railway like our Hamilton mountain. The city has three thousand acres of parks and it is considered since the earthquake at San Francisco to be the best city west of Chicago. Well enough for the city, now for a trip to the beach. There is more than one way of reaching the beach, in fact the valley is a net work of steam and electric roads. We will now take a trip over the baloon route, a distance of fifty-seven miles in its circuit.

The baloon route is a four track road. The two centre tracks are for fast cars, the two outside tracks are for observation cars. They are fine cars and will seat fifty people. The fliers travel 65 to 70 miles an hour, a little too fast for sight-seeing. In [illegible] beautiful sights present themselves as you pass through the retail section of the city, past the main hotels, R. R. offices, Court House, the old Spanish Plazza and Chinatown, the battle ground of Generals Fremont and Pico, through the oil district and past the Sisters' Hospital to beautiful Hollywood with its orange and lemon groves, tropical plants and beautiful homes. It is hard to imagine that the ground containing these fine homes was all barley fields five years ago. Passing on through the valley we come to Sherman containing one of the large power plants, machine shop and car barns of the Los Angeles Pacific Company. The next thing worthy of note is the National Soldiers' Home, which is the largest and best equipped home for the old boys in blue in the Union. It comprises seven hundred acres and all the management and work is done by the soldiers. The grounds are beautifully laid out; there are some twenty-seven fine buildings in connection. There are three thousand soldiers and not a woman on the place; any who have wives they are provided with a nice cottage some few miles away and get the pension of their husbands. No soldier is allowed to leave the Home unless he gets a furlough from the officer in charge. The next attraction is Westgate and Brentwood Park with a beautiful view of the entire valley; Santa Monica is another resort between the lagoon and the ocean we pass on to Del Ray (meaning play ground of the king) and is now one of the most beautiful resorts on the Pacific. Boating and fishing in surf and still water, bathing and other amusements make it a pleasant place for rest and recuperation. Leaving Del Ray we pass on down the beach to Redondo and the famous Moonstone beach where you find many pretty stones when the tide goes out. The moonstone is a handsome stone when cut and polished and makes beautiful hat pins, charms, stick pins, brooches, etc., giving you a natural souvenir of Southern California beach. Pearls and gold stones are also to be found. This is the only place on the coast where they are found.

I also went to San Pedro, the shipping port and took a trip on an ocean steamer to Catilena Island, 17 miles out in the ocean. The island is 17 miles long and has many attractions as a resort. I also took a trip to Long Beach, the finest resort on the coast. It has 40,000 population and is a residential city. Ten years ago the greatest part of it was wheat and barley fields. On our way we called at an ostrich farm where 400 birds are kept, each being valued at $1,000.

With kind regards to friends,

Pains in the Back Over the Kidneys

TELL OF DISEASED KIDNEYS AND THE PROVEN CURE FOR THIS DREADFULLY PAINFUL AILMENT IS

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

When kidney disease does not arise from exposure to a draft or chilling of the body it is usually developed gradually as a result of liver and bowel disorders.

It is because of the intimate and dependent relations of the liver, kidneys and bowels, that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure diseases of the Kidneys when mere kidney medicines fail.

By quickening the action of the liver and bowels this treatment immediately lessens the work of the kidneys, and at the same time restores their natural vigour. In this way the most serious and complicated diseases of the kidneys are thoroughly cured.

Miss Delia McDermott, 373 Main street, Moncton, N.B., writes:

"For some time my mother could not walk across the floor, or stoop over because the pains in her back just over the kidneys were so severe. She had severe headaches, backache, spells of blindness and dizziness, and tried many remedies without obtaining any relief. The doctors of our town said that the trouble was due to the turn of life.

"A lady friend advised mother to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and by the time she had used two boxes of this great medicine she was perfectly cured and the old trouble has never returned."

Mr. J. Edwards of Colborne, Ont., and who is employed by the Kennedy and Davis Milling Company, Lindsay, Ont., states: "I have been taking Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for some time and can positively say they are the best medicine I have ever used. I was troubled very much with my kidneys, and had dreadful pains in my back, which increased by leaning over.

"I can testify to the exceptional merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because they have cured me, and shall gladly recommend them to anyone inquiring about them.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills regulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels. One pill a dose; 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Up to Date Ways of Transforming Last Summer's Wardrobe.

WHAT A GIRL ACCOMPLISHED.

Ribbons Help Wonderfully In Freshening Up a Frock—They Make Belts and Trim Outing Hats—Sleeves Another Important Matter.

This is the way one girl transformed her last summer wardrobe and managed to appear stylish and well dressed on a small amount of money. She bought one good tailor suit of checked mohair and one new tailored silk waist, with plaited ruffles in front and on the cuffs. This took all her ready cash, with the exception of $10, and she knew only too well that $10 could never be made to buy three or four other gowns and their trimmings, to say nothing of the making.

It is a long way around to Robin Hood's barn, but now we are back to the starting point—ribbon accessories—which was surely a clever idea in the case of the practical girl. She boarded her $10 until "ribbon bargain day" came around. Then she went shopping, with a careful list of the items needed before her.

IN HEAVY LINEN.

For the tailored suit she purchased two yards and a quarter of Roman silk ribbon, and of this she made a crush girdle (using her last year's belt buckle), a severe bow tie and a graceful scarf for her old panama, which, by the way, had been carefully cleaned with oxalic acid and warm water.

Her last year's silk shirt waist suit looked quite good with the exception of the sleeves, which she remodeled into puffs, finishing with three narrow pointed ruffles. Fortunately there were two yards of the silk left over for a new waist, but as this was not needed she split the silk lengthwise, cutting one and one-fourth inches of the selvage edges for ruffles on one side only, and this silk she made into a long, graceful surplice sash, which closed at the waist line in the back.

Torchon lace is used a great deal for trimming heavy linen dresses this season. The model seen in the illustration is let in in quite a novel fashion. Little strips of it at alternate intervals on the waist are joined together by a straggling design of embroidered daisies. One band of it forms a square yoke. The collar, girdle and neckband are trimmed with a double row, and the armholes are trimmed with a shape piece, with rows of the insertion to simulate the kimono style.

Letter From Delegate To Labour Convention

Mr. T. J. Begley, Secretary of the Local Trades and Labour Union Writes Letter to the Examiner---Conditions In Dakota and West

The following letter has been received from Mr. T. J. Begley, who is attending the Trades and Labour Convention in Winnipeg as the representative from the local Union:—

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Arriving in Winnipeg on September 15th, and having several days at my disposal before the opening session of the Trades and Labour Congress, the writer boarded one of "Jimmy" Hill's Great Northern trains on a trip to friends in North Dakota.

To an Easterner, who has visited this portion of Uncle Sam's domain for the first time, the sights to be seen prove a revelation. The train passes through the prairie ripe with golden grain "bountiess and beautiful," relieved here and there by a small—very small—growth of trees, and the dwelling of a farmer. There are no hills and dales to relieve the monotony but a vast expanse of territory through which the train rushes with lightning speed. Occasionally can be seen the threshers at work, the smoke from the traction engine curling heavenward, while at a short distance is stationed the cooking car, an innovation that one does not see in the East. Threshers receive $2.75 perd ay and board, and excellent board it is. The cook (usually of the female persuasion) receives $35.00 per month.

The wheat crop is only fair in North Dakota this year, the average yield to the acre being about fifteen bushels. Your correspondent was asked at a small railway station on the prairie if he would accept a job with the threshers, but the occupation was a little too strenuous and he declined. The farmers thresh their grain in the open, the large barns which dot the farms of Ontario being conspicuous by their absence.

The prairie is dotted with innumerable towns and villages, some of them ranking as cities, and James Hill, the railway magnate, has been most liberal in supplying them with railway communication. They have as a rule no industries to give them the air that Peterborough enjoys as an industrial centre, the only tall building being huge elevators. These centres, which may be dubbed as an "oasis in the dessert" are remarkably clean. Their thoroughfares are in excellent condition and their sidewalks constructed of cement. Many of them are lighted with electricity and several pretty little churches stand as a monument to the fact that religion flourishes. The inhabitants are principally farmers, (active and retired.)

A short stop was made at Grafton, and it was ascertained that quite a few Canadians had settled at this point, several of them coming from the Midland District. In some sections, however, the Canadian settlers have pulled up stakes and travelled to more profitable fields. There are a large number of Icelanders in North Dakota, and they prove most desirable citizens many of them owning splendid farms. In Minto, a rather important centre many residents of Lindsay and vicinity can be found, the fates have been most kind to them. In Grand Forks, Dakota, a city of ten or twelve thousand, everything is booming. This is an exceedingly pretty city, with splendid thoroughfares and handsome buildings. A Peterborough boy, and by the way, an ex-printer, is one of the prominent business men, in the person of Mr. George K. Munroe, brother of Mrs. John Carlisle, East City. This gentleman conducts a large jewellery store, and is emmensely popular in the city. The writer is indebted to him for many courtesies extended. Mr. William English, another Peterboroughman, is a typo on the Grand Forks Herald. The acquaintance was formed of Dr. Wheeler, of that city, who figured prominently in the battle between citizens of Rockwood, Minn., and the Younger brothers, in the celebrated bank robbery, shot and killed Cole Younger's brother, and has the rifle which laid him low hanging in his office.

Acrosss the Red River is the town of East Grand Forks, in the state of Minnesota. This place is connected with Grand Forks by a bridge, and has a population of 4,000. There are 55 saloons here, and a "red light district." In the spring the Red River at this point rises to a height of forty feet. Flat bottoms steamers are used on the stream, which is navigable as far as Winnipeg. Why it is called Red River is more than I can tell, for the water is very muddy at this point, and the same can be said of the stream all along its course. Grand Forks has its quota of Canadians, too. Dr. Henry O'Keefe, an old Lindsay boy, has amassed considerable wealth in his profession and is one of the prominent citizens of the city. Another centre, which was settled by people from Victoria county, is Ops, many former residents of Lindsay and vicinity residing here, and all are prospering. The same might be said of another settlement in the state.

Your correspondent spent Saturday evening and Sunday in Cavalier, and came in contact with several former Lindsayites. You will be interested in knowing that a former Peterborough man resides here in the person of Mr. Robert McConnell, who will be remembered by many residents of the city, as well as the townships of Smith, Ennismore and Otonabee. Mrs. McConnell is also a Peterborough county lady. A relative of Mr. Switzer of your city, also resides here. Mr. Robert McConnell is classed as the first settler in Cavalier. There was only a buffalo trail through the prairies when he came here exactly 30 years ago, with only $23.00 in his pocket. To-day he is living retired, having amassed a snug fortune. Mr. John O'Keefe, an old Lindsay boy, is in the drug business there and fortune has greeted him with a smile.

In another communication the writer will deal on other matters bearing on my visit here, such as prohibition, as it is seen here, and other matters which it is hoped will interest your readers. However, reference must be made to a pastime out here which is indulged in by everyone capable of carrying a gun, that is hunting the prairie chick and duck. The prairie chicken is somewhat similar to our patridge, but a little larger, and proves excellent eating. The game laws of the state are rigidly enforced, and no one is allowed to bag more than 25. The season is now on, and on a day in a drive over the country, many hunters could be seen indulging in the sport. The people are like a good many Canadians on the question of gunning on the Sabbath. The duck found here are like the Ontario bird, only the flesh is somewhat darker.

En route to Winnipeg on Monday morning to attend the great Labour Convention, of which you will hear more intely, your correspondent was surprised and delighted to meet an ex-Peterborough student in the person of "Joe" McDonald, who boarded the train at Neche, North Dakota, with the Geo. D. Sweet's "A Messenger Boy" Company. "Joe" will be remembered as one of the students who attended the late Mr. F. J. Lynch's private school on Rubidge street, about 12 years ago, along with Rev. Father A. E. Hurley, Dr. Adolphe Letellier, Pat Ryan, Cook, Burke, and others. Joe has achieved a continental reputation in the musical and romantic line. He toured America with the Mapleson Concert Company, and has filled engagements in Europe. As a dramatist he ranks as a top notcher, and as "A Messenger Boy" he enacts the difficult role of Count Cordina. His wife, an estimable lady, also portrays one of the leading roles in this production. "Joe" sends regards to Peterborough friends.

OBITUARY.

JOHN C. GRYLLS

Last night there passed away in Lakefield, Mr. J. C. Grylls, familiarly known as Coach Grylls, one of the best known men in the county of Peterborough. His death was due to typhoid fever, after a brief illness of a little over a week's duration. He was a sturdy man, only 48 years of age, and his death last night came as a surprise to his many friends. For the last few years of his life he was engineer on the steamer Empress, belonging to the Trent Valley Navigation Company. Previous to that he was associated with Captain White in the proprietorship of the steamer Alert, on which he also was engineer. He was, therefore, well known to hundreds of tourists who have visited the Kawartha Lakes during the past number of years, and will be greatly missed by many. The deceased was unmarried and is survived by both his parents, who reside in Lakefield, and two brothers, Charles of Lakefield and Frederick, who is a school teacher. At the time of going to press, arrangements for the funeral had not been made, and will be published later.

LIONEL KENNEE

Yesterday afternoon the death occurred in Smith of Lionel Kennee, the five months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Harrington Kennee. The funeral was held this afternoon from the family residence, 2nd line of Smith, to the Little Lake cemetery.

Bennett's Win Provided Sensation at Lindsay Fair

Promising Young Peterborough Runner Took First Place in Five Mile Race was a Dark Horse

AN UNASSUMING CHAP

Bennett, the young Peterborough runner, who won the five-mile foot race at Lindsay Fair on Saturday, was the dark horse in the race — no one expected him to win, and it is doubtful if he expected to win, himself. Referring to his game finish, the Lindsay Post of yesterday said:

When the slightly-built lad, togged out in a blue running suit, trotted in ahead on Saturday in the five-mile race he received a great ovation from the crowd. But just behind him came a heavily-built, low-running chap, covering the ground like a race horse. Twenty, thirty, fully fifty yards he gained on the blue-clad figure ahead, but still there remained a gap of twelve yards, and to win was impossible. The runner in blue was Bennett, the English youth from Peterborough, who won the five-mile event there on Labour Day. Geo. Thornbury of Glenarm, nephew of License Inspector Thornbury, of town, was second. Throughout the gruelling five miles, when Rielly, Elliott, Coad and the others had fallen back, he hung to the leader's heels, finally dropping a little to the rear in one of the Englishman's frequent sprints, but giving him the chase of his life in the stretch.

Bennett is a plain, wiry son of Merry England, weighs 125 pounds, and very unassuming in disposition. He has the stort, quick stride of the English runner, and spurts often. His time was 38 minutes, good time when one considers the heavy grade to be climbed on Kent street, and the rough condition of the track. He was practically a dark horse in the race. Thornbury was better known. The two could furnish an interesting race any time.

"CRYSTAL" OPENING A SUCCESS

Over a Thousand People Visited The Pretty Little Theatre Last Night

Notwithstanding the strong opposition last night, the formal opening of "The Crystal" was a magnificent success, and over a thousand people passed through the doors of the pretty little theatre during the evening. Nothing but words of praise were heard for the theatre itself, and for the performance, and there is no doubt but that "The Crystal" will be a popular place this season.

An intensely funny series of pictures were chosen for the first entertainment, and they made a big hit. The film depicted the adventures of a careless young blockhead, named Jim, who is apprenticed to nearly every trade, but gets into trouble wherever he goes. The pictures are very clear and realistic and there is very little vibration, which usually has a disagreeable effect upon the eyes of the audience.

Miss Olive Edwards sang the illustrated song Helf's best ballad, "Where the Whi-poor-Will sings, Marguerite," in a strong, clear soprano, and her number was greatly appreciated.

"The Crystal" will be open every afternoon and evening during the week, and there will be complete changes of programme every Monday and Thursday.

At Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, on September 27-28

Ladies and gentlemen, see Prof. Dorenwend's beautiful wigs, toupees, bangs, wavy and plain fronts, switches in every length and shade, etc.

His hair goods styles when properly adjusted, protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify expression of the face and consequently tone up aged appearance. Prof. Dorenwend has for this season many new and pretty designs. He has added a number of New York, London and Paris patterns.

Be sure and see them, and don't forget the day and date. Prof. Dorenwend will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough on Sept. 27-28.

WEDDING BELLS.

ST.JOHN-BELL

A quiet wedding was solemnized this morning at 10.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. Wm. C. Switzer, 10 Walker street, when his cousin, Mr. Samuel Christopher St. John, of Sunderland, was united in marriage to Miss Jessie Isabella Bell, of Campbellford. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. J. Keith, of Knox Presbyterian church. The bride, who was unattended, was becomingly attired in a costume of brown, with blue waist and hat to match. The usual wedding dejeuner was partaken of after the ceremony and this evening Mr. and Mrs. St. John left for their future home in Sunderland.

GAINEY-SCHOLTZ

A quiet wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's cathedral this morning at six o'clock, when Miss Clara Scholtz, daughter of Mr. Andrew Scholtz, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Gainey, son of Mr. John Gainey, East City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Galvin, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Matilda Scholtz, and Mr. T. Dineen was best man. A dainty dejeuner was served for the wedding party at the bride's home, Anson street, after which the happy couple left on the 7.20 a.m., G.T.R., for Toronto and Galt. Many presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Gainey testifying to the esteem in which they are held by a large number of friends.

LITTLE DOLLY DIMPLES

The biggest house of the present season greeted Grace Cameron the dainty little singing comedienne in the musical playlet "Little Dollie Dimples" at the Grand last night. There were few vacant seats in the house when the curtain went up on the first chorus, and it was a pleased audience that filed out at the conclusion of the production. Some of them were weary but it was from laughing, and it was no wonder that they were tired out by mirth, for the 150 minutes that the performance lasted were crammed full with laughs.

The play was made for laughing purposes only. There is little or no plot, the antics of the two or three comedians and a considerable amount of high-class vaudeville, comprising the bill of fare. Dolly Dimples, an ignorant but loveable little country girl, is heir to a fortune, but her place is usurped by another. She has fallen in love with Robert Lorraine, a young lawyer, but feeling ashamed of her lack of learning she runs away from her home in the country with her aunt, in the hope of getting an education.

Six years afterwards she returns disguised as a French maid, and in the employ of the girl who has gotten possession of her property. By a stratagem she frightens the girl and her attorney to confess the fraud, and comes into possession of her rights.

That is about all the plot that the playlet contains, but it is built up with so many funny situations, and interspersed with such catchy music, that there is not a dull moment from start to finish.

Grace Cameron in the title role and Al Lawrence as Hiram Skinner, a rustic youth, divided the honours of the evening. Miss Cameron was natural and funny in her part, and her acting was decidedly clever. Lawrence demonstrated that he is a comedian of considerable ability, and had the house with him at all times. Some of his lines were decidedly funny, and his facial expression would drive away the worst attack of the blues.

The two were supported by an exceptionally strong singing company. The chorus was not only pretty, but could sing and dance, and the ensemble numbers were most enjoyable and rendered with more precision and effect than is generally the case with a musical comedy of that type.

Some of the song numbers were very bright and catchy, among the best being "The Girl That I'd Call Mine," "No One Dreams About Me" and "He goes to church on Sunday," the latter sung by Al Lawrence in a manner that brought down the house.

The production was strong in vaudeville features, among the most enjoyable being the violin solo by Otto Faber, the celebrated Hungarian violinist, who as an encore played the Cavelleria Rusticiana in clever fashion. Al Pinard contributed a trombone solo, "Love Me and the World is Mine," in a manner that indemitted that he was a complete master of his instrument. The Criterion Musical Four were heard to great advantage in the beautiful sextette from "Lucia Lamimour" in which they had the assistance of the chorus. Miss Eva Weir contributed a somewhat unusual number, a whistling solo, that made a big hit.

Altogether "Little Dollie Dimples" is a most entertaining production and furnishes a very pleasant means of whiling away an evening.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE

Biology Has Proved That Dandruff is Caused by a Germ

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since A. Am'ly d. the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit Mich.

Two sizes, 50c. and $1.00. Mallarmie & Jury, special agents.

PHYSICAL WORK AT Y.M.C.A.

Committee in Charge of That Department Meets and Plans Work for the Coming Winter Season

AN EFFICIENT DIRECTOR

An enthusiastic meeting of the Physical Committee of the Y.M.C.A. was held last evening, when the work for this department for the autumn and winter season was discussed and outlined.

Sub-committees were appointed on supervision, enrolment and equipment, with strong chairmen for each. Upon the co-operation of these with the physical director will rest the success of the work.

Mr. C. H. James, the new physical director, has created a most favourable impression. The Peterborough Association has this season secured in him a physical director, with better qualification and experience than any of those who have preceded him. This is saying a good deal, because Peterborough has had a number of able men. Mr. James was for years an instructor in the Sandow School, and in all has had eleven years' experience in England and India as an instructor in military work as well as boys' schools. The touch of military gymnastics in Y.M.C.A. physical work is always popular, so that good times are in store for all who attend the gym.—both men and boys.

The classes open next week as follows:—

Intermediate—Monday, September 30, at 8 o'clock, and on Thursday at the same hour.

Junior Boys—Tuesday, October 1, 4.15 p.m., and Saturday, 9.15 a.m.

Senior boys—Wednesday, 4.15, and Saturday at 10.30 a.m.

Business and professional men — Mondays and Thursdays from 5 to 6 p.m.

Seniors—Tuesday, October 1, at 8 p.m., and on Friday at the same hour.

All who are coming in should be in at the start.

PASSES AWAY AT EARLY AGE OF 22 YEARS

Early Death of Francis Sisson of Otonabee Township

The life of an estimable young man was taken away by the hand of death at one o'clock this morning, in the person of Francis Frederick Sisson, youngest son of the late Thos. Sisson, of Otonabee. The deceased, who, when he became ill about six months ago, was in the prime of life, will be missed by a wide circle of friends, both in the city and country. He was born in Cavan almost 23 years ago, and lived there with the family until he reached the age of seven years, when they moved to Otonabee, in the Cold Springs Settlement, where he received a preliminary education in the public school there. He afterwards attended the Peterborough Business College, so that he had many friends in the city.

Later the family moved to the Stewart Settlement in Otonabee, where he has since resided. About 16 months ago he had a slight attack of typhoid fever, which later developed into tuberculosis of the bowels, and caused his death this morning.

Surviving him, beside his mother, are two brothers and one sister. The brothers are Messrs. Walton Sisson, of Otonabee, and Charles E. Sisson, of the drafting department of the C. G. E., and the sister is Mrs. Geo. Stewart, also of Otonabee. By his death is removed a friend to many, who will greatly regret to learn of his demise.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock to St. John's cemetery, Cavan, where the remains will be interred. The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt of St. Luke's, and Rev. W. C. Allen of Millbrook.

MORE GIRLS COME TO BARNARDO HOME

Forty Three Arrive Last Night—123 Boys Go to Toronto

Last night "Hazel Brae" received forty-three young girls who had just arrived from England. They came out on the steamer Dominion, and on the same vessel 132 boys were brought over, who have gone on to Toronto. The passage across was very rough, it being about the time for the equinoctial gales.

For the past three years Mr. Henderson has been in the employ of the Westinghouse Company, Pittsburg, Pa.

ST. JOHN'S A.Y.P.A. ELECT OFFICERS

Business Meeting Last Night—Tennis Season Talked Over

The St. John's Young People's Anglican Association, after a successful summer season on the Nicholls Oval, at tennis, met last night in the guild room for election of officers and annual report. Both sections showed a working balance in hand, and the reports were adopted.

The officers were elected as follows, with Rev. Canon Davidson in the chair:

Honourary President—Rev. Canon Davidson.
President—Mr. Matt. Drysdale.
Vice-Pres.—Miss Lily Pratt.
Secretary—Mr. S. Richardson.
Asst. Secretary—Mr. R. J. Devey.
Treasurer—Miss Birdie Dawson.
The convenors of committees are:
Literary—Miss Horsfield and Mr. C. Downs.
Fellowship—Miss P. Smith and Mr. G. E. Chandler.
Refreshment—Miss Layfield.
Visiting—Miss Roberts.
Musical—Mrs. R. J. Devey.
Dramatic—Mr. C. Coleman.
Biblical and Historical—Mr. J. S. Bell.

It was decided to adopt an entrance fee of 25 cents this season, instead of taking up a collection, as last season.

The season opens on October 7th with a "surprise" social, an exceedingly interesting evening being assured, as the arrangements are in the hands of Mrs. R. J. Devey, Miss Layfield and Miss Pratt. The Executive Committee this season is very strong and augurs well for energetic and aggressive work. All members are asked to place a special mark against the date—Monday, October 7—so that the season may be opened with a record attendance.

This afternoon many of the tennis games will be brought to a conclusion on the Oval, and the tournament will be wound up on Saturday.

Big Four Union May Be Carried Out After All

Tigers Compromising With the Argos in Regard to The Amateur Definition---Senior Series in a Muddle---What Will the Argos Do---Western Teams May Enter

Things in the senior series of the O.R.F.U., which, it was thought, were smoothed out on Friday, are in a very unsatisfactory satate just now, and the teams hardly know where they are at in the confusion. A despatch from Hamilton contains the information that the difficulty between the Eastern and Western teams in regard to the amateur definition has been overcome and that the Big Four union will be carried out after all, although the Tigers state that they will have a team in the senior O.R.F.U. as well. What the Argos will do is not stated, nor do any of the Toronto morning papers give any information in regard to their probable action. It seems pretty sure that they will not imperil the amateur standing of the team, many of whom are oarsmen, or in some other branch of amateur sport, for the sake of the new union, and it is altogether probable that they will stick to the O.R.F.U. and the C.A.A.U.

A Toronto paper states that the O.R.F.U. senior series may be divided into two districts, Westmount, Kingston, Gananoque and Brockville in the east, and Peterborough, Hamilton, Argonauts and Victorias in the west, but there seems little likelihood of the eastern teams entering the senior series.

A meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive is called for to-morrow night for the purpose of trying to settle the matter one way or the other.

The Strathcona Team For Intermediate O.H.A. ?

Last Season's City League Champions Said to be Contemplating Taking a Jump Into Faster Company

SOME SENIOR PLAYERS

It is, stated that there is a probability of the Strathconas, the team which won the City Hockey League championship last year, entering the intermediate series of the O.H.A. this season. There is, it is understood, a movement on foot with this object in view and it would not be surprising if this city should be represented in in the intermediate series by a team composed of the pick of the City League champions and supplemented by some of the players who last year were on the senior team.

Mr. W. Metheral, who last year managed the Strathconas so successfully that they were able to carry off the cup representing the League championship, was asked as to the truth of the report that he would place the team in the faster company this year, and, while he admitted that the matter had been under consideration, he stated that nothing definite had been decided as yet. He expressed the opinion, however, that should such a course be decided upon, he was confident that a team could be chosen from among the available players in the city which would be able to make good in the intermediate series. He was reticent on the subject of the probable lineup, but was confident that the question of players would not be the obstacle in the way of a course such as had been suggested being carried out.

It has been stated that Port Hope, Cobourg and Lindsay will be represented in the intermediate O. H. A. by teams this season. These three teams, with Peterborough would form a good district.

THE RUGBY TEAM WILL PRACTICE

Lights are Ready at Riverside Park and Team Will Get Out To-Night

The first night practice of the Club, will be held this evening at 7.30 o'clock at the Riverside Park. The lights have been installed and were tested last night and found to work perfectly. Every player is expected to be out in uniform to-night, and at the succeeding practices, as the time left to get into shape is short, and hard work will be needed to get the team in shape by a week from Saturday, when the season opens with a game with the Argos.

TORONTO TEAMS TO BE STRONG

Both Argos and Vics Will Have a Fast Fourteen This Season

The Argos and Vics. will be strong this season if the following despatches are to be believed:

A large and enthusiastic practice of the Vics. took place in Ketchum Park on Saturday afternoon. A few of those out were: — McWhirter, Killaley, Milligan, Brown, Gadsby, Ellicott, Middleton, Chamberlain, Prince, Pratt, Kirk, Buck, Love, Webster, who played with the Vics. a couple of years ago, was out as were three new men, Hogg and Bale, who played for Argos last year, and Neat from Ottawa intermediates. The latter shows up like a good one. The Vics will be out every night this week, and as the season is to start on Oct. 5th, every member should be out. As the Vics' first senior game is with Hamilton, the men want to be in the best of shape.

Twenty-five candidates for the Argos senior team were in uniform at Varsity Field yesterday afternoon. The work taken was light, but fast, and the squad is about ready to start on signals and formations.

Among those out yesterday were, Grant, Thomas, Russell, Hay, Love, Dr. Wood, Crooks, Sinclair, Taylor, Flett, Mara, McGuire, Smith, Worthington, Toms, Barber, Johnson, Kent and Sheriff. Most of these men have figured either on the Argos or other good teams here and elsewhere. The caramen have unlimited raw material with which to work, and there promises to be some warm competition for places on the team.

Junior Runners Ask That Their Names Be Entered

The interest being shown in the Examiner junior road race, Thanksgiving Day, was manifested this morning, when several young runners called at the office and asked to be entered in the event. It is a little early for entries yet, but entry blanks will be pubished before the big event, and those intending to take part will be asked to send in the forms to the Examiner office. Three other boys reported running six miles in forty minutes, which is pretty good going for a bunch of juveniles.

Market Sensation

A horse in a bold attempt to get away, caused some excitement on the market to-day. It careened about, finally running into the clerk's office, where it stopped.

CHILDISH RIVALRY.

Close Race at First, but Johnnie Wins on the Homestretch.

Johnnie, aged eight, has been in the house for a week in consequence of a header from his "bike." In this time he and Percy, aged six, have exhausted all their usual themes for disputes. Yesterday this was overheard in the nursery:

"Mamma, did Percy ever have whooping cough?"

"Yes, dear."

"Well, then, did he have it as bad as I did?"

"No, not quite."

"There, Percy!"

"Well, anyhow" (this from another voice), "I had measules worsen'r you, and I had it first too."

"You didn't!"

"I did too!"

"Mamma! Mamma! Did Percy have measules before I did?"

"Yes, he had it first, and you took it from him?"

Percy now triumphed audibly and vociferously. Then Johnnie rallied and crushed him:

"Well, anyhow, I broke my collar bone, and it cost $25."

Percy had no more to say. It is expected as soon as the rain stops he will go straight out and break his collar bone.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Prepared.

"Johnnie, where have you been? Your hair is suspiciously wet. School was out two hours ago."

"I fell in the creek."

"But your clothes are not wet."

"Well, you see, mamma, while I was standin' on the bridge I thought maybe I'd fall in, so I took off my clothes, an' I did."—New York Life

The Season For Him.

"Ah wisht de summah wuz neah obah," exclaimed 'Rastus.

"G'long! w'at yo' talkin' erbout?' demanded Sam; "yo' knows yo' lafk de summah time."

"Sho' ah does, but ef de summah wuz near obah watamillions 'd be ripe."—Houston Post.

Nothing Doing.

"He tells me he expects to take two weeks' vacation at the seashore," said Jigley.

"Yes," replied Borroughs, "but he won't do it."

"Why, won't his boss let him off?"

"Oh, yes; but he's counting on paying his way with the $50 I owe him."—Philadelphia Press.

An Impression.

"The public doesn't want Shakespeare," said the egotistic player.

"That impression," said Mr. Stormington Barnes, "is usually a case of mistaken identity. As a rule, what the public doesn't want is the man who thinks he is playing Shakespeare."—Washington Star.

Not Very Well Put.

The Frenchman—But madame, too, will join my party at the opera, yes?

Matron—You must really excuse me tonight, monsieur, but my daughter may go.

The Frenchman—Ah, no, no! I shall not take ze refuse.—Tatler.

In the Menagerie.

"The tiger refuses to keep the job unless we give him a raise."

"What's the matter with him?"

"He doesn't like jolting over the rough streets in the parade."

"Well, give him the raise, but if he kicks again tell him we'll get another man to wear the skin."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Should Rise.

Reeder—I see that balloons are becoming more expensive.

Tawker—Well, they should go up, especially in this age of inflated values. —Kansas City Times.

Recollection.

The stout man on the back platform declined to agree with the conductor. The conductor thought he hadn't paid his fare. The stout man was of the contrary opinion.

They exchanged harsh words over the matter.

"I gave you a nickel when I got aboard," said the stout man.

"I haven't taken in a nickel on this trip," said the conductor.

The stout man grew very red. His hair seemed to bristle.

"That's just enough of this," he growled. "I don't want to have any trouble with you. I had trouble with a conductor once. I'd hate to tell you what happened."

The conductor drew back a little and made no further attempt to collect the stout man's fare.

But when the stout man was about to alight from the car at the Pennsylvania crossing the conductor's curiosity was too much for him.

"Say," he asked, "what happened when you had that trouble with the other conductor?"

The stout man looked back.

"I was in the hospital six weeks," he mildly answered.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The First House of Commons.

The earliest traces of the English house of commons are found in the year 1265. That year Simon de Montfort, earl of Leicester, caused writs to be issued in the king's name requiring each sheriff of a county to return to a parliament which he proposed to hold two knights for the shire under his jurisdiction, two citizens for each city within its limits and two burgesses for each borough. The parliament thus called met in London on Jan. 22, 1265, and was practically the first in which the people, as distinguished from the nobility and aristocracy, had ever participated. It was not until the revolution of 1688, however, that the people were fairly and squarely represented in parliament. The house of commons is today the supreme power in England. Its will is law, the lords and king being, as Walter Bagehot long ago declared, men "ornamental." The power of the crown in England is merely nominal, as is that also of the house of lords. When the people speak out loudly through their house of commons, that as a general rule settles it.

MR. VICTOR GRAYSON, M.P.

A Freeman In Old Colony Times.

A freeman of the early days of the colonies was one who held the right of franchise. No one was allowed that right without first becoming a member of the church. The laws were made by a quorum of the "assistants" or "magistrates" sent out and commissioned by the company in London which held the charter. The law compelling church membership was passed by the assistants in 1631. In 1676 five-sixths of the people of Boston were nonvoters because they were not church members and were thus shut out from any participation in the local Government.

"Face the Music."

There are several theories concerning the origin of the slang phrase "Face the music." It is said to have come from the army. One of the difficulties in training horses for the military service was that of getting them to face the regimental band without cutting up a rumpus.

Another authority says also that it is of military origin, but that it was applied to soldiers when they were drummed out to the tune of "The Rogue's March." Still another version is that it is used by actors behind the scenes when preparing to go on the stage to face the music literally.—Minneapolis Journal.

S. A.'s Splendid Record.

Brigadier Howell of the Salvation Army was in Ottawa recently and called upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He was able to tell the Premier that during the year 15,000 people have come to Canada under the auspices of the Salvation Army, and that at the army headquarters in London there is at the present time a list of 50,000 people anxious to settle in the Dominion. The army hopes to be even more successful in its immigration efforts in the future than it has been up to the present time.

This is a splendid record of a great Christianising body. The work which the Army has done and is doing for immigrants is not always realized. Men belonging to its ranks have labored with zeal to brighten the lives of hundreds and thousands of people in the old land. To do so they have assisted them to the broad acres of the Dominion, where there is at least an opportunity for them to make a home. In carrying on this department of its work the organization has been nation-building.

Duke's Despatch Box Stolen.

Another daring robbery has been added to the long list of sensational coups effected by clever thieves in London recently.

A despatch box, containing valuable private papers, the property of the Duke of Teak, was stolen from Victoria station.

The box was being sent, in the charge of a special messenger, to the British embassy in Vienna, the present address of the duke.

Among the contents of the box were two cheque books on Coutts' Bank, some private letters and an Italian code.

On the box, which was formerly the property of the late Duchess of Teck, was marked in gold, "H. R. H. Princess Mary Adelaide, Duchess of Teck."

Victoria station at the time of the departure of the continental trains, is a place of bustle and confusion, and it is believed that some daring gang took advantage of the opportunity to lift the box from the carriage.

Postal Delivery Requirement.

Now that postal delivery is an assured fact, householders, offices and others, will require receptacles in their doors, in which to receive the mails, in case the house, office, or store, is locked. Messrs. Mitchell and Sharpe have a complete line of samples, and are taking orders for the plate as well as the placing of it on the door by competent workmen. Any orders to call with samples left with the Peterborough Hardware Company, will receive prompt attention, or use Machine Telephone No. 366. Also aluminum numbers and name plates for sale. 3471

Discovery of Dead Body on Track Furnishes Mysteries

Man Found at Birdsall Station Tuesday Morning May Not Have Been Henry Kelly---Hastings People Say His Name Was Anderson

THERE IS SOME SUSPICION OF FOUL PLAY IN THE AFFAIR

Greater Part of His Pay, Drawn the Day Before, Disappeared---Where Did It Go?---Companion Said He Spent No Money in Hastings

The disappearance of thirteen dollars, which the deceased had in his pocket in the morning, furnished one of the mysteries in the death of Henry Kelly, or Anderson, whose body was found at Birdsall station.

The dead man gave his name as Kelly—He was a Scotchman—and Hastings persons state that his name was Anderson.

He told the section foreman that he had only arrived in Canada last month, and that he had walked direct from Montreal. In his pockets were found workingmen's tickets for the Toronto Street Railway

These are some of the striking incidents connected with the discovery of the Dead Section man at Birdsall station yesterday morning.

Special Staff Correspondence.

Birdsall, Sept. 24.—Some of the circumstances incidental to the discovery of the dead body of the man who called himself Henry Kelly, and whose mangled remains were found lying beside the Grand Trunk Railway tracks this morning by sectionmen, add, to what at first blush gave promise of developing nothing more than an easily explained fatal accident, an element of mystery which justifies the action of the Coroner in probing further into what promises to be a case of more than usual interest.

Kelly, or Anderson

It appears that the name of Kelly, by which he was known by the people in the vicinity of Birdsall, was not his proper name. This, however, was not revealed until yesterday, when William Thompson, with whom the deceased spent a considerable portion of the day in Hastings, was informed by the bartender in one of the hotels of that town that the name of the deceased was Anderson, and that he had worked for about a year in the tannery there. This does not co-incide with the story told by the dead man to the section foreman, for whom he had worked since August 20th last. On that day he came to Mr. Redpath, the forman, asking for a job, and stated that he had just come from the Old Country, and had walked all the way from Montreal, and had nothing to eat for three days.

He was a Scotchman by birth, and spoke with a broad accent, a fact which made his statement that his name was Kelly, which is not generally recognized as a Scotch name, seem rather incredible. He was, however, known as Kelly by the men who worked with him on the section.

Money is Missing

The second circumstance which contributes a mysterious element to the affair is the fact that while he yesterday drew his pay for eleven days' work in August, and cashed his cheque in Hastings—it was for this purpose that he went to town—when his body was found this morning less than two dollars were found in his pockets. Mr. Thompson accompanied him during the greater part of the day in Hastings and stated to the Examiner that he did not notice him spending any money, except possibly a dollar or two, and he was greatly surprised to learn that there was such a small amount found on him. His cheque amounted to $15.18, after the amount of his insurance premium which the G.T.R. carries on all its section men, was deducted. It is not thought, however, that his heirs will receive anything from this source, since it covers only accidents or death caused while actually engaged in working for the company.

Was he Robbed?

That Kelly, or Anderson was robbed before he met his death, in a manner not yet determined, is the belief expressed by some, and it is even suggested that his death might not have been caused by means which the position the body was found in would indicate.

On the face of it the story told the foreman by the dead man is improbable. He stated that he was just out from the Old Country, and that he walked from Montreal, while in his pocket to-day was found a bunch of workingman's tickets of the Toronto Street Railway, a fact which would seem to indicate that his story was not correct.

A Companion's Story

William Thompson, who accompanied Kelly to Hastings, with Robert Nelson Redpath, the foreman, where they all went to cash their pay cheques, told the Examiner the story of the incidents following their arrival in that town. After cashing their cheques Thompson, who is also a Scotchman and Kelly visited one or two of the hotels, while Mr. Redpath returned home. About noon the other two men decided to start for home, a distance of about six miles. Kelly had taken a few drinks, his companion thought that three or four was the limit, though he admitted he had not been with him all the time he was in Hastings. At any rate, Kelly was quite able to take care of himself, and together they walked up the road to Mr. Thompson's home, which was about a mile east of Birdsall's station, arriving there during the early afternoon. Kelly remained at the Thompson home all afternoon, taking tea there, and about 6.45, as nearly as Mr. Thompson can remember, the other man started for his boarding house, which he never reached. At this time, according to Mr. Thompson's statements, Kelly was in such a condition that although he knew he was going to walk the track, he felt no anxiety as to his safety, and did not know until this morning the fate which had befallen him.

An Unanswered Question

The Thompson home is about a mile as has been stated, from the station, and Kelly left it before seven o'clock, whereas the train which it is believed struck him, and caused his death, did not pass that point until more than an hour later. The body was found about three-quarters of a mile from the house in which he had taken tea, and from which he started for home at 6.45. The question which naturally arises is, why was he an hour in covering the three-quarters of a mile?

These incidents, coupled with the fact that the greater part of his money had disappeared, lend colour to the suspicion that all is not right in connection with the case, and Coroner Gray in view of these facts, directed Constable McMillan, who reported the case to him, to make a thorough inquiry as to whether there were any suspicious characters seen in the vicinity about the time, or before or after the accident. Mr. Thompson, who was with the deceased during a portion of the day—according to his story, the greater portion—stated that he had seen none.

Doctor's Evidence

At the inquest, which was opened yesterday afternoon, no evidence was taken, except that of Dr. McWilliams, of Keene, who saw and examined the body. He informed the jury in his evidence that he had found a bad fracture of the skull, the right temple, and the right frontal being fractured, and, in his opinion, these injuries were sufficient to have caused death. His left foot was also badly smashed. Whether these injuries actually were the cause of death, or whether the man was dead and placed on the track after death, could only be determined by a post mortem.

In view of the evidence of Dr. McWilliams it was decided to hold a post mortem examination, and the coroner authorized Dr. McWilliams to perform it, the jury giving him the further authority to engage what assistance he should require.

Inquest Adjourned

No further evidence was taken yesterday, and the inquest was adjourned until Monday next at 2.30 p.m., at the Westwood town hall, when the report of the post mortem examination will be received, and the members of the crew on the train, which is supposed to have caused his death, and his working associates, will be called upon to give their evidence.

Orders were given to have the remains interred at Westwood. The deceased was a married man, according to his statements and had two children in Scotland, his wife having died some years ago.

The deceased was 43 years of age, a good worker, and apparently cheerful in the main, though he appeared to be somewhat disappointed in Canada and frequently expressed disgust at himself for having left the Old Country, where, he said, he had had a good job, and was earning fifteen shillings per day, as compared with an equivalent of six shillings here.

HEAVY STORM SWEEPS OVER DOURO

Roof of a Barn and Several Trees Are Blown Over

Douro, Sept. 25.—The storm that passed over here yesterday was one of the worst of the season. The wind for a few minutes blew a hurricane, and it was at one time thought that several barns would be blown down. The roof of Mr. Wm. Connors' log bar, about a mile east of the church, was carried away, and besides, several trees throughout the township were blown over.

Considerable rain accompanied the wind, and for a short time the residents here witnessed a wild storm.

MOVEMENT OF TRADE

Money may be "tight" and hard to get for the inauguration of enterprises, but there still seems to be activity in commercial circles and money in the hands of the people. The latter seems to have money to buy goods which, through merchants, pay their toll to the Customs department. The Dominion revenue for the past five months shows continued buoyancy. For the five months ending with August, there was an increase of $5,252,777 over the corresponding months of last year, the total Customs revenue having been $25,910,071. For the same four months the total trade was $256,867,631. Of this amount, $165,723,630 represented importations, and $100,164,001 exportations. The importations showed an increase of $30,783,393, and the exportations a decrease of $122,637. The decrease in importations was confined to timber and lumber, animals and fish. There was, however, a considerable increase in the export of manufactured products — $100,000 over the figures of last year —while the products of mines showed an increase of $2,000,000, and of agricultural products, of $6,000,000. The exports for the month of August — $27,652,148—were almost $2,000,000 greater than August of last year; and the importations of August show an increase of $5,252,777 over the same period of the past year. Thus it will be seen that there does not seem to be any diminution of popular prosperity, nor any loss of confidence, on the part of commercial importers, in the future.

THE CEMENT AGE

In 1891 the value of the cement produced in Canada was less than $102,000; in 1905, it was $2,000,000.

When production doubled between 1901 and 1904 it was feared that a market could not possibly be found for the output. Since then, however, the material has been made to serve purposes not dreamed of three or four years ago. At first its use in Ontario was confined almost wholly to the basement of farm buildings and drain culverts. Now, the material is being used for scores of other purposes. Silos are being built of it and cement houses are as common as stone structures were a few years since. In railway bridge work it promises soon to command the field. Even on the main line of the C.P.R. north of Lake Superior, where the country is all rock, cement bridges arch eing built to replace the old wooden structures. In older Ontario this same artificial granite will soon take the place of cedar posts in fencing, and one genius has already gone so far as to make a stove of the material.

This is certainly the cement age.

The above is from the Farmers' Sun, which, if it had not developed a mania for "knocking" the Trent Canal, could have added force to its interesting little article by pointing out that construction work on this canal gave a great impetus to the popularization of cement as a structural element. The great lift lock at Peterborough—the largest concrete monolith in the world—demanded 26,000 barrels, or 93,000,000 pounds, or 4,650 tons of cement. Also all the locks, dams and auxiliary works on the system from Peterborough to Lake Simcoe, in the aggregate, consumed in their construction a similar or larger amount, so that very probably over 10,000 tons of cement were used in Trent Canal work. All who have seen and admired this work must have recognized the plasticity of cement concrete for such works, with its artistic results and its enduring character, for it is the nature of concrete, like wine, to improve in strength with age.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Toronto Board of Health doesn't put on frills, it is simply Sheard.

The rumour that Toronto is to employ a board of experts to discover the difference between city water and sewage, could not be verified up to the time of going to press.

The Toronto News, Independent — with seventy-five degrees of slant towards the Conservative party—says that "to make" Hon. G. P. Graham, Liberal organizer in Eastern Ontario in 1904, "a partner in Byron Lott's proceedings" in Hastings in 1904, "exceeds the limits of decent political warfare."

The Bishop of London, now on a visit to this country, which by the way he left yesterday, says we have fine children in Canada. Let the Bishop try to keep a garden in Peterborough with a few fine pear, or other fruit, trees, and he will have fine experience of the natural and contraband affinity of fine children for fine fruit.

The parliamentary committee of the Manufacturers' Association reports that "Organized Labour does not carry the weight in Parliamentary circles which it did." So much the better. If the bandicap of Labour is reduced, the working horse will get under the wire in better time.

There is a bye-election for the Legislative Assembly in Ontario in progress in Brockville, and, ventures the Brantford Expositor, if one may judge from the columns of the Liberal organ, The Recorder, the attack on the Whitney Government largely centres upon the prison labour contracts, made by it, by which convicts are hired out to contractors, in one case at three cents per hour, and in another at five cents per hour, and that, too, in face of a rising labour market, and in disregard of ante-election pledges. The story is not one which the Government can hear with pleasure; in fact, it is the most discreditable one in its history, and even the appointment of an investigating committee will not cause it to be forgotten.

A COMPARISON

(Manitoba Free Press.)

That Mr. E. H. Harriman, in the last Presidential campaign in the United States, after an interview with Mr. Roosevelt at Washington, raised a special campaign fund for the Republican party, is an established fact. The reference to it in private letters, made public last spring at the time of the trouble between the President and Mr. Harriman, are plain. The New York World has been making an investigation into the details of that fund, and has published a list of the contributors with the amount paid by each. Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss, of Wall Street, who was treasurer of the Republican national campaign committee in that election, is indignant with the World, and is reported as saying that he never saw so much misinformation in so many words; it is to be noted, however, that he refuses to say wherein the list given by the World is wrong. It is as follows:

Edward H. Harriman...	$50,000
H. McK Twombly (representing Vanderbilt interests.....	25,000
Chauncey M. Depew	25,000
James Hazen Hyde	25,000
Equitable Life Society...	10,000
J. Pierpont Morgan.....	10,000
George W. Perkins (New York Life).....	10,000
H. H. Rogers, John D. Arrochold, William Rockefeller, (Standard Oil).....	30,000
James Speyer and banking interest.....	10,000
Cornelius N. Bliss (personal)...	10,000
Seven friends of Senator Depew, $5,000 each...	35,000
Sent to Mr. Harriman in smaller donations.....	20,000
Total.....	$260,000

Only one of these individual contributions, that of Mr. Harriman, is larger than the amount sent by Mr. Hugh Graham, of the Montreal Star into the Quebec constituencies and spent in various ways by the Conservative organization in the interests of the Conservative candidates in the last Dominion elections. The Montreal Star is as indignant as Mr. Bliss that such matters should be brought out into the open light of day. In the Canadian case, the matter has come out in evidence in court. The Montreal Star acknowledges $21,000, but the evidence in court shows that the total amount was $29,000. The Star flatly declares that it was Mr. Graham's own money; also, of course, that it was given solely for legitimate purposes. And the Star is at great pains to express in fitting terms the utter triviality of such a sum in face of "the perfectly legitimate expenses" of an election campaign.

What, then, is to be thought of the niggardliness of the great New York millionaires and the controllers of the finances of the great insurance companies, in doling out parsimoniously amounts that compare so unfavourably in point of size with the roll of bills from which Mr. Graham separated himself for the benefit and advantage of the white-souled purity campaign in 1904, which had Mr. R. L. Borden as its head archangel! For not only must the vastly greater wealth of the givers in New York be taken into account, but the vastly greater magnitude of "the perfectly legitimate expenses" of the Republican organization in a Presidential campaign, when compared with those of the Conservative party in a Dominion campaign. Mr. Graham handed out his money with princely lavishness, not only in comparison with individuals like Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, but with groups of millionaires, such as the Standard Oil group and the Vanderbilts. But surely Mr. Graham was not the only contributor to the Conservative war chest in the last Dominion election. His own modest contention that his contribution was a trifle, a mere bagatelle, means that there were others. The sum total can only be conjectured.

HUNGRY MAN DEVOURS RAW CHICKEN

Takes It From Henhouse and Plucks It By The Roadside

Examiner Special.

Douro, Sept. 25. — Talking about quick lunches, a man who was out through this township on Monday has any quick lunch parlour in Canada faded away. From his actions, he apparently is one of those weary ones who go about the country looking for work and praying that he may obtain none.

His latest dish is raw chicken. He called at a house while in an intoxicated condition, but on this account was not admitted. Next, the hen house was visited, and a big chicken secured, which formed the unique meal for the hungry man by the roadside. Feathers were strewn all over the road a short distance south of the church, and some of the residents here saw him devouring the raw chicken. The cannibal nature of the strange personage was something new to Douro, and it has aroused considerable interest in this locality.

CHINAMAN DIDN'T BREAK GREEK'S SIGN

Left It on The Sidewalk But Did Not Kick It

Mr. George Thomas, proprietor of the Dominion Cafe, explains his connection with the Caradimo sign which, it was reported, he had broken by kicking it off the sidewalk. Mr. Thomas states that the other evening he discovered the sign in his doorway and carried it out to the sidewalk, where it remained for at least half an hour. If the sign was broken, he did not do it, and knows nothing of what became of it.

Change Made by Fair Directors From Past Three Years

A change has been made from the past few years in the colour of the first and second prize tickets at the Industrial Fair. This year the first prizes will be marked with a red ticket, instead of the blue of the past three years: the second will be shown by the blue, and the third by the white. The change was made by the directors to be in accord with the other fairs, so that no confusion is caused.

Women's Pains

"I received your sample of Zutoo Tablets, and took them for severe pain (monthly) and headache. At the end of 30 minutes I was entirely free from pain and experienced no more throughout the period. I suffer a great deal at these times and feel grateful that I now have a remedy which affords quick relief. Every woman in the land should know about Zutoo Tablets and what they will do."

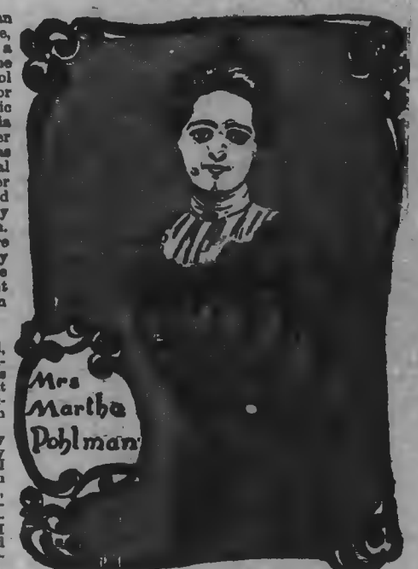
A TRAINED NURSE

After Years of Experience, Advises Women in Regard to Their Health.



Mrs. Martha Pohlman of 55 Chester Avenue, Newark, N. J., who is a graduate Nurse from the Blockley Training School at Philadelphia, and for six years Chief Clinic Nurse at the Philadelphia Hospital, writes the letter printed below. She has the advantage of personal experience, besides her professional education and what she has to say may be absolutely relied upon.

Many other women are afflicted as she was. They can regain health in the same way. It is prudent to heed such advice from such a source.

Mrs. Pohlman writes:

"I am firmly persuaded, after eight years of experience with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that it is the safest and best medicine for any suffering woman to use.

"Immediately after my marriage I found that my health began to fail me. I became weak and pale, with severe bearing-down pains, fearful backaches and frequent dizzy spells. The doctors prescribed for me, yet I did not improve. I would bloat after eating and frequently become nauseated. I had pains down through my limbs so I could hardly walk. It was as bad a case of female trouble as I have ever known. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, however, cured me within four months. Since that time I have had occasion to recommend it to a number of patients suffering from all forms of female difficulties, and I find that while it is considered unprofessional to recommend a patent medicine, I can honestly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I have found that it cures female ills, where all other medicine fails. It is a grand medicine for sick women."

Money cannot buy such testimony as this—merit alone can produce such results, and the ablest specialists now agree that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most universally successful remedy for all female diseases known to medicine.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacement or ulceration of the female organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement.

The needless suffering of women from diseases peculiar to their sex is terrible to see. The money which they pay to doctors who do not help them is an enormous waste. The pain is cured and the money is saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It is well for women who are ill to write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., The present Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant for many years before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely given to sick women. In her great experience, which covers many years, she has probably had to deal with dozens of cases just like yours. Her advice is strictly confidential.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds where Others Fail.

A GIRL'S LETTER.

Miss Rose Hurst, 733 Harris Street, Appleton, Wis., Writes Something of Interest to All Women.

Read What She Says:

"I WANT to say a word for Peruna for systemic catarrh and trust others who read this may try it and receive the same good from it that I did.

"I had been ailing for a long time and nothing seemed to do me any good, although I tried many doctors and many medicines. I had become so bad that there was no pleasure in living.

"I was finally asked by a friend to try Peruna, which I did, with many misgivings. What was my delight, after taking the first bottle, to see a great change for the better and I kept on improving until completely recovered.

"I now feel like a new woman. It has done wonders for me and I gladly recommend it to others."—Rose Hurst.

No ailing woman can fail to be interested in the above testimonial. Miss Hurst was persuaded by a friend to try Peruna, and she is now perfectly well and feels like another woman. Such is her story in brief.

Douro Farmer's Barn Is Robbed of 10 Bags of Oats

Grain Thieves Supposed to be From the City Are in That Township — Mr. Leahy's Barn is Visited

SOME LIGHT ON THE THEFT

Grain thieves are now reported from Douro township, where Mr. Wm. Leahy, who resides about four miles west of St. Joseph's Church, was the loser on Sunday night of ten bags of oats. There was a threshing at Mr. Leahy's on Saturday in his two barns, one of which is situated about half a mile from the house, and it was from this building that the grain disappeared. Besides the ten bags, a quantity was taken from one of the oat bins, but how much cannot be estimated.

From the tracks of the vehicle to and from the barn it was learned that a team of horses, one smaller than the other, hitched to a democrat, was the means of conveyance. The marks were tracked out towards the Warsaw road, but it is believed that the thief or thieves came towards Peterborough.

To substantiate this supposition, it is stated that Mr. Richard Bradfield, a neighbour of Mr. Leahy, residing nearer the city, when returning home, saw alongside the road in the bushes a load of bags in a democrat, but, of course, did not know at the time that Mr. Leahy had lost any oats.

Apples This Year Will Be Unsatisfactory Keepers

Well Known Apple Buyer Predicts That the Fruit This Season Will Not Keep Well — Spring Was Wrong

A WARNING IS GIVEN

Apples this year, in addition to being rather an unsatisfactory crop, so far as the yield is concerned, will, it is stated, not be good keepers. This information was given the Examiner yesterday by Mr. McCracken, a prominent apple buyer, of Colborne, who is in Otonabee this year buying a considerable quantity of both autumn and winter apples. He is at a loss to account for the specific cause of this condition of affairs, though it is assumed that the spring was unsatisfactory for apple-growing. When apples begin to rot on the trees, as they are doing this year, Mr. McCracken states, it is a sure sign that they will not be good keepers. Acting on this assumption, all the fruit his firm is buying is being shipped to England at once. It is not considered safe to allow it to remain around in barrels. The autumn apples are being sent in cold storage direct from the Keene station to Liverpool, the steamers in which they cross the Atlantic being also equipped with cold storage facilities.

The cost of shipping a barrel of apples from, say Keene station to Liverpool, in cold storage, is about $1.06, so that it can be seen that the transportation charges are more than the cost of the fruit itself, seventy-five cents to a dollar a barrel being paid for autumn fruit on the trees this year.

The remarks in reference to the keeping qualities of this year's apples apply to the winter fruit as well as to the early varieties, and housekeepers buying their fruit will do well to remember this fact.

Arrangements Underway For Collegiate Sports

New Feature For Ex-Students Being Introduced—Cross Country Run Next Monday—Field Day on The 4th of October

COMMITTEE ON SPORTS

The annual field day of sports in connection with the Collegiate Institute will this year be held on Friday, October 4, and on September 30, the Monday previous, that popular race—the cross country run—will be held. These steps were decided upon last night at a meeting of the Sports Committee, at the Institute at four o'clock, when the prospective big sporting day was talked over. The sports this year will be held on Friday afternoon, October 4, and on Nicholls Oval, as in the past. From the enthusiasm already displayed by the students, the annual field day this year promises to equal, if not supercede, any of the past.

A feature of the sports this year will be a special 100 yards race, open to all ex-pupils of the Collegiate, for which a special prize will be donated. Such a race will have the tendency to create considerable interest in the Institute here has held some fast 100 yards runners in past years.

The cross country run, as stated above, will be held on Monday of next week. With the recent introduction of long distance running, this race will be contested by more than usual this year. There will be two races, one for the juniors, open to all boys not 15 years of age on September 1, 1907, and the other for the seniors. In the cross country race there are five points which all contestants must pass. It begins at the corner of Mutray and Water streets, where all have to start. The bridge on McDonel street, west of Park street, must be crossed, and the creek must be re-crossed on Smith street, near Jackson Park. The runners must all pass the corner of Smith and Water streets, and finish at the starting point. The course is about three miles in length.

Yesterday afternoon the following Sports Committee was elected to attend to the various arrangements:—C. Lees, M. O'Brien, M. Dobbin, H. Hall, A. Bravender, A. Cameron, Geo. Mmorgan, K. Crane, Jimmy O'Brien, L. Creedon, E. Kelly, and N. Brand.

To Keep the Skin In Health

AOVID PORE-CLOGGING POWDERS AND CURE ALL SKIN IRRITATIONS AND ERUPTIONS WITH

Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is quite possible that, while you know of Dr. Chase'b Ointment as a cure for eczema psoriasis and the most severe forms of itching skin disease, you may have overlooked its value as a beautifier of the skin.

There are minor forms of skin trouble, such as rough, red, skin, chafing, chapping, pimples, blackheads, blotches, irritation, or poisoning from the clothing, etc., which disfigure and form a starting point for serious trouble.

A few applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment at such times not only remove these blemishes, but also restore the health and beauty of the skin, and positively prevent further development.

Miss C. Stanley-Jones, professional masseuse and nurse, 248 Simcoe street, Toronto, Ont., writes: "In my occupation as a nurse I have come across many cases in which Dr. Chase's Ointment has been used with extraordinary results. One case I speak was that of a child of sixteen months, who was in a bad way with scaly head. It was a really nasty case, causing the child to suffer very much and to be very troublesome. I persuaded the mother to use Dr. Chase's Ointment, and in ten days the child was entirely cured.

"Another case was that of a lady who was greatly troubled with eczema on the face. The doctor was dosing her with medicine, which was doing no good. In this case cure was effected in seven days with only one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Both of these cures were lasting."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is delightfully pure and creamy, is pleasant to use, and is rapidly absorbed. It acts as a food for the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety. By its soothing, antiseptic and healing properties it allays inflammation, relieves itching, and heals sores, wounds and ulcers; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A SOCIAL EVENING FOR FORESTERS

Court Stanley Members Last Night Decide To Hold One in Near Future—The Auditors' Report

There was a large attendance of the members at the quarterly meeting of the A. O. F. last evening in the S.O.E. Hall, with C. R. Bro. T. Henry in the chair. Two propositions were received for membership. Bro. A. Gilbert read the auditor's report, which was very satisfactory, also the court's fund. It was moved by Bro. H. Hanwell, seconded by Bro. S. Adlam, that a hearty vote of thanks be tendered to the auditors for their report and their services. Chief Ranger Bro. Henry appointed a committee of the younger members of the court to arrange a social evening and take charge of the meeting after the business of the court had been concluded.

The greater proportion of the members of the Oddfellows' Lodges, were previously identified with the insurance branch of the order, but there were among the newer members some who had not yet been enrolled as members of that branch and it was among these that Mr. Tullynas been working with gratifying success.

THE BOYS' EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

Aggressive Work Decided Upon Among Boys of the Local Y.M.C.A.

The Boys' Department Committee held a meeting last evening, at which plans were made for the boys' work for the season. Dr. Middleton was elected chairman of the committee, owing to the absence of Mr. Hamlin from the city.

The following officers of the Boys' executive were appointed, and will hold office for one year:

Pres.—Herb Johnston.
Sec.—V. Mitchell, re-elected.
Treas.—Ed. Mann, re-elected.
Chairmen—
Religious work—President.
Social and Educational—M. Turner.
Physical—L. Fitzgerald.
Membership—Harold Lees.

The executive Committee held its first meeting this afternoon.

The Boys' Bible Class teachers were appointed and the classes will begin on Sunday, October 6th at 10 o'clock. Under the leadership of Dr. Middleton, the Boys' Department promises many years.

A REGULAR MEETING OF PRESBYTERY

An Important Session Held at Knox Church Yesterday

LARGE ATTENDANCE

The regular meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery was held at Knox Church yesterday, when considerable business was transacted, of particular importance being the acceptance of Rev. Mr. Duncan's resignation after fifty years' labour in the ministry.

The following members of the Presbytery were present: Rev. Mr. Duncan of Colborne, Moderator; Rev. Mr. McClennan, Norwood; Rev. Mr. Thompson, Hastings; Rev. Mr. Lord, Grafton; Rev. Mr. McDonald, Millbrook; Rev. Mr. Wallace, Lindsay, representing the Lindsay Presbytery; Rev. Mr. Currie, Warsaw; Rev. Mr. Burns, Lakefield; Rev. Mr. Ross, of Peterborough; Rev. H. J. Kent, Peterborough; Rev. Mr. Reeves, Campbellford; Rev. Mr. McKenzie, Centreville; Rev. Mr. Peckover, Omemee; Rev. Dr. Marsh, Springville, and Rev. Mr. Macfarlane, Warkworth. There were also representative elders from each of these charges.

Opening Business

The Presbytery convened at 9 o'clock, with Rev. Mr. McClennan moderator until Rev. Mr. Duncan arrived. Devotional exercises were held, after which the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The list of the business items to be considered was then prepared.

Reports were received from various mission fields, in particular that from Cardiff, where Mr. Orok has been for some time engaged in missionary work. Mr. Orok was examined by the commission for that purpose, and was certified for Queen's College, Kingston, where he will study during the winter.

Mr. Gomm, who had decided to enter the ministry, was placed in charge of the congregation at Pontypool at its request, and will be stationed there for a year. Mr. Gomm, who is an Oxford graduate, is giving up a very lucrative business to take up the preaching of the gospel.

Call to Fenelon Falls

The next important topic was a call from Fenelon Falls to Rev. Mr. Lord, of Grafton. He has laboured in that charge during the past 19 years and has endeared himself to his people. His case was introduced by Rev. Mr. Wallace, of Lindsay, on behalf of the congregation of Fenelon Falls. Representatives from the congregation were also heard. They presented different reasons why Rev. Mr. Lord should accept the call.

Delegates from the congregation in Grafton presented a strong plea to retain him but he decided to accept the call. Provision was also made to declare the pulpit at Grafton vacant.

Fifty Years For God

Rev. Mr. Duncan of Colborne, asked that he be relieved from his present charge on December 31st.

This means that this veteran of God has spent fifty years in the ministry. His resignation was accepted and provision made for the meeting of Presbytery in Colborne at that date to participate in Rev. Mr. Duncan's Golden Jubilee which will be celebrated there.

At 12.30 the meeting adjourned for luncheon which had been prepared by the ladies of Knox church. When full justice had been done the appetizing spread a vote of thanks was passed by the Presbytery for the kindness of the Knox church ladies.

Conclusion

Regarding Rev. Mr. Lord's call a motion was passed making eulogistic reference to his work at Grafton and to his unfailing efforts in that charge. A resolution was also passed congratulating Rev. Mr. Duncan on his long stewardship and the hope was expressed that he would be granted many more years on earth.

SUMMERS STOCK COMPANY

The opening engagement of Geo. H. Summers and his big stock company at the Grand last night was greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience, which seemed to be delighted with the performance and the vaudeville features. For its first appearance here, the company had chosen a very amusing farce, "His Other Wife," which kept the audience in a state of convulsive merriment all through. The complications arising from the attempt of a newly-married couple to hide the fact that they are wedded from the groom's father were decidedly funny, climax following climax until the audience almost lost sight of the identity of the characters.

Mr. Summers appeared as the choleric old father, and made a big hit in the role. Harry Watertouse, as his son, Richard, gave a clever portrayal of the part, and Miss Belle Stevenson was excellent in her role. the supporting company is the strongest Mr. Summers ever has had with him.

The vaudeville features are very clever and include the following:—

Gordon and Hayes, International Character Change Artists; Arthur Stone, Monologue Comedian and Parlor Singer; Beverley Benton, Sweet Pictorial Melodies; Nagel and Adams, Novelty Humourists and Comedy Jugglers; Garvin Gilmaine, Impersonator of Noted Authors; Geo. H. Summers, in his comic and topical songs.

The Summers Stock Company will be at the Grand all this week with a matinee on Saturday.

DON'T DIE AT 45

Cure the Indigestion Which is So Liable to Lead to Apoplexy

People who suffer with headache, giddiness, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, distress after eating and any of the other distressing results of indigestion, are in serious danger. Their digestive organs cannot care for the food properly, and hence the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure, and one is then said to have a "shock," be paralyzed, or die from apoplexy.

In all diseases of digestion and nutrition the prescription called Mi-o-na has proven itself of great value. It is relied upon to-day as a certainty to relieve the worst cases of indigestion and make a complete cure.

That Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach troubles, cancer excepted, and give quick relief in indigestion, is proven by the guarantee Wm. Madill gives with every 50 cent box to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence.

LOCAL PERSONS ARE INVITED

To Attend the Opening of New Y.M.C.A. Building at Orillia on Sunday and Following Days

The facility of communication between Orillia and Peterborough, as represented by the completion of the inland section of the Trent Canal, has evidently had the effect of infecting that town with some of the enterprise of this city. Announcement is made to-day of the opening ceremony in connection with a new Y.M.C.A. building, the ceremony to take place next Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The dedicatory service, which will be for men only, will take place in the new building on Sunday night at 8.30, and the formal opening on the following day at 3 o'clock, when His Honour, Sir W. Mortimer Clark, Lieutenat-Governor of Ontario will be present. The new building is described as a very handstructure, and one which will be a credit, not only to the Association in Orillia, but to the town as well. It is expected that a number of Peterborough persons who have been honoured with invitations will be present.

MANY HOGS SOLD AT TO-DAY'S MARKET

Price is Now $5.95 per cwt.—Over 50 There This Morning

Hogs to-day again graced the market in goodly numbers, and the buyers, though cold, were in fair spirits. Before 10 o'clock some half hundred swine were brought in and rapidly disposed of. The price of hogs during this week is quoted at $5.95 at the local market.

The train will leave Midland at 7 a.m., and tickets are good returning until September 30. A large crowd is expected to accompany the excursion and remain off in Peterborough over Sunday. Every year a number of Midland persons who have friends or relatives here take advantage of this trip to spend a few days in a live city like Peterborough.

HAD HIS COLD TEA ON STREET

Accident Did Not Bother River Driver While Corby Was With Him

An accident was caused last night on George street as the result of the ignorance of a driver of one of the many coal and wood waggons in the city. It was going north on the west side of the street and a buggy driven by a young river-driver was coming south and on his right side. Just as they were passing, the buggy in an attempt to get by, struck the heavy wood dray with the result that the lighter vehicle was damaged somewhat. The shafts and the whiffletree were snapped and the buggy could not proceed further. There were two occupants of the buggy one with a jolly jag on and his companion left him to guard the injured buggy while he took the horse to the livery barn where he had hired it.

The young man who remained, calmly sat down on the good shaft and took from his pocket "a big quart bottle" of the stuff that makes fools of wise men, when taken in excess. It was a black bottle with a prominent square white label and the young man had it nearly half gone by the time his companion arrived. The latter pulled the wagon down Simcoe street with the inebriate bundled up on the seat.

It is about time that the drivers "about town" learned which is the proper side of the street to drive on and not be, themselves, the cause of accidents which might be expected of strangers.

BRANDON PEOPLE ARE COMING HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Thexton of Brandon, Man., Will Reside Here in Future—A Presentation

The Brandon Sun says: "On Saturday evening, September 14th, the employees of the Brandon Machine Works gathered in the office of the company to bid farewell to Mr. G. W. Thexton, formerly the superintendent of the company. Mr. Thexton was the recipient of an address, and a beautiful triple set of carvers for fish, game and meat. They were engraved with the words, 'To G. W. T.' from the employees of the Brandon Machine Works, September, 1907.' Mr. and Mrs. Thexton left on Thursday morning for Peterborough, where they will reside." Mrs. Thexton is a sister of Mrs. Frank Mason, of this city.

A STOVE IS NEEDED AT THE MARKET

Hog Buyers Stand Around Shivering in the Cold—One Misses Bid on Swine While Getting Warm

The ancient stove, that has for so many winters, relieved the monotony of the market clerk's office, is gone. The junk dealer has it, and as a stove it will be known no more. Frequenters of the market in the chilly seasons of the past, will miss its presence no doubt, and especially on such mornings as this. During the past few winters the stove has probably hung together in half a hundred pieces, and usually a dozen of these had to be removed to pile on more fuel.

But now the old stove is gone, and "it's up to" the city to supply another. This morning several hog and cattle buyers were in the office, awaiting the coming of the goods that brought them their daily bread. Mr. W. A. Stabler was shivering with the cold, and had to cross the street to secure warmth from a neighbouring stove. In so doing he missed a bid on a load of hogs. Messrs. J. J. Thornton and Robert Howden, and others, were there, blue with the cold, awaiting the coming of the hogs. Deputy Market Clerk Fred Roseboro, was kept busy at the scales, and forgot about the drop in mercury, but on a day when the business is slower he will also awaken to the fact that a new stove—and possibly another stove-pipe link—is needed.

The buyers are hopefully awaiting developments from an action of the city council in the near future.

May Close Public Library And Pack Up The Books

Unless the Council Gets Busy and Provides New Building—Matters in Connection With the City's Library Explained

ONE DIRECTOR'S VIEWS

Unless some action was taken in the near future towards providing accommodation for a public library, Peterborough will find itself minus such an institution.

This was the statement made this morning to the Examiner, by a member of the Library Board of Directors. He pointed out that the building in which the library was at present, would not be available for the use of the board much longer, and that, unless in the meantime, the City Council took steps to provide the building, upon the provision of which some discussion had already taken place, prior to the date on which the present library building will be vacated, the books will probably be packed up and the library closed.

He further suggested that the situation was one which called for some action at once on the part of the council, if Peterborough was to have a library. So far as he could see the matter was at a standstill, and unless something was done, and that at once, the citizens would find themselves without a library of any kind.

The proposal to apply for a grant from Andrew Carnegie, was referred to, and the opinion expressed that the building could be erected on Central Park, which he considered an appropriate place for a public library.

Claims $2000 From C.G.E. as Damages For Accident

Only One Jury Case Will Come Up At the Fall Assizes of the High Court of Justice Next Week—Mr. Justice MacMahon Will Preside

THE STATEMENT OF CLAIM

The jury sittings of the High Court of Justice which open here on Monda nyext before Mr. Justice MacMahon does not promise to be a lengthy session. There is only one jury case that of Moore vs. The Canadian General Electric Company. Some non-jury cases may be tried but so far no notice has been received of them.

The only jury case that will come up is that of Moore vs. The Canadian General Electric Company, in which the plaintiff, David John Moore, claims the sum of $2,000 and what such further or other sum as shall seem just to the court. The plaintiff who is a carpenter, residing in Peterborough, alleges that he was a foreman carpenter in constructing a building for the Canadian General Electric Company last spring and was injured by a bundle of scantling which were being drawn up to the roof, falling and striking his foot with the result that he has lost a portion of his foot and been unable to work. The plaintiff claims that the accident was due to the defective condition of the works' machinery and by the unprotected condition of the ways and the negligence of the company's employees.

The defendants deny that they were guilty of any negligence and state that the plaintiff had no occasion to be where he was at the time of the accident. [illegible] for plaintiff. Denistoun, Peck and Kerr for defendants.

WEDDING BELLS.

ROY-CAVANAH

St. John's church, was the scene of a very pretty, although quiet September wedding this afternoon, when Miss Mona Morris Dott Cavanah, daughter of the late J. H. Cavanah, of Lethbridge, and of Mrs. Cavanah, 198 London street, was united in marriage to Mr. Frederick Lewis Roy, son of Mr. and Mrs. R .M. Roy.

Only a few invited guests, the intimate friends of the young couple, were in attendance at the ceremony, which took place at 2.30 o'clock, with Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. John's, officiating.

The bride was given away by her uncl. Mr. W. J. Green, while Mendelssohn's wedding march was splendidly rendered by Mr. R. J. Devey, who presided at the organ. The maid of honour was Miss Ola Cavanah, sister of the bride, and there were three bridesmaids, Miss Gladys Roy, a sister of the groom, Miss Eva Green, and Miss Lela Cronkshank, both of Blenheim, and both cousins of the bride. Mr. W. H. Cavanah, of Richford, Vt., the bride's brother, acted as best man.

The bride wore a charming gown of white peau de soie en traine, and trimmed with Irish point lace, and brussels point, and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily of the valley. Her veil was an heirloom in the bride's family, and was worn for the first time in St. John's church thirty-five years ago. It was not caught up with orange blossoms as usual, but with lilies of the valley.

The bridesmaids and maids of honour were all dressed alike in pretty gowns of white silk organdy, and carried shower bouquets of pale pink asters. Each wore a large picture hat, the only difference in the costumes being in the colour of the hat.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. J. Green, 375 Brock street, where the young couple were made the recipients of many congratulations and good wishes for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy left on the 4.48 C. P. R. train for Toronto, and other points west. The bride's going-away costume was in neat blue serge gown trimmed with tanned leather and a navy blue hat trimmed with brown to match. Mr. and Mrs. Roy will take up residence on Crescent street, on their return to Peterborough.

The young couple are very popular in Peterborough and will have the best wishes of a very large circle of friends in the city.

COWIE--AVERY

A recent issue of the Portersville, (Cal.,) Enterprise, contains a report of the wedding of a former resident and a native of Peterborough, Mr. H. E. Cowie, a son of Mr. Wm. Cowie, 219 Simcoe street. The Enterprise, referring to this interesting event says:—

The home of the Rev. J. A. Milligan in Oakland was the scene of a pretty wedding that united a popular Portersville couple on Wednesday last, when Miss Minnie Avery became the bride of Harry E. Cowie. Besides the members of the family of the Rev. Mr. Milligan, who performed the ceremony, there were present a few of the intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom. Floral decorations had converted the residence into a bower of beauty, the happy couple, who entered the parlour to the strains of a wedding march played by Miss Violet Milligan, standing while the vows of Hymen were exchanged beneath a canopy of greenery in the centre of which a bell of flowers was suspended. There were no attendants, and the ceremony was of a simple but impressive nature.

Immediately following the wedding an hour was spent in general merrymaking and conversation and the extending of congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cowie sat down with their guests to an elaborate luncheon.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowie expect to return to Portersville next Sunday. Meantime they will visit friends in Oakland, San Francisco and Santa Rafael, and may possibly make a trip to Sacramento to the State Fair.

Much interest in this wedding has been taken in Portersville, both the bride and bridegroom having a large circle of friends here with whom they are deservedly popular. Mrs. Cowie, who is a sister of Geo. D. Avery, the local real estate and insurance man, has been a resident of Portersville for the past twelve years. She has been active in social and church circles, and possessed of a fine soprano voice, has been much in demand in the church choirs and at local entertainments. She is a woman of admirable character that has endeared her to all who know her, and Mr. Cowie is extremely fortunate in winning her for his wife.

Mr. Cowie has been a resident of Portersville for about a year, and holds the position of foreman of the Enterprise office. For a short time before coming here he had been employed in Bakersfield, but before going to the oil city had for several years been employed in Arizona, where for some time he held the position of editor of the Winslow Mail. He was also associated for a time with the conduct of a paper at Globe, Arizona. Mr. Cowie belongs to a family of printers and newspapers men, and though he has often ventured into other lines he has always drifted back to the calling into which he was born. One of his side ventures was into the railroad business, he having been in the Canadian Pacific service for some time, for two years holding the position of city ticket agent in Detroit, Michigan. Ther ailway business, however, was not as attractive as printer's ink and he left the service to return to his trade. During his connection with the Enterprise he has proven himself a reliable, competent and industrious workman, as well as an always-jovial, likeable fellow. It is with keen pleasure that the Enterprise joins with their many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Cowie a long, happy and prosperous married life.

Numerous friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cowie have presented them with handsome and useful presents. Other presents are to be bestowed upon them on their arrival home. The happy couple will go to housekeeping at 903 Main street immediately on their return. They will be at home to their friends after September 23rd.

COX--McKINTY

Another of the season's pretty weddings was celebrated this afternoon, at the home of Mr. Robert Cox, Douro street, East City, when Miss Amelia Ethel McKinty, daughter of Mr. John McKinty, was united in marriage to Mr. Fred Charles Cox, son of Mr. Henry Cox. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. H. Coon, of the Mark street church, at 3 o'clock, in the presence of about 65 relatives and friends. The drawing room, where the nuptials were held was tastefully decorated with the flowers which the late season provides.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Jennie Faucett and Mr. Clifford Cox, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride looked charming in a dress of cream silk collienne with trimmings of Irish bebe lace and satin ribbon. She wore the convential veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaid was attired in white silk and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The bride's flowers were white roses. Her travelling suit was of blue broadcloth with Persian trimmings.

After the wedding a sumptuous dinner was served by Cooper in his usual excellent style. Mr. and Mrs. Cox left on the 4.48 p.m., C. P. R. express for Toronto and other cities, and on their return will reside in East City. The young couple received many beautiful presents from their friends. The groom's gift to the bride was a quarter cut oak dining room suite; to the bridesmaid a pearl crescent, and to the groomsman a pair of gold cuff links. The bride's girl friends of the packing department of the Cereal Works, presented her with an oak parlour table, and a silver cruet. The young couple start out in life with the best wishes of their many friends.

A TOOL COMPANY IS FORMED

New Concern With Capital of $100,000 to Commence Manufacturing Operations in the City

LOCAL CAPITAL IS IN 'IT

A new manufacturing concern, known as the Dominion Tool Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000 and will commence operations in this city in a short time. A meeting for organization purposes will be held to-night in the office of O'Connell and Gordon, solicitors for the company, when the permanent officers, it is expected, will be elected, and plans for the inauguration of the work of the concern will be made.

The provisional directors, and the applicants for the charter, which has been granted by an Order-in-Council of the Ontario Legislature are all local men, and the shareholders are also practically all Peterborough capitalists.

Mr. P J Creedon, who was for some time the superintendent of the Rapid Tool Company will hold a similar position with the new company, and is also named as one of the provisional directors. He is a practical man and it is expected that the venture will be a success from the commencement. There is, it is stated, a splendid opening for an industry of this kind in Ontario, an ample field for both the local companies existing.

A building, suitable for the purposes of th company can be secured, and it is the intention to commence work at once, or practically so, upon its equipment.

The capital stock of the Company, $100,000 is divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each. The applicants for the charter, which has been granted, are Messrs James Davidson, F C Cubitt, F R J McPherson, W R G Higgins, P J Creedon and Dr. McNulty. The company is given power to manufacture and sell augurs, bits, gimlets and other tools and appliances for boring and drilling purposes. The company will also manufacture bolts, screws, rivets and other machinery.

The provisional directors are P J Creedon, Jas. Davidson, F R J McPherson and Dr. McNulty. The charter is dated Sept. 9th, and notice of its having been granted will be contained in the next issue of the Gazette.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses of from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by druggists, 75 cents.

RE-BUILDING BEGINS ON LAUNDRY

Destroyed Materials Being Thrown Out To-Day

This morning Mr. A. Parker had started a number of men at work tearing down the ruins of the burned steam laundry and dye works. The roof, which was completely destroyed, was pulled to pieces and thrown down, and the scorched and spoiled clothing was thrown out the windows. Preparations for re-building have been made, and as soon as possible the work will be completed. The loss by the blaze is estimated at over $5,000.

THE LONG SWITCH IS NOW COMPLETED

Situated This Side of Omemee and Fills A Long Want

The G.T.R. men who were engaged in building the long siding on the branch between Peterborough and Lindsay about two miles east of Omemee, have finished their work and the siding is now ready for use. It fills a long felt want especially in the shunting of unusually heavy freights coming to Peterborough. There is a heavy grade west of the switch and if an engine is not able to haul all of it up, half can be taken and left on the grade and the remainder is then brought. There have been many instances when the engine had tob ring half the train to Peterborough and return for the rest causing trouble for passenger trains. The switch is 2,300 feet long and will easily accommodate a double header. The work has been quite arduous but is now complete and the line ready for use.

THE CITIZENS SHOULD GO TO THE FAIR

Directors Have Done Their Best And Fair Deserves Big Attendance

The directors of the Exhibition believe that it is up to the citizens of Peterborough to attend the Fair on Friday and Saturday. They have done their best to make the Exhibition a success and nothing now remains but the crowd. The citizens of Peterborough therefore, in the interests of the city, should attend the fair and contribute to make it the success they would desire it to be.

ANOTHER BROCKVILLE CITIZEN MOVES HERE

Mr. J. Peters, of T. Kinnear & Co. Will Reside Here

A change has been made in the representative of the T. Kinnear Company, wholesale grocers in this district. Mr. J. Peters of Brockville has been appointed traveller for this district, and will commence duties about the first of October. Mr. Peters will move to Peterborough, bringing his wife and family. This is the second gain that this city has made from the ranks of Brockville's citizens.

He will be at the Oriental Hotel, Peterborough, Sept. 27-28.

WILL TAKE CHARGE OF THE STORE

Mr. Joseph Welch of Toronto Here To Assume Management of T. H. Hooper's Store

Mr. Jos. Welch of Toronto, late of Patterson's confectionery establishment, has been engaged by Mr. T. H. Hooper to take charge of his store at 414 George street, and arrived in the city this morning to assume his duties. Mr. Welch is an old Peterborough boy and a brother of Mr. Ed. Welch, once formerly conducted a confectionery business here. He is a thoroughly competent man, and will no doubt make good in this position.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THIS CITY

From a Manufacturing Standpoint—Peterborough Takes Precedence of Hamilton

Peterborough's rapidly increasing importance from a manufacturing standpoint was further emphasized at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association yesterday, in Toronto, when, in his annual address, the president referred to the interesting, and, to Peterborough people, gratifying, fact that, ranked, according to the increase in the value of products, Peterborough and Winnipeg took precedence to Hamilton, which has been recognized throughout Canada as one of the most notable manufacturing cities.

TRUSTED TO ASSISTANTS.

Why Mr. Hoare Did Not Examine Chord at Quebec Bridge.

Quebec, Sept. 25.—The Royal Commission on the Quebec bridge collapse completed its enquiry here yesterday and left for Ottawa.

Mr. Hoare emphasized the fact that if he did not personally examine the defect to chord 9 it was because of his confidence in his assistants. Mr. Deans, chief engineer of the Phoenix Co., again gave interesting evidence, showing that he had talked over the 'phone to Mr. Birks, who went down with the bridge, only a few hours before the disaster, and Birks had said that later examinations showed no movement in the chord, that the spliced member was unchanged and that in his opinion the defect must have existed at the time the members of the chord were erected.

Mr. Deans said he believed Mr. Birks was right in his opinion, though three others thought differently. The fact that nearly three million pounds of extra stress had been added since the spliced member had been placed in position without affecting the relative position of splice and rivets bore out Mr. Birks' idea.

Bridge Investigation.

Ottawa, Sept. 25.—The members of the Royal Commission who have been investigating the collapse of the Quebec bridge are on their way here to hear Collingwood Schreiber, Messrs. Douglas, Johnston and others. Then they will go direct to New York to question Mr. Theodore Cooper, the engineer who passed the plans, and from there they proceed to Phoenixville, Pa., to examine several witnesses relative to the steel portion of the bridge.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Man Makes Brutal Attack on His Wife With a Shovel.

Montreal, Sept. 25.—A new point of law was laid down yesterday evening by the chief of police of Longueuil, just across the river from Montreal, to the effect that if a man assaults his wife and nearly kills her, but does not make any apparent mark upon her, no arrest can be made.

Early in the evening John Lapointe loaded up on whisky blanc and then proceeded to correct his wife with a shovel, and caught her a blow on the back of the head that laid her out apparently dead.

Lapointe then jumped into a neighbor's rig and drove off, evidently thinking he had killed his wife. The chief of police was called and found the woman still alive, after which the children brought Lapointe back, telling him that their mother was not going to die.

The chief of police declined to arrest Lapointe, claiming that as he could not find any marks upon the woman's head he was not justified in making an arrest.

In the meantime at a late hour last evening Mrs. Lapointe was still lying unconscious, and her physician states that she is very likely to die. Lapointe is being watched, and if his wife should die, he will be arrested on a charge of murder, otherwise he will probably go scot free.

Safest Medicine for Women's Complaints

Women certainly do neglect themselves. They work too hard—over-tax their strength—and then wonder why they suffer with diseases peculiar to their sex.

Most cases of female trouble start when the bowels become inactive—the kidneys strained—and the skin not cared for. Poisons, which should leave the system by these organs, are taken up by the blood and inflame the delicate female organs.

JIMMIE REYNOLDS CHAMPION

Still Holds the Long Distance Walking Record of Ontario—Scattergood Quit Near Pickering

HE ONLY WENT HALF WAY

Examiner Special.

Port Hope, September 25. — Jimmie Reynolds is still the champion long distance walker of Ontario. Scattergood, the Oshawa man, who set out to walk the 138 miles between Port Hope and Toronto, in 38 hours, quit last night about 10.30, two miles west of Pickering, on his western journey, after having made only 76 out of the 138 miles attempted. It has been pretty thoroughly demonstrated that the Oshawa man, in spite of the statements made as to his record achieved in the Old Country, is not in Reynolds' class, even though he has a good advantage over the latter on the score of his youth.

When Scattergood reached Port Hope he was half an hour behind his schedule, having made the distance in eight hours and five minutes. Reynolds' best time for this stretch was 7 hours and 40 minutes. Reynolds, it is said, feels very much put out that anybody should attempt to break his record, but he was among those who met his competitor, and conversed with him at the Queen's hotel. Port Hope generally gave Scattergood a warm welcome and wished him luck.

In view of the attempt of Scattergood to make the trip in the scheduled time Reynolds will have no difficulty in getting his bet that he will make the trip to Toronto and return in 35 hours, a bet which he is prepared to make. It is expected that he will make the attempt some time inside of a month.

DOG RACE ON LAST DAY OF EXHIBITION

Carters Will Speed Around the Ring—Some Good Horses Entered

The dog race will again this year be one of the interesting events at the Exhibition. This race will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. Several boys have already entered and about a dozen others are making inquiries.

The carters' race on Friday afternoon will be another feature of the speeding events. This will be a quarter mile run and will certainly be popular. The speeding in the ring events are promised by the Turf Club to be worth while watching.

MR. D. HARTLEY IN PORT HOPE

Jimmy Reynolds Would Not Take Him Up On An Even Race

Mr. David Hartley, the local walker, was in Port Hope yesterday for the purpose of negotiating with the celebrated "Jimmy" Reynolds for a meeting, but Mr. Reynolds did not accept any of Mr. Hartley's offers. He wanted the local man to give him a handicap, but the latter refused, deciding that Mr. Reynolds should meet him on even terms. Several gentlemen in Port Hope are willing to back the local man, but no arrangements have been settled. Mr. Reynolds said that he would consider the proposition, and there is a likelihood that the race may come off. However, in any event, if Mr. Reynolds makes another attempt to walk to Toronto, Mr. Hartley intends to make an effort to beat his time, and is of the opinion that he will succeed.

The rink will be open winter and summer but has not yet been decided whether Mr. Sheridan will run a skating or a roller rink during the winter months. At any rate there will be skating all the year round.

AN APPEAL CASE IS HEARD

In Which Peterborough Hydraulic Company and C. B. McAllister are Interested at Osgoode Hall, Toronto

A case which was tried in the spring Assizes here in June, and against which an appeal was entered, is now being tried in the Divisional Court, Toronto. Referring to it, the Globe to-day says:

Peterborough Hydraulic Power Co. v. McAllister.—James Bicknell, K.C., and G. B. Strathy, for third parties, appealed from judgment of Boyd, C., dated 3rd June, 1907, on the question of costs, and also from that part of the judgment dismissing the claim of the defendants against the third parties. Action was brought by the plaintiffs against the McAllister Milling Company for $750, being three months' rent of the Otonabee Mills, which the plaintiffs rented to the defendant company. The McAllister Company compromised their indebtedness of $69,000 and certain securities, the bank agreeing to indemnify them against all liabilities in connection with their business, but in December, 1906, abandoned the premises. The lease has still seven years to run. At the trial, plaintiffs recovered the $750 sued for against the defendants, and the defendants recovered judgment over against the Ontario Bank for that sum and costs. The Ontario Bank appeals from that judgment. Daniel O'Connell and G. N. Gordon, Peterborough, for defendants, and F. D. Kerr, Peterborough for plaintiffs, opposed apeal. Not finished.

ALDERMAN DUNCAN HAS HIS WRIST BROKEN

Falls on Pavement On His Head And Sustains Severe Injuries

Ald. Duncan met with a rather severe accident yesterday afternoon on Sherbrooke, which will delay his attending to his work for some weeks. He emerged from the accident with a broken wrist, a torn finger nail, and a scratched face. He was climbing a ladder against the house of Mr. Kelly, where he was working, when the bottom of it slid out, allowing him to fall first on the verandah roof, and afterwards on the pavement.

The alderman struck head first on the hard sidewalk, and for some minutes remained unconscious. Medical assistance was summoned and the fracture set, but Mr. Duncan is still suffering from the fall. He was able to take a walk out doors today, however, and does not think that any internal injuries were caused.

GOOD FEELING AMONG UNDERWRITERS

Meetings Held in Peterborough Were Well Attended and Successful

A representative meeting of the Life Underwriters of Central Ontario was held in the office of the Great West Life on Monday 23rd inst. Immediately preceding this meeting the Executive met and recommended the addition of the following committees to the constitution:—The Social Committee, Finance Committee and Membership Committee.

The Social Committee consists of S. Sells, convenor; W. H. Hill, W. F. Nelson and Geo. Pope.

Finance Committee—Mr. D. H. Moore, convenor; W. F. Nelson and G. B. Stevenson.

Membership Committee—H. P. Lindsay, convenor; W. R. Widdes and Thos. Marks.

At eight o'clock the President, H. P. Lindsay, called the regular meeting to order, when after roll call, it was found that the majority of the companies were represented, especially was this in evidence with the standard companies.

The secretary, Mr. W. F. Nelson, read the minutes of the previous meeting which were adopted.

The constitution was adopted and the secretary was instructed to have same printed for distribution along with application forms to those residing outside of Peterborough.

The next regular meeting will be held in Lindsay on 3rd Monday of October, at which prominent insurance men will give short addresses on different phases of the work.

Although the association members derive a great many benefits from the different essays and discussion at each meeting, yet the most striking feature to a casual observer, is the good feeling showed by the members to each other, not only in Assemblies but in daily business.

The Association was formed because the Life Insurance Agents saw an opportunity to greatly improve the conditions of their work, by uniting.

CORN ROAST ON BANKS OF OTONABEE

A Number of Young People go Down on The "Tootsee" Yacht

A corn roast on the Otonabee river bank last night afforded considerable pleasure for a party of youths and maidens, who went down on Mr. Allin's yacht, the "Tootsie." The location of the evening meal was the T.A.S. picnic grounds, but from whose grounds the corn came from is unknown. At any rate the young people spent a delightful time, returning to the city about 11 o'clock.

SERVICES AT THE STEWART SETTLEMENT

Arranged For the Next Six Months—Local Clergymen to Assist

At the meeting of the Presbytery yesterday, one of the important subjects discussed was the charge at the Stewart settlement. The families in that vicinity, who usually attended Sunday services in Peterborough, obtained the permission of the churches of the city to hold services in their hall at the settlement. Rev. Mr. McKenzie of Centreville has been holding services there, but his congregation at Centreville thought that the extra charge was too arduous. It was decided by Presbytery that for the next six months Mr. McKenzie take the charge, and that the clergy of Peterborough be asked to lend him assistance.

Prince Rupert, The Coming City of British Columbia

Some Interesting Facts Told by Dr. Douglas, Formerly of Warsaw — Only Seven Women There

A NEWSPAPER JUST BEGUN

"Prince Rupert is the city of tomorrow," was the statement made by Dr. Douglas formerly of Warsaw, to-day to an Examiner representative. The doctor has spent considerable time in the western terminus of the G. T. P. Railway, and has recently returned from that portion of British Columbia, which bids fair to become in the near future an important commercial centre.

Dr. Douglas, accompanied by Dr. Greer of Smith's Falls, have been in the western province prospecting together and the he has many interesting facts to tell about Prince Rupert.

The terminal to be is situated on the Pacific Coast, about 500 miles north of Vancouver, making it about 700 miles nearer to the Orient, and on as beautiful and as perfect a harbour as can be found on that side of the continent. As yet the inhabitants are few. There were only seven women there when the doctor left, but the masculine population was larger, and growing rapidly.

A New Hotel

The chief occupation at the present time is in connection with the building operations, the principal one of which is the erection of a large hotel by the G.T.P., for the accommodation of the new arrivals. This hotel, the doctor states, will be almost completed now. The G. T. P. Company have at the present time control over all arrivals in order that too many may not come in where as yet there is no accommodation for them.

The railway has not yet been begun in British Columbia, but the doctor stated that he understood that the contract for 200 miles of the road inland from Prince Rupert had been let.

Only a few weeks ago a newspaper began, and he showed the reporter a copy of the first paper issued in in the city to be. Accommodations when he left, was rather scanty, and the editor of the paper had the privilege of staying in the police quarters, but not of course in a cell. The constables up to the present time have not had a great deal of work to perform, but the time is coming when they will be as busy as the Peterborough officers.

The Skeena River

Almost at the mouth of the Skeena River is Prince Rupert. The immense stream which winds its way down through the mountains will be a great advantage to the terminus. Large boats can navigate it to a considerable distance, and the power available, the doctor considers, is practically incalculable.

The land around the town is of a rolling nature, and is practically unexplored. Mining will be an important industry in a few years, "but," said the doctor, "there are hundreds of spots there upon upon no white man has ever yet walked."

This afternoon Dr. Douglas, accompanied by his fellow prospector, left for Toronto and Detroit, and he expects to be soon again in the Canadian west.

SOME COMPARATIVE FIGURES ON ASSESSMENT AND TAXATION

From the last report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries, some information is given concerning the relation of assessment and taxes per head of population of the cities of Ontario. The City Treasurer has compiled the following comparative statement and has handed it to the press for publication. It will be noticed that in the statement the cities of a population from 12,000 to 20,000 are included. It is as follows:

City or Town	Population	Assessments	Taxes	Taxes per head	Deb. Debt less S. Fund, 31 Dec, '06	Debt per head
PETERBOROUGH	14,032	$6,660,210	$125,653	$8.39	$862,684	$44.29

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

THE EXAMINER welcomes all Items of Interest for this column. 'Phone 234 or send post card with name and address.

Mr. J. H. Burnham returned to Toronto this morning.

Mr. W. A. McIlmoyle, market clerk, went to Lakefield to-day.

Mrs. Mary Inkster of this city is visiting for a few days in Marmora.

Mr. John F. McCarthy went to Campbellford this morning to attend the fair.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Campbell left last night for Montreal and Quebec, where they will spend their holidays.

Mr. W. H. Cavanah, of Richford, Vt., is in the city to-day, attending the wedding of his sister to Mr. Fred Roy.

Mr. Garnet Greer has resumed his studies at Queen's University, Kingston. He is beginning his third year in Arts.

Mr. Arthur V. Wood has returned to Queen's University to continue his studies there. This will be his fourth year in Arts and second in Mining Engineering.

Mr. Fred Kelly, principal of the Public School in East City, is in Port Hope to-day attending the wedding of Miss Gertrude Davidson and Mr. William Garnett, which is taking place there this afternoon.

Mrs. Alex. Elliott, of Dunsford, Emily township, accompanied by Master Jack and Miss Mary, also Miss Pearl McMullen, are in the city for a few days the guests of their cousins, Mrs. H. Dafoe and Mrs. T. A. Slights.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

MAKING MONEY

Isn't the only pleasure in the world. Above all is a good reputation—Our reputation began with the opening of the Fashion Craft Shop, and now most men in Peterborough think first of this shop when they require anything in Men's Furnishings.

It's so easy to Cure Rheumatism.

Such a simple treatment. So absolutely certain to cure. Just take Bu-Ju. Not a few doses—don't stop even after a few boxes. Give Bu-Ju a fair chance—take it faithfully; carry out the directions exactly; and Bu-Ju will cure you as surely as 2 and 2 make 4.

Bu-Ju
The Gentle Kidney Pill

cures Muscular Rheumatism, Inflammatory Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, because it removes the CAUSE of these troubles.

YOUNG'S POINT, P. O.

"Have tried your Bu-Ju Kidney Pills, and found them very beneficial for Rheumatism and pain in the back. They are certainly a blessing. My husband is also receiving great benefit from Bu-Ju. He has had great pain in the small of his back, but is so much better now.

MRS. A. C. KIDD.

Rheumatism, in any form, means irritated nerves, and is caused by uric acid being deposited in the blood stream. The only way uric acid reaches the blood is through weakness or disease of the Kidneys. The only way to cure weak, diseased Kidneys, and thus cure Rheumatism, is to take Bu-Ju.

Carlisle Potter's Leg Broken In Rugby Accident

What may be termed the first rugby accident of the season in Peterborough happened to Carlisle Potter, the 10-year-old son of Rev. J. G. Potter, who had his left leg broken last night in a scrimmage on the lawn at the manse. It was after 4 o'clock, and, with a number of other boys, Carlisle was taking an active part in the game, when the boys got together for a scrummage, and a "pile-up" resulted. Carlisle was one of those underneath, and, unfortunately, sustained the injury mentioned. The break is a clean one, and was received just below the left knee. The lad was carried into his home, and Drs. Greer and Eastwood were called, and set the injured member.

About three years ago the same leg was broken in the same place, and, while convalescent, Carlisle had the misfortune to break the other leg, which confined him to the Nicholls Hospital for three months. Carlisle is now progressing very favourably, and his many boy friends extend their sympathy, and express the hope that he will soon be out again. His father, Rev. J. G. Potter, is visiting in Halifax.

COMPLAINS THAT CHAIRS WERE STOLEN

Complaint Made That Verandah Chairs Are Gone

A gentleman called at this office to-day and complained that two verandah chairs and a mat had been stolen from him two nights ago, and he had found no trace of them since. He did not thing that young boys had been the culprits, but that some man had stolen them with the intention of keeping them. Other citizens who still have their summer chairs on their verandahs might just as well take them in and store them away until next summer. They will at least be sure of where they are, and the longing season is now about over.

WESTMOUNT HAS A NEW SCHEME

Propose to Have a League Consisting of Three Divisions

The Westmount Rugby Club has a proposal to make to the O. R. F. U., that the senior series should be divided into three divisions, Eastern, Western and Middle, taking in Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Galt, Woodstock and Dundas, the winners of divisions to play off.

AN ODDFELLOW WAS HONOURED

Mr. L. G. Payne Presented With Past Master's Jewel by Members of Otonabee Lodge Last Night

An interesting gathering of Oddfellows connected with Otonabee Lodge was held last night in the lodge rooms when a presentation was made to Mr. L G Payne, one of the most faithful members of that lodge on the eve of his departure for British Columbia, where he will reside in future. He was given a handsome Past Master's jewel, in recognition of his long and effecient service in the lodge. Several members added their eulogy to the sentiments expressed in the address, and regretted his departure from the city.

NO DIVISIONAL POINT TO BE ESTABLISHED HERE; THE OPINION OF STATION AGENT

Peterborough is Not in a Advantageous Location to be Made End of Division on the C.P.R.—Too Near Toronto

NO CAR SHOPS EITHER

Surveys Were Made, But Not For The Erection of Shops—Manufacturing Operations are Confined to Montreal

The statement that the C. P. R. had plans, which contemplated the erection in Peterborough of large car shops, and that eventually this would be made a divisional point, was characterized by Mr. W. S. Dodd, the station agent here, as entirely without foundation. Never, he said, as long as Peterborough was in existence, would the company establish car shops here. In proof of this statement, he referred to the action of the company, in closing the shops at Perth, and transferring the operations formerly carried on there to Montreal.

It was not because there was not a demand for cars, for, as a matter of fact, it was almost impossible to turn them out fast enough; but because the policy of the company is to concentrate their operations in Montreal, for the east.

While surveys had been made by the company of land north of the station and along the spur line to the Cereal Mills, it was for a purpose entirely foreign to the erection of car shops.

Mr. Dodd was equally positive in his statement that Peterborough, because of its location, could not be made a divisional point. He referred to the fact that while the divisional points on the C. P. R. are always, as nearly as possible, one hundred miles apart, Peterborough is less than eighty miles from Toronto. Havelock, the present divisional point, and, according to Mr. Dodd, the place which will awalys be the end of the division, is ninety-eight miles from Toronto, and a little over a hundred miles from Smith's Falls, the next point. Were the divisional point moved to Peterborough the first division would be too short, and the second altogether too long.

LOCAL PHYSICIAN WAS THE FIRST MAN TO RIDE A BICYCLE IN CANADA

The honour of having ridden the first bicycle in Canada belongs, by an accidental chain of circumstances, to Dr. J. W. Gray, of this city. The doctor tells the story of his exploit, which happened while he was attending Victoria College, at Cobourg, in 1866. One evening he, with some of his college chums, were standing at the Grand Trunk station, when a man got off the train with three peculiar looking vehicles which, upon inquiry, they learned were bicycles, or, as they were called then, velocipedes. The man in charge of them informed the boys that he was going to give a demonstration the next morning in the gymnasium at the College, and Dr. Gray—only he wasn't doctor then—was at the gymnasium before breakfast, and learned to ride the new machine before he ate. The stranger informed him that Cobourg was the first town in Canada he had visited with his bicycles—he brought them from England—and that the young medical student was the first man in Canada who had ridden one.

They soon became popular, and Dr. Gray bought one afterwards—when the rubber tires and other fixings had been added—but it is safe to say that he never got as much pleasure out of riding them as he did that early morning in the College gymnasium at Cobourg.

Four Nurses to Graduate; The Graduating Exercises

Interesting Function, Which Will be Held in Y.M.C.A. Hall on Tuesday, October 8th

TO PRESENT DIPLOMAS

The graduating exercises in connection with Nicholls Hospital will be held this year on Tuesday, October 8, in the Y.M.C.A. assembly hall, as usual, and a gathering of more than usual interest is anticipated. This year there will be a double graduation, in view of the fact that last year there were no exercises. Mrs. Douglas will graduate in the senior class, and three nurses will receive their diplomas in the second class, Miss Ratcliffe, Miss Mowry and Miss Steele.

The presentation of the diplomas to the young ladies who graduate from the Nicholls Hospital Training School is always an interesting event, and is looked forward to not only by those to whom the gathering means more than anyone else, but also by the many friends of this institution in the city.

Mr. Richard Hall, the chairman of the Hospital Board, will, as usual, preside at the exercises, and the customary programme will be carried out, one of the clergymen of the city giving the address to the nurses, who will, from that date, start out on their mission. Those in charge of the function have not yet extended the invitation to the clergyman, so that his name cannot be announced.

TEN WEDDING PARTIES WERE ON THE TRAIN TO TORONTO LAST NIGHT

An Examiner reporter was casually speaking with the conductor of the C.P.R. 4.45 p.m. express yesterday afternoon and mentioned that he was taking on two wedding parties for Toronto and the West. In reply he stated that between Montreal and Peterborough the train had already taken on eight wedding parties and the local newly-weds increased the number to ten. In the few moments brief conversation the conductor said that he often witnesses many amusing incidents at the stations. The young people trying to get away from the rice and the other nuptial remembrances of their friends.

"There is something new in this line at every station; cow bells tied to trunks, placards on the seats in the train, grips marked so that the public easily knows what has happened." In fact the conductor could not recall the many pranks that are played on the happy couples that are embarking on the matrimonial sea as calmly as they can although their friends cause a slight storm at the outset.

DOURO PEOPLE HEAR AND ENJOY SCOTCH BAG PIPES

Examiner Special.

Douro, Sept. 26.—The first kilted piper ever seen in this township has been paying a visit to this section, and his appearance created a sensation. Yesterday, Mr. Rolly McDonald, a Highlander, attired in the orthodox costume of the natives of the "banks and braes" of Scotland, arrived in Douro, and is paying a visit to Mr. Michael McCann.

While there are not many Scotchmen in Douro township to whom the pleasing of the bag pipes would appeal, those who gathered in the blacksmith shop yesterday afternoon when Rolly played some of the stirring Scotch airs were delighted, and so long as he remains in Douro he will be a popular guest at any gathering he may attend.

LONG SIDING FOR THE G.T.R.

Will Extend From Ware Street South East Along the Track—Accomodate a Big Freight

THE WORK HAS BEGUN

The Grand Trunk Railway is doing extensive work in building switches, another long siding being reported commenced to-day within the city limits. One was mentioned in yesterday's issue as having been completed a few miles east of Omemee. Early this week the ground was broken for a new siding extending from Ware street along the G.T.R. tracks to the road that crosses west of the railway swing bridge. The work has been begun, several semaphores having been moved first, and the line of posts on which the wires are strung. The siding will be long enough for a double-header, and will help to relieve the congested condition of the local yards. A train can be run down and left there, or strings of cars can be left there when there is no room in the yards.

The siding that runs from the main line into the Brinton Carpet Company's yards will be connected with the siding. The company is trying to remove all switches from their main lines.

The work of preparing the road for the siding will be soon begun, and will cause a little difficulty, as a long ditch will have to be filled in one part of the siding. When finished it will be a great convenience, and will add to the general usefulness of the sidings in the G.T.R. yards.

THE WEATHER.

The weather still continues cool, and the outlook is for a continuance of the same conditions. Highest temperature yesterday 57 degrees; lowest 42; rainfall, .02.

WHERE PETERBOROUGH LEADS

Peterborough has reason to be gratified at the prominent place it takes in the Dominion in the matter of manufacturing importance. At the recent meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Archibald Blue, Chief Census Officer of the Dominion, contributed a paper on the growth of Canada in the twentieth century. In dealing with the growth of manufacturing output, in the past five years of the century, he shows that Montreal comes first with an increase of $28,647,000 in industrial roducts; Toronto second, with an increase of $27,300,000; and Peterborough third, with an increase of $7,770,000. It is very gratifying and in the matter of its growth in manufacturing production, Peterborough should be third in the Dominion—ahead of great industrial centres like Hamilton, London, Ottawa, etc., etc.; but the absolute figures do not tell the whole story. While in the matter of growth, Peterborough is in company with such metropolitan cities as Montreal and Toronto—standing third in the list—yet in proportion to population Peterborough heads these cities five-fold. The increase of industrial products in Montreal, with 365,000 population, is, for the five years mentioned, $78 per head; for Toronto, with 300,000 population, $91 per head; while the industrial increase of Peterborough, with a population of 15,000, is $518 per head, more than six times greater than that of Montreal, and more than five times greater than that of Toronto. This record shows the solid and substantial character of our industries, which, while they may not be as numerous as those in other cities, are more productive and bulk more largely in calculating the importance of the industrial output of the country, in proportion to population, of our several manufacturing centres. While this is the case there should be no relaxation of effort to induce the location of other industries in the city. We can offer as good if not better, facilities in the way of transportation, power and other considerations, as any other city, and should not be backward in making these advantages known, and in pressing them home when the opportunity presents, or, better, when the opportunity presents, or, better, when the opportunity is made. We must not confide too much in our natural advantages to attract manufacturing industries. Some, of course, will naturally seek such conditions, but others have to be sought after, and captured. Mahomet said, "Trust in God, but tie your camel." We may well trust in our natural and provided advantages but we must throw out the lines. The town of Welland is breaking all records in securing new industries. How is it done? By doing it. When Welland hears of a pilgrim industry seeking a place to pitch its tent, the town does not wait for the slow course of letter writing, or for some site-seeker to come; but they despatch on the first train two or three trusty men, with plenipotentiary powers to seize the industry, and bring it home. This they have succeeded in doing on more than one occasion. And herein lies a lesson for Peterborough. Peterborough must keep its lead.

The Liberal party in Ontario may be taking the rest cure, but, says the London Advertiser, there'll be no rest for the Government when A. G. MacKay gets the war-paint on.

THE LUMBER QUESTION

The United States could not bring itself to contemplate the removal of the duty of two dollars a thousand against Canadian lumber before the end of their own sources of lumber supply are in sight. The idea, from the Canadian point of view, is to be delicately dealt with, for, while a free market for Canadian lumber would, in one way, be a good thing for the Canadian lumbermen, the general interest of Canada is to be considered. We must guard our lumber resources from anything like the indiscriminate slashing that has obtained in the United States, with the result that their natural timber supply is practically exhausted. Not only is American white pine gone, but the United States pulp supply has dwindled to the vanishing point. Ontario, through the Liberal Government of the day, adopted a measure of protection which has worked well in the direction of preventing the export of Canadian logs in an unmanufactured condition. The same restriction applied to pulp woods has also had a beneficial effect. There does not seem to be any good reason, from a Canadian point of view, for relaxing these restraints for the benefit of our southern neighbours. If the removal of the duty should threaten an undue demand upon Canadian forest resources, some means of protecting our timber should be adopted. The forest wealth of Canada is one of our most valuable assets. Canada really holds the whip hand in the matter of forest resources, which are, relatively, the greatest of any country in the world. The forest wealth of Canada represents 148 acres of productive forest to every man, woman and child in the Dominion. Norway comes next with nine acres per head, while the forest area of the United States is only seven acres per head of population. It would not require many years of the wholesale timber slaughter, practised by our neighbours to the south of us, to pretty disastrously deplete our Canadian resources. In these circumstances, it behooves the country to take steps to provide for the protection of our interests in this connection. It would doubtless be, presently, profitable to Canadian lumbermen to have free access for their lumber to the United States market. But, in the broad sense, the Canadian supply of timber does not belong to the lumbermen, but to the people at large. In the interests of the country, and the interests of posterity, this supply must be reasonably protected. Whether this is to be done by an export duty or otherwise, something must be done.

CLAIMS FAVOURITISM IS GIVEN

Correspondent Says It is Easy to Get Improvements if One Has The Necessary Pull With the Council

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—The attention of citizens has already been directed, through the press to some of the preposterous acts of the present City Council, since January last. There is one injustice, however, to which a number of ratepayers are being subjected, which has not yet, as far as I am aware, been brought to the attention of the general public. I refer to the manner the comfort and convenience of a number of people is being neglected, and how they are compelled to travel through all kinds of mud and dirt, in order to gain ingress and egress to their homes, while those who are in the "ring" have only to ask for every convenience, and our officials fall over each other in their eagerness to accommodate them. At this moment good walks, which would suit their purpose for years to come, are being torn up and replaced at a large expense to the people, and new pavements are being constructed in a great many instances where they are not required, except to increase the value of property, owned by Aldermen or their friends. A case in point has just occurred on Reid and Park streets, where a worthy Alderman has a number of vacant lots surrounded by a beautiful and costly pavement, while other residents, who have not the necessary "pull" are allowed to continue wallowing in the mire.

Thanking you, Sir, for your past favours, I beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,

"PRO BONO PUBLICO."

WANT WAGES INCREASED.

Halifax Iron Workers Demand Advance of a Dollar.

Halifax, Sept. 26.—The strike of about 200 iron workers, who were engaged in repairing the steamer Universe, on the marine railway on the Dartmouth side of the harbor, and the steamer Oscar II. in the drydock, took place yesterday morning. The men were working for the Drydock Co.

The company entered into contracts to repair these vessels, based upon the current rate of wages in Halifax. Heavy penalties were to be forfeited in case the work was not completed on the date specified.

The current rates of wages was $2.50 per day.

The local union, being unable to supply the number of men required, and the firm being unable to obtain men in any part of Canada, a score or more expert workmen were brought from England.

These men joined the local union Monday night. Yesterday morning the whole force of 200 men demanded $3.50 a day, a $1 increase. The company refused, and the men stopped work. Last night a deadlock exists, no agreement is in sight, and all work has been suspended.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC.

Dread Disease Spread Through Quebec Village by Negligence.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—An epidemic of diphtheria is raging at Quyon, Quebec, near here. There have been two deaths there in a week. Three families are now down with the disease, the schools and churches are closed. The provincial health officer was asked to go there, and the village may possibly have to be quarantined.

At the Kennedy Hotel, the whole family of 12 had it.

Miss Nellie Casey, a relative who was there on a visit, contracted the disease. She came down to the Water street Hospital, but it was stated at the institution that she was immediately sent to the Isolation Hospital, where she died.

There appears to have been gross negligence somewhere, and, it is alleged, Rev. Father Kiernan, Sunday, said that whoever was responsible for handling death to his neighbor was equal to a murderer.

The disease has been in the village for five or six weeks.

BISHOP INGRAM IN U. S.

English Prelate Attends Convention of St. Andrew's Brotherhood.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Marked by an assemblage of distinguished churchmen from abroad, including Rev. A. F. Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, and Archbishop Nuttall of the West Indies, the International Convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew opened here yesterday, with preliminary meetings of subordinate bodies.

The proceedings began with separate meetings of the United States Council, the Canadian Council, and the international committee, followed by a preparatory and devotional conference of conventions, led by James L. Houghteling of Chicago, founder of the brotherhood, and Rev. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon.

Homestead Entries Decrease.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—Government statistics of the homestead entries during the first seven months of the year show 17,844, against 28,245, a decrease of 10,491 under the corresponding period of last year. In July, 1907, there were 3,690 entries, against 4,147 in the preceding July.

One thousand and thirty-two Americans took up homesteads in July, 583 English, 93 Scotch, 28 Irish. Austro-Hungary took up 336, Russians 121, French 39, Germans 66 and 58 Canadians returned from the United States.

In July, 1906, the number of patents issued was 803, covering an area of 280,730.69 acres, showing an increase during the month of July, 1907, of 107 in the number of patents issued, but a decrease of 102,123.01 acres in the area patented.

Railway Men Held Liable.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—Three G. T. R. employes, Saris Slater, operator at St. Dominique; Clarence Howell, brakeman, and Lloyd Street, operator at Vaudreuil, were found guilty of criminal negligence by a coroner's jury yesterday in connection with the collision at Vaudreuil on Sept. 19, in which Albert Robinson of Kingston was killed. They will be proceeded against.

Ships Seek Shelter.

Oswego, N. Y., Sept. 26.—A furious northwest storm on Lake Ontario for the past 24 hours has driven many steam and sailing craft to seek shelter in Oswego harbor. High winds and seas have damaged the breakwater, now being rebuilt. The velocity of the wind is estimated at 40 to 50 miles an hour.

Winnipeg Beach Fire.

Winnipeg Beach, Sept. 26.—Fire completely reduced to ashes the Waldorf Hotel at Winnipeg Beach yesterday morning between 6 and 7 o'clock. The fire caught from a pipe hole in the ceiling in the rear of the hotel, near the kitchen, and in the opposite end of the hotel from the office.

The Annual Lakefield Fair A Grand Success

The Weather Was Cold But The Attendance Was Large and the Number of Entries Greater Than Ever Before—The Races Were Interesting

THE LIVE STOCK ENTRIES

The weather authorities handed out an Arctic atmosphere to the annual exhibition of the Lakefield Agricultural Society, held on the fine new grounds at Lakefield yesterday, but in spite of the frigid weather, there was nothing of a frosty nature in the success of the event. Indeed, the attendance was about the largest in the history of the society, and the directors and officers wore smiles that helped considerably in ameliorating the chilling influences of the weather. A strong, cold breeze, suggestive of coal bills and other disagreeable things, blew all day, but the good people of Lakefield and the good farmers of the surrounding country were not going to be baffled by anything in the weather line, and so they donned their overcoats and winter clothing and came, anyway. They went at the lemonade and festive peanut as if a summer sun was beating down upon the grounds, and climatic conditions were forgotten in the mysteries of the fortune-tellers on the Midway, in the excitement of the speeding contests, and in the interest of the entries in the lines which are dear to the heart of the farmer.

More Entries Than Last Year

In point of entries, the Fair was a decided success, the total being 873, which is somewhat in advance of last year. The increase was very gratifying to the directors, who look upon the growth in entries as a sign that the Fair has gained the confidence and the support of the district generally. In all classes were the the entries large, and there was an exceptionally good showing of horses, the carriage classes and roadsters predominating. The excellency of the horses shown was the subject of comment from several of the judges, and some difficulty was experienced in making the awards in several of the classes.

In cattle there were also some splendid entries, especially in the Durhams, where the exhibition was decidedly large. In sheep, the long-wool classes exhibited were the fine Cotswolds, some fine animals being entered.

The Main Building

The display in the main building has never been better, and to the ladies this department proved about the most interesting of the occasion. The entire space was taken up, ladies' work being the predominant feature, and some really excellent specimens in this line were shown indicating that the ladies of the district are as expert with their needle as the men are with their farming implements. The main building, in addition to the ladies' work, also contained a splendid showing of roots and grain, while a display of flowers added a tropical appearance that belied the frigid atmosphere that came stealing in through the doors.

The Midway

Without a Midway, no fair can be called a success these days, and while that at Lakefield could hardly be termed a Scarboro Beach, it was extensive enough to keep the people amused all afternoon. There was the "European Novelty, the New York sensation, the Canadian wonder," as its owner styled it; the photo button machine, which did a thriving business all afternoon; a gipsy palmist, who revealed the past and delved into the mysteries of the future; a cane rack, and several other ways of separating men and money.

The Horse Races

The speeding contests are always a feature of the Lakefield Fair, and yesterday was no exception to the rule. The crowd was certainly given its money's worth in racing, as the events began early in the afternoon, and were not through at sundown. Two extra heats had to be run in the 2.50 class and three in the green race, and as there was a free-for-all and a novelty race as well, there was no lack of excitement in the ring.

J. J. Cottingham's "Harry Direct" had no trouble in winning the free-for-all, taking the event in straight heats, winning all of them easily. Lou La Chimes, owned by Dr. McIvor, and Geo. Lipsett's "Peggy" had a good battle for second money, the honours finally going to the first named, who won the second in the first and third heats. The time made was fast considering the heavy wind that was blowing and the condition of the track. Following is the summary:—

Harry Direct, J. J. Cottingham, Peterborough	1	1	1
Lou La Chimes, Dr. McIver	2	3	2
Peggy, Geo. Lipsett, Peterborough	3	2	3
Minto, Wm. Yelland, Peterborough	4	dr.

The 2.50 class was a great race, five hard heats having to be trotted before the result was known. It was a two horse struggle between McCollum Bros.' "Black Cloud" and Dr. Johnston's "Brown Gyp," and the last named finally got the honours by winning the last heat after a good race. "Frank R" was never in the race. "Brown Gyp" won the first heat, but "Black Cloud" won the second after a hair-raising finish, and captured the third easily. "Brown Gyp" came back at him in the next two heats, and won handily amid wild cheers from the crowd. It was a splendid struggle all through, and delighted the horsemen in particular, and the crowd in general. The summary:—

Brown Gyp, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough	1	2	2	1
Black Cloud, McCollum Bros, Peterborough	2	1	1	2
Frank R, Champagne, Peterborough	3	3	3	3

Green Race

The green race was the best event of the day, requiring six hard heats to decide the winners. J Elmhirst's Country Boy won the event, taking the second, third and sixth heats. Frank R, owned by Mr. Champagne of Peterborough, won the first and fourth heats and Fred McKee's, Jim, took the fifth heat. The horses were well tired at the finish, but they put up a great battle and the race was not over until dark.

Following is the result:

Country Boy, J. Elmhirst, Keene	2	1	1	4	4	1
Frank R., Champagne, Peterborough	1	2	2	1	2	3
Jim., Fred McKee	4	4	4	3	1	3
Gipsy Queen, S. Blewett	3	3	3	2	3	2

The Novelty Race

The novelty race is always a great event at Lakefield, and the event yesterday was greatly enjoyed by the spectators. The contestants had to harness up their horses, trot once around the track, then walk a lap and finally end up with another trot for a lap. S. Blewett won the event, getting a good start in the harnessing process. Percy Snelgrove was second and G W Mann, of Bridgenorth, third.

There was only one entry in the saddle horse class, and the prize was awarded to Percy Snelgrove, who mount gave a clever exhibition of hurdling.

During the afternoon the Lakefield Band rendered a very enjoyable programme of music, sticking to its task with a commendable perseverance in view of the disagreeable weather. The band has improved greatly in the last few months, and is a credit to the village.

The directors and officers are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts. Lakefield is the first fair of the county, and has set an example which the others will have to work hard to equal.

Put the Blood in Condition
BY THE RESTORATIVE BLOOD-FORMING PROPERTIES OF
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

It is weakness that causes most of our sufferings — weakness of the heart, weakness of the stomach, weakness of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

The result is feeling of langour and depression, and impaired action of the vital organs, headaches, indigestion, spells of dizziness and weakness, sleeplessness, irritability, and a general rundown condition of the system.

Put the blood in good condition by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you have a foundation for health to build on. Weakness and disease will give way to new strength and vigor, and languor and discouragement will yield to no hope and happiness.

Mr. Fergus Conn, Lily Oak, Ont., writes:—"As a result of the severe winter and an attack of la grippe, I was all run down this spring. I soon improved very much by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. My appetite is better than it has been for years, and though sixty years of age I am able to do a man's work on the farm following a team. I believe that I owe my good health to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Mrs. Geo. Battle, Carr's Brook, Colchester Co., N.S., writes: — "Last spring I was very much run down, felt tired all the time and did not seem to have life or energy enough to do my work. Three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did me a world of good and made work a pleasure to me. I have not had occasion to use any medicine since, and have recommended Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to all my friends.

"We always keep Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills in the house to be used for constipation, pains in the back and stomach troubles."

By means of good blood only can Nature make weak people strong, and Chase's Nerve Food is composed of the most powerful blood-forming elements known to medical science. Every dose is bound to be of some benefit to you; 50 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

There was a noticeable falling off in the number of special exhibits at the Lakefield Fair this year, which was not creditable to the business men of the village. There were surely enough enterprising dry goods merchants, furniture dealers and stove and hardware stores in Lakefield to have made creditable displays of their goods, which would have contributed to the attractions on the grounds. It was left to Peterborough merchants to demonstrate how they can take advantage of a good opportunity to advertise their wares. Prominent among those was

Grafton & Co's Display of Modern Clothing

This exhibit was effectively shown in a large, square, wall tent, made of attractive red and white weatherproof duck. The location chosen was directly in front of the exit to and from the main building, and could not have been better selected for catching the crowds.

Modern wants beget modern methods. Clothing is as old as sin, yet in nothing else can there been so much ever-changing development as in men's correct attire. Grafton & Co.'s exhibit of modern clothing was another exemplification of the progress made in highest grade men's clothing. The exhibit was in charge of Mr. Herb. Conway and Mr. Good, two experienced salesmen from the company's retail branch store on George street, Peterborough. It was a representation of the clothes men will wear this fall and winter. Fine quality fancy and plain tweed, worsted and cheviot suits and overcoats were shown, for men of all classes. The new, sensible single-breasted sack coats, as well as the dignified double-breasted styles, were there with well-balanced back that hang without a crease of a wrinkle. The fronts and lapels tailored and needle-moulded, so that the important parts of the garment always retain their shape. Crowds constantly thronged this exhibit, and hundreds of visitors must have gone away with ideas formed in their minds of the style of suits and overcoats they intended to select this season. It was a tastily dressed display. Throughout the show grounds and the precincts of the Fair, scores of Grafton's fancy coloured lithographs and signs were prominently displayed. This and the distribution of their illustrated scribblers, booklets and cards, were in charge of their keen-eyed bulletin man, Mr. Robt. Howland, who missed no good opening to placard the grounds and village.

The "Daylight" Clothiers of Peterboro'

Messrs. Lang & Maher, of the "Daylight" Clothing Store, 409-411 George street, Peterborough, were also splendidly represented on the grounds. They made a very effective display in their own model, portable clothing annex, where they displayed leading styles of "Sovereign" brand suits and overcoats. The [illegible] responsible for good clothes are good material and good tailors, and these have done much to retain the confidence reposed in "Sovereign" brand clothes for men.

Kitchen Cabinets, Farm Scales and Fanning Mills

Mr. Chas. E. McDonnell, of Dowser's Corners, Otonabee, was on the ground, as usual, with his interesting display of the above articles. The utility and usefulness of these articles were apparent at a glance, and are becoming so popular wherever introduced that Mr. McDonnell finds them excellent sellers. His postoffice address is Box 890, Peterborough.

DEPUTY REEVE IN SMITH TOWNSHIP

Names on Voters List Exceed 1000—Municipal Election Talk Already

Municipal election talk has already begun in Smith township and the ratepayers there have something to look forward to. There are some 1,000 voters names on the list so that this year Smith is entitled to a deputy reeve, and therefore an extra representative in the County Council. Last year Otonabee was the only township that could qualify in this respect and has enjoyed two representatives in the Council.

Although still far distant there is a report that the reeveship of Mr. Robt. Scott will contested at the municipal elections.

FEW WEDDINGS IN SEPTEMBER

During First Twenty-Five Days of This Month Only Fifteen Weddings Were Recorded at City Clerk's Office

The early frost has blighted matrimonial hopes, as well as the western wheat. Up to yesterday, the last Wednesday in September, only fifteen weddings had been recorded at the office of the City Clerk during this month, the month in which these events are usually supposed to be the most popular. This falling off seems to indicate a lack of inclination on the part of either the young ladies or the men—or possibly both — to take upon themselves the responsabilities of married life.

Evidently some preaching on this subject will have to be done if the young people are to fill their duties to the state.

NICE HAIR FOR ALL

Once Destroy the Dandruff Germ, and Hair Grows Luxuriantly

Any one can have nice hair if he or she has not dandruff, which causes brittle, dry hair, falling hair, and baldness. To cure dandruff, it is necessary to kill the germ that causes it, and that is just what Newbro's Herpicide does. Cornelius Grew, Colfax, Wash., says:

"One bottle of Newbro's Herpicide completely cured me of dandruff, which was very thick; and it has stopped my hair from falling out." It makes hair soft and glossy as silk, delightful odour, and refreshing hair dressing. It permits the hair to grow abundantly, and kills the dandruff germ. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes—50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

THAT WALK OVER THE C.P.R. BRIDGE

The Divisional Engineer Writes to The Council About the Matter

The Mayor has received a letter from the divisional superintendent of the C.P.R. in reference to having a sidewalk constructed over the C.P.R. bridge. It will be remembered that the council took the matter up about six weeks ago when a petition was sent in from a large number of ratepayers asking that something be done in the matter. The letter states that the engineer is investigating the conditions and will communicate the council in a few days when there will be something definite to work upon.

Good News to Householders ; Small Dried Fruits Cheaper

Raisins will be Considerably Lower in Price This Year—Prunes, However, Will be Out of The Question

SALMON WILL BE HIGHER

In these days, when almost every day brings the unpleasant intelligence that some article of food has been increased in price, it is refreshing to learn that there are actually some foodstuffs which will be lower. To-day a wholesale grocer informed the Examiner that raisins, which last year sold at two pounds for 25 cents, would be cheaper, and at least three pounds for a quarter would be given. The first shipment will be received in the city next week, and they will be put on the market at once. Currants, too, while the retail price may remain the same, will be slightly lower to the grocer, possibly a quarter of a cent a pound being clipped off last year's wholesale price.

Prunes, however, will simply be out of the question this year. They are a small crop, and as a consequence, the price has been boosted until it is doubtful if any will be sold in Canada. Last year, prunes in the 90 to 110 class, that is, fruit which numbered 90 to 110 prunes to the pound, cost about four and a half cents a pound, but this year the price will not be less than eight cents, which means that there will be none sold. Four pounds for a quarter was the price basis last year, but this year, if they are sold at all, it will be at ten cents a pound.

There are no prices quoted yet on dates, while it is believed that figs will remain about stationary in price, possibly slightly lower.

In a few days the prices on canned vegetables will have been received, and, from present indications, it seems reasonable to assume that they will be higher, though how much they will be advanced is not yet known.

Fish, at least canned salmon, will come higher this year. The run of sockeye salmon this season was light, and the natural result, a jump in price, follows. Last year the best salmon sold retail for 15 cents a can, while this year 18 cents will be charged.

Peterborough Exhibition Opens With Bright Prospects

Entry Lists Fast Filling up in Every Department—Many Tents on The Grounds

CITIZENS SHOULD ATTEND

To-day the opening day of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was a very promising one for the directors and nothing now remains but a two-day smile from the weather man to make the fair a record breaker. The grounds are in the best of condition, all available spaces have been taken up by exhibitors, by the directors for the benefit of the exhibits or by the [illegible] the midway.

One of the features of the exhibit this year will be the poultry and already several hundred entries have been made. The poultry will be shown in coops in a large tent immediately inside the first gate. Everything has been arranged for a good reception to the poultry and all kinds of birds will be there.

The next tents from the gate are exhibits by Messrs. J J Turner & Sons as Isolation Hospital Tents and these are creating a good deal of interest among the early visitors to the exhibition.

President's Office

Storey & Leary come next with a splendid exhibit of the McLachlin carriages which are catching the eyes of the young farmers on the grounds. In this tent the President has made his headquarters. A Bell telephone has been installed against the post and inquiries are coming in almost as fast as the "Hello" girls receive them. That is the only 'phone on the grounds and all business with the outside world is done there in President Leary's canvas office.

Several other tents between there and the building are erected all with special exhibits and the midway is shaping well and will be filled up by to-night. Among the attractions on the midway this year will be four or five beautiful feminine palmists who read the hand while it's held. These have been in Ottawa and a number of the eastern fairs and are reputed to be skilful women. Knife and cane racks, moving picture machines will also be seen.

Secretary's Tent

The office of Secretary F. J. A. Hall is immediately inside the middle gate and is a spot in great demand. The entries taken in to-day have been remarkable and there is no doubt whatever of them far exceeding those of the past five years. With making entries in horses, cattle, poultry, hogs, sheep, home made bread, vegetables, grains and everything else the secretary is one of the busiest men on the grounds.

Superintendent J J Bennett who has charge of the grounds has a number of men at work looking after the gates, fences, buildings, sheds and the various allotements of space. Their work has been creditably done and the exhibition grounds and accommodations were never better.

The race track is fast and with fine weather to-morrow and Saturday the speeding in the ring events will be popular as well as the special attractions. Hundreds on the grounds to-day are looking forward to two days of pleasure and profit and they are due to get both.

Interior Exhibits

Every nook and corner of the exhibit building has been apportioned off to exhibitors so that the displays there are worth more than a passing consideration. One of the prominent locations has been secured by Mr. J. Johns, the tea man, and Johns tea will be served hot and free of charge to those who desire some refreshment. Among the other exhibits in the building are the works of amateur and professional artists, fancy work of various kinds, pianos, etc. The building has all been draped with flags and bunting and really presents a very animated and luxurious appearance.

The upstairs has never looked better. Improvements have been attended to there and the fruit and vegetables are very tempting— particularly the former.

Another extra fine exhibit is that of Clarke the jeweller. In a tent to the west of the building is displayed a valuable assortment of his jewellry which is attracting the attention of all who pass. Grafton & Co. have an exhibit next to Mr. Clarke in their old familiar stand.

This morning the vegetables arrived in large numbers and the collection is well filled and the best in years. The ladies department has been filling up all day long as well as the works of art which are especially fine.

The poultry is fast coming in and by to-morrow morning all available space will have been gone. The cheese and butter exhibits have not been so good in years and the grains are all well represented.

Meals on Grounds

A large tent is erected on the grounds in which meals are being served while the exhibition is in progress. It is under the supervision of Mr. Geo. Keith and is one of the popular spots on the grounds.

The latest indications before going to press portends to the best exhibition in the history of Peterborough and it should be the duty of all citizens to attend and contribute to its success.

ENGINEER ON BRIDGE DISASTER

Mr. Walter E. Francis, Formerly of Peterborough, Retained by The Government

The friends of Mr. Walter E. Francis in this city will be pleased to learn that he has been retained by the Government Commissioners of the Quebec bridge inquiry as a special engineer and expert in steel work. This recognition of Mr. Francis' ability in such an important matter must be very gratifying to him.

Mr. Francis, who was formerly hydraulic engineer of the Trent Canal here, is now connected with the Dominion Engineering and construction Company of Montreal, and holds a very responsible and important position with that well known corporation.

Right Breathing Cures Catarrh

Simple Way to Kill Catarrhal Germs in Nose, Throat and Lungs

The only natural and common sense method known for the cure of catarrhal troubles is Hy-o-mei. It is breathed through an ingenious pocket inhaler, so that it medicated air reaches the most remote air-cells of the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, soothing the irritated mucous membrane, and restoring a healthy condition.

Hy-o-mei goes right to the spot where the catarrh germs are present in the nose, throat and lungs and destroys the germs so that perfect health is soon restored.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit with inhaler costs but $1.00 and is sold by Wm. Madill under guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Is Celebrated by Miss Ethel Armstrong, Stewart Street Last Evening

A delightful evening was spent last night at the home of Mr. Armstrong on Stewart street, by a number of the young friends of Miss Ethel Armstrong, who celebrated her sixteenth birthday. About fifteen of her friends were present and the evening was enjoyably spent in various games. A birthday supper was one of the associations of the party.

A PECULIAR BIRD AT THE FAIR

Is Captured in Otonabee Woods, But It's Genus is Unknown

There is one bird in the poultry tent at the Exhibition Grounds that is attracting everybody's attention and no person appears to be certain what it is. It was captured in the woods on the farm of Mr. Thos. Petrie, of Otonabee and is being exhibited by Mrs. Petrie at the fair. The rumour is that it is a young crane but this is not certified to.

A Street Association For Homewood Avenue

Residents Propose That One Be Formed—For the General Beautifying of the Avenue

WANT STREET COMPETITION

The residents of Homewood avenue are inoculated with the sense of the beautiful. Partly through the instrumentality of the Horticultural Society, and partly on account of their own aesthetic tastes, the dwellers along that street are striving to make it more beautiful than any other in the city. In fact they now believe Homewood avenue surpasses any other street in Peterborough for the beauty of residences and the surroundings, but their desire is to improve.

There is now a movement on foot to organize a "Street Association," with a view to enhance the beauty of the street. A well-known resident of Homewood avenue stated to the Examiner to-day that such a scheme would in the near future be carried out. Those residing there are anxious to have a competition for the best and prettiest street as a whole in the city, and this will probably be one of the requests of the Horticultural Society by the Street Association, when formed.

The residents, however, do not believe that the street itself is in harmony with the way in which the houses and lawns surroundings, are kept and their association will make demands of the City Council to look after this portion of the beautifying of Homewood avenue.

The Street Association will have a general fund, and an overseer to look after the general interests of the residents. The question of the formation of the Association is, of course, in its infancy, but there is little doubt that its promoters will carry it through successfully.

MR. R. N. JOLLIFF IS APPOINTED SOLOIST IN TORONTO CHURCH

One of the plums in Toronto musical circles is going to Mr. R. Norman Jolliffe, who has recently been appointed to the position of baritone soloist in Avenue Road Methodist Church, an appointment which is looked upon as one of the best solo positions in that city. This is a church which a number of former Peterborough church-goers attend, among them being Mr. E. R. Wood, who is one of the leaders in the church. Mr. Jolliffe will assume his duties in about a month. He has taken a studio in Toronto, and in addition to his class at Alliston, will take pupils in Toronto. His friends here, and he has a great many, will learn with pleasure of this signal evidence of the success which he is meeting with in his musical career.

A NEW TREASURER IS APPOINTED

Mr. Jas. McCliggott Succeeds Mr. Jas. Barry, as Treasurer of Douro

Mr. James McCliggott, who is Mr. Jas. Barry's successor in his general store in Douro, has also been appointed to succeed Mr. Barry, as a township official, the council at its last meeting appointing Mr. McCliggott to the position of township treasurer, which position he assumes at once. The new treasurer is a son of a former reeve of the township and is, therefore familiar, to a certain extent, with the routine of township affairs. He will make an efficient treasurer by reason of these qualifications.

Music and Drama

"THE EVIL MEN DO"

The dream and the awakening were the interesting features in what "The Evil Men Do," presented by the Summers Stock Company at the Grand last night. A fairly large audience attended, and came away well pleased with the performance. The story is told in four acts, replete with interest and sensation all the way through, but it is not until the rising of the curtain at the beginning of the last act that the audience really realizes that the second and third are passing dreams. They depict the events that might have been showing the effects of strong drink, and the evil tendencies of those in love with gold. The conclusion of the fourth act, however, ends happily, like the novel.

Geo. H. Summers, as Peter Penchant, a bachelor lawyer, made a hit, as well as Arthur Stone, as Tom Payson, the young lawyer who provides the humour of the situation by his funny stunts in doing things "just like me." The specialties were splendid, and the music, under the direction of Mr. A. Harding, who is well-known here, was rendered in excellent style. To-night "The Brixton Burglary" will be presented.

WEDDING BELLS.

CHAMBERS-LAIDLAW

Lindsay, Sept. 25.—The wedding of Miss Ruby Beatrice Laidlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Laidlaw, a well known young Lindsay lady, and Mr. Percy G. Chambers, of Hammondsport, N.Y., took place this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Jas. Wallace performed the ceremony in the presence of a number of guests, friends being present from Chicago, Toronto, Peterborough and other places. Mr. and Mrs. W J Thompson, and Miss Helen Thompson being among those who attended from Peterborough.

NEW MAN NAMED AS SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. Alfred Simpson, a Former Resident, Joins The Mann Lumber Company As Secretary

HE IS A PRACTICAL MAN

Mr. Alfred Simpson, a former resident of Peterborough, and well known among the business men of the city, has taken a block of stock in the Mann Lumber Company, and has been elected to the position of Secretary-Treasurer, in succession to Mr. Nelson, whose other duties prevented him from giving the attention to the affairs of the company, which the rapidly growing business demanded. In view of this fact it was decided to secure a man who could give his whole time to the business. Mr. Simpson, in addition to having charge of the office will be superintendent of the manufacturing operations of the Company. He has arrived in the city, and has commenced his duties. For five years Mr. Simpson was a resident of Peterborough, having had charge of the business of the Rathbun Company here, until seven years ago. He has been in the employ of that Company for eighteen years, spending the greater part of that time at the mills in Deseronto, though for the past two years he has had charge of the business of the Company, at Quebec. He is a thoroughly practical lumberman, and brings to his new position a valuable technical knowledge which will, doubtless result beneficially to the business of the firm with which he has identified himself.

Mr. Simpson is a native of Peter-county, having been born in Lakefield. He has many friends here who will be glad to welcome him back to Peterborough in a capacity which gives scope for the exercise of his business ability.

AN EDUCATIONAL RALLY TO BE HELD

Interesting Gathering Will be Held To-Night Under Auspices of Y.M.C.A.

To-night the educational rally in connection with the Peterborough Y.W.C.A. will be held in the Association building. This will practically open the work of this Association for the present season, and an interesting and profitable evening is in prospect. Miss Mitchell of Toronto, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Guild, will be present and give an address on an interesting phase of the Association's work at the rally, which is open to all the young ladies of the city.

CHANGED LIGHTS ON STREET CARS

In Future They Will be Dimmer—In Deference to Wishes of Public

In compliance with the request of the city council, the Radial Railway Company has dimmed down the headlights on the street cars, by placing sheet iron on each side of the light, the effect of which is to throw a narrower ray of light, directly in front of the car, the diffusion, which was annoying to horses in the past, being eliminated.

HALF HOLIDAY FOR THE CITY'S SCHOOLS

Pupils Will be Given Opportunity of Seeing Peterborough Fair To-Morrow Afternoon

In order to give the pupils of the public schools an opportunity of seeing the exhibition, the Board of Education, has decided to give a half-holiday to-morrow afternoon to the pupils and teachers.

KYLE COMPANY GAVE CONCERT AT LAKEFIELD

Talented Entertainers Delighted a Large Audience Last Night

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Kyle, of the Kyle Vaudeville Company, who spent the summer in Peterborough, and who are now employed by Mr. Small of Toronto, were in the city to-day on their way back to Toronto, after giving a concert in the town hall at Lakefield last night. The affair was a great success, the attendance being so large that a number were turned away. The programme was greatly enjoyed, the acting by Mr. Kyle and his talented wife making a great hit.

Health and Vitality for Old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shattered organs.

FUNERAL OF REMAINS OF FRANCIS SISSON

Is To-Day Held From Family Residence To St. John's Cemetery, Cavan

The funeral of the late Francis Frederick Sisson of Otonabee was held this morning from the family residence to St. John's Cemetery, Cavan. The services at the house were conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, assisted by Mr. Perry, who is in charge of St. Mark's, Otonabee, of which the deceased was a member. Dr. Langfeldt, in his address, referred to the pure and honest life the departed had been living, and to his sterling character.

The funeral procession was a lengthy one, as the deceased had a host of friends throughout the county. Rev. W. C. Allen of Millbrook officiated in the services at the grave.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT YOUNG'S POINT

Services Next Wednesday To be Conducted by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt

The harvest festival services in connection with St. Aiden's Anglican Church, Young's Point, will be held on Wednesday next. The first service will be held at 11 a.m., when Holy Communion will also be celebrated. Evensong service will begin at 7.30. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's, will conduct the services.

MR. STOCKER SELLS ONE OF HIS HOUSES

Disposes of a residence on Homewood Avenue to Mr. J. Zepp

Mr. Walter Stocker has disposed of one of his handsome new houses on Homewood avenue to Mr. J. Zepp, of the Colonial Weaving Company, who will take up residence there. The property is one of the best in that section of the city, the house being most modern in its construction, and the arrangement of the rooms is perfect. The sale was made by J. T. O'Connell & Co.

P. C. Meharry Stops a Photo Button Man Who Was Operating on George Street

The advance guard of the Midway of the Peterborough Exhibition blew into town this morning in the shape of a photo button machine, which its owner set up on George street, and was soon doing a rushing business when P. C. Meharry hove in sight and put an end to the performance, for a time at least.

It was discovered that the picture [illegible] had not a license, so the officer extended a courteous invitation to the owner of the outfit to come over and interview the city clerk in reference to the matter.

THE FIRST SERVICE IN FESTIVAL

This Morning Holy Communion Was Celebrated at St. John's—Canon Welch Preaches To-Night

The first service in connection with the Harvest Festival at St. John's was the celebration of the Holy Communion at ten a.m., this morning. Rev. Canon Davidson officiated, and quite a number of communicants were present.

Full choral evensong at 8 p.m., to-night.

The music will be as follows:

Tallis Festal Responses. Proper Psalms, 65, 150, to Chants 23, 2; Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis to Cathedral Psalter, Chants 174, 67.

Hymns 381, 362, 386, 384.

Harvest anthem, "While the earth Remaineth," Simper.

Rev. Canon Welsh of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto, will be the special preacher.

The services on Sunday will continue the harvest festival.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS SHEEHAN

At St. Joseph's Hospital this morning at 7.30 o'clock the death occurred of Mr. Thos. Sheehan, after several weeks' illness from pneumonia. The deceased who was born in Douro 51 years ago, was a son of the late John Sheehan. He has resided in this city about 20 years and was well known among a large number of people.

He was married to Ellen Doris, 10 years ago and besides his bereaved wife leaves four children. They are Emmet, Eleanor and two younger children. There is also a sister, Mrs. Wm. Quinlan, of Michigan.

The late Mr. Sheehan was a member of the A.O.H. and St. Peter's T. A. S.

The funeral will be held on Friday morning at 9 o'clock from the family residence, 130 James street to St. Peter's Cathedral and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

WESTMOUNT COMES INTO O.R.F.U.

Executive Admitted the Easterners at a Meeting Last Night

The O.R.F.U. executive last night decided to admit the Westmount club into the O.R.F.U. The Ottawa A. C. are also anxious to come and the chances are that an eastern section will be formed with Westmount, Ottawa and possibly Kingston.

THE CRYSTAL ADMISSION 5c

A window that is attracting considerable attention to the passersby is The Tate Optical Company's display, 412½ George Street. A neatly printed card displayed in the centre tells the story.

The display of over 35,000, (thirty-five thousand) records of Spectacles and Eye Glasses made by their firm for their patients during the last few years is something unique and not often seen and goes to show to some extent the volume of business done by this firm. Coupled with that Mr. Babcock says that during the month of August (this year) the amount of business done was greater than any previous month since the firm has been established.

MARTIN-ORME PIANOS

A recognized authority, Mr. Puddicombe, director of the Ottawa Conservatory of Music, says in part:

June 29, 1905.

I was greatly surprised and delighted with the Martin-Orme Piano I played on last night. I found it to possess one of the most grateful of all the modern pianos I have ever tried.

That was two years ago. Mr. Puddicombe writes now:

I have had ample opportunity of testing the Martin-Orme wearing quality in the Conservatory here, and it is perfectly satisfactory.

THEY ARE THE BEST

SAYS THIS IS BEST

A leading health journal in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce;
Compound Silatone, one ounce;
Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, four ounces.

Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known physician states that these are harmless vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

This mixture will clean the blood of all impurities. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Silatone and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid, and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

IT PAYS!
To get old furniture fixed over, it lasts longer than much of the new. Upholstering and all kinds of work on furniture done. Samples of fine covering at reasonable prices.

CONDUCTOR COOK WAS ACQUITTED

C. P. R. Conductor Escapes Consequences of Myrtle Wreck.

JUDGE REBUKES THE JURY

Says If Ever In a Collision It May Alter Their Views—Statements by Jurors — Feared Sentence Would Be Severe—Manslaughter Only Charge Permitted — Counsel Says Mistake Not Crime.

Whitby, Sept. 26.—Conductor Cook was found not guilty. The jury returned the verdict after being out three hours. This was very much to the astonishment of nearly everyone present.

Judge McMahon said to the jury, after he had recorded their finding: "I hope none of you gentlemen are ever on a train when an accident happens, perhaps if you are, you will have a different opinion to that you have just expressed."

Talking with one of the jurors after they had been discharged, it was learned that only one of them had held out for conviction. That one felt in his conscience that Conductor Cook had broken the rules and should be punished.

Feared Severe Sentence.

The others took the ground that if their verdict was guilty, as the charge was manslaughter, his sentence might be unnecessarily severe, and so were for acquittal.

The judge's charge was quite pronounced against the prisoner. No witnesses were called by T. C. Robinette for the defence. Nothing new of importance was submitted by the prosecution beyond that brought out at the preliminary trials.

The grand jury returned a true bill for criminal negligence against Train Despatcher Wilkinson. The case goes over to the next Assizes and Wilkinson was given bail at $400.

Mr. Arnoldi then opened the case for the crown by addressing the jury on the main points of the case. He emphasized the fact that the two men lost their lives by criminal carelessness, which amounted to a crime on the part of the prisoner. The prisoner, in accepting the position of conductor on the C.P.R. had undertaken to cross train 1,492 at Myrtle. He had not done so, and a charge of manslaughter resulted.

The rules of the C.P.R., the crown prosecutor went on, are perfect marvels of completeness. The Legislature has also provided rigid regulations for the running and operation of trains. These also had been disregarded by the prisoner in his capacity as conductor. Mr. Arnoldi then outlined the story of the wreck, and drew special attention to the alleged failure of Cook to send his train orders to his rear-end brakeman. On the contrary, Mr. Arnoldi alleged that Cook merely mentioned the fact in a casual manner that a train was to be passed at Myrtle.

The number of the train was not mentioned. As it happened, train 1,492 was on a siding at Myrtle, and, of course, the brakeman, not fully informed, concluded that 1,492 was [illegible] conductor, without thinking of train 1,488, let his train go on to a fate which resulted in the loss of two lives. There were two hours and a half in which to rectify the order, but Wilkinson, failing to raise Myrtle, had not notified his relief.

Railway Men's Protest.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Hon. J. J. Foy, the Attorney-General, received a representative deputation of railway men at the Parliament buildings yesterday.

Mr. J. H. Hall, in presenting their case, said that, owing to the prosecutions which had taken place in this province during the past year or so, under officers acting under the Attorney-General's Department, a feeling had grown up among railway men that the conditions surrounding their position were such that justice was not always meted out to them. They did not consider, at the present time, that this was the fault of the Department, but they did think that in existing circumstances it was not possible to bring out evidence to show that where men were charged by coroners' juries with criminal negligence, as a matter of fact such "negligence" was due to conditions over which they had no control.

The recent activity of the officers of the crown in prosecuting railway men was, in point of fact, not in the interest of the safety of the public.

COLLISION OCCURED IN A TUNNEL

Twenty Passengers Injured in Railway Accident in France

CARS WERE TELESCOPED

Boat Express Wrecked—Had Stopped In Tunnel When Another Train Dashed Into Rear-End — Accident Due to Negligence—No Lights Were Displayed or Signal Given as Required by Orders.

Nantes, France, Sept. 26.—The transatlantic train carrying first-class passengers from Paris to Cherbourg, where they were to embark on the White Star Line steamer Adriatic, was telescoped yesterday in the Bravil tunnel. Twenty persons were injured.

The train taking passengers to Cherbourg for embarkation on North German Lloyd steamer Crown Prince Wilhelm, which was following the train having on board the Adriatic's passengers, proceeded to her destination by another route.

The disaster is said to have been due to the negligence of the crew of the train carrying the transatlantic passengers, as no lights were burning in the rear of the train, and no torpedoes were placed on the track behind it, as required by the regulations when a train halts in a tunnel. This neglect caused another train to run into the passenger train bound for Cherbourg.

The train was running in two sections. The first section was stopped by a signal, when the second section, running close behind, crashed into it.

HAD NO GUIDING HAND.

Engineer Lays Senseless White Train Speeds on Its Way.

New York, Sept. 26.—While Henry Robertson, engineer of an Erie Railroad passenger train, lay senseless on the floor of his cab with a fractured skull yesterday, the locomotive, without a hand at the throttle, rushed full speed toward the Jersey City terminal, threatening destruction to the train and its passengers. Fireman Fleming, noticing that the speed did not slacken at places where the train should have been running slowly, climbed into the cab and found the engineer [illegible] after being struck by a pole when he placed his head out of the cab window.

NEWFOUNDLAND MUZZLED.

Imperial Rescript Issued In Regard to Fishery Laws.

St. John's, Nfld., Sept. 26.—An Imperial rescript forbidding the service by any colonial authority of any legal process regarding fishery rights aboard any American vessel, and suspending all colonial statutes authorizing colonial officials to seize American vessels for alleged fishery offences, was proclaimed here yesterday.

This, it is believed, will make it practically impossible for Premier Bond to carry out his recently announced decision to enforce the colonial fishery laws.

GOES TO A JURY?

Toronto Employer Sent For Trial on Conspiracy Charge.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—Louis P. Bouvier was committed for trial yesterday on the charge of having conspired with certain other envelope manufacturers to prevent Maud McCann from securing employment.

Knapp said that Miss McCann seemed to be "a girl who is always insisting upon her rights."

Herbert Kent, superintendent of the W. J. Gage Co., said Miss McCann was incompetent and also made an insinuation concerning her which brought a warm rebuke from the magistrate.

Major Carpenter Dead.

Hamilton, Sept. 26.—Major F. M. Carpenter, ex-M. P., dropped dead yesterday while dressing at his home, Lakeview Hall, Fruitland. When he retired Tuesday night he appeared to be in his usual health, and in the morning got up between 5 and 6 o'clock. Without the slightest warning, he collapsed, and died in a few minutes. The deceased was a son of Gerlom Carpenter, a U. E. Loyalist. He was born in 1843, and was elected at the age of 29 years to the county council, where he sat for eleven years. He was elected to represent Wentworth in the House of Commons in 1882. Later he also ran for the Legislature. He was an ex-warden of the county.

More Radium.

Geneva, Sept. 26.—A newspaper states that Prof. Jolly has completed a geological examination of specimens of the strata collected from the borings for the Simplon tunnel. He found rich traces of radium, indicating larger deposits than hitherto discovered in Europe.

'Quake In Guatemala.

Guatemala City, Guatemala, Sept. 26.—Earthquakes during the night of Sept. 23 and Sept. 23, damaged many houses and churches here.

SHOW DEFERENCE TO LABOUR

Manufacturers Claim Unions Are Shown Too Much Favor.

GOVERNMENTS CRITICIZED

Employers Are Disgusted — Condemn Revised Tariff — Does Not Relieve Unequal Competition — Should Protect Home Industries—Demands of Organized Labor—Skilled Artisans Needed.

Toronto, Sept. 26.—The Canadian Manufacturers' Association believe that the powers that be show a great deal too much consideration for the Labor party. At least, this sentiment was very strongly expressed by speakers who participated in the discussions on the various reports presented at the convention yesterday. It cropped out when the meeting was considering the report of the Parliamentary committee, and it was also in evidence as the tariff committee's report was being dealt with.

The discussion on the latter document, which was presented by W. K. George, centred round a motion of E. G. Henderson of Windsor, that the report be amended by striking out the sentence, "We believe that, as in the past, our attitude on this question should be entirely outside party politics." He believed that it was better to eliminate all reference to political issues. This brought several members to their feet and for some time the debate was quite lively.

In the end the amendment was lost and, on motion of W. K. George, chairman of committee, the report was adopted as a whole. The report condemns the revision of the tariff as entirely unsatisfactory and declares the aim of the association to be to secure first, a tariff which would furnish relief to industries now suffering from unequal competition, and, second, one which would not only encourage a reasonable development of industries already in operation, but would also serve as an incentive to investors to establish new industries.

"We believe that the country, as a whole, is imbued with the idea that Canadian industries must be protected against the products of cheap foreign labor and specialized industries. We also believe that the public realizes more than it has ever done before, that the industries of Canada are providing a large and valuable home market for the products of the farm, and that everything should be done within reason which will develop them."

Is Labor Favored?

Strong protests against what was termed the indifferene of legislative bodies to the interests of manufacturers and their careful consideration of all the demands of organized labor were also voiced in the discussion of the various recommendations of the Parliamentary committee, and the report of the British office. The latter was presented by G. M. Murray. It showed that 70 applications had been received to date, coming from 61 different members of the association and asking for 840 workmen. The office was practically operating on a self-sustaining basis. Complaint was made that the Government had declined to recognise the London office, to the extent of referring to it all applicants for information regarding the employment of skilled labor in Canada. This brought forth a vigorous protest from E. G. Henderson of Windsor, who thought it time that a body of so much importance as the association should receive a little better consideration at the hands of the Minister of the Interior.

The first clause dealt with the labor situation, and stated that trade unionism had continued to follow an aggressive course in seeking to further its interests at the expense of the community at large.

The committee contended that the Government's immigration policy against bringing skilled labor was conceding too much to organized labor, which, it was pointed out, represented less than 10 per cent. of the workers in industrial establishments. It was recommended that the resolution urging the Dominion Government to encourage the immigration of skilled artisans should be reaffirmed.

Local Option for Mount Forest.

Mount Forest, Sept. 26.—At a meeting Tuesday night to discuss local option a committee was appointed to go on with a campaign. The meeting was about equally divided on the advisability of submitting the question. Rev. Canon Spencer, who went to Owen Sound to investigate the working of local option, said as the result of his visit he hesitated about recommending local option.

Police May Strike.

Erie, Pa., Sept. 26.—The police force threaten to strike unless their pay is increased.

It was in Erie that the late Detective John Murray of Toronto began his police career.

Actress Deported.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Paula Klippenberg, the Vienna actress, who has been under bond at New York for about two months, was ordered deported yesterday by the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Mountain Peaks Above The Clouds Are Described

Former South Monaghan Youth Writes Interesting Letter To His Niece In The City---A Graphic Description Of Journey of a Lonely Traveller Through The Rockies

Dr. J. W. Barnard, of Joseph, Oregon, who was born in South Monaghan, and who left here forty years ago, writing to his niece, Miss Barnard, daughter of Mr. Joseph Barnard, Bethune street, tells an interesting story of life among the Rocky Mountains. His description of the trials of a mountaineer in fording the Snake River in the dead of night, and amidst a terrific storm, is graphic. He also tells of places in the Rockies where he has stood and looked down upon the clouds. His letter after a few introductory remarks of a personal nature, reads as follows:

I will tell you about an outing I had this spring. It is this way. I am interested in some cattle we have on the mountains, and in the valley of the Snake River some 75 miles from here. When my pard comes out I sometimes go back with him to have a time, generally, hunting, fishing, driving stock, fixing fences, or anything that is on tap. This spring we put in a week hunting bears, and we got two, a big brown one and a cinnamon. I am having my hide—no, not my hide, but the bear's hide—made into a rug. I offered my pard $30 for his, but did did not get it, so you see the fur is of an extra good quality. It is against the law to kill deer now, but when we ran out of meat we found one dead in the brush, and as it was yet warm, we had plenty of venison the rest of the time.

On my trip this time I had some experience in kraaling wild horses. That's fun and it is fast and furious, while it lasts. One day we had a three mile run on the top of the mountain. It was rather dangerous but that only added to the interest. The saddle horses participating in the excitement sometimes go crazy, and a fellow has to look out for them. We had two days of that kind of fun, then we lay off a day, and had a blow out on strawberries. I have been down there many times, but last fall I got in [illegible] in good shape. I expected to [illegible] in a couple of weeks but the day I was too start home one of the boys was taken down with mountain fever, and as I had some medicine with me I stayed with him. We were on the top of a mountain in a sort of log cabin, which they only use when they go to drive out the cattle. It had no door, window, nor floor, and no stove, and the walls had more holes than a poor house colander; the smoke was thick enough to put into a hay-press and be baled. We used brush and saddle blankets for a door; the chimney was substituted for a window, and a fire place in one corner for a stove. We had no floor, and mixed it with water to make mud to fill up the chinks. Then we had it dark, warm and smoky. We had a few candles and would light one to give the man his medicine, or otherwise wait on him, and then blow out the light. We would attend to the household duties and concoct devilment by the light of the fire.

The first week we had it rain day and night. Then came snow, and then the winter set in. We gave up all hope of moving our patient, and had we been down off the mountains on either side we would have been in good quarters, but we were there and could not see any safe way out. One of the boys was detailed to go down the mountain, cross the river, and to go 40 miles into Idaho, to replenish our medicine supplies. Starting out one morning brioght and early he reached his destination during daylight, but on the way back it go dark on him about the time he left the mountain wagon road, and Idaho, and then he took the trail. Let us stay with this cowboy on his way home. So far he has had a wagon road, but now as night approaches his path becomes a mountain trail. It begins to rain and darkness envelopes each and every mountain cliff. But, knowing the lay of the country, on and down he comes, though it cannot get any darker.

At 11 o'clock p.m., he comes to

Summer Again

But he comes out all right, and lands on a bank that is almost perpetual summer, where the flowers are in bloom, and the grass is waving in the breeze, where I and others ten days before basked in the evening moonlight until it was time to go to our nocturnal slumber. But the cowboy soon strikes the trail, which winds its way in a tortuous route up the river and then the mountain side. Up he goes, every step is an ascent, every turn he makes is an extra elevation. Soon he leaves this delightful climate and gets into a cold atmosphere. On and up he goes until he gets into a canyon, which he must cross, and then down in a zig-zag trail around rock and brush, down, down, down, only to climb out on the other side; backward and forward, a few yards to the right, and then to the left. His horse stops to rest and pants for breath; then on and up he goes, until he comes out higher than he was before. He is now up a thousand feet with a wall of rimrock on one side and an abyss on the other; sometimes on slippery sand, at other times on the solid rock. Soon he comes to another canyon, deeper and steeper than before, and to cross it is but a repetition of the past. A mis-step of his horse and he will go falling, tumbling, rolling, down two thousand feet amongst the rocks below!

I think that without some experience in mountain climbing it would [illegible] some of these mountain trails, where one mis-step of your mountain steed would land you amongst the rocks below — "go where the snowy blossoms never wither on the everlasting hills, and the autumn never braids its scarlet fringing on the green of an eternal shore." But on and up he goes, climbing over an unseen trail, to fifty yards above.

He is now half way up, and the remainder is but a repetition of the past, and just at dawn of day he reaches the summit.

Now, let us throw a lasso and rope this cowboy and his pony, and await the portals of the eastern morning. And from here we can see more of nature than from any place I have ever been. We look back, and down 5000 feet there are rough rugged pinnacles, thousands of feet high — mountains, hills, ridges, canyons, gullies, valleys, plateaus, green, where the cattle graze and loll upon the grass. Looking up and down this mighty river canyon, you see sublimity, and rough, romantic nature. Looking past that mountain, over hills and canyons, and away down five thousand feet, you see a silvery looking strip. I ask you if you could jump across it? You answer "Yes," and ask what it is? It is that mighty river we have just crossed. To the right some 15 miles away, are the seven devils — seven mountains, with one foundation fifteen thousand feet high covered with perpetual snow, and they are rough and rocky. To the east we look away into and over the scattered mountains of Idaho, and can almost see Montana. To the north and west we look down upon the vast timberlands of Washington, which extends as far as the eye can see, and there vision is shut off by the horizon. To the west we look over hills and canyons, over prairies and cultivated farms, but we see no further, for the Blue Mountains, one hundred miles away shut off our vision. To the south 60 miles vision is hemmed in by the Powder River Mountains south of Joseph. I have stood here in the sun and looked down upon the clouds, when the vast expanse was like a rough, uneven, yet calm, surface of an ocean. Looking down into this misty maze I once saw what looked like a school of minnows, playing in the water. They became larger and larger, coming closer and closer, and soon out came a flock of small birds!

Some of these mountains are destitute of a speck of vegetation. Many are timbered, but most of them are covered with grass and flowers—yes, flowers. There are millions of flowers on the mountain sides and more varied in colour than Joseph's coat—a conglomeration of colour as painted by nature. Some places certain colours predominate, in other places new tints. And these changes add to the beauty of these vast glittering beds of roses, which extend for miles along the mountainsides, filling the atmosphere with a delightful fragrance. Here is the place where one can stand with open eyes, and dream of rainbows stretched across green woods, and rivers, canyons, and mountains, blooming gardens, with bees, and butterflies, and birds, and nests of sky-blue eggs, or walking around one can see the runway of the deer, the footprint of the bear, the track of the cougar, or hear the howl of the coyote. It was down this ridge that we got our bear and around that cliff to the right we found our dead deer. Once we followed the tracks of two cougar on the next ridge but lost them on the snow line.

Next day most of the boys, eight or ten of us, left to take the cattle out. Two stayed with me and the sick man, and for 43 days and 43 nights we watched over this sick man in a smoky cabin on the hill. Only once did we see a lone traveller and only once did we vary five minutes in giving our patient his medicine or rations. Many a man has had better care, but none ever had better attention. We were hemmed in with two and a half feet of snow. When our patient became convalescent we tramped a path in the snow, put him on a horse, and before night were down in a valley, where things were green. And I got home the day before Christmas.

"Imported" Does Not Mean "Better"

There is a fascination about the word "imported," that some men can't resist.

They think that because a beer is imported, it must be good.

In the case of lager, "imported" simply means "higher prices," on account of the excessive duty.

Because—you can get a purer, finer lager that is brewed right here in Canada, for about HALF what imported beers cost.

This Canadian brew—on which there is no duty to pay—is

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager
"THE LIGHT BEER IN THE LIGHT BOTTLE"

and all hotels, cafes and dealers have it. Ask for "O'Keefe's."

SHAREHOLDERS TO MEET SOON

Dominion Tool Company Will Commence Active Operations at Once—Factory Can Be Secured

Last night a meeting of the provisional directors of the Dominion Tool Company was held in the offices of O'Connell & Gordon, the solicitors for the company. At this meeting it was decided to hold a shareholders' meeting on October 10th, when the permanent directors will be elected, and the bylaws ratified. It is the intention of the Company to commence operations as soon as possible, the expectation being that in about fifteen days the organization will have been completed, and the company will be ready to proceed with active work.

NEARING FINISH IN THE SINGLES

Lawn Bowling Competition Almost at an End—Three Games Yet to Play

The Singles Competition in the Bowling Club is nearing a finish. Last night B. M. Glover won from C. Gould, 18—5, and goes into the finals. Messrs. Meyers and Cunningham play off and Mr. Cosford will play the winner, while the winner of that series will play with Mr. Glover for the championship.

OTHER CHARGES ARE DISMISSED

Trial Set For To-Morrow in Lakefield Liquor Cases Not Coming Off

To-morrow was the day set apart for the trial of J. A. Lawless on charges of selling liquor in Lakefield on August 3 at 6.35 and 8.45 p.m. It will be remembered that the charge of selling at 6.25 on the same day, against Mr. Lawless, was dismissed on the ground that he was not proprietor of the Lakefield House at the time of the sale. The prosecution has now decided not to continue with the remaining cases, so that the charges were to-day withdrawn. They are evidently satisfied that Mr. Lawless was not the proprietor of the hotel at the time of the sales.

LAUNCH OWNERS TO UNITE

Meeting Will be Held To-Night for the Purpose of Forming an Association

A meeting of the owners of private steam and gasoline boats will be held to-night at eight o'clock in the Dominion Bank assembly room, for the purpose of organizing a permanent body, to be known as "The Peterborough Launch Owners' Association."

An informal and very successful meeting was held on Thursday last, when a chairman and secretary were elected pro tem.

At to-night's meeting a committee will report on the arrangements to be made for the storage and care of launches during the winter. All the yacht owners are invited to be present. It is felt that by forming such an association the interests of yacht owners can be mutually advanced.

METHODIST DISTRICT MEETING

Annual Meeting Will Open To-Morrow Morning in George Street Methodist Church

To-morrow morning the Financial District meeting of the Methodist churches in Peterborough District will open in the George street Methodist church. The morning session will be held at 10 o'clock, and an afternoon session will also be held.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Now in Full Swing

Attendance At The Fair Very Satisfactory to The Directors ---Number of Live Stock Entries Surpasses Those of Past Years---Poultry Tents are Filled

THE SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS ARE VERY POPULAR

Peterborough Exhibition on Upward March---Milder Weather Attracts the Crowds And Many Visitors Here---Everything Now Going Merrily at The Grounds

Providence has smiled benevolently upon this, the second day of the fifth annual Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and, in harmony with the assiduous and energetic labours of the directors, has made it a shining light among the five. To-day the spacious grounds was the most animated spot in the county, and held such a crowd as it never before encircled on any occasion of a similar character. The directors have taken every precaution, and have left no stone unturned to advance the fifth annual Exhibition to a level to which it should belong. The frigid weather of the past few days boded no good for the Fair, but the kind benevolence of the weather man during the day spread the contagion, and the crowd came.

Early in the morning the farmers, with their families, from all directions, began to arrive, and before old Sol reached the top notch of the day the grounds were fairly well covered by representatives from not only Peterborough county, but also from the three adjacent counties to the west and south of our own. But it was not until 10 o'clock that the citizens of Peterborough began to appear on the scene, and in this respect the directors were much pleased to see that they turned out so well, and they are expecting the majority of the remainder to-morrow.

The special arrangements made with the railway companies and steamers from the south were also instrumental in swelling the numbers, and it was estimated this afternoon that the attendance at the [illegible] exceeded that of the middle day of last year. The Exhibition is being held under the auspices of the City Council, County Council and the citizens of the city of Peterborough, so that the directors have made special efforts that all attending may be both pleased and profited.

Men Behind the Gun

The men to whom the people owe their thanks for the excellence of the exhibits and performances are the officers, and, more particularly, the working officers and the directors, who are as follows:

Mr. T E Bradburn, M.P.P.—Honourary President.
Mr. R R Hall, M.P. — Honourary Vice-President.
Mr. R H Leary—President.
Mr. J H Garbutt, — First Vice-President.
Mr. S. F. Redmond — Second Vice-President.
Mr. F J A Hall—Secretary and Treasurer.

Honourary Directors—Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, Mayor; P. McNulty, Warden; D. Hughes Charles, Ed. M. Elliott, D. W. Dumble, J. H. Larmonth.

Directors—Messrs. J. M. Brooks, Geo. E. Elliott, John Young, S. Deyell, W. B. Stewart, J. J. Turner, John Brown, Dawson Kennedy, James R. Bell, R. Vance, H. C. Winch, Wm. Collins, G. A. Gillespie, W. E. Conway, Wm. Switzer, H. C. Garbutt.

For Personal Benefit.

Almost every available space on the grounds is appropriated, either for special exhibits or other purposes, and in this one respect can be observed a marked advance over previous years, when the Exhibition was evidently on the wane. Visitors were able to find on the grounds everything necessary to the convenience and comfort of the young and old. In a large tent in close proximity to the exhibit building the meals are being served—and excellent meals they are—by Mr. Geo. Keith of Peterborough. This particular canvas was the centre of attractions for hundreds about midday. It is surrounded by several exhibit tents, in one of which is located the mammoth ton-and-three-quarters steer owned by Mr. Hetherington. This is an animal which is certainly worth while seeing, and is reckoned to be the biggest that breathes the ozone.

On the Midway

The Midway of any exhibition is one of the spots inspected by all visitors, and there are many who mark the success of the Fair by the size and merit of the midway. This year the directors have attracted several palmists of reputed ability and "Princess Romona," "Queen Karletta" and the Professor have been busily proving their worth. Another feature of the midway this year is the introduction of moving picture machines with electrical attachments, where you see the sights for a penny. Knife and cane racks are among the other attractions on the line that everybody travels.

Exhibit Building

The interior of the Exhibition building has been carefully attended to with a view to brightening up its appearance. Each allotement has been draped with bunting and flags and the exhibits are in keeping with the splendid appearance. The usual space assigned for the display of the artists' labours is a strong attraction. There are vegetables, fruits and grains galore in the interior which is also honoured by two tea men, who are dispensing the mild beverages to those who ask.

The upstairs department has never looked better and the fruits that are there are surprising to those who believed that the season had a tendency to destroy them.

The Entry List

As in past years poultry is a favourite with the entry men and this

A SAD FAREWELL TO THE STRAW HAT

"Good-bye to the straw hat! To the unconventional parties who persisted in the wearing of straw headgear on and after the 15th day of September, the weather man this morning gives silent but stern command to remove the straw lid. The finely-worked white sailor style in vogue during the summer of 1907, will be long remembered for its bright and variegated coloured band. But the time has come with the recent drop in the mercury, and the gloomy prognostications of blizzards by Rev. Irl Hicks, for the laying aside of the sun-kissed straw sailors. The straws, with to-day's weather, are decidedly unconventional, and, like "the last rose of summer," they are left blooming alone.

Launch Owners Elected Officers Last Night

Question of Building a Launch House Capable of Accomodating [illegible]

NEW ASSOCIATION FORMED

The meeting of the launch owners of the city, called for last night, at the Dominion Bank for the purpose of forming an association was largely attended and considerable enthusiasm was displayed.

The followings were elected:
Pres.—Dr. Greer.
Vice-Pres.—W. H. Meldrum.
Sec.-Treas.—W. H. Waram.
Executive Committee — A. E. Dixon, R. B. Rye, R. Wilson, T. H. Glover, G. P. Preen.

A general discussion as to the benefits and objects of such an association took place. The question of building a boat house capable of accommodating a large number of launches was talked over and figures submitted showing the cost of erecting a building that would shelter fifty launches.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr Crane for his kindness in allowing the board room to be used for meeting purposes.

HELD DISTRICT CHURCH MEETING

Different Funds Were Alloted at Meeting of Representatives To-Day

The annual financial meeting of the Methodist churches of this district was held to-day in the George street Methodist church, when the different funds were alloted. Rev. H. M. Manning, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church, is the chairman of the district, and presided over the session, and there were present, Rev. E. A. Pearson, of the George street Methodist church, Rev. C. H. Coons, of Mark street Methodist church, Rev. G. R. Clare and Mr. H. Argue, Millbrook; Rev. M. C. Sixsmith, and Mr. Geo. McBean, Cavan; Rev. Mr. Bedford, Lakefield; Rev. Dr. Metzler, Bridgenorth; Rev. Dr. Marvin, Bethany; Mr. G. E. Mark, Selwyn; Mr. H. C. Garbutt, Apsley; and Rev. W. J. Wetherill, Fraserville.

The usual grants were made to the missions at Chemong and Apsley.

Rev. Mr. Pearson and Mr. Wm. Eyres were appointed a committee to visit the weak circuits and missions.

The educational, contingent, superannuation and general conference funds were allotted.

The meeting is being continued this afternoon.

USE THE LETTER BOX FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

With the introduction of the postal delivery system in this city, and the consequent increase in the cost of drop letters to two cents, a letter box has been placed in the door of the Examiner office, and persons desiring to contribute to this paper are invited to use it. Letters addressed to the Editorial Department, and dropped in the letter box, will reach the desired destination, and will receive proper attention. Contributions are invited. There are many happenings of interest which should be recorded, and which the reporters do not get. In order to make a newspaper newsy the co-operation of the readers is necessary. If you learn of anything which should, in your opinion, be recorded, or which, if published, would prove of interest, you are invited to drop a line or telephone this office. A reporter will be assigned to handle the story, and the assurance is given that the interest displayed will be appreciated.

THE WEATHER.

The highest temperature yesterday was 54 degrees; the lowest 39 degrees. At noon to-day the barometer was at 29.39, and stationary, so there is not much likelihood of any great change in weather conditions. A year ago to-day was fine and much warmer, with a heavy rainstorm the previous night, rain falling to one inch, almost, or .93.

ADVERTISEMENT BRINGS BACK THE GOLD PINS

Two gold pins, one bearing the name of "Mary" and the other "Reggie," were lost by two persons in this city recently, and yesterday's Examiner contained advertisements asking for their return. Early this morning both those articles of jewellery were left at this office for the owners. The moral of this story is that it is a good investment to advertise for lost articles in the Examiner.

Ladies' Auxiliary

On Monday night, at 7.30 o'clock, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. will hold its first meeting for the season in the Association building. A full attendance of the members is asked.

RAISE FOR STREET RAILWAY MEN

Nine of the Trusted Ones Receive One Cent an Hour More as a Recognition Of Their Services

[illegible] THREE YEARS

The street railway company has raised the wages of nine of the men who have been longest in their employ on the cars. The former wage was 16 cents an hour, or $1.70 per ten hour day. The wages are paid every second Wednesday, thus by the new scale the pay check of each of the nine men should be for $20.40.

The following are affected by the change: Motormen Thomas, LeGrandeur, Killenbeck, Gordon, McKee; and Conductors Middleton, Connors, Sarginson and Spiers. These nine men have been on continuous duty for the past three years, in fact since the first cars were run, and in recognition of their faithful services they received the raise. The company, like every other company that appreciates good reliable men, are making an effort to retain them if a slight increase will accomplish it. The citizens know that these are tried men and true, and that they deserve good wages.

It is also said that when the other men arrive at three years in service they will be similary rewarded.

LET WELL ALONE

The Toronto News, independent, with a seventy-five degrees slant towards Conservatism, says, respecting Mr. Gurney's declaration for a Haman's gallows tariff:

"There is not much difference between Mr. Gurney's position, and that of the Government. Mr. Gurney would have a tariff high enough to keep the Yankees out; the Government would have a tariff high enough to keep the Liberals in."

This is all very nice as an epigrammatic quip, but the News should know that it is not speaking on a level with the facts. The Liberal policy, in relation to the tariff is, and has been, quite consistent. At the general elections, which ousted an effete and faction-torn Conservative high-tariff Government, and placed a live Liboral Government in power, the Liberals met the objection to their campaign that their advent to power would destroy the manufacturing interests of the country, by the statement that, if given the opportunity, they would deal with the protectionist tariff rationally; that they would so deal with it as not to injure the interests created under it. They came into power and have more than kept their promise in this regard. The tariff was readjusted upon a rational basis. The theory that Sir John Thompson suggested as a necessity of tariff reform, that "the mouldering branches should be lopped off," was translated into practice — the tariff was so reconstructed as to prove a help instead of a hindrance to the manufacturers, with the result that our manufacturing industries thrive, as they never throve under the tariff of the Conservative brand, under a Conservative administration. Not only were our industrial interests not injured by the Liberal treatment and administration of the tariff, but they were immensely helped. Never before in the history of the country, were manufacturing interests so universally busy and thrifty. Whatever merit there may be in the export of manufactured products, this greatly increased under Liberal rule. When the Conservatives left office the total of manufactering exports reached the high water mark of their regime, some $9,000,000 a year. Under Liberal tariff administration, an increase of a million a year and more set in; the export of Canadian manufactured goods rising from nine millions to ten millions, to eleven millions, to fourteen millions, to sixteen millions, to eighteen millions, to twenty millions, in so many successive years; and the pace of the increase has been maintained through all the eleven years of the Liberal Government's administration. Not only has the output of Canadian manufacturing industries increased under Liberal rule, but their number and the capital engaged has also immensely grown. All this was done not under a tariff as high as Haman's gallows, but under a tariff, considerably lower — but rationally adjusted — than under the Conservatives. According to results, the average rate of Liberal tariff was 15.81 per cent, while the average rate of the Conservative tariff was 16.31 per cent. The Liberal policy brought prosperity; the Conservative policy, as administered by them, brought stagnation, a stationary revenue, a dormant trade. Under the Liberal rule there has been great prosperity. Our trade has increased. From a total foreign trade, in the last year of Conservative rule, of 239 millions, the total trade of Canada, advanced by leaps, till at the end of the present fiscal year, it will be close to the 600 million mark, ten times greater than under their predecessors. All around there has been advance under Liberal rule — under Liberal tariff administration. Judged by such results Mr. Gurney's demand for gallows-high protection, will not arouse much popular enthusiasm, or even sympathy. A tree is known by its fruit. Canada is satisfied with the crop, and will be content to let well enough alone.

Give Fair Play to

A really reliable remedy for headache —Zutoo.

If you have got it into your head that Zutoo Tablets will hurt you, you are mistaken.

It isn't fair to us for you to judge Zutoo by other headache cures.

The fair thing for both of us is—to judge Zutoo on its merits—to test it.

If you find it does not cure your headache, sick, nervous or otherwise, in twenty minutes, break up a cold in a night and leave you feeling good every time—no bad after effects, then discard it.

But do not condemn it unfairly without a trial, and keep on suffering. You really do not have to, and one trial of Zutoo will prove it.

We'll send trial tablets for nothing, or you can buy them at dealers in 10c. and 25c. packages.

DRINK PLENTY OF GOOD WATER

Also Valuable Recipe to Relieve Kidney Trouble Anyone Can Prepare

TRY THIS AT YOUR HOME

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well-known authority. "The numerous cases of stomach trouble, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

"Stop loading your system with patent medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines — plain, common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

When requested for such a prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney trouble, the answer was: "You must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so that it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions I would suggest the following prescription, which is composed of only vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy. Any one can mix them by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. To be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often." This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight. No. 2.

MR. ROBT. McCRACKEN SELLS HIS FARM

Veteran Carterer at Stony Lake Decide To Leave the Landing

There will be many Peterborough persons interested to know that Mr. W. R. McCracken, of McCracken's Landing, has sold his farm and has decided to leave the shores of Stony Lake, where he has resided for so long a time. Mr. McCracken has catered on the lake for a good many seasons and his presence in that respect will be greatly missed in coming summer seasons by the cottagers who have been accustomed to seeing him every morning.

The farm has been disposed of to Mr. Robt. Hamilton, of North Dummer, and he will take possession of it about the first of November.

Mr. McCracken and family will probably reside in Lakefield or Peterborough.

THE FAIR RECEIPTS ARE $2480

Lindsay Fall Fair Excelled Those of Previous Years in Respect to The Gate Receipts

The South Victoria Agricultural Society have $2480 on the balance side of their ledger, as a result of the success of the recent fair held at Lindsay. Financially, as well as in the quality of the exhibits, the fair has all previous records beaten. Last year's receipts amounted to $2,360, and the present year shows a substantial increase, and one that has been very satisfactory to the directors. The general fine weather was partially responsible for the record breaking receipts.

A MYSTERIOUS KIND OF ANIMAL

Was Shot on Norwood Road Near Hastings, and no One Can Name It

While Mr. Fred Richardson, who lives on the Norwood Road, was coon hunting on Friday night, he killed an animal which he is unable as yet to classify. The animal is about twice as large as a good sized cat, and pure black; is also bob-tailed, and much broader between the eyes than a cat, although it has the feline whiskers. Mr. Richardson brought the carcass into town on Friday night, but no one could name it, so he took it home, and its coat is now hung up drying, awaiting some one who can tell what it is. — Hastings Star.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers, who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post Card Column,—

Dear Sir, —I think that almost every theatre-goer, among the male sex anyway, have noticed the small boys who gather in the vicinity of the Grand on show nights, and demand money from them. Especially if the gentleman is accompanying a lady, he will likely have to run the gamut of the impecunious urchins, who now make it a business to beg for small sums of money. I would like to call your attention to this nuisance, with the hope that it may be stopped. On Monday night a young lad asked a friend of mine for a nickel as we were passing the Customs House, and he gave it to him. The next day he saw the lad, and asked him if he had seen the show. The answer was, "Sure, I saw the show, and made a half a dollar besides!" This is the way they bleed the theatre goers, and when a young man is with a lady he does not like to turn a "kid" down, although he may believe that they should be at home with their parents, and not left to themselves on the streets.

If the gentlemen who are inclined to be generous towards the young lads would make a decided refusal there would soon be few of them loafing around the theatre entrance. Those boys who are not given the money by their parents or earn it themselves should not be encouraged by patrons of the opera house.

Although but a trivial matter still it is a nuisance and hoping it will be removed by the people themselves, I am, yours, etc.,

GROWN UP.

HORSE WAS RECOVERED AT SCARBORO

Property Stolen From Seabrook, Near Fraserville, is secured by Toronto Detectives

Detectives Tipton and Guthrie were out at the Scarboro Fair yesterday afternoon, says the Toronto News, but on business, not pleasure, bent. From a farmer near the Half-Way House a valuable horse which was stolen erville, near Peterborough, on August from Bartholomew Seabrook, of Fras-13th last, was recovered. The buggy belonging to Mr. Seabrook was recovered a few days ago in Toronto. The horse and rig were driven to the blacksmith shop six weeks ago by Seabrook's hired man, who said his name was Graham, and the outfit never returned. The thief has not yet been located, but the city officers are hot on his trail.

WOMENS' NEGLECT

SUFFERING THE SURE PENALTY

Health Thus Lost Is Restored by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong? We hear every day the same story over and over again. "I do not feel well; I am so tired all the time!"

Miss Clara Beaubien

More than likely you speak the same words yourself, and no doubt you feel far from well. The cause may be easily traced to some derangement of the female organs which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, bearing-down pains, flatulency, nervousness, sleeplessness or other female weakness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result.

The never-failing remedy for all these symptoms is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Clara Beaubien, of Beauport, Quebec, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:

"For several years I have suffered with a female weakness which proved a serious drain on my vitality, sapping my strength and causing severe headaches, bearing-down pains and a general worn-out feeling, until I really had no desire to live. I tried many medicines, but did not get permanent relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In two months I was much better and stronger, and in four months I was well; no more disagreeable discharge, no more pain. So I have every reason to praise the Vegetable Compound, and I consider it without equal for the ills of women."

For twenty-five years Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Her advice is free and always helpful. Address, Lynn, Mass.

VALUABLE PROPERTIES FOR SALE AT HASTINGS

Dr. R. Coughlan having disposed of his practice, owing to ill health, now offers for sale the following valuable properties in that village:

No. 1 A splendid 2 story, solid brick Residence, 10 rooms, large halls, lofty ceilings, hardwood floors throughout, front and side verandahs, balcony, all well lighted by electricity, recently renovated and put in first class repair. Nice lawn, well shaded, cedar hedge and cement walks. Situated on choice business corner of Front and Victoria Streets, two doors from New Bank of Toronto, very suitable for Professional Man.

No. 2 Large 2 story, solid brick Store, 22 x 66 ft., stone celler, full size and nice Dwelling above, occupied as Book and Drug Store, well established, galvanized iron roof.

No. 3 Large Livery Barns, Sheds, neat and comfortable Office and Harness Room, spacious yard, electric lights in stable, office and yard, a money making stand.

No. 4 3 Lots on Park Street, opposite Power House, having thereon two large barns and hog pen, barn No. 1 is about 60 x 90 on 9 feet stone wall basement being block paved, well lighted and admirably fitted for horses, cattle and poultry, large safe root cellar. Barn is double floored with large granary and easy of access by elevated driveway. This building could be used for many purposes and can be bought for less than half cost. Barn No. 2 is a fine building on large cedar posts, 10 feet high, doubled floored solidly built, braced, securely enclosed and like No. 1 fitted with modern appliances, for handling produce, basement is used for storage. The Hog Pen is well suited for its purpose and the value of the whole property it greatly increased by living stream of pure spring water constantly running through the yard. Its proximity to two Elevators, Flour Mill, Electric Power House, R. R. Depot and Trent Canal. This is a sharp man's opportunity.

No. 5 Vacant Lot 50 x 150 between Depot and Radiator Works.

No. 6 17 acre Fruit Farm 3 acres of which is subdivided into 8 lots, fronting on Norwood and Hope Streets, balance divided into two blocks, with choice orchard of Pears and Apples in first year's bearing, wire and picket fences and well on premises, sidewalk to entrance. A beautiful location for suburban home. Should be secured quickly by retiring farmer or man of leisure.

No. 7 Summer Cottage on Ellen's Isle half-mile above railroad bridge in Trent River, Cottage built last season and neatly finished. Best spring water piped from elevated mainland to island, affording good head for fountain, telephone line on main circuit, a landscape garden for small outlay, could make this the most beautiful island in all the inland waters. Local steamers and Trent Canal boats pass a few feet from shore. 20 lb. Maskinonge and large Bass are caught from the island, in fall flocks of Wild Duck are numerous. It is an ideal spot and must be seen to be appreciated.

The above properties will be open for sale, separately or en bloc, until 15th of Oct. Desirable Peterboro' property taken in exchange. Full particulars from T. HURLEY, 282 Hunter St., Peterboro', or DR. COUGHLAN, Hastings.

THE PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION IS NOW IN FULL SWING

year there appears to be enough in the coops to supply a regiment for a quarter year. All kinds of birds are there and of the very best variety. They easily surpass in number those of past years and one of the directors stated the poultry exhibit was never larger.

In the horse department the entries were more than ever and the quality was just as good. The farmers of Peterborough county apparently take pride in their horses and vie with each other in producing the best. The cattle entries were many but there seemed still to be a deplorable lack of sheep and swine at the exhibition.

Among the special prizes are those given by Messrs. Lang & Maher, Merrill & Meredith, Mr. D. Hughes Charles, Grafton & Co., Mr. P. Downham, The Geo. Matthews Company, and Mr. Wm. Pringle.

Special Attractions

Madame Victoria and her 10 trained dogs is one of the chief attractions of the vaudeville before the grand stand. The canines are said to be the wisest on earth. Whether or not this is true they created a decided impression upon the many who saw them perform. The acrobatic work including the funnyisms of the rebounding billiard board together with the remaining special attractions are of interest to those observing them for the first time.

The street car service to the grounds was excellent, the Company taking every trouble to give the people the best service possible.

Altogether the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition of 1907 has apparently made a beginning on the upward climb and President Leary and his staff have every reason to feel satisfied with their efforts.

Hetherington, Peterborough; J R Hope, Villiers; R W Lough, Ida; Frank Wallace, Gore's Landing.

Other products and goods exhibited are:—Butter, cheese, and dairy appliances, grains, seeds, roots, fruits and garden vegetables, plants and cut flowers, fine arts, including oil paintings, water colours, drawings; china, fabrics and wood carving, photos, amateur and professional; post-cards, penmanship, ladies' work, implements, wagons, etc.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

One of the most striking features of Peterborough's Industrial Fair this year was the increased number of special exhibits throughout the grounds and in the main building.

Quite a number of our local manufacturers and merchants took a lively interest in exhibiting their wares, with the result that some of the most effective displays of the kind were made, increasing the general interest to visitors, and, at the same time, proving advantageous to the exhibitors themselves by the extra publicity given their goods.

MacPherson Bros. Stove Exhibit, and Electrical Display

Stoves play an important part in the thoughts of housekeepers and others just now. And the practical display of stoves made by Messrs. F. J R MacPherson & Co, of 341 George street, found a great deal of favour in the eyes of visitors. This firm made a fine exhibit of ranges, wood cooks and heaters, manufactured by the Grundy Stove Company, of Guelph. The superb samples of the Silver King Range were much admired. They are shown with the extended tops and high shelf, as well as low shelf, for either coat or wood. This range is claimed to be the most attractive range on the market. The design is artistic and graceful. The castings have a smooth finish, and the bold effect is relieved by the handsome nickel oven door panel, nickel oven side shelf, and other nickel trimmings. The principal features of its operation are: Deep and narrow brick-lined fire box, large and well-proportioned oven, and duplex grate, which can be removed through the end without disturbing the fire box, sectional top, sectional covers, 12-inch deep fire pot. Among other improvements in this range, is the oven regulator. It was invented for the purpose of regulating the oven to suit the chimney, and making the range bake on the bottom as well as on the top, a feature which in the past has troubled the cooks to overcome. Altogether it was the opinion of many visitors that the Grundy Company had placed on the market one of the most perfect and complete ranges ever manufactured. A representative of the Company from Guelph, assisted in explaining the superiority of their stoves and ranges.

MacPherson & Co. also made a most beautiful display of electrical goods, in which they are large dealers. Everything in lamps, electroliers, fixtures and novelties that is new and up-to-date were exhibited. It was one of the most brilliant and attractive displays in the main building.

A novel feature of this exhibit was the new electric smoothing irons manufactured by the Colter-Cunningham Company, of this city.

Catchy Jewelry Display

There is no question but that the fine exhibit made by F. Clarke & Son, Jewellers, corner of George and Brock streets, on the grounds next the main building, is one of the catchiest and certainly the most valuable in the grounds. Upwards of $2,500 worth of fine watches and jewellry were displayed, to which the particular attention of the crowds was constantly drawn. Such enterprising methods by Messrs. Clarke & Son in bringing their fine goods before the notice of the public cannot fail to have the effect of increasing the sales of their goods in their George street store.

John's Tea

No visitor can enter the Exhibition building without being impressed with the striking exhibit of John's Tea. It is by all odds the most effective of the interior displays, and deserves special credit for the skill in designing and arranging it. To see this exhibit properly it is necessary to a sip for a few moments as it cannot be seen to advantage when merely passing by. Mr. J. John, who was personally present is to be congratulated on the excellent work done in connection with this exhibit. Such enterprising methods in bringing the merits of John's Tea before the notice of the public must have an influence on sales in Peterborough.

For purity and flavour John's Tea has stood the closest examination and test. Great care is exercised in putting up this tea and the neat packages testify to this fact. It is fast making a splendid reputation in this district. Shrewd housekeepers who have learned the knack of judging and testing teas, are now profuse in their praise of John's Tea, and want no other.

A cup of this pure tea was passed out to every visitor desiring to sample it, and its refreshing and stimulating effects was frequently dilated upon. And apparently there was no relapses, as hundreds of cups of piping hot tea were consumed by the crowds during the afternoon. Ladies tried it and became practical analysts of the beverage, while others were heard to speak of the delicious infusion from having used it on their tables every day, and found the quality right and always uniform.

Mr. J. John is a specialist in tea, and thoroughly understands it.

His tea prices are, 60c., 50c., and 40c., also 3 lbs. for $1, and 4 lbs. for $1. The local branch is at 282 George street, next Opera House.

Roy Studio Exhibit.

Just inside the east entrance to the main building, to the left, is the space allotted for the Art Gallery, which is always a pride to the directors. The exhibits in this class number twice as many as last year. Among the admirable displays of photographs are those from the Roy Studio, which occupy the whole of one side of this section. They embrace large groups, 16 x 20 prints, square septia, carbons, panels, etchings and vignettes. When the judges were remarking on the superior merit of this display, they were not aware of the fact that the samples shown by Mr. Roy were taken from his every-day work in his studio, and on which no special pains was bestowed for exhibition purposes. The lighting of the pictures shown is characteristic of the Roy Studio, which is acknowledged to be among the best lighted in the Dominion. There are great possibilities in store for photography, of which the Roy Studio is constantly enamoured. Mr. Roy's work bears evidence of a striving to endow the art with a large influence. In the treatment of Mr. Roy's photographs the aim is to render the natural, to infuse character, and insure those fine qualities that one loves to see in a true picture.

Among the excellent large groups shown were a number of views taken at Senator Cox's summer residence, Stony Lake. These views were from sample snap shots taken by a small 5 x 7 camera, and afterwards enlarged to 16 x 20, with excellent mounts. A sepia print of Rev. Mr. Langfeldt was shown, the same as was selected by the Canadian Photographers' Association for exhibition among the art gallery collections at TToronto Industrial Fair a few weeks ago.

The Sufferings of the Dyspeptic
DUE TO NEGLECTING TO KEEP THE LIVER RIGHT, THE DIGESTION GOOD, THE BOWELS HEALTHY BY USING
DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

You may shudder to think of yourself as a dyspeptic—as one who, through stomach troubles, has come to look on the dark side of things, and to be ill-tempered and grouchy—but if you neglect treatment for repeated attacks of indigestion you will most assuredly become a chronic dyspeptic.

The great mistake is to put the blame on the stomach, and strive in vain for lasting benefit from tablets and so-called digestives. The real cause of trouble in nine cases out of ten is with the liver.

Thousands of persons are being cured of complicated cases of indigestion by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, because of their direct action on the liver, thus ensuring a good flow of bile—good digestion and healthful action of the bowels.

Mr. C. D. Bennett, Maple Grove, Megantic Co., Que., writes: "I had dyspepsia very bad. The food would sour, my stomach would swell up, I suffered a great deal and could not sleep. As the result of using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I am now entirely cured, and can eat any kind of food without feeling any bad effects. They have made a new man and a younger man of me, and I cannot say too much in their praise.

"Dr. Chase's Ointment cured a friend of mine of piles when he was so bad he could not work or even stand up."

Mr. Wm. G. Purdy, Bridgetown, N. S., writes:—"When I wrote to you for Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I was a sufferer from kidney disease, stomach troubles, and liver and bowel disorders. By using one pill at bedtime every night my health has gradually improved until I can say that I am in better health than I have been for twenty years. All other medicines failed, but Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have cured me."

This treatment is thorough, far-reaching and of lasting benefit, and cures the most severe cases of chronic and intestinal indigestion, as well as biliousness and constipation; 25 cts. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

REGIMENTAL BAND IN ATTENDANCE

Supplying the Music at the Exhibition To-Day

The 57th Regimental Band, which supplied the music for the vaudeville performances at the exhibition grounds this afternoon, received much credit from the hundreds of visitors who listened. The grand stand was fairly well filled, from where the races and special performances could be seen to advantage.

MONARCH LOST HER PROPELLER

Steamer on Way to This City in Trouble at Jubilee Point This Morning

This morning the steamer Monarch, on her way to Peterborough, with a load of passengers for the fair, met with a misfortune off Jubilee Point. She shipped her propellor, and was of course unable to proceed on her way and her passengers were transferred to the Water Lily, which arrived in port about ten o'clock, with a full complement of passengers.

DON'T DIE AT 45

Cure the Indigestion Which is So Liable to Lead to Apoplexy

People who suffer with headache, giddiness, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, drowsiness, distress after eating and any of the other distressing results of indigestion, are in serious danger. Their digestive organs cannot care for the food properly, and hence the coats of the blood vessels in the brain get little nourishment, become brittle and finally yield to the fierce blood pressure, and one is then said to have a "shock," be paralyzed, or die from apoplexy.

In all diseases of digestion and nutrition the prescription called Mi-o-na has proven itself of great value. It is relied upon to-day as a certainty to relieve the worst cases of indigestion and make a complete cure.

That Mi-o-na will cure the worst forms of stomach troubles, cancer excepted, and give quick relief in indigestion, is proven by the guarantee Wm. Madill gives with every 50 cent box to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures. A guarantee like this must inspire confidence.

"Be Happy And You'll be Good," Advice of Rev. Canon Welch

The Harvest Festival Service at St. John's Last Night Was Largely Attended—Decorations Were Very Beautiful

AN ELOQUENT SERMON

"Lord of the harvest, once again
We thank Thee for the ripened grain;
For crops, safe garnered, sent to cheer
Thy servants through another year;
For all the holy thoughts supplied,
By seed time and the harvest tide."

The gospel of joy was the keynote of the harvest festival services at St. John's Church last night. The spirit of thankful rejoicing ran through the services of the evening, spoke through the special hymns and psalms, marked the Scripture lessons and was the subject of the simply eloquent and timely sermon preached by Rev. Canon Welch, of St. James' Cathedral, Toronto. The beautiful church of St. John's was further beautified by tasteful and profuse adornments of fruits of the field, orchard and garden. The service, which was fully choral, was taken by Rev. Wm. Major, of All Saints' Church, and was made proportionately effective by an unusually strong choir and the hearty co-operation of the congregation. The hymns, psalms, lessons and thanksgivings were special. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, of St. Luke's Church, read the lessons and assisted in the service.

The Sermon

Rev. Canon Welch spoke from the Epistle of St. Paul to the Galatians, 5th chapter, and 22nd verse—"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith." He pointed out that the outstanding features of St. Paul's apparent contrast is his strong insistence of being crucified with Christ and the duty of being happy, of living a life full of contented happiness with mankind, and thereby with God. The Christian life ought to be one of sacrifices marked with oppress but also filled with happiness. The speaker declared that in the life of the ordinary person there are days of gloom, despondency, and weariness, spiritually, mentally and physically. No brightness lights up the daily existence in these moods, and those guilty of this state are truly a burden to themselves.

Declared it a Sin

Rev. Canon Welch insisted that these people were very wrong in allowing themselves to be so depressed and, in fact, it was a sin, as it is the very reverse of a true Christian spirit. People may attribute their condition to misfortune, or, as they call it, poor luck, but the real fault is in themselves. The speaker said that real sorrow such as that St. Paul speaks of when St. Peter so bitterly repented for betraying Christ, was not un-Christianlike. Continued gloom, hanging unbroken like a pall over the individual, leading to fretfulness and discontent, was a great harm. The result is a denial of God, is degrading to the person, and is a burden to his companions. The speaker pointed out how this was the case, and declared that it was equally clear that the opposite state of mind should be cultivated and gained.

Should be Thankful

Rev. Canon Welch said that we have much for which we should be grateful. People should cultivate looking on the bright side, even in the most painful circumstances; they should talk of pleasant things, forget the smaller worries, and try always to see the best, and not the worst in other people. People who have health, sound minds and sound bodies, pleasant surroundings in their homes and in nature, should be very thankful.

The speaker declared that the old saw, "Be good, and you will be happy," is not so near the truth as the reverse, "Be happy, and you will be good." Great men who have been revered by the people, won their reverence and love not by their abilities, but by the simplicity of their characters. The speaker said that people should make up their mind to be happy, because happiness is such an important constituent of goodness, and they may succeed.

Referring to the harvest festival, in conclusion, Rev. Canon Welch said that it should be a type and symbol of our whole lives. Mankind has countless blessings to be thankful for, but especially the love of God, which is always about us.

The service was fully choral, the responses sung to Tallis, Psalms and Canticles to Cathedral Psalte chants. Rev. Wm. Major intoned the first part of the office. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, the concluding portion. The choir acquitted themselves well, numbering nearly forty voices. The opening of the anthem "While the Earth Remaineth," was beautifully opened by the two leading boys, Cyril Dewey and Arthur Horsfield, and the chorus parts amply repaid their careful training. The voluntaries were from Costa's Harvest Music."

The services on Sunday will continue the Festival.

ANNOUNCE CLASSES FOR SEASON

The Work of the Y.W.C.A. Was Outlined Last Night at Educational Rally—Instructive Programme

YOUNG LADIES ATTEND

Owing to so many counter attractions in the city last night the Educational Rally at the Y. W. C. A. was not so well attended as was desired, but considerably over one hundred were present and spent a very enjoyable time. In the afternoon Mrs. R. Neill, Mrs. Cressman, Mrs. Nugent and Miss L. Rush were busy decorating and preparing refreshments. The decorations [illegible] and the gymnasium presented a very pretty appearance. Mrs. Dr. Scott presided in the absence of Mrs. Roger, who was detained at Mount Forest through illness. The programme was as follows:

Opening Hymn—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."
Prayer offered by Mrs. Morrow.
Pianoforte Solo by Miss Bell.
Solo (vocal) by Mrs. Dixon Hall.
Humourous Reading by Miss Lillian Dean.

Miss Mitchell gave a very practical, helpful talk on her work in connection with the Y. W. C. Guild in Toronto.

Miss Mayneord presented a list of classes for the coming winter. Dr. Greer has kindly consented to give a course of lectures on Home Nursing. Sheriff Hall will again conduct a class in English literature. It is hoped that classes in sewing, arithmetic and bookkeeping will also be formed shortly.

The question of Domestic Science will be discussed at the Board meeting, to be held next Monday, and a successor to Miss Hawden may then be chosen. The secretary has received a number of applications for the position. Miss Coverlry will hope to meet her first class for the season on Tuesday next.

THE THOMSON LIVERY HORSE EXCHANGE at the Snowden House. Some very valuable horses will be offered for sale that have come in today. Sale starts at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. There will be ten horses for sale and some buggies and harness.

CLEVER FAKER GIVEN COLD SHOULDER

Springville Farmers Are Wise and Refuse To Harbour Him

There was a recent arrtival in Springville whose presence there seven years ago made the residents suspicious of him and prevented him from playing his former game. While in that village seven years ago he was an alleged live stock dealer. He stayed at different farmers' houses getting the best of attention and board and each day was driven out by them to look for cattle and sheep, but never seemed to do any buying.

After leaving Springville he went up west and in addition to working a similar game disappeared one day with a good furlined coat belonging to one of the farmers.

These actions on his part had the effect of "putting the Springville farmers wise" and his latest arrival among their midst was coldly welcomed. He therefore left again for parts unknown.

Winter Time-Table On G.T.R. Makes Changes

Morning Train To Port Hope Continued—The Belleville Express Leaves Ten Minutes Earlier in Afternoon

THE LAKEFIELD TRAIN OFF

This morning train to Port Hope on the G.T.R. leaving here, on the arrival of the train from Port Hope and returning at noon, which was put on as an experiment this summer, for the first time has proved such a convenience, and has been so well patronized that it has been decided to continue it through the winter season as well. It was put on in the summer primarily as a means of affording an easy means for Toronto passengers and people coming from farther west, to reach Stony Lake. It has, however, developed a considerable local traffic, and in view of this fact the train will be continued.

There is one important change in the winter time table, which goes into effect on Sunday, though in this case the change is not effective until Monday. The train for Belleville in the afternoon, which formerly left here at 2 o'clock, will go ten minutes earlier, at 1.50. The train for Port Hope in the morning will also leave earlier by five minutes, at 8.30, instead of 8.35. The evening train for Lakefield, which, during the summer left at 5.40, returning at 6.30 will be discontinued after Saturday, and the noon train for Lakefield will leave at 12.20, instead of at 11.45.

So far as indicated on the draft time table sent out from the divisional offices of the Grand Trunk these are the only changes which will affect the local service.

ORDINARY CASES AT POLICE COURT

Magistrate Dumble's Return Marked by Large Docket

There was a large docket at the police court this morning for the return of Mr. Dumble to his official position on the bench, after his return from the past week's holiday at the lake. Vincent McGee pleaded guilty to the charge of being drunk in a public place yesterday. The usual fine was imposed and was asked to be paid forthwith. McGee had not the money so he was sent to the hill for ten days or until some friend comes forward to set him free.

John Strain was fined two dollars for having been found in the same condition, but was given ten days in which to pay it.

John Barrie, who was accused of stealing a watch from a resident of Parnell street, with whom he boarded, was discharged this morning. The complainant did not want to give evidence and Chief Roszel said that from what he had heard of the case a conviction on the charge could not be made. Magistrate Dumble expressed his pleasure at being able to discharge the prisoner and said that he hoped Barrie would never be incriminated on any case of that kind.

Music and Drama

THE BRIXTON BURGLARY

"The Brixton Burglary," the offering given by the Summers Stock Company at the Grand last night, was one of the best presentfed by the company during their engagement here. It was a very laughable three-act farce, in which the situations were very complicated and decidedly funny. Owing to the efforts of two married men to hide an escapade from their wives they fell under the vigilant eye of the police and were implicated in a burglary. Everything smooths out alright in the end, of course.

The vaudeville features were appreciated as usual, especially Mr. Stone's song "A Lemon in the Garden of Love." "Her Lord and Master" will be given to-night.

Double the Postage On Drop Letters To-Morrow

With Inauguration of Delivery System Letters Sent in City Will Require Two Cents—New Regulations in Force

ADVICE TO CITIZENS

Commencing to-morrow morning, letters posted for persons in the city will have to bear a two-cent stamp, instead of one cent's worth of postage, as in the past. Co-incident with the introduction of the postal delivery system, the price of local postage is increased. This is a fact which should be remembered by persons having occasion to send letters in the city. Failure to comply with the regulation, which requires two cents on drop letters, will mean that the person to whom the letter, insufficiently stamped, is sent, will be obliged to pay double postage before the letter will be delivered. It is anticipated that until the new arrangement is thoroughly understood there will be many mistakes on this score.

Letters on which insufficient postage has been placed will be taken by the postmen, of course, but two cents additional will be collected before the mail is delivered.

This is the rule in force in other cities in which delivery systems have been inaugurated, and the residents soon become accustomed to the change, and few mistakes are made.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GUILD

St. Paul's Young Men's Guild Elected Officers for the Year Last Night—Programme For Season

The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's Presbyterian church was held last night and was well attended.

The chair was occupied by Mr. E S Clarry the retiring president, who gave a brief review of the work of the Guiold during the past year which had been one of the most successful in the history of the Guild.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—

Hon. President—Rev. Dr. Talling.
Hon. Vice-President—G M Rogers.
President—G B VanBlaricom.
Vice-President—W S Davidson.
Secretary—J M Thompson.
Treasurer—Allan Munro.
Executive—Messrs. J McConnal, E S Clarry, Ross Cameron, A P McLean, Harry Holland, Graham Ferguson.

Mr. VanBlaricom, the newly elected president, addressed the members of the Guild, expressing his appreciation of the honour they had conferred upon him, in electing him president and asking the hearty co-operation of the members towards making the ensuing season one of interest to all, and of assistance to the church generally.

A meeting of the executive of the Guild will be held on Tuesday night at 7.30 o'clock when the programme for the season will be mapped out.

SCHOOL CLOSES DOWN FOR LACK OF HEAT

Students in the Queen Alexandra Have Unexpected Vacation

For want of heat, the North Ward "Queen Alexandra" School was closed down. The unexpected drop in the temperature this week was the cause but by Monday next the heating apparatus in the school will probably be ready. The pupils were sent home yesterday and told to come back on the opening day of next week.

The furnace which will heat the school building, which is apparently the reason for the delay in heat.

WEDDING BELLS.

KEMPT-BAPTIE

Norwood, Sept. 26.—On Wednesday evening, September 25, the marriage was solemnized at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. Rosson, Dummer, of Miss Gertrude Baptie, to Mr. Alex. Kempt of Norwood. Rev. Jas. Desson, pastor of the Baptist Church, conducted the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a pretty dress of white organdie, trimmed with Valenciennes lace and insertion, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Eva Kempt, wore white silk and carried pink and red roses. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Russel Pearce of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Kempt, who will reside in Norwood, have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness.

NEW OFFICERS FOR THE REGIMENT

Meeting Will be Held To-Night to Ballot on Their Applications—Special Meeting in Mess Room

To-night there will be a special meeting of the officers of the 57th Regiment, Peterborough Rangers in the mess rooms, when general business will be discussed. One of the important matters to come before the officers will be the election of new officers to fill the vacancies which have occurred in the ranks by removals from the city and from other causes.

ANDERSON WORKED IN HASTINGS

Man Killed Near Birdsall This Week Lived in Hastings Last Year—Why Did He Change His Name?

In corroboration of the Examiner's statements respecting the evident desire on the part of the man killed near Birdsall to hide his identity the Hastings Star, of this week has the following:—

"The deceased had been a resident of Hastings a year ago, having been employed in the tannery for some months previous to July 1906, when he left to work for Mr. David Lynch out on the Dutch Line.

"When working in Hastings he gave his name as Wm. Anderson, and claimed to be a widower, hailing from Glasgow, Scotland, where he has two children living with his wife's mother."

DYE WORKS AGAIN OPEN FOR BUSINESS

Boiler Not Damaged by the Fire And Business is Resumed

In the Peterborough Steam Laundry, the scene of the fire on Monday operations are being resumed. The mangle department is now working, and Mr. Hetherington, the proprietor states that he expects by the early part of the week to have the whole laundry again running in good order. The machinery was not injured by the fire, the only damage done to it being that caused by the water, and it is not anticipated that this will prove serious.

THE MUSICIANS' UNION ENFORCED

Professional Jealousy May Result in Blocking the Scheme—Correspondent Writes on Proposal

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I noticed in a previous issue an intimation of a probable start of a Musical Union.

I was both pleased and sorry. Pleased because I believe such a Union would greatly benefit not only musicians generally, but also the music-loving public, for with such an organization we should in time be able to enjoy some of the standard works, sorry because of the supposed feeling of jealousy among the choirs in the city in the choice of conductor.

I do not think they would be represented very largely in a Union of this description, because of the individual jealousies which now exist.

Now, Sir, just one word about the leader. The fact of going out of Peterborough for a capable man means death to any effort of this sort. We have men here with us who are well able to direct an affair of this sort and who are constantly in touch with the local musicians. By the way, I have not forgotten the very creditable performance given by Mr. Dovey of the "Mikado" which was by your own critic considered the best musical treat ever offered to a Peterborough audience. I am not holding a brief for said gentleman. But we cannot forget the pleasure he gave us at that time. Hoping that if anything is done it will be entirely Peterborough.

Yours truly,
"STAGATTO."

Peterborough, Sept. 26, 1907.

THE CLUBMEN SAID FAREWELL

Members of B. A. C. Club Gathering on Eve of Departure of Mr. Ross Dobbin For Toronto

A pleasant gathering of the members of the B.A.C. Club was held last night at Long's Palm Parlours, the occasion being a farewell to one of the members, Mr. Ross Dobbin, who leaves next week for Toronto, to enter upon a four years' course in the School of Practical Science, where he will take up the study of electrical engineering. Mr. Dobbin was one of the charter members of the Club, and one of the most enthusiastic, the natural result being that none were more popular with the young men comprising the membership. Mr. Middleton, the president of the club presided over the banquet, which was a very happy function, and one which was characterized by the bright speeches for which this organization has achieved a reputation. Felicitous references to the guest of the evening, were many, and his qualities as a general, good fellow furnished a subject, which even the eloquence of the young orators led by Mr. E. M. Best and Mr. Wallace Wood did not exhaust. The supper was served in a manner characteristic of the caterer, which is equivilant to saying that it was unsurpassed.

Mr. Dobbin's departure will be regretted not only by the members of this organization, but as well by those connected with the Y. M. C. A., in which he was deeply interested, and in the physical work in which, particularly, he was one of the most enthusiastic members.

ELECTRIC IRON GROWING POPULAR

The New Automatic Iron is Meeting With Favour Among Ladies of the City

The new automatic electric smoothing iron, manufactured by the Collier-Cunningham Company, is apparently becoming rapidly popular in the city, a member of the firm stating to-day that while it had been on the market only a short time, already over one hundred irons had been sold in Peterborough. No efforts have been made as yet to touch the outside trade, but from the reception the iron has met with here, it seems reasonable to assume that when it is placed on the market, throughout the province, it will be equally well received. Those who have tried the iron state that it exceeds their expectations.

A window that is attracting considerable attention to the passersby is The Tate Optical Company's display, 412½ George Street. A neatly printed card displayed in the centre tells the story.

The display of over 35,000, (thirty-five thousand) records of Spectacles and Eye Glasses made by their firm for their patients during the last few years is something unique and not often seen and goes to show to some extent the volume of business done by this firm. Coupled with that Mr. Babcock says that during the month of August (this year) the amount of business done was greater than any previous month since the firm has been established."

POPULAR YOUNG MAN DEAD

Mr. Frederick Howson Passes Away This Morning at Nicholls' Hospital

One of the city's brightest and most popular young men passed away this morning at Nicholls Hospital in the person of Frederick William Laing Howson, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Howson, 188 Edinburgh street, whose demise occurred at 4.30 a.m., after a short illness from appendicitis. The deceased was 23 years of age and was born in Bobcaygeon, but had lived here nearly all his life. He was most popular among the young people of the city and his death will be mourned by a very large circle of friends, to whom his genial nature and many good qualities had made him very dear.

The deceased was for a time a prominent Y.M.C.A. worker and took a great interest in the athletic work of that institution. He was an attendant of St. Paul's Church, but during his last illness was attended by Rev. Mr. Pearson of the George Street Methodist Church, who will conduct the funeral services.

During the last year the late Mr. Howson had been away from Peterborough, having been employed in Toronto and Hamilton, and during the past two months in Port Hope, where he was identified with the Ideal Sanitary Company. It was in Port Hope that he became ill, and he was removed to Peterborough a week ago to-day suffering from appendicitis. He was operated upon on Saturday and seemed to be recovering nicely from the attack. Yesterday he was progressing favourably, but the disease took a critical turn during the night and the patient grew steadily worse until death occurred this morning.

Besides his sorrowing parents, the deceased is survived by two brothers and three sisters. They are Ernest of the Peterborough Lock Co., and Arthur at home, and Miss Lexa at home, Miss Marion in Woodstock, and Miss Helen at home.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 188 Edinburgh street, to Little Lake Cemetery.

The pall-bearers will be chosen from the Pattern-Makers' Union, of which the deceased was a member.

LAUNCHING THE NEW STEAMER

"Bessie Butler" Will Take to The Water Saturday — Miss McClellan To Christen Her

To-morrow afternoon the christening of the new steamer, the "Bessie Butler" will take place at 2 o'clock, the launching to be held at the canal bank, below the lift lock, where the steamer has been built. Miss Gertrude McClellan will christen the new boat. The ceremony will be attended by a number of the officials of the canal, and will be an interesting function.

YOUNG LADY TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

Miss Bartley Had to be Removed to Her Home To-Day

Miss Bartley, a daughter of Mr. George Bartley, Perry street, was taken suddenly ill while at work this morning at the C.G.E. Works. It was thought that it was a sudden attack of appendicitis and Miss Bartley was removed to Mr. Davis' residence, Rubidge street. The Dan Spence Ambulance was called and conveyed her to her home.

Dr. Leach attended her but it is not known at the time of going to press what the trouble was. It is hoped that the young lady will soon have recovered.

NEW TENDERS FOR THE CHURCH

A Modification of Plans Decided Upon—Only Two Tenders Were Submitted

That tenders for the erection of the new Park street Baptist church were considered at a meeting of the committee, but it is not expected that a contract will be awarded to either of the two persons tendering. Modification will be made and another set of tenders called in the near future. Good progress is being made with the removal of the present church building.

OBITUARY.

MARGARET T. McCORMACK

Last evening the death occurred of Margaret Theresa McCormack, the 7 weeks' old daughter of Mr. Fred McCormack at the family residence, 173 Edinburgh street. The funeral was held this afternoon to St. Peter's Cemetery.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses of from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by druggists, 75 cents.

MANY COTTAGERS ON LAST TRIP

Stoney Lake Almost Deserted for Another Winter

The last regular trip of the season was made yesterday by the steamer Stony Lake from the upper lakes to Lakefield. The boat carried one of the largest cargoes of the year, as several cottagers were moving down. The lower deck of the steamer was graced by Mr. Wm. Irwin's cow, which was brought from "Headlands" as far as Lakefield.

Among those returning home from their cottages were Messrs. Jno. Sawyers, Wm. Irwin, Thos. Barrie, W. A. Alexander, T. W. Robinson, Mrs. D. W. Little and Miss Ray.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald, Editor of the Toronto Globe, Will be Speaker—Local Men Also to Give Addresses

THE DATE DECIDED ON

At a meeting of the committee in charge of the arrangements for the laymen's banquet, under the auspices of the three Presbyterian Churches of the city, held last night, it was decided to hold the event on Thursday, October 24, in St. Andrew's Hall. The price of tickets has been placed at forty cents, a price which will prevent no one from attending, should they desire to do so. Mr. J. A. Macdonald, the editor of the Toronto Globe, who has been invited to speak, has been communicated with, and has signified his willingness to come on the date mentioned. It is expected that there will be two other speakers, local men, and laymen, since this is purely a laymen's gathering. A programme of toasts is in course of preparation.

Mr. G. M. Roger, the chairman of the committee, will act in the capacity of toast-master.

Preparations will be made for about 200 men, preference being given to men identified with the Presbyterian churches. Representatives will also be invited from the other churches in the city.

The movement is one which marks a new departure in church affairs in this city, and those who have been instrumental in bringing it to its present stage are greatly encouraged by the deep interest which the men are taking in it, a fact which augurs well for its success.

THE NEW POSTAL DELIVERY

System Will be in Operation To-Morrow Morning, and First Delivery Will Be Given at 7.30

THREE DELIVERIES MADE

To-morrow morning at 7.30 the seven men who will constitute the postal delivery staff of the city will start out on their first delivery. In the central portions of the city there will be three deliveries, and in those outlying, two. The business section deliveries will be at 7.30, 10.00 and 1.30. The men have been given their final instructions by Mr. Durston, who has been here inaugurating the system and they are fadmiliar with their duties. There may be, of course, a few slips, as is natural with an entirely new order of things, but it is anticipated that with the thorough drilling which Mr. Durston has been giving the men, they will give cause for very few complaints.

COMBINATION WAGGON SOON READY

Fire Hall Gradually Nearing Completion —Some Improvements Underway

Improvements are still going forward at the firehall, and in the course of a few days many small but convenient alterations will have been made. The new combination hose and chemical wagon which is being constructed by the Fitzgerald Carriage Company, Brock street, is expected this week, and will be a valuable addition to the hall.

The foreman intends to have the two new wagons placed in the large hall and to place the old wagon in the southern room with the engine. The doors are being changed slightly, and another set of hanging harness will be installed before improvements are completed, and before the formal opening of the hall will be held.

HARRIERS RUN DOWN FROM LAKEFIELD

On a Ten Mile Run Last Night—Three Out of Five Finished

Five of the Harriers were driven to Lakefield last night from where they ran to the city on a ten mile jaunt. The members out were Ray Best, Ernest Wilson, L. Brace, Pete Wallace and Sanderson. Only the first two and the last finished making good time considering the road and the light. They left the northern village at 8.10. Dick Baker, their trainer, looked after the 'bus and those who dropped behind.

New Business Man Tells Of Conditions in The West

Mr. A. B. Brown of Higgins' Hardware Company Says Crops There Are Satisfactory This Year

AN INTERESTING INTERVIEW

A fair and impartial statement of the conditions existing in the Canadian west, from a gentleman who, by reason of the fact that he has spent a number of years in that country, and also lived in Ontario, is in a position to make an intelligent comparison, was given the Examiner to-day by Mr. A. B. Brown, of Morden, Manitoba, who has arrived in the city to take a partnership with Mr. W. R. G. Higgins the new firm to be known as the Higgings Hardware Company.

Mr. Brown was in business in Morden for a number of years, and during that time came into more or less close contact with the conditions affecting the prosperity or otherwise of the farmers there. In that country, to a much greater extent than in Ontario, the business community is dependent upon the success of the farmer, and any circumstance which affects his prosperity is immediately reflected upon the business man.

The opinion of Mr. Brown, who gives evidence of a thorough grasp of business conditions, is that farmers of the west will be as well off this year as they have been in any average year. It is true, he says, that in some places the crops are not as good as the farmers would like, but with the increased price which will be paid for wheat this year the net returns will be satisfactory.

A fact which is true in Manitoba, as it is true everywhere, was pointed out by Mr. Brown, and it serves to show that after all good crops or poor, depend largely upon the industry and judgment of the individual farmer. There are farmers in the west, as there are in the east, whose crops are always satisfactory, no matter what the conditions are. These are the men who are industrious and who employ modern methods of farming; do not depend on luck which is a most uncertain quantity. These men are this year rejoicing in good crops, while those who have been careless are correspondingly depressed with poor yields.

Mr. Brown is a hardware man of years of experience, both in the east and in the west. Prior to going to Morden he conducted a store in Cannington, and has a number of friends in this community, who knew him when he was in business there. He was also associated with a wholesale hardware business in Toronto, learning the business from the ground up.

Mr. Higgins' business has been growing so rapidly recently that he found he was unable to give every branch of it the attention he should do, and when he decided to take a partner Mr. Brown's thorough knowledge of the business at once impressed him, as a qualification which would make him a desirable business associate.

Mr. Brown is removing to the city with his family, and will make a welcome addition to the business men of Peterborough.

How Prohibition Works In North Dakota City

Mr. T. J. Begley Writes Letter in Which Impressions Gained on Trip to American West are Given

PEOPLE ARE PROSPEROUS

Mr. Thos. J. Begley, who went to Winnipeg as a delegate from the Peterborough Trades and Labour Council to the Trades Congress, which has been held in that city, has written the Examiner a letter, in which a description of the conditions as they exist in North Dakota is given. His letter is as follows:

The great labour convention having drawn to a close, and believing the proceedings to have been fully recorded in the press of my native Province, I will still further refer to conditions as I found them in North Dakota.

I might state, however, that I will be heard from later on regarding the wonderful convention of the Trades and Labour Congress in Winnipeg, and the plans outlined for active work in labour lines in that portion of Ontario known as the Midland District.

In the city of Cavalier, North Dakota, one is able to obtain a pretty fair idea of conditions as they exist throughout the State. This centre is governed by a city ordinance. City laws prevail in every department. This city has splendid cement sidewalks, good roads and fine residences, and is lighted with electricity. A splendid weekly newspaper supplies the citizens with the week's doings, and is ably edited. A fine able-bodied man is Chief of Police, and the fire brigade is an efficient organization. The main fire-fighting appliance consists of a Waterous (Brantford) engine. Mr. John O'Keefe, an old Lindsay boy, is owner of the Cavalier telephone exchange as well as the rural lines and private lines connecting several adjacent cities. The farmers of the State have also a system of rural postal delivery, whereby their mail is deposited daily in a zinc box at the entrance to their farms, being supplied free by the Minneapolis Journal, with a year's subscription to that splendid journal.

The tonsorial artists of this State are a pretty important body of men. They are obliged to serve a three years' apprenticeship, and then pass an examination before a council of three appointed by the State authorities. Papers are prepared on such questions as skin diseases, dandruff, affections of the scalp, etc. After successfully passing such examination, a barber is furnished with a certificate, entitling him to practise after taking out a license.

The people of North Dakota have just laid the corner-stone of a fine building at Bottineau for the State Forestry School. North Dakota has no national forest. A few years ago the Government undertook to establish one in the Turtle Mountains, and made a thorough investigation of the project, only to discover that the effort was too late. The greater portion of the timber land of the proposed forest had already passed into private hands.

The Canadian Government was more successful. The Turtle Mountains extends cross the international boundary, and the portion on the north side of the line was made into a Dominion forest by Canada, and its timber is being cared for and developed.

The name of the "Bad Lands" is misleading. The lands are cut by deep and formidable ravines, rendering road-making and travelling difficult; but much of the land is fertile, and there is reason to believe that many valuable woods will flourish if planted and cared for. Here and there in the "Bad Lands" small bodies of timber are found.

Nature having done so little for North Dakota in the way of forests, and so much in the way of suitable soil and climate, it remains for the people to take the matter in hand and plant trees. They began doing this in a small way with the first settlements, and in recent years the State has assisted. It has planted trees, not only for experimental purposes, but also with a view to commercial use. The State Forestry Commission has now published its twelfth annual report—a fact which, in itself, shows how early interest developed in this subject.

Many States are putting forth their best efforts to save what forests they have, while North Dakota, having so little to save, is chiefly concerned in planting. It is laying a broad and sure foundation in its forestry school, where men will be trained to carry the work forward in years to come.

North Dakota, as is well known, is a prohibition State, and being interested in the temperance question, the writer made inquiries regarding the conditions prevailing from a temperance standpoint. Cavalier is a "dry" city, and it is impossible to secure a "smile" at any time. The drug stores are not allowed to sell, and as a result, you see no evidences of drunkenness. Locally, prohibition is a success, and the residents would not stand for a permit being issued to drug firms.

In Hamilton, nine miles across the prairie, conditions are different. The drug stores have secured permits to sell, and the price per pint is one dollar. In purchasing, the buyer has to swear that it is for sickness, and, occasionally, some are known to become "suddenly ill" The excessive price, however, serves a good purpose. In Grand Forks it is an easy matter to procure liquor. East Grand Forks is just across the Red River, in Minnesota, which is not a prohibition State. As a result, the fifty-five saloons cater to the wants of two cities in the supplying of beverages. The same state of affairs exists in other places on the border. The State, of course, has its quota of "blind pigs," but the authorities are showing renewed activity in stamping these out. During the writer's sojourn in the State a man under the influence of liquor was not encountered. It is illegal, of course, to indulge in the system of treating. The youths of the State, as a result, are growing up, to a great extent, models of sobriety, owing to the disappearance of the baneful influences which usually accompany the treating habit. Taking everything into consideration, the conclusion has been arrived at that prohibition is not the failure that many in Canada suppose it to be. True, it has its defects, but they can be remedied by a stringent enforcement of the law. The condition of affairs in this State are in striking contrast to what really exist in Winnipeg, where scores of boys and men, and a sprinkling of women can be seen reeling through the streets in a drunken condition.

The people of North Dakota have the kindest feeling possible towards Canadians and their institutions, and look upon them as a people who are playing, and will continue to play, an important part in the history of this hemisphere.

The farmers are now busy at the harvest, and the smoke from the steam engines can be seen all over the prairies. Men are scarce, and the farmers are obliged to pay $3.25 per day and board. One farmer had his gang ready on Monday morning, September 23, at $3.25 a day, but a rival farmer came along and raised it to $3.50, with the result that he captured the men.

When Is Illumination? Question Asked by Court

The Question of Whether Ontario Coal Co's Sign Was Illuminated or Not of Importance at This Morning's Court

THAT BY-LAW AGAIN

A case of unusual interest caused a little amusement at the police court this morning. The Ontario Coal Company were charged with having a sign, an ordinary common sign, not illuminated like the J. J. Turner special, hanging over the sidewalk in front of their up-town office on Water street. It was not so much that they did not have a sign with a light inside showing a yellow, green, red, etc. colour display in the lettering and margin, but the company broke the law in several respects. As Mr. McIlroy sang at the minstrel show, "But if its' trouble you're looking for, hang up an illuminated sign," but trouble came from other sources this time. In the first place it is not quite eight feet above the sidewalk, secondly it extends more than eighteen inches from the building line, it is not illuminated and worst of all it was not approved of by the city engineer. The useful sign is therefore a very lawless object.

Mr. A. P. Poussette appeared for the company and admitted that the sign is about six inches too low, it might extend a little too far over the sidewalk, but it is illuminated.

The coal company's sign looks very much like a coal bag and hangs from the door on Water street. Mr. Poussette held that the word "illuminated" in the by-law was not defined, and if light was thrown on the sign it was illuminated just as much as "Turner's Special." Magistrate Dumble was inclined to think likewise, but Mr. Hall, city solicitor, who drew up the by-law last spring, said that the word "illuminated" was meant for only one style of sign. There followed a warm argument between Mr. Hall, the magistrate and Chief Roszel. The former still maintained that signs like the big one over Turner's building or the one at the Oriental Hotel were not "illuminated" signs, even though light was thrown on the letters.

Is it Lawful

Mr. Poussette went further and said that the by-law was ultra vires and could not be enforced. He said that there is nothing in the Municipal Act to give the authority for passing such a by-law. He further stated that by common right every merchant has the privilege to hang a sign over his store entrance.

Magistrate Dumble remarked that the city was not trying to fight the citizens, but merely protect their lives from dangerous signs. If the sign was illuminated by lights from a window, as the defence claimed, their sign was. His Worship advised the company to pay their license fee as it would be cheaper and better. The case was enlarged for a week, when the company will try and comply with the law, even going so far as to get the approval of the city engineer.

A CASE OF WHERE THERE'S SMOKE THERE IS NO FIRE

A few weeks ago a fire alarm was sent in from the Roy Studio. While there was no fire visable, the place filled with smoke and it was assumed, naturally, that where there was smoke there must be fire. A diligent search, however, failed to reveal any fire, and gradually the smoke disappeared, leaving its origin a mystery. This morning the experience was repeated; the studio filled with smoke, coming down the fireplace, and, apparently up through the cracks in the floor. There was no fire in the place, and again it was impossible to understand where the smoke was coming from. Mr. Roy, however, this time determined to discover the cause for this mysterious occurrance. It was easy, when an investigation showed that Mr. W. H. Moore, whose law offices are on the opposite side of the partition, and the pipe from whose stove enters the same chimney, had lit a fire in a stove in his office, and the smoke, instead of going up the chimney came through the fireplace into the Studio. This condition prevailed only a few minutes, and the mystery was solved for all time.

Debris of Burned Grand Stand at Riverside Removed Preparatory To Re-building

A citizen to-day called the attention of the Examiner to the commendable action of the owners of Riverside Park in clearing up the debris resulting from the fire, which destroyed the grand stand a few weeks ago. The grounds have been entirely cleared up and put in excellent condition, preparatory to the re-building of the structure early in the spring.

Thompson, of this city, acted as ribbon bearer at the wedding of her cousin, Miss Ruby Beatrice Laidlaw, which took place in Lindsay Wednesday afternoon. Referring to Miss Thompson the Post says:—"Helen was daintily dressed in white embroidered nuit, and wore a veil and sweet peas."

A BEAUTY COMPETITION; GILMOUR VS. HOMEWOOD

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice that some ambitious Homewood avenue resident thinks that that street surpasses any other street in the city for beauty of residences, etc. He is welcome to his opinion, for it is a poor one—that is, mistaken. I believe any competent judge would give Gilmour street the prize in a beauty competition—in fact I believe for real elements of civic beauty—residences, lawns, trees and, of course, people—Gilmour street can hold its own with any street in the city. Anyway I challenge any street of similar length to a competition. If I quite approve of the idea advanced, as I have noticed frequently in the Examiner, of forming a Street — Improvement I suppose—Association. It will create rivalry among residents and constitute a power in bringing pressure to bear upon the aldermen to remedy the beastly condition of Homewood avenue, west of Walton street, which I am told, has never had any work, outlay of pavements and sewers, done on it since it was opened. I hope that a strong Association will be formed for Homewood avenue and Gilmour street as well, and, for the matter of that, for every residence street in the city. I hope some public-spirited citizen will arrange some sort of organized competition with some nominal prize, a diploma or something of the kind, put in such a shape as to be affixed publicly at the head of the lucky street, winning the beauty prize. If such a thing could be made general the appearance of the city would be revolutionized in one season. Meantime I challenge Homewood avenue to a competition.

Yours, very truly,
West End Gilmourite.

PARKER'S DYE WORKS AGAIN OPEN

Mr. R. Beach Displays Commendable Enterprise in Business Ability—Plant Running To-Day

This morning Parker's Dye Works, the proprietor of which is Mr. R. Beach, was again placed in operation, after the disastrous fire which occurred on Monday night, and which, made it necessary to suspend business temporarily. Energetic work on the part of Mr. Beach made the re-opening of the business in such a short time possible. In spite of the fact that the greater portion of the business premises were destroyed, together with the plant and dyes, Mr. Beach has succeeded in a remarkably short time in putting the business in shape to resume operations, and any work given him now will be promptly and satisfactorily attended to.

The loss to Mr. Beach will be heavy, since there was no insurance, whatever on the contents of the rear portion of the building, where the greatest amount of damage was done. With commendable enterprise, however, he has surmounted the difficulties, and that he has been able to resume work in such a short time is a credit to his energy and ability.

WILL USE WOOD THIS WINTER

On Account of Increase in Price of Coal More Wood Will be Burned

The steamer Ajax left yesterday for Stony Lake to bring another load of wood for Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald's yards here. She has been engaged in this trade practically all fall, and a large quantity of wood has been brought to the city. The prospects are that wood will be plentiful this winter, and, in view of the fact that coal will be dearer, it is assumed that there will be more wood used than would have been were coal cheaper.

Internal Economy of The Home of The Telephone

What "Central" in Telephone Phrasealogy Stands For—When The Line is "Busy" And When Girls Dance on a Slack Wire

AN INTERESTING OPERATION

The Evolution of the Telephone—Modern Method of Communication—A Necessity of Business And Domestic Life To-Day

A veritable barometer is the room in which the composite being known as "Central" has her haunt. Without lookin out of the window she could tell you if the fair-seeming morning had belied itself and given place to storm and wind. But her reading of "probabilities" might be various, for this would depend on whether people saw the world through rose coloured glasses or not.

There is only modern magic about this. As sure as a rainy day comes "central" herself "gets busy" in abnormal fashion. Engagements have to be cancelled, and new arrangements made; messages are sent home asking for rubbers and umbrella for a foolish and over-trusting virgin; pater-familias decides he'll take lunch down town, and rings up to tell "mother" this; a disappointed, yet still hopeful man and maid discuss the Saturday outing and decide that it won't rain all day anyway, just because they don't want it to. So that, just on account of the weather, "central" may be sure of the incessant winking of the lights before her, which indicate that someone is calling for a number.

"Central" is a curving row of girls. She is by no means the same at all times of the day, but she is always at her post just the same. The busiest operating hours are from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., during which time all operating positions are filled. From 6 p.m. till 12 o'clock the load gradually decreases, and is very light until 6 a.m., when it commences to increase.

Five minutes before 12 a.m. and 6 p.m. there is a great rush, arrangements being made for luncheon, while clerks are finishing up their business in a hurry. Five minutes past the hour and everything falls flat as the proverbial pancake. When the rush is on it may be that the new girl gets "rattled" perhaps, and the "supervisor," keeping close watch over the nine girls in her charge, steadies and shows and helps her. These supervisors are constantly walking up and down, bending over and straightening out tangles generally. Those who are afraid that "central" takes too much interest in their business should stand for a few moments in the great semi-circle of the hall, and watch a girl at her work. No one is allowed in this room except on very special business, and I am only taking a hypothetical case, being myself among those given the privilege for the better preparation of this article. One sees that the girl is kept busy all the time. A more technical description of what she does will be given later, but the impressionistic view of "central" is this: A large room, the centre void but for a few desks, where the chief operator, her assistant, the information and observation clerks are seated; a curving row of girls, the view presented consisting wholly of back and profile; plying fingers busy with cords of fawn, green, black and red. The lithe figures of the girls bend this way and that as the plug slips into its appointed place, for sometimes they must reach out into what seemed their neighbour's territory. Day and night the interweaving goes on, and the burrowing cords whisper all kinds of things to each other.

No Argument Allowed

The quietness of the place strikes one as wonderful, for "central" might conceivably be wrestling mentally with a man who did not believe a line was busy, and who said so forcibly. No argument is ever allowed; if he cannot get what he considers satisfaction the chief operator is called at once into consultation. But as for the noise and hum of consultation, a quartette of bridge players could make themselves more evident in the scheme of things, it would seem. The discipline is certainly excellent, and a chat with the chief operator, makes one realise why this is so. Not that she has in the least the appearance or bearing of a martinet, but that she seems so quietly capable and resourceful, able to handle girls with tact, while allowing no license and no shirking. She has many words of praise for her staff and her pride in it would seem quite justified, it takes two or three weeks of patient teaching before a new girl is ready to enter on her work, relying on herself, and very often her parents move away, or some other cause takes her from the work. Marriage is very often the reason assigned for leaving. At one time there was quite an exodus, for the work of a shop-girl seemed more alluring than the constant answering of enquiries, but after a certain period of experiment nearly all came back to the telephone work, which they found easier and lighter. There is no standing on the feet for long hours, and a querulous customer is a good deal more trying than even an irate man who can't make himself understood, or a woman who speaks everywhere except into the transmitter. In old days "central" used to sometimes help out certain people more than she should. This is strictly frowned down upon, and the aim is to have alert, quick service with no impartiality.

Three Essential Qualifications

It is a big order, and all girls are not gifted with the three qualifications which the inspector of service considers essential: Good common sense, good nerves and good temper. The employees are engaged when over sixteen years of age; they are given a thorough trial, and it is their misfortune or their fault if they do not make a success of the work. For one thing, there is a right and a wrong way of repeating a number. Since the great object is to save time a rising inflection is to be avoided, as this means that the enquirer says "Yes" in answer to the seeming question. The number must be repeated, but in a definite, comprehending way.

A great many telephone users of today have very little or any knowledge of what actually takes place when they take down the receiver and impatiently wait for central to answer "number?" Some, of course, are under the impression that the operator is waiting for each call to come in, and that she has ample time to devote to each individual call. This is quite impossible, as each operator has over one hundred lines for which to make connections, and during busy hours she handles on an average of two hundred and fifty connections per hour. From this the subscriber will readily see that it is to his or her interest to occupy as little of the operator's time as possible.

Method of Making Connection

When the subscriber removes the receiver from the hook the line signal lights at the "central" switchboard; the operator inserts an answering plug into the answering "jack," located above the line lamp, allowing the signal of the answering cord to remain out, indicating to the operator that the subscriber is on the line. The operator throws forward the listening key associated with the cord and says "number?" The subscriber then gives the desired number (for example No. 2990) to the operator, who repeats it back to the subscriber, two-nine-nine-o. The operator picks up the plug, or calling plug, of the pair used and locates the multiple jack to two-nine-nine-o. She then touches the tip of the calling plug to the rim of the multiple jack. If the operator gets a distinct click, she then informs the party calling that "line is busy." If the operator gets no click, the calling plug is inserted into the jack of the number called, and the party is rung by depressing the ringing key associated with the pair of cords used. The insertion of the plug lights the signal on the calling cord. When No. 2990 answers the telephone this signal goes out, which indicates to operator that party has answered. After both parties have finished conversation and have hung receivers on hook, both cord signals light up and indicate to operator that conversation is finished. The operator, upon seeing that both cords are lighted, takes down the connection. If either party desires a second connection he should hang his receiver up for at least five seconds to allow the operator to take down previous connection. If he is cut off and can't get the number from "central" the chief operator should be asked for.

"Information" or "Inquiry," as she is called, in some cities, is a young woman, multiplied more or less, who gives you the missing link in your chain of memory. She knows the telephone book off by heart, practically, or should know it, the latter being intercleared and corrected daily. A bulletin is sent to the desk each day, giving any alterations made, and these are then checked and duly entered. She is not supposed to tell the exact time of day, nor the result of the ball game. When a big event is exciting the world a special detail is set to answering questions, this for the convenience of the patrons primarily, but also because the "load" would otherwise become too heavy. "Observation" sits at her desk, and when called upon, watches a line reported in difficulties, trying to find if the fault is in the service or not.

Is There Enough "Kicking"

One of the officials in touch with affairs declares that in his opinion people do not "kick" enough—that is to say, rather than bother over complaining some petty annoyance that could be easily remedied, if known. A subofficial, (who is nearer the complainant, maybe) demurred to this very emphatically. "If they don't kick to us they'll tell every man on the street that they meet, and so our reputation suffers. I find West is just about the same as East, and Winnipeg is as fond of knowing the reason why as Toronto." So each in his experience has a different answer to give. It is, to be feared that the Winnipegger will not vex his conscience over the matter one way or the other. He will go on saying: "Isn't Centra' awful!" when a storm has put two hundred phones out of order, and can scarcely be expected to believe that just as soon as everything was fixed up a second storm should do the damage all over again. But this recently happened.

Indistinct Speaking

But we are almost as bad, so indistinctly do we speak. The authority above quoted has ideas on the subject of times saying that he wishes telephone users would adopt. One of these suggestions is that when a man answers a ring he should give his own name or position in a firm instead of saying, "Hello." For instance, we have all gone through the wearying process of saying: "Is that Mrs. So-and-So?" "Yes." "Well, I'm so glad to find you in; you remember what we were speaking of this morning?" And then comes, "Oh, did you want to speak to Mrs. So-and-So? Wait till I call her." If the servant could say: "Mrs. So-and-So's house, maid speaking," as soon as connection is made it would save a lot of exasperation. And men too in their offices could say: "Brown or bookkeeper speaking."

Men are pretty frequent offenders, according to my authority, in not answering quickly. They will be deep in conversation and will allow the 'phone on their desk beside them to ring over and over again. A woman, be it said to her credit, answers promptly, by all official testimony.

Not long ago complaint was made by a subscriber as to the length of time before connection was established in one instance, and it was found that the man at the other end waited nineteen seconds before answering. Now, fifteen seconds is pretty well the limit and it was no wonder that patience came to an end, but this delay was really not the company's fault, and is typical of many another "complaint."

Frequent Annoyance

Men are also the chief offenders, it appears, in leaving the 'phone off the hook. The extent of this annoyance and interruption to service may be judged from the fact that in one day over 200 cases had to be attended to.

There is a mechanical device known as the "howler" which usually proves effective in restoring communication, as its howling, booming noise is somewhat upsetting to the nerves if long continued. One person said that it sounded

STEAMBOAT MEN DUCKED

Two of the Crew of the Monarch Had An Unpleasant Experience in a Thursday Night

THE GANG PLANK FELL

Mr. James Tobin, mate on the steamer Otonabee, but who, since the assignment to Capt. Harris, of the Monarch, has been employed on that steamer, and Mr. Dan. McAllister, also of the Monarch, met with an unpleasant experience last night at Gore's Landing, which fortunately did not end as seriously as it gave promise of doing at one time. They were going aboard the steamer, when the gangplank upon which they were walking dropped at one end, and both men were precipitated into the water. They were some time in the water before those on the steamer discovered their plight and came to their assistance.

WORK ON BENSON STREET SEWER BEGINS

Will Probably be Completed in Month's Time—Connects With Normal

The construction of the Benson street sewer has been begun, and the chairman of the Board of Works expects that it will be completed inside of a month. The work is being done by day labour by Mr. Martin Neary's complement of men, under the foremanship of Mr. Kennedy, on account of the former's illness. The Benson street sewer will connect with the Normal School.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mix, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, sciatica, lame back and lumbago, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars of it.

A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work of filtering all poisonous waste matter and uric from the blood and expelling same in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to a healthy condition.

He further states that anyone suffering from afflictions of this nature will find it to be very beneficial, and suggests that it be given a trial.

The Helmet of Navarre

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

She sat down on a praying cushion, motioning me to the other, and I began my tale. At first she listened with a little air of languor, as if the whole were of slight consequence and she really did not care at all what M. le Comte had been about these five weeks. But as I got into the affair of the Rue Coupejarrets she forgot her indifference and leaned forward with burning cheeks, hanging on my words with eager questions. And when I told her how Lucas had evaded us in the darkness she cried:

"Blessed Virgin! M. de Mar has enough to contend with in this Lucas without Paul de Lorraine and Brie and the Duke of Mayenne himself."

I was silent, being of her opinion. Presently she asked reluctantly:

"Does your master think this Lucas a tool of M. de Mayenne's?"

"Yes, mademoiselle. He says secretaries do not plot against dukedoms for their own pleasure."

"Assassination was not wont to be my cousin Mayenne's way," she said with an accent of confidence that rang as false as a counterfeit coin. I saw well enough that mademoiselle did fear at least Mayenne's guilt. I thought I might tell her a little more.

"M. le Comte told me that since his father's coming to Paris M. de Mayenne made him offers to join the League, and he refused them. So then M. de Mayenne, seeing himself losing the whole house of St. Quentin, invented this."

"But it failed. Thank God, it failed! And now he will leave Paris. He will—he must!"

"He did mean to seek Navarre's camp to-morrow," I answered; "but——"

"But what?"

"But then the letter came."

"But that makes no difference! He must go for all that. The time is over for trimming. He must stand on one side or the other. I am a Liguedse born and bred, and I tell him to go to King Henry. It is his father's side; it is his side. He cannot stay in Paris another day."

"I do not think he will go, mademoiselle."

"But he must!" she cried with vehemence. "Paris is not safe for him. If he cannot stand for his wound he must go. I will send him a letter myself to tell him he must."

"Then he will never go."

"Felix!"

"He will not. He was going because he thought his lady flouted him; when he finds she does not—well, if he budges a step out of Paris I do not know him. When he thought himself despised"—

"And why did I turn his suit into laughter in the salon if I did not mean that I despised him? I did it for you to tell him how I made a mock of him, that he might hate me and keep away from me."

"Oh," I said, "mademoiselle is beyond me. I cannot keep up with her."

"And you believed it! But you must needs spoil all by flaring out with impudent speech."

"I crave mademoiselle's pardon. I was wrong and insolent. But she played too well."

"And if it was not play?" she cried, rising. "If I do—well, I will not say despise him—but care nothing for him? Will he then go to St. Denis? Then tell him from me that he has my pity as one cruelly cozened, and my esteem as a one-time servant of mine, but never my love. Tell him I would willingly save him alive for the sake of the love he once bore me. But as for any answering love in my bosom I have not one spark. Tell him to go find a new mistress at St. Denis. He might as well cry for the moon as seek to win Lorance de Montluc."

"That may be true," I said; "but all the same he will try. Can mademoiselle suppose he will go out of Paris now and leave her to marry Brie and Lorraine?"

"Only one," she protested with the shadow of a smile; and then a sudden rush of tears blinded her. "I am a very miserable girl," she said woefully, "for I bring nothing but danger to those that love me."

I dropped on my knees before her and kissed the hem of her dress.

"Ah, Felix," she said, "if you really pitied me you would get him out of Paris!" And she fell to weeping as if her heart would break.

I had no skill to comfort her. I bent my head before her, silent. At length she sobbed out:

"It boots little for us to quarrel over what you shall say to M. de Mar when we know not that you will ever speak to him again. And it was all my fault."

"Mademoiselle, it was the fault of my hasty tongue."

But she shook her head.

"I maintained that to you, but it was not true. Mayenne had something in his mind before. A general holds his schemes so dear and lives so cheap. But I will do my utmost, Felix, lad. It is not long to daylight now. I will go to Francois de Brie and we'll believe I shall prevail."

She took up her candle and said good night to me very gently and quietly and gave me her hand to kiss. She opened the door—with my fettered wrists I could not do the office for her—and on the threshold turned to smile on me, wistfully, hopefully. In the next second, with a gasp that was half a cry, she blew out the light and pushed the door shut again.

CHAPTER XV.

I knew she was shutting the door by the click of the latch; in the next second I made the discovery that she was still on my side of it. "What"—— I was beginning, when she laid her hand over my mouth. A line of light showed through the crack. She had not quite closed the door on account of the noise of the latch. She tried again; again it rattled and she desisted. I heard her fluttered breathing and I heard something else—a rapid, heavy tread in the corridor without. Into the council-room came a man carrying a lighted taper. It was Mayenne.

Mademoiselle, with a whispered "God save us!" sank in a heap at my feet.

I bent over her to find if she had swooned, when she seized my hand in a sharp grip that told me plain as words to be quiet.

Mayenne was yawning; he had a rumpled and dishevelled look like one just roused from sleep. He crossed over to the table, lighted the three-branched candlestick standing there and seated himself with his back to us, pulling about some papers. I hardly dared glance at him for fear my eyes should draw his; the crack of our door seemed to call aloud to him to mark it, but the candle-light scarcely pierced the shadows of the long room.

More quick footsteps in the corridor. Mayenne hitched his chair about sidewise to the table and to us, facing the outer door. A tall man in black entered, saluting the general from the threshold.

"So you have come back?" spoke the duke in his even tones. It was impossible to tell whether the words were a welcome or a sentence.

"Yes," answered the other in a voice as non-committal as Mayenne's own. He shut the door after him and walked over to the table.

"And how goes it?"

"Badly."

The newcomer threw his hat aside and sat down without waiting for an invitation.

"What! Badly, sirrah?" Mayenne exclaimed sharply. "You come to me with that report?"

"I do, monsieur," answered the other with cool insolence, leaning back in his chair. The light fell directly on his face and proved to me what I had guessed at his first word. The duke's night visitor was Lucas. "Yes," he repeated indifferently, "it has gone badly. In fact, your game is up."

Mayenne jumped to his feet, bringing his fist down on the table.

"You tell me this?"

Lucas regarded him with an easy smile.

"Unfortunately, monsieur, I do."

Mayenne turned on him, cursing. Lucas with the quickness of a cat sprang a yard aside, dagger unsheathed.

"Put up that knife!" shouted Mayenne.

"When you put up yours, monsieur."

"I have drawn none!"

"In your sleeve, monsieur."

"Liar!" cried Mayenne.

I know not who was lying, for I could not tell whether the blade that flashed now in the duke's hand came from his sleeve or from his belt. But if he had not drawn before he had drawn now and rushed at Lucas. He dodged and they circled round each other, wary as two matched cocks. Lucas was strictly on the defensive; Mayenne, the less agile by reason of his weight, could make no chance to strike. He drew off presently.

"I'll have your neck wrung for this," he panted.

"For what, monsieur?" asked Lucas imperturbably. "For defending myself?"

Mayenne let the charge go by default.

"For coming to me with the tale of your failures. Nom de Dieu, do I employ you to fail?"

"We are none of us gods, monsieur. You yourself lost Ivry."

Mayenne backed over to his chair and seated himself, laying his knife on the table in front of him. His face smoothed out to good humor—no mean tribute to his power of self-control. For the written words can convey no notion of the maddening insolence of Lucas's bearing—an insolence so studied that it almost seemed unconscious and was thereby well-nigh impossible to silence.

"Sit down," bade the duke, "and tell me."

Lucas, standing at the foot of the table, observed:

"They turned you out of your bed, monsieur, to see me. It was unnecessary severity. My tale will keep till morning."

"By heaven, it shall not!" Mayenne shouted. "Beware how much further you dare anger me, you Satan's cub!"

He was fingering the dagger again as if he longed to plunge it into Lucas's gullet, and I rather marvelled that he did not or summon his guard to do it. For I could well understand how infuriating was Lucas. He carried himself with an air of easy equality insufferable to the first noble in the land. Mayenne's chosen role was the unmoved, the inscrutable, but Lucas beat him at his own game and drove him out into the open of passion and violence. It was a miracle to me that the man lived—unless indeed he were a prince in disguise.

"Satan's cub!" Lucas repeated, laughing. "Our late king had called me that, pardieu! But I knew not you acknowledged Satan in the family."

"I ordered Antoine to wake me if you returned in the night," Mayenne went on gruffly. "When I heard you had been here I knew something was wrong—unless the thing were done."

"It is not done. The whole plot is ruined."

"Nom de Dieu! If it is by your bungling"——

"It was not by my bungling," Lucas answered with the first touch of heat he had shown. "It was fate—and that fool Grammont."

"Explain then, and quickly, or it will be the worse for you."

I Was Waked by a Light in My Face.

Lucas sat down, the table between them.

"Look here," he said abruptly, leaning forward over the board. "Have you Mar's boy?"

"What boy?"

"A young Picard from the St. Quentin estate, whom the devil prompted to come up to town to-day. Mar sent him here to-night with a love message to Lorance.'

"Oh," said Mayenne slowly, "if it is a question of mademoiselle's love affairs it may be put off till to-morrow. It is plain to the very lackeys that you are jealous of Mar. But at present we are discussing l'affaire St. Quentin."

"It is all one," Lucas answered quickly. "You know what is to be the reward of my success."

"I thought you told me you had failed."

Lucas's hand moved instinctively to his belt; then he thought better of it and laid both hands, empty, on the table.

"Our plot has failed; but that does not mean that St. Quentin is immortal."

"You may be very sure of one thing, my friend," the duke observed. "I shall never give Lorance de Montluc to a white-livered flincher."

"The duke of St. Quentin is not immortal," Lucas repeated. "I have missed him once, but I shall get him in spite of all."

"I am not sure about Lorance even then," said Mayenne reflectively. "Francois de Brie is agitating himself about that young mistress. And he has not made any failures—as yet."

Lucas sprang to his feet.

"You swore to me I should have her."

"Permit me to remind you again that you have not brought me the price."

"I will bring you the price."

"E'en then," spoke Mayenne with the smile of the cat standing over the mouse—"e'en then I might change my mind."

"Then," said Lucas roundly, "there will be more than one dead duke in France."

Mayenne looked up at him as unmoved as if it were not in the power of mortal man to make him lose his temper. In stirring him to draw dagger Lucas had achieved an extraordinary triumph. Yet I somehow thought that the man who had shown hot anger was the real man; the man who sat there quiet was the party leader.

He said now, evenly:

"That is a silly way to talk to me, Paul."

"It is the truth for once," Lucas made sullen answer.

So long as he could prick and irritate Mayenne he preserved an air of unshakable composure; but when Mayenne recovered patience and himself began to prick Lucas's guard broke down. His voice rose a key, as it had done when I called him fool, and he burst out violently:

"Mort de Dieu! monsieur, what am I doing your dirty work for? For love of my affectionate uncle?"

"It might well be for that. I have been your affectionate uncle, as you say."

"My affectionate uncle, you say? My hirer, my suborner! I was a Protestant; I was bred up by the Huguenot Lucases when my father cast off my mother and me to starve. I had no love for the League or the Lorraines. I was fighting in Navarre's ranks when I was made prisoner at Ivry."

"You were spying for Navarre. It was before the fight we caught you. You had been hanged and quartered in that gray dawn had I not recognized you, after twelve years, as my brother's son. I cut the rope from you and embraced you for your father's sake. You rode forth a cornet in my army instead of dying like a felon on the gallows."

"You had your ends to serve;" Lucas muttered.

"I took you into my household," Mayenne went on. "I let you wear the name of Lorraine. I did not deny you the hand of my cousin and ward, Lorance de Montluc.

"Deny me! No, you did not. Neither did you grant it me, but put me off with lying promises. You thought then you could win back the faltering house of St. Quentin by a marriage between your cousin and the Comte de Mar. Afterward, when my brother Charles dashed into Paris and the people clamored for his marriage with the Infanta, you conceived the scheme of forcing Lorance on him. But it would not do, and again you promised to me if I could get you certain information from the royalist army. I returned in the guise of an escaped prisoner to Henry's camp to steal you secrets, and the moment my back was turned you listened to proposals from Mar again."

"Mar is not in the race now. You need not speak of him nor of your brother Charles either."

"No; I can well understand that my brother's is not a pleasant name in your ears," Lucas agreed. "You acknowledged one King Charles X.; you would like well to see another Charles X., but it is not Charles of Guise you mean."

"I have no desire to be King of France," Mayenne began angrily.

"Have you not? That is well, for you will never feel the crown on your brows, good uncle! You are ground between the Spanish hammer and the Bearnais' anvil; there will soon be nothing left of you but powder."

"Nom de Dieu, Paul"—— Mayenne cried, half rising; but Lucas, leaning forward on the table, riveting him with his keen eyes, went on:

"Do not mistake me, monsieur uncle. I think you in bad case, but I am ready to sink or swim with you. So long as the hand of Lorance is in your bestowing I am your faithful servant, I have not hesitated to risk the gallows to serve you. Last March I made my way here, disguised, to tell you of the king's coming change of faith and of St. Quentin's certain defection. I demanded then my price, my marriage with mademoiselle. But you put me off again. You sent me back to Mantes to kill your St. Quentin."

"Aye. And you have been about it these four months and you have not killed him."

Lucas reddened with ire.

"I am no Jacques Clement to stab and be massacred. You cannot buy such a service of me, M. de Mayenne. If I do bravo's work for you I choose my own time and way. I brought the duke to Paris, delivered him up to you to deal with as it liked you. But you with your army at your back were afraid to kill him. You flinched and waited. You dared not shoulder the onus of his death. Then I, to help you out of your strait, planned to make his own son's the hand that should do the deed; to kill the duke and ruin his heir; to put not only St. Quentin but Mar out of your way"——

"Let us be accurate, Paul," Mayenne said. "Mar was not in my way; he was of no consequence to me. You mean put him out of your way."

"He was in your way too. Since he would not join the Cause he was a hindrance to it. You had as much to gain as I by his ruin."

"Something—not as much. I did not want him killed—I preferred him to Valere."

"Nor did I want him killed; so our views jibed well."

"Why not, then? Did you prefer him as your wife's lover to some other who might appear?"

"I do not intend that my wife shall have lovers," Lucas answered.

Mayenne broke into laughter.

"Nom d'un chien, where will you keep her? In the Bastille? Lorance and no lovers! Ho, ho!"

"I mean none whom she favors."

"Then why do you leave Mar alive? She adores the fellow," Mayenne said. I had no idea whether he really thought it or only said it to annoy Lucas. At any rate it had its effect. Lucas's brows were knotted; he spoke with an effort, like a man under stress of physical pain.

"I know she loves him now and she would love him dead; but she would not love him a parricide."

"Is that your creed? Pardieu! you don't know women. The blacker the villain the more they adore him."

"I know it is true, monsieur," Lucas said smoothly, "that you have had successes."

Mayenne started forward with half an oath, changing to a laugh.

"So it is not enough for you to possess the fair body of Lorance; you must also have her love?"

"She will love me," Lucas answered uneasily. "She must."

"It is not worth your fret," Mayenne declared. "If she did how long would it last? Souvent femme varie—that is the only fixed fact about her. If Lorance loves Mar to-day she will love some one else to-morrow, and some one else still the day after to-morrow. It is not worth while disturbing yourself about it."

"She will not love any one else," Lucas said hoarsely.

Mayenne laughed.

"You are very young, Paul."

"She shall not love any one else! By the throne of heaven, she shall not!"

Mayenne went on laughing. If Lucas had for the moment teased him out of his equanimity the duke had paid back the score a hundredfold. Lucas's face was seared with his passions as with the torture iron; he clinched his hands together, breathing hard. On my side of the door I heard a sharp little sound in the darkness; mademoiselle had gritted her teeth.

PANDORA RANGE

Just a Minute or Two to Remove Grates

When the Pandora grates require removing don't send for the plumber. His kit of tools are not needed to take the stove to pieces in order to get out the grates, as was the case with your former ranges.

The Pandora is not constructed in the usual manner. The removal of a button with a hammer (many just use their fingers) allows the Pandora grates to be easily drawn out, as shown. Just a minute or two to do the trick. No plumber's mess to clean up. No bill to pay.

Notice, too, that the Pandora grates are triple, and are much heavier, stronger, will last longer than the ordinary double grates. Less to pay out for renewals.

Spaces between the Pandora triple grates are narrower than between ordinary double grates, which prevents good fuel slipping down with the ashes. Sifting Pandora ashes is wasted effort.

And that simple gearing arrangement on the Pandora makes the "rocking down" of the ashes just play compared to the heavy "shaking" necessary with ordinary ranges.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct to us for free booklet.

Martin-Orme Pianos

There are many new features in the Martin-Orme Piano worth knowing about.

One, for instance—the "Violoform" sounding board increases the tone of the instrument and makes it sweeter as the piano grows older.

There are various styles and prices of the Martin-Orme, but only one quality—and that the best.

Where the Martin-Orme Piano is not represented, we will ship direct to your nearest station and guarantee safe delivery.

The Making of a Successful Wife

By CASPER S. YOST.

SPENDING AND SAVING.—Home Building the Main Business of Life. Don't Be Stingy, but Be Economical. Always Have a Margin and Put It In the Savings Bank—The Wife's Part.

(Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.)

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—I don't know how big a wad Bill puts into his pockets when the ghost walks on Saturday afternoon, but I'm pretty sure that sweet William is no $10,000 beauty, at least not to anybody but you. His employers may pay him a pretty good salary, but I'll bet a whole string of Missouri mules that he earns every cent of it, and the future happiness of both of you depends to a great extent on how you spend it. I am led to this reflection by the faint odor of burning currency which clings to your last letter and which leads me to believe that William's expenditures are running a pretty close race with the pay wagon. I may be wrong about this, but I've been loaded up with a few brief remarks for some time and I'll feel better if I can deliver them where I think they'll do the most good. Maybe I'm wrong in my surmises, but if I am you won't take it amiss. You know your nomadic old dad has but one object in view, and that is to make you happy, to show you the way as well as he can to the permanent happiness that comes with a life well lived.

Now, as old Parson Smart used to say, after he had led his bewildered flock so far from the text they couldn't remember whether it was from the Songs of Solomon or the Epistle to the Thessalonians—now we will return to our "mittens." And our "mittens"—that is, yours and Bill's—is in the little yellow envelope that the cashier hands out through the grated window every Saturday. That little yellow envelope is the basis of all that is material and much that isn't material in our lives and should therefore be treated with profound respect. It is of the utmost importance to all of us that it come to us with regularity, but what we do with it after we get it is a blamed sight more important still. Most people seem to think that it all depends on the number of dollars it contains. That, I admit, is a highly interesting subject, but it doesn't count for much alongside the problem of placing the dollars. Whether it's ten a week or a hundred a week it takes stretching to carry it over seven days and leave a margin to button up on Monday. Maybe you've heard the politicians and other financial experts talking about "elastic currency." Bill has, I'm sure. Well, they don't mean exactly the same thing as I do by it, but it's mighty essential that the cashier puts elastic currency into the yellow envelope, and it's a lot more essential that you know how to stretch all the little kinks and curlycues out of it. That's the kind of a pull every man ought to have, and if his wife catches hold with both hands and pulls as hard or harder than he does they can draw it out to the middle of next week without getting cramps in their muscles. It's wonderful what a woman can do in that way when she wants to, and it's also surprising what a weak back the average man gets when he tries the job by himself.

To Make Both Ends Lap.

No, my little girl, this matter of stretching salaries or of making both ends lap over is team work. Most women seem to think that they've done their whole duty by their husband's salary when they've helped him to blow it in. I'm a whole lot afraid you've got some such notion in your own dear little noggin. But it's a mistake, a bad mistake. The good Lord didn't put men on earth for the sole purpose of providing pretty clothes and ice cream sodas for the other sex. That's a prevalent idea, I'll admit, and that's about all a good many men really do, but I'm willing to stake my judgment that it's wrong. The main business of life is home building. The governments of the earth, the great financial corporations, the discoveries of science, even the women's clubs are of secondary importance. And in the work of home building the man and the woman should stand side by side, shoulder to shoulder. Do you remember, little girl, that piece of poetry you recited the day you graduated from high school? Cracky, but you did look fine in your pretty white dress with the blue ribbon around your waist! I didn't catch much of what you were saying, I was so busy thinking how proud I was of you, but a few lines stuck in my craw that went something like this:

As unto the bow the cord is,
So unto the man is woman,
Dumpty, dumpty, dumpty, dumpty,
Useless each without the other.

There's something missing right in the middle of it, but the point's there, and it's just the point I want you to see. "Useless each without the other." That's it exactly. The man who wrote it, whoever he was, probably wasn't thinking about yellow envelopes, but it fits every phase of married life. You don't often get so much practical common sense out of poetry. "Useless each without the other." Lo me, Bill can't do all the home building by himself. You've got to pitch in and help him, and the place to begin is right at the cashier's window on Saturday afternoon.

Partnership in Salary.

Of course you don't have the pleasure of the cashier's acquaintance. He's a mighty fine fellow, is the cashier, but you've got no business at his window. That's Bill's place. But it's a good deal important that Bill doesn't lose what the cashier gives him before he gets home. Lots of men are careless that way, my dear. Lots of them don't go home at all Saturday night. Of course that relieves the woman of some responsibility in the matter I'm talking about, but it also removes the necessity for ice in the family refrigerator, and it puts a bend in a woman's back and a dent in a woman's heart that shouldn't be there. I just mentioned this incidental. I have no doubt about your William getting home at a proper hour Saturday night and reasonably upright. What I mean, sweetheart, is that the effect of your gentle influence should be felt by him from the moment he draws his pay; that he should be so impressed with the principle of partnership, of equal rights in the proceeds of his labor, that he is thinking of you when he opens the yellow envelope, thinking of you when he counts its contents and thinking of you as he rides home with it intact. And it's up to you to do the impressing—not with a rolling pin or a flatiron, but by showing him that you have a deep personal interest in his affairs, that you are no doll baby to be dressed and petted, but a sensible woman whose chief thought is her husband's welfare, a woman who knows that a dollar is composed of 100 cents and who knows how or is willing to learn how to make every one of them worth par in the domestic economy.

"That's Bill's place."

The woman who takes no thought of her husband's financial affairs, who spends his money without knowing or caring what he can afford, is not a helpmate, but an incumbrance. It may be that he carries the load willingly, even joyfully. It may be that in the first overwhelming unselfishness of his love he would not have her any different. But he will find that the load grows heavier with time, and then he will sigh for the help and sympathy to which he is entitled. He will go on bearing the load, no doubt, unless he is overwhelmed by disaster, but he will recognize that it is a load, that he has somehow been cheated when the wedding cards were dealt, that the whole business is unfair and marriage indeed a failure. Such a woman, little girl, doesn't measure up to the standard of [illegible] opportunity and traded future happiness for present gratification. I want my daughter to be her husband's partner, to share and share alike in the burdens as well as the joys of life. That's the kind of a wife your mother is, God bless her! And that's the kind of a wife that makes marriage a success unless the man in the case is a dod-rotted idiot.

Wife as Financial Manager.

The average woman is a better manager in small things than the average man. In the financial affairs of the household she can make a dollar go twice as far as he can if she wants to do it and puts her mind on it. She is better at driving a bargain, has a clearer understanding of values and a greater respect for the penny as a unit of measurement. When a man gets this fact into his head, when he learns that she not only desires to help him, but is to be trusted with the purse strings, he is pretty likely to make use of her talents and let her share in the expenditure of the salary. Many a man is so impressed with the financial ability of his wife and his own lack of it that he turns over all of his earnings to her and is a greater gainer by the transaction. But such a shifting of responsibility is in itself a confession of weakness or incapability and, besides, places an unfair load on the wife. The better plan is based on the idea of equal partnership, equality of income, equality of expense and equality of profit. That is to say, let him divide his salary with his wife, each assume responsibility for half of the fixed expenses of the household, and each have the right to spend or save his or her share of the remainder without question from the other. That gives the wife a definite standing in the economy of the household; it makes her financially independent, and at the same time places an obligation upon her which she is not likely to ignore. That's the way I'd like to see you and William arrange your affairs, because I know by my own experience as well as the experience of others that it is the surest road to independence and because it promotes that mutual respect and confidence which, when associated with love, form the basis of married happiness.

Suppose that he gives you half his salary.

Of course I don't know, my dear, what William's attitude may be. Some men find it mighty hard to cough up any part of their income even for household expenses, let alone pin money. But, taking it for granted that he's the kind of a hairpin I think he is and willing to do the square thing by you when he learns what is the square thing, let's figure a little on your end of the seesaw. Suppose that he gives you half of his salary and he says "now, darling," or "sweetness," or "bunch o' roses"—whatever it is he calls you when his dinner fits him well—"now, you pay for the provisions, the laundry and the help, and all you have left you can spend for clothes or anything else you want, but you mustn't exceed your allowance, and if you can save some of it all the better. I'll pay the rent, the fuel, the light and all the other expenses, with the same understanding as to the leavings." Suppose he does this, what are you going to do? Let me give you a few pointers.

In the first place, don't have a charge account anywhere. It's mighty convenient, but it's also mighty expensive. A dollar in cash will go a good deal further than 100 cents on the grocer's books. You can buy wherever you can get the most for your money, some things at one place, some things at another. You are in a position to take advantage of any genuine bargains that may be offered anywhere. At the same time you always know exactly where you stand. When you run an account you don't know what you're up against until the bill comes in the first of the month, and then it's always more than you expected. If there's a mistake or an overcharge you can have it corrected at once if you are paying cash; if you are doing business on credit you probably won't know anything about it at all.

Where the Economy Lies.

In the second place, do your own marketing so far as you can. It's the only way to be reasonably sure that you are getting what you pay for. It gives you an opportunity to see what is in the market and to make better selections. More than that, it teaches you to recognize values and it gives you a knowledge of human nature you couldn't acquire in a hundred years by sitting in your boudoir and kimono reading an Indiana novel. A knowledge of human nature is mighty valuable, my dear, just as valuable in business at home as in business downtown; the only trouble is the more you know about it the less you like it. At the same time the more you know about human nature the better you like the cash system.

Bill's working for you.

Two-thirds of the economy of the household is in the buying; the other third is in the use of what you buy. The last even more than the first requires experience, and it is experience that must be mostly self gained, but your mother can help you a lot if you will let her. I guess I've said more than you want to read about spending and mighty little about saving. There isn't much to say about saving. As old John Sherman said about specie payments, "The only way to resume is to resume." So with saving. [illegible] Don't stint. There is a broad difference between stinginess and economy. Dress as prettily and as stylishly as you can, have all the comforts and luxuries you can properly afford, but keep within your allowance and always aim to have a margin at the end of the week.

Whether it's big or little, have a margin, and then you are always on the safe side, also the saving side. Put the margins away somewhere—the bank's the best place—and keep them. Don't touch your savings for anything but actual necessity, and if it should come to that your old dad would like to be consulted.

Now, my little girl, this is a mighty prosy subject. Maybe it's distasteful, but you want to remember that Bill's downtown in his shirt sleeves working, working for you, and it's a doggoned prosy business, too, taking it by itself. But his love fills it with poetry, and so your love for him can weave hexameters, or whatever they call them, about the dollars and cents, the toil and the trouble and the tears of household economy. Put the poetry into it, honey, put the poetry— But, gee whiz, there's my train. Goodby! Your affectionate dad, JOHN SNEED.

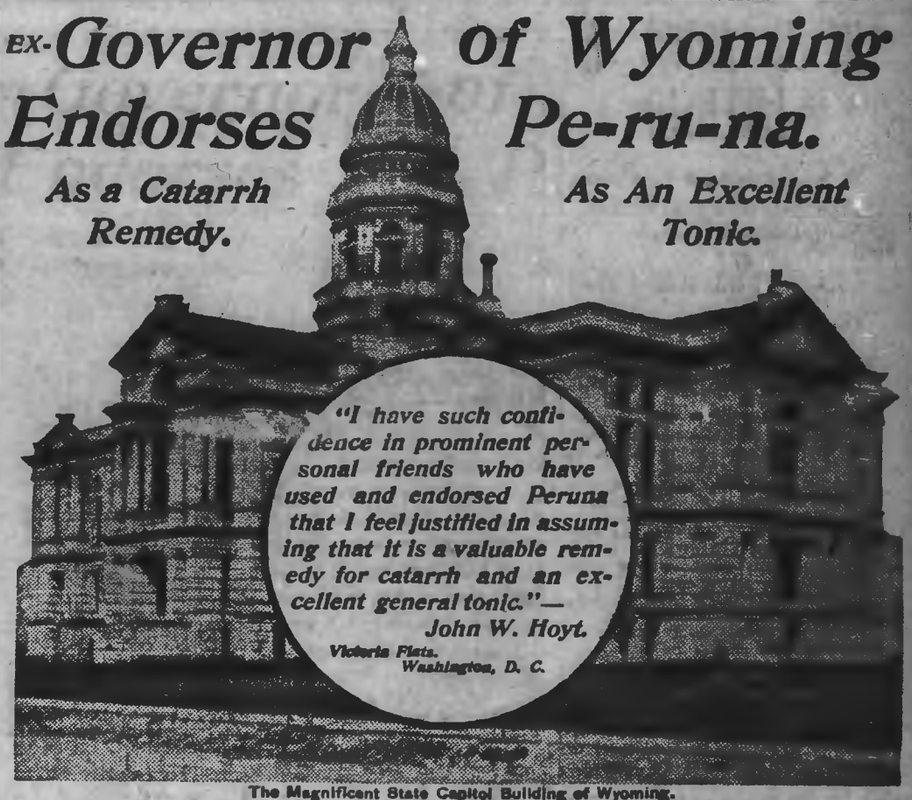
EX-Governor of Wyoming Endorses Pe-ru-na.

As a Catarrh Remedy.

As An Excellent Tonic.



"I have such confidence in prominent personal friends who have used and endorsed Peruna that I feel justified in assuming that it is a valuable remedy for catarrh and an excellent general tonic."—
John W. Hoyt.
Victoria Flats.
Washington, D. C.

The Magnificent State Capitol Building of Wyoming.

Responsible People.

PEOPLE occupying positions of high responsibility and trust are always very busy people.

They have little or no time to devote to side issues.

It is therefore very rare that such people are willing to write testimonials for anything.

Then again there is a natural diffidence in giving public endorsement to any commercial enterprise on the part of people who are much before the public.

Rare Endorsements.

It is thus that it is very rare that public officials, like governors, congressmen, consuls, senators, etc., give public endorsement to a proprietary medicine.

It is therefore a great triumph that Peruna has the unqualified endorsement of so many men in official position.

Scores of public officials of national reputation have enthusiastically declared in favor of Peruna in public print over and over again.

A Startling Fact.

There is no way to account for such a startling fact as this except that Peruna has extraordinary unusual merit.

After all, people high and low, are constituted very much alike.

Natural Enthusiasm.

When a person has been really helped in getting rid of some chronic malady, after other things have failed, it is quite natural for enthusiasm to lead people to make a statement of the fact.

For great services, gratitude is natural.

This is the only way that it can possibly be explained why it is that so many persons prominent in public, diplomatic and social life give testimony for Peruna.

Actual Benefit.

Peruna promptly relieves.

This is the explanation.

Catarrh is a disease difficult to relieve. A great many of the doctors fail to relieve it.

Gratitude Results.

A few bottles of Peruna cure a chronic malady of many years standing and it is almost impossible to repress the natural feelings of gratitude which spring up.

Catarrh of Head and Throat.

Mr. Joseph Reiss, 3424 N. 14th street, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"I had catarrh of the head and throat, but through the use of five bottles of Peruna and two bottles of Manalin I was cured.

"I think that Peruna is the best tonic that I have ever used and I would advise all catarrhal sufferers to use Peruna."

Catarrhal Fever.

Mrs. W. K. Good, Broadway, Va., writes:

"When I was fifteen years old I had catarrhal fever and for nine years I have had catarrh of the head.

"Through neglect it went to my throat and nose. After consulting you I used Peruna for four months as directed, and I am entirely well and have my natural health.

"I cannot praise Peruna too highly. It will do all that it is recommended to do."

Pe-ru-na Relieves Catarrh.

Mr. L. Clifford Figg, Jr., 2220 E. Marshall St., Richmond Va., writes:

"As soon as I get a cold I send for a bottle of Peruna, and it soon drives it out of my system.

Despaired of Being Cured.

"For several years I was not entirely well, and despaired of ever being cured, as I had used numerous remedies that my friends advised. I doctored for two years without any improvement.

A Last Resort.

"As a last resort I tried Peruna, and am pleased to say that in a short time I was completely cured.

"I have not been troubled for over a year. I am pleased to endorse Peruna as it saved me a world of suffering."

The High School baseball team of Campbellford played a match with the High School team here on Saturday, Sept. 21st. The game resulted in a victory for the locals, the score standing 13-5 at the finish. The game was a poor exhibition, being altogether too much onesided. However, at times both teams made some very sensational plays. Mr. Will Foster acted as umpire to the satisfaction of all.

A Splendid Endorsement

for the shares of the HIGHLAND MARY GOLD MINES, LIMITED, is the fact that large blocks are being rapidly subscribed for at Cobalt, Haileybury, New Liskeard and Larder Lake. We are receiving letters from mining engineers and miners every day reserving large blocks of HIGHLAND MARY shares. These men have been over the ground, and in all of the letters we receive from them they say that the properties are even better than we represent them, and that HIGHLAND MARY will be the greatest and most profitable mines in the Larder Lake district. The fact that these experienced men are investing their own money in HIGHLAND MARY should be sufficient to satisfy the most skeptical. Miners employed on the nearby mines are all pinning their faith to the HIGHLAND MARY. They are buying all the shares they can. They realize what a splendid investment they are getting in buying HIGHLAND MARY at 10 CENTS PER SHARE. They know a good thing when they see it. Are you going to join them in making a fortune? Bankers and conservative business men throughout the whole country are now buying these for their investment. We strongly advise our clients not to hesitate, but buy to-day at 10 CENTS PER SHARE. We have only one million shares to dispose of at this price, and at the rate they are being absorbed they will not last long. The public will six months from now buy at One Dollar per share or more. We strongly urge the immediate purchase of these shares. We are placing our own funds in it, and we are willing to stake our reputation on the merits of HIGHLAND MARY.

HIGHLAND MARY

The properties consist of 30 claims of 40 acres each, making a total acreage of 1,200 acres. The claims are in the locality of the famous Reddick claims, the Proprietary Gold Fields, and the wonderful Blue Bell and Lucky Boys properties.

We have sent our own mining engineers to examine and report on the properties, we have looked exhaustively into the merits of the properties before offering the shares to our clients. We question if an opportunity like this will ever present itself to you again. We advise our clients to buy HIGHLAND MARY.

We advise you to buy all you can, you are bound to profit greatly thereby.

The stock of the HIGHLAND MARY is actually worth a great deal more money than the price we are asking for it. Our engineers figure that there is in sight on the properties of the Company gold equal to many times the par value of the total capitalization of the Company. All it requires for investors to make money is to have faith and confidence.

Could you visit the Larder Lake district and examine the properties, as we have done, you would not hesitate a single moment in placing every dollar at your command in the shares of HIGHLAND MARY at

10 CENTS PER SHARE

(Par Value, $1 00. Fully Paid and Non-assessable.)

All of the Directors of the Company are well-known and successful business men—not men that are simply interested in a mine—but men that are miners in every sense of the word, and who know how to operate, maintain and conduct a mine in a business-like manner, and who have been connected with the strongest and most successful mines in the Cobalt camp. These gentlemen are just the kind of mining men that investors should be glad to become identified with.

The mineral production during the current year has been remarkable as compared with former records, and it will be still greater in 1908. Remember, when you see the enormous advances in the prices of Larder Lake mining securities that are coming immediately, and that will continue for months and months, if not for years, that we told you to select one or more good stocks, and that a small investment in them will yield inside of a very short time enormous profits that would be impossible in any other industry.

We are not trying to sell stocks to uneducated or half-witted people. We are trying to interest legitimate business men in a proposition that we believe will turn out to be one of the greatest of its kind the world has ever known, and again we say, if you are not in a position to hold this stock until such time as the properties are developed, we do not want you to buy it. A mine cannot be developed in a day any more than a railway of 50 miles can be built in an hour, and no railway ever paid dividends or ever amounted to anything [illegible] cannot amount to anything until the ore is being treated. People who purchase the stock of the HIGHLAND MARY cannot expect the Officers and Directors of the Company to pay dividends until dividends are earned. We do honestly believe, however, that within a year HIGHLAND MARY will be paying dividends to its stockholders. We are in business to-day and we propose to stay in it while there is any business to be had, and we can say to you now that in some years to come we expect to be counted among the financial houses that are spoken of and referred to in the highest terms by investors.

When we offered the first block of Blue Bell and Lucky Boys shares, we predicted that the Larder Lake district would be the greatest gold district in the world, and our predictions are being endorsed daily by eminent engineers arriving from the golden north with the beautiful specimens of pure free gold. These men fully endorse our predictions. The time is not far distant when the eyes of the whole world will be concentrated upon the wonderful golden north of New Ontario.

A year ago very few white men had trodden the trail through the Larder Lake district. To-day one of the greatest stampedes the world has ever known has taken place. Capitalists, mining engineers and prospectors are now "hitting the trail" and harrying through as fast as they can. Millions of dollars will be offered for some of the Larder Lake properties within the next few months.

HIGHLAND MARY

is positively the best buy that has been offered the public in mining shares. Don't overlook this opportunity. Big and rapid advances will surely occur.

The price of HIGHLAND MARY shares will TAKE A JUMP some of these days, and then it will be too late to buy them at the first issue price.

REMEMBER

The first issues of Blue Bell and Lucky Boys were greatly oversubscribed and many investors were disappointed in having their remittances returned. Highland Mary will be taken up rapidly. Act quickly and get in at bottom price.

Wire or telephone orders at our expense. Prospectus, with full information, containing application blanks, mailed to any address.

Highland Mary Gold Mines, Limited, is capitalized at $3,000,000, shares of the par value of $1.00 each, with 1,000,000 shares in the Treasury for development purposes.

ALL RUN DOWN

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy E. Ladue of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a saleslady. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I seemed to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says:—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

FERROZONE

It makes the weak strong, the sick well, and assures lasting good health.

WARNING—Beware of any substitutes for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine, only in 50c boxes containing 50 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

GARDEN PARTY AT ENNISMORE

Delightful Function in Connection With St. Martin's Church in That Township

FORTY HOURS DEVOTION

The members of the Ennismore Branch of the C.M.B.A. won much credit for themselves by the able manner in which they conducted their lawn social and concert, held on Tuesday, Sept. 17th, during the absence of their esteemed pastor, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, who was attending the funeral of his sister, the late Mrs. E. O'Neill. It was their initial effort and proved in every way a success. The very enjoyable lawn social was held in Tara Grove and owing to the exceptionally fine weather was attended by a great number who came from far and near. A dancing pavilion had been erected and good music was furnished for the dancers. A short programme of sports was run off, the winners of the various events being as follows:

Running broad jump, boys under 16.—H Crough, F O'Connor.

Running broad jump, boys under 12.—W O'Connor, G Crough.

Running hop, step and jump, boys under 16.—H Crough, P O'Connor.

Running hop, step and jump, boys under 12.—W O'Connor, G Crough.

Throwing heavy weight.—W Hickson, B Hickson.

Boys' race, under 16.—H Crough, P O'Connor.

Boys' race under 12.—A O'Reilly, G Crough.

Shoe race.—W O'Connor, F O'Connor.

Girls' race, under 12.—Kitty O'Connor, Carrie Moloney.

Theb aschall match was won by the team led by H Crough, as opposed to the team led by C Flaherty. Score 8—5.

The concert in the evening took place in St. Martin's T.A.S. Hall, and was attended by four hundred people. It was both musical and literary. The literary feature of the programme consisted in a lecture entitled "A Trip to Ireland," ably delivered by Rev. Dr. O'Brien of the Cathedral. It was in fact an intellectual treat and was closely followed by an appreciative audience. It was based upon Rev. Dr. O'Brien's travels in Europe this summer and included an account of his visit to the Vatican. The distinguished lecturer was in his happiest vein and warmed the hearts of his listeners by his eloquence and good humour, especially when treating upon the Emerald Isle.

The chair was ably filled by Rev. Father Bretherton, of Hastings, and upon the platform were,—the pastor, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, Rev. Father McGuire, Downeyville; Rev. Father Collins, Lindsay; Rev. Father P. O'Leary, Galway; Rev. Father Galvin, Peterborough; Rev. Father M. O'Leary, Peterborough; Rev. Father Kelly, Peterborough.

The following musical programme was very creditably rendered during the evening, under charge of Miss Agnes Scollard.

Part I.

Overture, by the Orchestra.

Song, "What Will You Take for Me, Papa?"—Miss Loretta Kennedy.

Recitation, "The Anxious Mother"—Bermoe Scollard.

Double quartette, "By You Bonnie Banks"—Messrs. Telford and Scollard, and the Misses Scollard.

Irish jig—O'Connor Bros.

Irish airs—Orchestra.

Part II.

Overture—Orchestra.

Recitation, "My Letter"—Miss Lizzie Scollard.

Chorus, "Sunbeams"—By the children.

Quartette, "Good Night."

God Save the King.

Forty Hours' Devotion

The Forty Hours' Devotion in memory of the forty hours during which the body of the Saviour remained in the grave began in Ennismore on Wednesday and closed on Friday. During these days the church could be seen filled by those engaged in meditation and prayer. Excellent sermons were delivered by the visiting clergy; on Wednesday by Rev. Father McGuire and Rev. Father Collins; on Thursday by Rev. Father P. O'Leary and Rev. Father Bretherton, and on Friday, the closing sermon, given by Rev. Father Kelly.

At the close of the exercises the pastor, Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, thanked the visiting clergy for their aid in carrying out this grand devotion and expressed himself as pleased with the results of the good work as shown by the number of communicants—seven hundred in all.

THE OMEMEE LIGHT PLANT

Newly Installed System is Giving The Best of Satisfaction

Examiner Special.

Omemee, Sept. 24.—The electric light plant, recently installed here, is giving the best of satisfaction and lights up the village in splendid fashion. The generator which was supplied by the Canadian General Electric Company of Peterborough was installed by Mr. E. A. Pearce of Fenelon Falls, and is capable of operating five hundred lights. The lamps are incandescent, and are situated seventy-five yards apart in the centre of the village.

The visitors to the Lindsay Central returned on Saturday night, fairly well pleased. Many will see the Peterborough Fair.

There is quite a number of former residents here who visit Omemee frequently, and speak in high terms of Peterborough, saying that any one who is industrious, steady, capable, and economical can gain a good livelihood.

We have sufficient electric power now to run a radial railway via Mount Pleasant to Peterborough, long talked about.

A stave, lath, barrel and cheese box plant would pay well here. There is lots of cheap wood material to be had, sufficient to last a number of years.

The Peterborough wholesale grocery houses are gradually securing all the trade here, and doing it well.

Judge McMillan and Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, barrister, Lindsay, attended the Court of Revision here. After their duties were over, Mr. Beatty, of the Court House, took them down our river for a cruise. They expressed themselves as delighted with our valuable feeder to the Trent Canal.

Rev. Mr. Peckover is attending the meeting of the Presbytery at Peterborough this week. His son, Horace, is on a visit before resuming his studies in the School of Practical Science, Toronto, of which he is an honour student.

The improvements on our iron bridge are worthy of notice.

NEW PIPE ORGAN AT OMEMEE FORMALLY OPENED

Omemee, Sept. 19.—A large and appreciative audience filled the Methodist church on Monday night, Sept. 16th, when the new pipe organ was formally opened. Mr. Bowles, of Toronto, proved himself to be a master of his instrument, and delighted the audience with his selections, which showed the variety of effects to be obtained from the new organ. From the faintest whispers of its soft stops, to the loud crescendo of the full organ every contrast of tone and power was given. Mr. Bowles had to respond to several recalls.

Mrs. J C Eaton, and Mr. Arthur Blight have been heard often in the church, but never to better advantage than on Monday night.

Miss Mabel Palen, of Toronto, is the possessor of a beautiful soprano voice, which wwas heard for the first time. She made a splendid impression. All the artists were recalled.

The choir sang two anthems in a finished manner, Mrs. Eaton taking the solo in "Oh, That I Had Wings Like a Dove," and Mr. Blight and Miss Palen the solos in "Seek Ye the Lord."

The organ is a gift to the church from Mr. and Mrs. J C Eaton, and their little son Timothy. It has two manuals, tubular pneumatic action, and the motive power is electric. It is finished in quartered oak, and the pipes are tinted to match the decorations of the church.

The interior of the church has been newly decorated, the new metal ceiling in two shades of cream, while the walls are of a pleasing shade of green with friens and dado of deep crimson; the wood work being also of dark crimson.

With the new heating and lighting installed two years ago, and the recent improvements the church is most comfortable and presents a very attractie appearance.

The Natural Cure For Rheumatism

"Fruit-a-tives" remove from the blood the poison which causes Rheumatism.

Rheumatism means poisoned blood. The kidneys, bowels and skin should rid th system of waste matter. If either of these vital organs become weakened or diseased, the body cannot throw off this waste fast enough.

One of these body poisons is UREA, which is eliminated both by the kidneys and skin. If the skin action is poor —if the kidneys are inflammed —urea stays in the system— is changed into uric acid— carried by the blood to the nerves and joints—and causes Rheumatism.

"Fruit-a-tives" cure Rheumatism because they eliminate urea, by increasing the action of bowels, kidneys and skin.

This is the only possible way in which Rheumatism can be cured to stay cured. And "Fruit-a-tives" is the only remedy in the world that completely eradicates the disease from the system.

"Fruit-a-tives" will cure almost any case of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia.

"Fruit-a-tives" are fruit juices in which the natural medicinal action of fruit is many time increased by the process of combining them.

Then tonics and antiseptics are added and the whole made into tablets. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50. At all dealers or from Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. 771

MONTHS OF AGONY

A Severe Case of Rheumatism Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

'For many weary months I suffered untold agony. I could not walk. I could scarcely raise myself to a sitting posture. I was under medical care, but in vain. Finally I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have restored me to my former healthy condition."

This strong statement was made to a reporter recently by Mr. Charles S Koddey, formerly of Kingston, N.S., but now living at Port Maitland, Mr. Keddy is a carpenter by trade, and is now able to work every day. He adds. "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they cured me after other medicine failed. While I was living at Kingston, N. S, I was seized with rheumatism in its most violent form. I was compelled to take to my bed and for months was an invalid. I was so weak that it was difficult for me to raise myself to a sitting posture. It is impossible to tell how much I suffered day and night, week in and week out. The pains were like piercing swords. I had medical attendance, but it failed. Then I tried medicines advertised to cure rheumatism, but with the same result—money wasted. One day when hope had almost gone a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I told him my experience with other medicines, but he assured me that these pills would cure rheumatism, so I sent for a supply. After using a few boxes I was able to leave my bed, and from that on my restoration to health was rapid. I am now as well as ever I was, and have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since. The change they have wrought in my case is simply miraculous, and I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any one suffering from any form of rheumatism."

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood. Rubbing the aching limbs with liniments and outward remedies cannot possibly cure it. You must get the rheumatic acid out of the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the one sure medicine to do this, because they actually make new blood. That is why these pills cure anaemia, headaches and backaches, neuralgia indigestion and the secret ailments that make miserable the lives of so many women and growing girls. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COLLIDED IN THE FOG

Immense Rent Torn Near Bow of Steamer Mongolian.

KEPT AFLOAT BY BULKHEADS

Use of Fog Horns Failed to Avert the Disaster—Noise Was Deadened—Lifeboats Were Lowered and All Lives Saved—Captain Was Ill in Bed—The Crash Came Suddenly Without Any Warning.

Quebec, Sept. 27.—With a slight list to port, and with her starboard bow torn open from the topmast rail to below the water line, the once majestic Mongolian slowly rounded the Island of Orleans about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and an hour later she had moored at the Allan wharf in the port of Quebec.

From what has been learned it is quite apparent that a dense fog enveloped both vessels, and passengers from the Thomson liner Hurona and the Allan liner Mongolian state that the fog horns of the two steamers were kept in almost constant operation, but as the sea was lashed to a heavy swell by a strong gale it is likely that the sound was deadened, and thus failed to carry its message of warning.

Passengers who were on the deck of the Mongolian at that hour state that the first intimation the officers had of the approaching Hurona was when they saw a light on the port side, which could not have been a hundred yards distant. The next they knew the two vessels met with a terrific crash. The Mongolian was struck by the Thomson liner's bow, some 20 feet from her cutwater, and an immense rent was torn from the deck down, a length of 2[illegible] feet, allowing an immediate rush of volumes of water into her fore hold, and it was only the bulkheads that kept the vessel afloat.

The Hurona had her stem badly broken and a hole forced in her bow, which, fortunately, however, was above the water line, therefore her injury was not of any grave character.

The accident was characterized by all the sensational features following a collision at sea. There was the heavy jolt, the grind of crushing steel, the frantic rush for the decks, the lowering of the boats, and rescue of the passengers, and then the perilous journey for a mile or two in a frail craft across a shimmering sea to the other vessel.

In the first boat lowered were three women, one of them [illegible] securely to her bosom. Two men were let down the ladders and in a few minutes the crew which manned the boat were pulling heroically through the darkness toward the Hurona.

The second boat, with its quota of human freight, left about a quarter of an hour after, followed by a third and a fourth boat.

DEFENDS PREMIER BOND.

London Journal Says He Cannot Be Blamed Whatever Happens.

London, Sept. 27.—Concluding an editorial on the Newfoundland fishery question, The Manchester Guardian says: By compelling the Imperial Government to exercise its full powers, and now by appealing in the name of constitutional liberty to the other self-governing colonies, Newfoundland is rendering the working of an Imperial constitution easier.

The London Globe says it is possible that if the fisheries question is allowed to drift much longer, Bond may be betrayed into some action which is strictly indefensible, and which he himself in less agitated times would not defend, but the fault will lie with the Government which first neglected and then denied him, and not with the Newfoundland Premier himself.

Mustn't Carry Explosives.

Cobalt, Sept. 27.—Orders have been issued by the T. & N. O. Railway to stop the loading and unloading of dynamite here, as a special spur is being built for the purpose of sidetracking all explosives to a place of storage being prepared.

The railway will also refuse to carry high exploaive in small quantities, though these may be carried in car lots.

The question of the carriage of dangerous explosives by railways is now being considered by a special committee composed of representatives of all the railways on the continent.

British Companies Scored.

Kingston, Jamaica, Sept. 27.—Resolutions were passed yesterday afternoon by the local Chamber of Commerce condemning the action of the English insurance companies.

In their defence set up in the actions arising from the Kingston disaster the companies plead they are not liable under the non-indorsation clause regarding co-insurance.

The convict McCoy, whose escapade out he roof of Wormwod Scrubs prison was reported some time ago, undeterred by the punishment awarded to him then, is giving much trouble in Pentanville, London, where he is now confined and where he has gained for himself the title of "Handcuff King." One morning he suddenly shook off his shoes and tried to climb a waterpipe while at exercise, being pulled down by the warders in the nick of time. He was taken back to his cell, and he then proceeded to break everything he could reach. Removed to another cell, his hands were handcuffed behind him; but in that condition he behaved so violently that he succeeded in damaging his fetters to such an extent that it became necessary to file them off his wrists. A second set of handcuffs, of the figure 8 pattern, were brought into requisition, and were discovered next morning in the adjoining yard. A third set met a similar fate. On his way to the cell the man succeeded in smashing three large panes of glass, and as the window of the punishment cell overlooks the hard-labour prisoners' exercise ground a large wooden structure has been erected in order to prevent his breaking the glass and scattering it among the men below.

A romantic business career, in the course of which a hairdresser rose to be one of the most important brewers in the Midlands, is recalled by the recent death of Mr. Wm. Butler, ex-duty-chairman of Mitchells and Butlers, Limited, of Birmingham. Mr. Butler became, first of all, a hairdresser, and occupied a shop in Broad-street, Birmingham, adjoining what was then known as "OOwen's" public house. Mr. Butler used frequently to assist the innkeeper, whose sister-in-law he had married. On the death of Mr. Owen, Mr. Butler took over the house, which soon developed into a very popular resort. After some time the establishment began to be called the Crown public house, becoming one of the largest of its kind in the city. Mr. Butler started in a humble way to brew beer, but in four years his brewings had become so popular that the output of the Crown Brewery was 20,000 a year. Subsequently the business was converted into a private company and later on was amalgamated with another company, Cape Hill, the nominal capital being over a million pounds.

Great rowds in Commercial Road, East London, watched the frantic endeavours of a woman to fling herself from a high window and the equally fratnic efforts of people behind to hold her back recently. The downstairs premises form a draper's shop, but the rooms over are occupied by various lodgers. Most of these were in bed and asleep when loud screams rang through the house. Hastily donning a few clothes the more venturesome ran out of their rooms, and on the top landing saw a middle-aged Jewess, apparently struggling with an unseen individual, whom she was accusing of attempting to murder her. At the sight of her fellow-lodgers she became very violent, and, screaming "Murder!" made a dash for a window which overlooked the road. Then she jumped on to a ledge and stood shouting to the crowd for a long time, waving her arms about in weird fashion. The woman seemed to be possessed of great strength, but, in the end she was secured and taken in a cab to an infirmary, where she was found to be insane.

A remarkable find was made recently by a Shields trawler while fishing fifty miles from the Tyne. When the net was hauled on deck a Bible was recovered from the load of fish. Inside the book was a ticket of membership of the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society, bearing the name of Martin Jensen, 85 Maxwell street, South Shields, and dated Jan. 29, 1907. The Bible and shipwrecked mariner's ticket were taken to the address indicated, when Mrs. Jensen at once claimed the Bible and ticket as the property of her husband, who was drowned nearly seven months ago by the foundering of the Tyne cutter Stag. He was serving on board the Stag when she disappeared with all hands in the North Sea gales in February. The Bible and ticket were in an excellent state of preservation in view of their having been submerged for practically seven months.

An amusing story of the mixing of twin children in a bath, so that their identity became confused, was told before the magistrates at Chatham, recently, when a man named Philip Barling, of Rainham road, was summoned for not having his child Archie vaccinated. The defendant did not appear, and the prosecuting solicitor said that a letter had been received from the defendant stating that his child Archie was dead. Archie was a twin child, the other being named Cyril. Inquiries were made, and the registrar of deaths showed that it was Cyril who was dead. The defendant then explained that the children got mixed in the bath, and the ribbons tied upon them got changed, but it was really Archie who died and was buried at Mailstone. The Bench made an order for the vaccination of Archie.

A tragic story is reported from Cardiff of a young Russian's infatuation of a Cardiff girl. About six weeks since there came to Cardiff a Russian seaman, aged about 20, who was known only by his Christian name, Alec. He stayed at a Russian boarding house. At a small grocer's shop opposite lived a pretty girl, and, going into the shop occasionally, Alec. met and conversed with the young lady to whom he became very much attached. On leaving Cardiff he asked her to communicate with him, a request with which she did not comply, and on his arrival at Rotterdam, Alec, not finding any letters awaiting him, jumped overboard and was drowned. A post card from the relatives conveying this sad intelligence has been received by the boarding house mistress.

George Little is the "best cutomer" the East London coroner ever had, according to the coroner himself. He is a lighterman, is 48 years old, and has saved no fewer than forty-eight lives—one for every year — from drowning, and recovered 104 bodies from the water. The one hundred and fourth body formed the subject of an inquest held at Poplar recently. Little gave evidence, and the coroner recognising him said: "You have been a regular customer of mine for years," said the coroner. "I don't know how many bodies you have picked up, but they would make quite a parliament, I should think; but they don't talk so much when you find them as they do there." He is known as the champion body snatcher, and also as the champion life saver, the latter of which titles he prefers.

SCOTLAND

The death took place recently under painfully tragic circumstances, of Mr. Robert Muir Morton, the general manager of the Fordell Collieries, Fife. Mr. Morton had been making an inspection of the underground workings in the Alice pit, and along with Mr. William King, the overman, was preparing to make an ascent from the "Galasee" bottom when a most unusual incident occurred. Both men were on the cage when it was stationary at the mid-bottom. The gate at this point, however, did not appear to be fully in position and Mr. Morton thrust out one of his feet for the purpose of lowering it. Just as he did so the engineman in response to a signal began to raise the cage. With one foot on the cage and the other on the gate, Mr. Morton was for about a second suspended and then dragged from the cage. As long as he could possibly do it, Mr. King held on to Mr. Morton, who was carried up the shaft until a narrow part was reached. Then the overman was obliged to quit his hold, and the manager a few seconds later fell to the sump, a distance of about 2 fathoms. On the body being recovered it was found that both legs and arms had been broken and that the skull had death apparently having been instantaneous.

Mr. Arthur Doggart an English visitor to Pitlochry, Perthshire, was rescued the other morning from an island on the river Tammel, a tributary of the Tay, where he was imprisoned for twelve hours while he was angling. The river came down in such a sudden flood that he was surrounded before he knew it. The police were informed of Mr. Doggart's perilous predicament, but the current was too strong for any attempts at rescue. Sandwiches attached to stones were thrown to Mr. Doggart. Flasks of whisky were similarly despatched. At about half past four in the morning a Mr. Jas. Cowan, with a rope attached to his body succeeded in reaching the island, and both of the men were brought back safely to land. The Tay, consequent on heavy rain, was in full flood, and whole districts in Perthshire were inundated. Great damage was done in Perth city, and many people were flooded out.

A dreadful accident occurred at the chemical works of Jos. Townsend, Limited, Glasgow, recently. Their chimney stack, 448 feet in height, is the highest in the world, and for a number of weeks has been under repairs by steeplejacks. While working at the copestone, one of the number, named Jas. Goldie, aged forty, overbalanced and fell from the top. He came down with frightful velocity, which horrified the witnesses of the catastrophe. After crashing through a substantial wooden platform at the base he smashed through the roof of the works, and landed on the floor. The greatest excitement prevailed among the workmen, who all rushed to give whatever aid they could. All that remained of the poor fellow however, was his battered and almost unrecognisable remains.

Henry Bellyse Baildon, the biographer of Robert Louis Stevenson, was found dead at the bottom of a quarry near Dundee some days ago. He started for a walk the previous day with his dog, but the dog returned alone. A search was made for the missing man, and his body was discovered. There was a wound behind the right ear, but whether it was the result of an attack or an accident has not developed. Mr. Baildon was lecturer on the English language and literature at University College, Dundee, and formerly was lecturer on English in the Imperial University at Vienna. He was the author, among other works, of "Robert Louis Stevenson, a Life Study in Criticism," "Emmerson, — Man and Teacher," and "Introduction to the Poetical Works of Sir Walter Scott," and numerous articles in the encyclopedias and magazines.

A very large and valuable addition to antiquarian possessions was made at Arbroath Abbey ruins recently. It is nothing else than the long lost sacred banner of Saint Columbia. The banner was found lying covered with the mist and dust of 1310 years, behind the entrance door to the chapterhouse or sacristy, upon a small deal table, unknown and uncared for. Mr. Watson, the present keeper of the Abbey stated that when he entered upon his duties recently he observed the cloth lying upon the table, but he had no knowledge of its history. There is no motto, symbol or emblem of any kind upon the banner. It is bordered with a red and white ribbon, and it is in a wonderful state of preservation, when its great age is considered. It measures six feet by five.

A case of house breaking with a novel ending was discovered at Montrose, one morning recently. A militiaman belonging to Dundee, armed with a knife and a half-penny candle broke into an upholsterer's house, during the absence of the tenant. His movements were observed from the street, his shadow ever and anon being throw on to the window blinds by the flickering of the candle. A policeman was apprised of the suspicious circumstances and, proceeding to the house, after watching the premises for a considerable time, he was surprised on entering to find the militiaman fast asleep. He had become exhausted in his search and, lying down on the kitchen bed, had fallen sound asleep.

The search for the treasure which which was on board the Spanish Armada vessel, Florencia, which went down in the Tobermory Bay, Argyllshire, is shortly to be resumed. Mr. GGush a well known Greenock diver, with his salvage steamer Beamer, and a staff of experts, is again at work, and will conduct operations, beginning the work where it was discontinued last autumn. Last year Mr. Gush made a systematic examination of fully eight acres of Tobermory Bay, digging to a depth of about twenty feet, and probbing the silt forty feet farther. All this was done under from ten to fourteen fathoms of water.

At GGalashiels Burgh Court recently, two boys of twelve years of age, were charged with having assaulted another boy of seven years, in a house on Queen street by pressing on a chair in the cushion of which were three needles with thir points upwards, one of the needles — a darning needle — penetrating the right hip two inches, and to the effusion of blood. One of the boys pleaded not guilty, and the charge against him was withdrawn. The other lad was sentenced to six strokes with the birch rod.

IRELAND

Mr. King, the Local Government auditor, who replaced Mr. Drury as auditor of the accounts of the corporation of Dublin, has surcharged the accounts of the Libraries Committee on the ground that the expenditure exceeded the sum authorised by Parliament of 1d in the £1 on the valuation. The members of the committee who are members of the corporation are to bear the surcharge, as the other members of the committee, who are citizens, selected because of their knowledge of books, etc., do not come under the jurisdiction of the auditor. These surcharges amount to £1,700. The payment of the salary of the Lord Mayor has also been surcharged on the ground that at the time the payment was made there was no credit balance for the purpose in the borough fund. This surcharge amounts to £2,400. One member has been surcharged to the extent of £1,672.

An interesting and complicated situation has arisen in West Down through the appearance of two Tory candidates—Lord Arthur Hill, former Junior Whip of the Unionist party and Mr. MacCaw, who twice contested East Tyrone, and was only defeated on the last occasion by 18 votes. Mr. MacCaw was elected by the only Unionist Association in the division. Lord Arthur Hill is a member of a Downshire family, whilst has always been very strong in that part of the county. A point in His Lordship's favour is the fact that he has been the means of selling a Downshire estate to the tenants. Mr. Andrew Beattie, D.L., is the Liberal candidate. He contested the division at the bye-election in 1905, when he was defeated by Mr. Harry Liddell. Liberals make no secret of their conviction that they can beat the Tories if a three-cornered fight is maintained.

At a Special Court held at Ballintubber, Co. Roscommon, recently five women—four of them married—and two men were charged by the Crown with assaulting and intimidating two local glaziers, and with assaulting and threatening to take the lives of several members of the constabulary. The charges arose out of visits of landholders to their holdings, when, it is alleged, the girls and women, leading their fathers and husbands, ran them off the ranches and cleared the police off. District Inspector Ross complained of the conduct of the persons charged, especially the women, since the summonses were served. Whenever the police went near the ranches, corns were blown, and the officers of the Crown were intimidated, often with success. Only a few days previously he was pelted by the women with rotten eggs and his uniform spoiled.

Criticising the Evicted Tenants' Bill at Ballyboley, Donegal, recently, Mr. John Redmond attacked the "blot" by which compulsion is applied to the "planters," and said that Ireland would cover herself with disgrace if she meekly submitted to such a triumph of Lord Clanricarde. He hoped that the people of Galway would speedily assemble in their thousands to assure the evicted tenants of Lord Clanricarde that the people would be at their back in the struggle for their rights and for their very lives. No comprehensive Land Bill had any chance of passing the Lords next year unless Ireland this autumn and winter absolutely united and made her movement strong and menacing. He begged the country to cease fault-finding and to come to business.

When the Nationalist party in Dalkey, Co. Dublin, succeeded to power as the result of the municipal elections, last January, it discarded the township's blue flag for a green and gold one. The chairman of the Urban Council ordered the Union Jack and the green flag to be hoisted, recently, in honour of the Atlantic fleet's visit, but the Nationalist members of the Council held a meeting, demanding that both flags should be hauled down. This was refused, and in the evening a crowd gathered, and, by means of ladders, hauled down the green flag and threw it into the harbour. The Union Jack was saved by the timely arrival of the police. The mob then paraded the streets in triumph until a late hour.

The magnificent Parnell statue, by St. Gaudsen, which is to be erected in Sackville street, Dublin, near the Rotunda, was recently on view in an exhibition which opened in the Royal Hibernian Academy. The four provinces and the thirty-two counties of Ireland will be represented by the medallions which will be placed round the base of the pedestal on the face of the obelisk. Just above the head of the statue there will be an inscription containing the following well-known words of Parnell: "No man has a right to say to his country, 'Thus far thou go, and no further.' We have never attempted to fix the Ne Plus Ultra to the progress of Ireland's nationhood, and we never shall."

Sticks and stones were freely used the other day on the occasion of a meeting at Granard of the North Longford Executive of the United Irish League, when a proposal was made to remove Mr. William Ganly from the presidency in consequence of his Sinn Fein views. Mr. J. P. Farrell, M.P., with his followers, had to fight his way through a crowd of Ganly's supporters amid a shower of stones, and on leaving the meeting he was severely hustled, but was ably protected by his supporters. Many of the combatants were injured in the fight. Finding his party in a minority, Mr. Ganly refused to put the vote, and left the meeting.

That the Government is apprehensive with regard to the coming winter in Ireland, and is doubtful regarding the loyalty of the constabulary since the Belfast agitation, is revealed in the present strenuous efforts to recruit the force. The number of the constabulary has been steadily decreasing for the last four years. The authorities have set aside a part of the Dublin military barracks as additional quarters for the men, and to the constables and officers throughout the country there has been sent a circular instructing them to make haste to secure suitable candidates.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Is Not An Imported Lager

We use the best hops in the world in making O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager.

The best malt in the world is made right here in Canada. We make most of it for O'Keefe's "Pilsener" Lager.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" is absolutely pure. Made from the best hops, malt and filtered water.

Imported lagers cost 20c. and 25c. a bottle simply because of the duty on them.

O'Keefe's "Pilsener" costs about half as much as imported beers—and is their equal in every respect, and their superior in many.

ed "like a small fire cracker and a big one." When this has no effect our friend, "Trouble," puts in an appearance on the scene, mounted on a bicycle, and gently demonstrates, his language seldom altogether conveying his thoughts.

A record is kept of the "trouble" cards, and the cards are ready for instant reference. Storms cause a very great deal of bother to the wires and often upset and disorganize the whole service.

Sometimes, too, the cable burns out, one line drops on another, and things happen to many telephones. In one instance the break was about one thousand feet from the mouth of the cable. It took three days hard work to find and patch it up, together with the other two breakages that occurred in the same day.

The supervisors, who are busily engaged in directing the girls under their charge, take fifteen minutes rest every half-hour, being relieved by others holding the same position, to which the best "centrals" are in time promoted.

Power Room at Telephone Exchange.

Precautions Against Fire

There has never been any fire in the building, but every precaution is taken to avoid it. In the first place there are automatic fire doors, and fire escapes. Once every month "fire drill" takes place and the girls march in order to the iron stairway to freedom. The room in which the girls work is well ventilated and care has been taken to have the lighting arranged in a special way so that it will not affect the eyes.

Most druggists and "corner" grocers would look skeptical if they were told that really quite a respectable showing of people paid to telephone. But that this is true is shown by the fact that the central at that branch of the work handles eighty or ninety calls an hour.

Long distance work requires more of the operator than does central's every day routine. She must know routes and rates, and must keep accurate watch of the time allotted to each telephone episode. For this purpose she has a card which she places under the big clock set in her desk, and by an ingenious mechanical device this card becomes stamped with the hands of the clock pointing to the hour and minute at which conversation began and ended. There are 150 long distance offices controlled by the Bell Telephone Company in the west, and nineteen lines come directly into the city.

Trouble Department.

The two "trouble" clerks, whom you get when you complain bitterly about your telephone's peculiarities, have their abode in the trouble department. The three test clerks assist in the work of trying to get order out of chaos.

In the rooms adjoining the visitor interested in the mechanical part of the great system will look at the rack distributor where the various lines enter and where "loads" may be adjusted. He or she will not linger very long in a certain chamber where the "central energy system" has its genesis. Sulphuric acid is all right, but there's a lot of energy diffused by its fumes, and though some people could grow accustomed to them and work there all day, the average person would cough once or twice and retire hastily.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS QUIET

Only One Meeting of Committees Has Been Held This Week

Things are very quiet in municipal circles this week, and, so far, only one meeting has been held, which is something new for the aldermen, and is a big contrast to the two preceeding weeks in which four meetings were held. The trouble between the Board of Health and the health officials, seems to have simmered down, at least a meeting has not been called for the purpose of considering the matter.

BOXES ARE FILLING THE LANES

Police Should Get After the Offenders as They Did Before

The old gentleman, whose business it is to keep the streets free from paper, states that the citizens are very careless in this respect. They drop paper on the main thoroughfares without any consideration for the appearance of the city in general. He also stated that the lanes in the business section have got back into the old untidy way, and that boxes and bales are piled about promiscuously. Regarding this matter, the police used to enforce the bylaw, but of late there has been nothing doing, at least, it has not been made public.

THE NEW JUDGE IS POPULAR

Mr. Justice Beck, One of the Most Highly Respected of Edmonton's Citizens— A Brilliant Career

ACQUAINTED WITH WEST

The Saturday News of Edmonton, Alta., in a recent issue, referred to the selection of Mr. Nicholas Beck as a judge of the Supreme Court of Alberta in the following terms:

For the first time in the history of the city, a member of the Edmonton bar has been elevated to the Supreme Court. That Mr. Beck would go on the Bench before very long has been generally accepted for some time past, and his appointment does honour to the Government making it. In no sense does it come as a political reward, for Mr. Beck has been no politician, in the ordinary meaning of the word. It is purely as a result of his legal attainments that he has been placed in the high and responsible position that he will in future occupy. He is still in the prime of his years, having just touched the half-century mark, and should have a long period of useful activity ahead of him.

The new judge is a Westerner of many years' experience. Educated in Peterborough and at the University of Toronto, he commenced the practice of his profession in Winnipeg in 1883, in partnership with the present Mr. Justice Prendergast of Saskatchewan. In 1889 he moved to Calgary, being associated with the Lougheed firm. Two years later he came to Edmonton, where he has built up a very large and lucrative business.

As city solicitor, he has steered the municipality over many dangerous pitfalls, and the loss of the services of a man of his experience in civic problems will be greatly felt. In the affairs of his profession at large he has been most active and has been for some time past the president of the Territorial Law Society.

Personally, the new judge is a man of rare social and intellectual gifts. He is a thorough lawyer, has always looked the part, and will do the same for that which he is now assuming. But his interests are by no means confined to the work of his calling. As a good citizen and a good friend, as well as a brilliant practitioner, he will receive the warmest congratulation of all with whom he has come into contact.

That tired feeling will disappear; your appetite will improve; your digestion will be perfect, if you will take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill.

SURPLUS CASTLES OF FAIR DIRECTORS FADE AWAY WITH THE RAIN

Bright Prospects of Yesterday are Somewhat Dampened ---Believes There May Yet Be a Slight Surplus

THE SECOND DAY OF THE EXHIBITION WAS SUCCESSFUL

This Afternoon's Performances and Speeding in the Ring Events Cancelled--- These Were Popular and Exciting Yesterday --- The President Was Jubilant Last Night

The confidence which President R. H. Leary, of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, has expressed for months in the success of the Fair of 1907 has been amply realized, as may be observed from the above unhesitating remarks he made to an Examiner representative last night at the close of the second day of the Exhibition. The president was truly wearing that smile which won't vacate the premises, when he made the spirited remarks, but there was a slight change to-day when he awoke to find the rain coming down. Weather, such as the sample delivered this morning, was entirely unexpected, and, had the day been fine, the Fair would have been successful to a marked degree. However, the resuscitation of the Industrial Exhibition of Peterborough has been accomplished well, and President Leary and the directors have every reason to feel gratified that they have done their duty and performed their arduous task with diligence.

Everything at an exhibition depends, of course, upon the attendance, and the attendance greatly depends upon the atmospheric conditions. Yesterday, the morning broke dark and cloudy, and many predicted a rainy day. But the weather man knew different, and before midday the sun smiled through the clouds and brightened up the spirits of the pessimists.

6,000 on the Grounds

Conservative estimates by the president and gate-keepers placed the attendance yesterday at over 6,000 people. Over 5,000 tickets were sold at the gates, and with the addition of those who had goods entered and those who carry membership tickets, the estimate can not be far astray.

Long before noon the crowds, and particularly those from the country, began to arrive, but it was not until after the turn of the day that they came in numbers that spread delight among the directors. Every street car and trailer that arrived at the grounds—and they came every five minutes—were well laden with human freight.

Citizens of Peterborough, their wives and daughters, were there, and were glad they went yesterday, in larger numbers than ever before. Many from a distance arrived during the morning by train and boat, and testimony to this was easily borne by the additions on the hotel registers last night. They were there from Hastings, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland counties, as well as from all parts of the county of Peterborough, and each coterie helped to swell the numbers.

Surplus in Sight

For many years it has been well-known that the Exhibition here, financially, was not a success. But from the attendance yesterday afternoon, and from the above remarks of the president, a surplus is in sight, and the castle of the dreams of the directors has become a reality.

To break even was as much as many hoped for, and there were few, apart from the optimistic president and his lieutenants, who believed it possible to have money in the bank when the expenses were paid.

The sources of revenue were not many but of a good quality. Besides the money taken in gate receipts, the exhibits, which were especially large this year, contributed greatly to swell the coffers. Earlier in the year the directors made it a point to obtain as many members as possible, so that the revenue from this source was also considerable. The grand stand yesterday afternoon was popular with the visitors, and it was estimated that it supplied accommodation to more than a thousand during the vaudeville performances and the speeding in the ring contests.

Quality of The Exhibits

From the standpoint of the number and quality of the exhibits the exhibition was most satisfactory. The farmers of Peterborough county certainly deserve the reputation of raising horses, live stock, grains and vegetables, of the finest quality. Peterborough and the adjacent counties eligible to compete at the exhibition, have beyond a doubt some of the most painstaking, energetic and skilful tillers of the soil in the province.

The horses shown yesterday were particularly fine in all classes, and it is on few occasions that a person is permitted to see so many equestrian fanciers as yesterday and to-day. The cattle were also of the very best quality and attracted a good many interested visitors to their stalls. Sheep and swine although not all that could be desired in numbers, were good indications of the thrift of the farmers who exhibited them. Cattle, swine and sheep are animals not so easily brought to a fair as are horses, so that there is an excuse for any shortage in their numbers.

The poultry tent was a whole show in itself. It stands immediately inside the first gate, and there were possibly over 4,000 persons who wended their way through the tent. All classes mentioned in the prize list were there, and some birds were exhibited that were not marked down in the ribbon books. The rabbits occupied the same apartments as the hens, but the turkeys and geese were placed in the coops outside.

The bittern captured in the Otonabee woods by Mr. Thomas Petrie on Thursday was the centre of attraction for many. In silence it stood in the coop all day long, never even blinking its staring eye at the prettiest damsel that stooped to peep into its narrow quarters. The bird, when captured, fought strenuously for its freedom, and the marks of its long bill may yet be seen on Mr. Petrie's hand.

In the Building

Evidence of the fact that a new exhibition building is needed on the grounds was afforded yesterday. Yet although its appearance is none too good there were hundreds who availed themselves of the opportunity during the past two days to explore its handsome exhibits.

Two tea men occupied the spaces—Mr. John, of Peterborough, and Mr. Minto, the Metagama man from Toronto—so that the ladies were at home. The tea booths were freely patronized and were certainly a great source of convenience to many.

The photo galleries were attractive and together with the products of the photographers' machine and brush the display in oil painting, water colours, sketching and crayon was splendid. The vegetables, fruits, ladies fancy work and penmanship were exhibited in the building and were attractive. The judging of the exhibits inside the main building began at 10.00 a.m. yesterday and last night the red, blue, and white cards were distributed.

The Big Steer

One of the important side attractions was the 3,500 lb. steer shown beside a small Jersey cow by Mr. Hetherington. The canvas under which they have stood for two days was a strong attraction and hundreds of those who attended the fair called to see the big steer. "Laddie," as it is called, stands 17 hands high, girths over 13 feet, is built in proportion, weighs 3,500 lbs., and was bred by Mr. T J Hetherington, of Smith.

The midway has before been described so that it is sufficient to say that it was the largest and best ever on the local grounds. The palmists were popular with the young men who did not object to holding hands with the mysterious damsels of Egyptian hue.

Attractions a Feature

About three o'clock this band moved towards the grand stand and the crowd swayed with it to take in the speeding events and this special attractions. These were of a lively nature and all who watched them yesterday and to-day were more than delighted with the good manner.

The afternoon the speeding events including a dog race for boys were continued and followed with interest.

Prizes Distributed

At 1 o'clock yesterday the judging in horses began but the entry list was too lengthy to be concluded in one day. At 2.35 the cattle sheep and swine were visited by the men with the tickets and later horses, single and double, in harness were judged in front of the grand stand.

This morning the judging in horses was continued, finishing this afternoon.

The 57th Regimental Band, under the direction of Mr. Gliddon, provided excellent music on both days

Local Option For Northern Townships

Campaign Being Inaugurated in Apsley and Harvey With This End in View—Methodists Consider It

ARE SECURING SIGNATURES

The fact that steps are being taken to inaugurate a campaign in favour of local option in Harvey township was mentioned at the Methodist district meeting yesterday afternoon, when a communication was read from the Field Secretary in reference to the work being done, and it was decided to communicate with Rev. Dr. Chown, who is head of the Temperance and Moral Reform Department of the Church, and obtain further necessary information in reference to the method of conducting such a campaign.

It is understood that a petition is being circulated at the present time in this township with a view of securing the signatures of twenty-five per cent of the voters, to enable those in favour of Local Option to present the request to the council for the submitting of a bylaw.

FREE DELIVERY IN OPERATION

First Mails Were Delivered in a Satisfactory Manner and Without a Hitch

MR. DURSTON PLEASED

This morning marked the inauguration of the free postal delivery system in Peterborough, and from the satisfactory beginning made by the carriers to-day there is every reason to believe that the citizens will soon regard it with favour, in spite of the doubts that seem to exist. Mr. Robt. Durston under whose energetic management the system has been perfected and put in operation, is greatly pleased with the carriers and with their initial efforts. Mr. Arthur Webster, Mr Ross' secretary, came down from Toronto last night and was at the office when the final work was done preparing the different routes for this morning. He returned this morning confident that the institution would be successful and expressed himself as highly satisfied with the men and the arrangements that had been made.

The First Trip

Last night the post office staff cleared out all the letters and papers that had street addresses and this morning on the first trip 1,000 letters and 500 papers were distributed. Many of these letters might remain in the office for a week as there are some people who do not call for mail but once a week or perhaps less often. The morning train from the east which is due at 5.15 a.m., did not arrive until 7.25 and thus that mail was not taken on the first delivery, but went out at 10 o'clock.

A large number of circulars were posted by several Peterborough merchants for local delivery and are now all distributed, whereas by the old system they might remain in the office several weeks and might not even then be called for. If a letter or parcel has not the street number, the directory is referred to and an attempt made to deliver it and if this is impossible it is left at the delivery.

The result of the free delivery will be that there will be less crowding in the offices and farmers can readily obtain their mail on Saturday without a delay of an hour or more. Mr. Durston is confident that when the system is perfected the citizens will be greatly pleased with it and will forget that they ever had boxes. The arrangements in the office are very simple and have been so perfected that within a month the carriers will be at home at their work and the citizens will all be won over.

One Cent Postage For City Delivery Letters

Postmaster General Lemieux Makes Important Announcement of Interest to Cities With Street Delivery.

TO REDUCE THE POSTAGE

The increase in the cost of drop letters from one to two cents, coincident with the introduction of the postal delivery system in the city may not be of long duration. A despatch to-day from Montreal gives the information that the Postmaster-General states that he will introduce a bill at the next session of Parliament providing for one cent postage on drop-letters. It is expected that it will become effective shortly after the New Year. This will remove the only objection that has ever been made against the introduction of the street delivery.

PRESIDENT LEARY IS PLEASED WITH THE FAIR

Alderman R. H. Leary, to Whom Much of the Credit for the Success of the Peterborough Industrial Fair Is Due

THE COLLEGIATE CROSS COUNTRY RUN

Takes Place on Monday Afternoon—Field Day on Friday

As mentioned a few days ago the cross country run for the pupils of the Collegiate Institute will be held on Monday afternoon at four o'clock. The contestants this year in both the junior and senior race will be many and the run around the three mile course promises to be interesting. The course is by way of the bridge on McDonel street, the bridge on Smith street near Jackson Park, and the corner of Smith and Water streets. The start and finish will be at the corner of Water and Murray streets.

The record for the seniors in the cross country run is 17.21 and for the juniors 18 minutes.

The annual field day of sports will be held next Friday afternoon on the Oval. Besides the cups presented to the winners of the junior and senior championships Mr. Alex. Gibson has donated two medals for the winners of each.

THE PICKPOCKETS FEW YESTERDAY

Not a Single Report Received at Headquarters of a Robbery

The local police force has apparently gained for the city a bad reputation among crooks and pickpockets, for both were noticeably absent yesterday in the city and at the Exhibition. At least, not a single report was received by the authorities that anyone had suffered, as quite a number did on circus day the past summer. A sure sign that any police force is doing good work is the absence of crime, and with such a large number of people assembled on the streets, as yesterday, it must be a compliment to the citizens that they are so well protected. P. C. Nowlan and P. C. McDonald were both in plain clothes, while several of the others were on duty, and if there had been any Phelps or Bradfords around they would surely have been caught. The day passed off without incident in this respect, and the city's good name was upheld.

A FAIR WHICH GAVE GREAT PROMISES MARRED BY THE DOWNPOUR OF RAIN TO-DAY

Just when a surplus at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was within the grasp of the fair directors the unexpected arrival of disagreeable weather placed a damper upon the hopeful expectations of the men in charge. At the close of yesterday everything pointed to a happy ending of the fifth annual Industrial Exhibition and all who attended were loud in their praises of its character but there was nothing doing to-day. This afternoon the president was interviewed as to the prospects of a surplus. He stated there was little chance of having very much above the expenses but that the directors were still thankful that the exhibition had been such a success yesterday. He believed that they would break even financially and that there was a slight prospect for a small surplus when the books were balanced up. If it hadn't been for the rain to-day, the President was positive that a handsome sum would have been laid away to the credit of the exhibition for improvement purposes.

The weather man is therefore the only one to blame and on account of the unlooked for weather of to-day the speeding in the ring events as well as the vaudeville performances had to be cancelled. There was therefore nothing doing at the grounds to-day except the conclusion of the judging of the horses.

THE WEATHER.

The rain which has been threatening for several days, arrived early this morning, accompanied by a cold north-east wind. Highest temperature yesterday, 58 degrees; lowest, 46. Barometer, 29.41, and stationary.

SUNDAY

To-morrow rest and peace through all the land
Shall sweetly stroll together, hand in hand,
And over towns that throbbed with pain and gain

And when the bells do sing with joy half mad,
All men bless God for Sunday and are glad.—The Khan.

"The rumours regarding the concern are altogether untrue. I have upwards of 1300 shares of the stock and am holding them for investment. Mr. Nicholls has cabled that indications for floating the new issue of securities are quite favourable, but the matter is not yet definitely arranged. I have the greatest possible confidence in the company, and think it a shame that some people are endeavouring to embarrass so substantial a Canadian institution. I am informed that several Toronto brokers are advising their clients to sell their holdings for the purpose of buying the stock in at a low figure. The company is controlled by a directorate of substantial business men, and the dividend paid has always been warranted by the earnings."

The above is a statement issued by Mr. W. H. Brock, president of the Canadian General Electric Company, to-day, in refutation of the rumour that the company was in financial difficulties. Yesterday the stock of the company sold on the Toronto Exchange at 102 1-2, and some uneasiness is said to have been caused as a consequence.

The Cause For Drop

Some of the day's transactions were reported to have been for the account of London shareholders, who had taken the stock when it was first put out on the English market, and who found it difficult to unload it on the English Exchange.

The downfall in General Electric has become a matter of extreme importance in financial circles. The stock at one time sold as high as 285, and, although there has been no reduction in the dividend, which is still 10 per cent., the price of the shares is more than cut in half.

Satisfaction Here

Locally, no concern is felt. It is admitted that the company is prosperous, business is coming in at a rate never experienced before, and there is a feeling of gratification at the prosperous condition of the industry, upon which Peterborough depends so largely for the maintenance of its present enviable position as one of the first manufacturing cities in the Dominion.

A DIRE OUTLOOK FOR THE JAPANESE

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Miss Riddell, a missionary, who has been stationed at Kumanmoto, Japan, stated in the course of a lecture in the Synod Hall, University street last night that every twelfth person in Japan was either a leper or certain to become one because of the prevalence of the taint in the blood. Miss Riddell said that so long as a person kept clean, was free from cuts or abrasions and did not use the same dishes, he might live in the same house as a leper without contracting the disease.

NEW INSPECTOR IS IN THE CITY

Mr. A. Mowat, the Public School Inspector Here To-Day—Will Remove to City Shortly

Mr. AMowat, the new Public School Inspector for the city is here to-day, the object of his visit being to secure a house in which to move his family. Mr. Mowat is paying his first visit to Peterborough since his appointment to the position and this morning he met members of the Board of Education who were pleased with their's election of an inspector. As soon as the new teacher in the Brockville Institute has been secured, Mr. Mowat will be free to come to Peterborough, and it is not anticipated that his arrival to remain will be long delayed.

HOW TO DO IT RIGHT

On page 11 of this issue is to be found a splendid article on the subject of the construction of country roads. It is printed for several reasons—because it is a subject of the first importance to the country at large; because it is of interest to Peterborough; because it is written by the best authority in the Province, or, perhaps, Dominion; because the principles it sets forth are as generally applicable to urban street-making as to rural road-making; because it should be read by every alderman, every member of the Board of Works, by every official connected with street work,—city engineer, street commissioner, street inspector—in order that they may be seized of the first principles, the rudiments, of road and street-making, of which, judging by the practices pursued, they seem to be supremely ignorant.

Mr. A. W. Campbell, C.E., Provincial Deputy Minister of Public Works, is an expert in the art of road-making. He has made a special study of the subject, and has, besides, had an extensive practical experience which, combined with the trained skill of an engineer, supplemented by a sane enthusiasm, eminently qualify him as the very highest authority on the subject.

Comment upon, and analysis of, the article are suggested in the interests of Peterborough, with a view of amendment of practice, which will procure us the boon of better streets—better value for our large expenditure. The matter involved is a serious one, because an analysis of the article will, unfortunately, show that almost every principle of road-making, laid down by Mr. Campbell in the article, is ignored in the dealing with our streets; almost every principle of sound practice is neglected. There is a right way and a wrong way to do almost everything. There is a careful way, and a sloppy, indifferent way. The wrong ways seem to have been practised in Peterborough for years. Let every ratepayer read the article, and then he will see how the teaching has been disregarded in practice.

The article of Mr. Campbell lays down, as the first principle, that "the keynote of modern road-making is drainage." The Examiner, from a layman's point of view, has often insisted upon the same point, not from any special wisdom, but because ordinary common sense suggests it. The Examiner has also frequently pointed out that probably no city in Canada possesses, to such an extent, the conditions that favour—and, indeed, invite—application of the first principle of right road-making — drainage — as Peterborough. It has also been pointed out that this has been, and is being, persistently neglected.

To illustrate the neglect referred to in relation to the article in question, the stretch of street on Gilmour street, from Park to St. Joseph, now under the hands of the Board of Works, may be taken. In this street stretch of some 500 feet, every principle, almost, laid down by Mr. Campbell is being violated.

A point insisted upon by Mr. Campbell is the proper preparation of the roadbed for the reception of street metal—crushed stone or gravel.

"The foundation. . . must be made strong enough by drainage to support not only the weight of vehicles, but of the metal covering as well."

What has been done on this stretch of street? No provision for proper firming of the foundation, or for drainage, has been made. On this street, there is from Park street to St. Joseph street, a fall of, perhaps, ten feet; yet for years there has been at the higher end, near Park street, almost perpetual pools of water, or mud, because the gutter between the highest and the lowest point was higher in the middle, and the water could not get away. Not only was no attention paid to this condition in the recent improvement of the street, but, on the contrary, it was made worse, and the water table filled up at perhaps the highest point, creating a greater obstruction than before. The city road grader, used with a little common sense, and judgment, for half an hour, would have made a clear way for the escape of the water, which will still be dammed back, as effectively as ever, under and by the covering of gravel just placed.

This is a most important point. Mr. Campbell, in the third condition for a completed road grade says:

"Side drains which hold water, instead of carrying it away, are as useless in draining roads (or streets), as they would be in draining farm lands."

This stretch of street has been treated with gravel, without any attention to proper preparation of the road bed, or provision for drainage. The gravel has been dumped upon the old road bed, which was provided with pockets which held the water back from St. Joseph's street entrance to the Park street drain grating. What will be the result? The water from rains, and from Park street, will soak through the gravel, and, held back by the dams left in the original road bed, will form under the gravel pools of water, which the hard surface will not permit to be quickly absorbed, nor the high points permit to be carried off. The street metal will be softened, the wheels will cut it up, and the surface be speedily ruined, for no amount of rolling will keep hard and unbroken a stretch of metal saturated with underlying water. Says Mrs. Campbell:

"Good drainage is the only means of keeping a road dry, and, consequently, strong."

As a matter of fact, on the north side of Gilmour street, at its junction with Park, the dams formed by the newly-placed gravel forms the same old pools of mud and water, that has been there for years.

Mr. Campbell says:

"The next point is to see that the metal (crushed stone or gravel) is compacted into a closely knit layer; loose gravel or stone on a road is an abomination."

How is this condition met. The gravel put on Gilmour street is of very uneven quality. One may see in one place loads of coarse gravel, composed entirely of rounded stones, about the size of a goose egg, which could only be "compacted" with a pile driver. This is surrounded with soft sand or fine gravel, or sand mixed with earth, an utterly unfit substitute for a round surface. Such a surface will pack unevenly, and holes will rapidly develop.

Again, Mr. Campbell says:

"Gravel for roads (streets) should be clean. Dirty gravel binds quickly after being put on, but dissolves readily in the wet weather of spring and fall, becomes rutted, and is not desirable."

What about this on Gilmour and other streets? One can see teams dumping gravel, mixed with grass clods from the surface of the gravel pit, along side, and mixed with, cleaner gravel. According to Mr. Campbell, this will make a "rotten" road surface. He adds:

"Certain qualities of gravel should be screened, to remove the earthy material, and others should be put through a stone crusher."

Is this done? Is there even the slightest attempt to separate surface loam and sods from better gravel? No; there is not. The result will be that when these foreign substances are mixed with fair gravel on undrained streets, holes will speedily develop; all the labour of hauling and rolling will be wasted, and villainous streets the result.

Here we have all the cardinal principles of good road making violated and ignored in treating one short stretch of street — with ideal conditions for perfect drainage — of about 150 yards. When there is a right and a wrong way of doing street work, why choose the cheap and nasty way? The dominant idea in street building should be permanency. How can we expect permanence or an approach to it, when all the principles declared necessary for permanency, by the best authority, are violated? Why waste the peoples' money in doing street work, that won't stand the wear and tear of even one autumn or spring — according to Mr. Campbell, an unimpeachable authority on proper road making?

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Hon. Geo. P. Graham, recently appointed Minister of Railways and Canals in the Dominion Cabinet, is, says the Christian Guardian, just now a much-talked about individual. As the son of a Methodist minister, and an official in the Methodist Church, thousands of our readers, irrespective of party, are cherishing high hopes for him in the responsible and exceedingly trying position to which he has been called. To give one's self up to an active political life is, we believe, to make a severe test of the reality and thoroughness of one's moral and religious conviction, but then, we suppose, convictions are made for testing, and should they break down under, it is only a proof that they were not of any great value before it came. Our best wish for Mr. Graham is that as the years go on he may prove himself a politician built on the four-square plan.

Dear Sir,—I would like to call attention to the condition of the bridge over the river at the east end of London street. As this is used by the public, I think the least the city could do would be to keep it in repair. At present it is a disgrace.

Yours truly,
DRIVER.

UNIQUE FIREPLACE IN MARKET OFFICE

Paper Burned in a Barrel to Drive Away The Cold

The want of a stove at the market office was greatly felt this morning, when the live stock men began to arrive. The office seemed to have been left in cold storage over night, and made the atmospheric conditions of none too agreeable a character.

There were men of genius there, however, and the old proverb, of "where there's a will there's a way," was amply exemplified.

In a short time a pleasant fire in a barrel was burning, and all gathered around to have their temperatures raised. Paper was piled on for fuel and before the finish all the sale bills and calenders on the walls went up in smoke, as well as a quantity of wood shavings which the market clerk had stowed away for winter.

Finally the barrel caught fire and it had to be carried out to the square where, as the poet would say, "the heat was wasted on the desert air."

No. 4 3 Lots on Park Street, opposite Power House, having thereon two large barns and hog pen, barn No. 1 is about 60 x 80 on 9 feet stone wall basement being block paved, well lighted and admirably fitted for horses, cattle and poultry, large safe root cellar. Barn is double floored with large granary and easy of access by elevated driveway. This building could be used for many purposes and can be bought for less than half cost. Barn No. 2 is a fine building on large cedar posts, 10 feet high, doubled floored solidly built, braced, securely enclosed and like No. 1 fitted with modern appliances, for handling produce, basement is used for storage. The Hog Pen is well suited for its purpose and the value of the whole property it greatly increased by living stream of pure spring water constantly running through the yard. Its proximity to two Elevators, Flour Mill, Electric Power House, R. R. Depot and Trent Canal. This is a sharp man's opportunity.

No. 5 Vacant Lot 50 x 150 between Depot and Radiator Works.

No. 6 17 acre Fruit Farm 3 acres of which is subdivided into 8 lots, fronting on Norwood and Hope Streets, balance divided into two blocks, with choice orchard of Pears and Apples in first year's bearing, wire and picket fences and well on premises, sidewalk to entrance. A beautiful location for suburban home. Should be secured quickly by retiring farmer or man of leisure.

No. 7 Summer Cottage on Ellen's Isle half-mile above railroad bridge in Trent River, Cottage built last season and neatly finished. Best spring water piped from elevated mainland to island, affording good head for fountain, telephone line on main circuit, a landscape garden for small outlay, could make this the most beautiful island in all the inland waters. Local steamers and Trent Canal boats pass a few feet from shore. 20 lb. Maskinonge and large Bass are caught from the island, in fall flocks of Wild Duck are numerous. It is an ideal spot and must be seen to be appreciated.

The above properties will be open for sale, separately or en bloc, until 15th of Oct. Desirable Peterboro' property taken in exchange. Full particulars from T. HURLEY, 382 Hunter St., Peterboro', or

Thorough Draining First Principle of Good Roads

Mr. A. W. Campbell, Deputy Minister of Public Works, Deals With This Subject From an Expert Point of View

LESSON FOR LOCAL BOARD

(By A. W. Campbell, Ontario Commissioner of Highways.)

Good roads are of more importance to the development of any country than is commonly attributed to them. A vague impression prevails that railways have superseded them and that, so far as industrial, commercial and social progress is concerned, the condition of the common road is of little consequence. A more indefensible position could not be taken. Railways mean, above all, further development, and that development demands the improvement of country roads as feeders to the railway, and for communication with the adjacent country. Every nation that has achieved supremacy has been a builder of roads. Good roads are not merely an index of, but a means towards, national greatness.

Since the days when Rome built the Appian way, and those other great highways over which the commerce of new colonies passed, the art of road-making has been materially changed. These old roads were—and many of them still remain—masses of rock and masonry several feet in thickness. The necessity of this great depth of material has been done away with by the very simple discovery—yet one which is still but tardily accepted—that the natural soil, IF KEPT DRY BY DRAINAGE, will support any load. As contrasted with ancient methods, THE KEYNOTE OF MODERN ROADMAKING IS DRAINAGE, BOTH SURFACE AND DEEP DRAINAGE

A good country road has two well-defined features. These are:

(1) The foundation of natural soil over which the road passes, and which must be kept strong enough by drainage to support not only the weight of vehicles, but the road covering as well.

(2) The surface covering of broken stone or gravel, which resists wear, and distributes the concentrated wheel load over a greater area of sub-soil.

If one of these is of more importance than the other, it is the former—the natural or sub-soil—and it is the one the proper treatment of which is most frequently neglected. The right way to make a good gravel or broken stone road is to first make of the natural soil on which the gravel or stone is to be laid the best earth road that the soil is capable of producing. This is a matter of drainage and grading, and, if possible, rolling. The grading and drainage are largely the same thing, and have to be considered together. That is, the grading should be such as to give good surface drainage.

The first step that naturally presents itself in opening an entirely new road is to throw up in the centre of the road allowance a smooth and level waggon track. This work is most cheaply and effectively done with a grading machine. In throwing up this grade the excavation of earth at the sides forms the open drains.

The completed earth grade should, for the average country road, have:

(1) A circular rise or camber of about two inches to the foot from the bottom of the side drains to the centre of the road. This "crown" will carry water from the roadway to the side drains.

(2) A slope following the axle of the road should be such that the open drains at the side will have a constant fall to a free outlet. That is, the side drains should carry water from one culvert to another without allowing it to stand in pockets and depressions. Drains which hold water instead of carrying it away are as useless in draining roads as they would be in draining farm land.

Almost any soil, when kept dry, is strong enough to support the traffic of loaded vehicles. Good drainage is the only means of keeping the soil of a road dry, and consequently strong. If the open drains are not sufficient then deep tile drainage can be adopted.

The effect of deep drainage is that, whereas the raised grade and the open drains beside it may keep the natural soil dry for a foot or so in depth, the tile will greatly increase this thickness of dry soil, which will give proportionate strength of foundation.

The round shape of the roadway is particularly important. It sheds water quickly to the side drains. Whereas, if flat or hollow in the centre, the rain falling on the road does not run off, but is held on the surface to soften it and turn it into mud.

The soils found in the sub-grade may be described in three general classes: 1, clay; 2, sand or gravel; 3, sandy loam.

(1) Clay, as found in the sub-grade, is variable in quality. It may be a pure blue clay, or it may have sand mixed with it in different proportions. With blue clay, the ground water must be removed as far as possible if stable results are to be secured. In addition to the open surface drains, one or two deep tile drains should be laid along the roadside underneath the open drains and leading to free outlets. It is customary to place one tile drain on an uphill side, and one on each side in a cut or on a level grade.

If the clay contains a considerable proportion of coarse sand, it drains more freely than does pure blue clay, and one tile drain along the roadway will do all that two can do, if placed at sufficient depth. If, on the other hand, the sand is fine-grained, it may be in greater need of deep drainage than if it were blue clay, becoming when wet almost a fluid in consistency.

(2) Sand or gravel sub-soils may demand little or no tile drainage to produce a reasonably strong foundation. Tile drains may be omitted at the time of construction but can be put at points where the condition of the road under traffic indicates that the "water line" should be lowered.

(3) A sandy loam is a soil which is often difficult to treat. As a rule, in addition to good surface drainage, a tile drain at one side will be of benefit, particularly in drying out the road quickly in the spring, when it is most subject to injury under traffic.

The perfect drainage of the earth sub-soil in this way by means of a crowned roadway, open drains and deep tile drains, will do all that can be done to make a good earth road, and thus to provide a firm, dry sub-soil on which to lay the gravel or broken stone. If the soil is newly thrown up, however, a roller should be used to compact it, before spreading the road metal.

On clay soil a standard thickness of consolidated road metal is six inches, on sandy loam, the thickness should ordinarily be greater, particularly at any points where the soil is noticeably weak. On a sand or gravel sub-grade the thickness of road metal (broken stone) may be reduced to four inches. On low ground between hills; or on a flat road, a greater thickness of road metal is required than on a slope or on the top of a knoll.

Having made a good earth road, and over this having spread gravel or broken stone, the next point is to see that the metal is compacted into a closely-knit layer, loose gravel or stone on a road is an abomination. A roller should be used to consolidate this metal in order that it may perform its office of making a smooth, hard surface for traffic, which will distribute over the subsoil the concentrated wheel loads and which will form a water-proof coating that will shed water quickly to the open drains at the side of the road. If a roller cannot be procured, the wheel tracks made in the loose metal should be raked full from time to time until they are thoroughly consolidated by traffic, and flush with the rest of the road.

The materials commonly used for the surface of country roads are gravel and broken stone. Broken (or crushed) stone is, as a rule, much the better of the two. Roughly estimated, for average qualities of each, six inches of stone will make as durable a roadbed as will a foot of gravel. Gravel is a natural broken stone, but is rounded and waterworn, and contains a considerable proportion of sand, clay and earthy material. Crushed stone, on the other hand, is made up of stones of a more suitable size, that are angular, and so bind together with a firm mechanical clasp; nor is there any objectionable amount of earthly material.

Whether gravel or stone should be used in any instance will depend on local circumstances. In some districts there is no gravel, in others there is no stone suitable for crushing; while in others there is little or none of either. This is a matter to be determined by the relative cost under the conditions of travel to be served. There are, however, some municipalities using inferior gravel at a cost of haulage almost equal to the crushed stone by rail.

Gravel for roads should be clean. Dirty gravel binds quickly after being put on the road, but dissolves readily in the wet weather of spring and fall, becomes gutted and is not durable. The best quality for road has a good proportion of stones the size of walnuts, with enough finer pebbles to fill the voids. Certain qualities of gravel should be screened to remove earthly material; and others should be put through a stone crusher. Screening can be economically done by means of a rotary screen, operated by steam, either separately or attached to a crusher.

Broken stone is now invariably produced by means of crushing machines operated by steam, these turning out from 50 to 100 cubic yards a day. The stone is obtained from quarries or is collected in the fields, care being taken in the latter case to discard such boulders as are badly weathered. Limestone is largely used in western Ontario; and in eastern Ontario limestone, gneiss and granite.

Stone crushers are essential in municipalities having no gravel, but a plentiful supply of stone. Formerly stone was broken by hand, but the process is too expensive and slow. By means of the stone crusher broken stone roads have become practicable throughout the province, as large quarries, with extensive plants, are now crushing stone and shipping it by rail for this purpose.

One of the most commonly-used road-making machines is the grader. Graders reduce largely the cost of earth works; but unfortunately their misuse in repairing old gravel and stone roads has done very much harm. Those old roads are commonly wide and flat with square earth shoulders at the sides. With a view to crowning the road, the earth shoulders have been cut off, and instead of being turned outward, the material composing them, earth and sod, has been drawn to the centre of the road. This soft material lying on top of the old, impervious stone or gravel roadbed, in fall and spring becomes a river of mud. Miles of road have been almost ruined in this way.

Road rollers are steadily coming into more common use. A large number of towns and cities use heavy rollers operated by steam for their macadam roads. These weigh from ten to fifteen tons. Rollers drawn by horses and weighing from five to eight tons are also used. A roller should first be used on the earth grade of a new road to compact the loose earth, so that the gravel or stone, when applied, will form a distinct coating. When the roller is used on the metal the road is at once made fit for service instead of undergoing a period of settlement under traffic. By the use of a roller, a more durable road can be made, and a considerable saving of broken stone or gravel is effected.

In the foregoing survey of the art of road construction a number of the principal branches have been briefly suggested. Each, however, is capable of extended discussion. If their application were intended for only a mile of road the subject would be of little consequence. But in Ontario with 60,000 miles of road to build and maintain, the reference is to a great public work costing not thousands but millions of dollars. To finance and direct this undertaking is another problem. That much is being attempted is evidenced by the fact that in the ten years 1896-1906, there has been spent on the country roads of Ontario the equivalent of twenty million dollars.

Eczema is Baby's Enemy

CAUSING KEEN DISTRESS FROM THE DREADFUL ITCHING—SOMETIMES LASTS FOR YEARS—CURE EFFECTED BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The first indication of eczema is a red pimple, or blister-like eruption. The points run together, and make a moistened patch, which "weeps" at first, and then dries into a crust.

The intense itching of eczema of the face and scalp is very hard for the little one to bear, and the result is scratching until free bleeding takes place, and recovery is further retarded. Besides the suffering from the distressing itching, the child is restless and sleepless.

When left to itself, eczema runs on indefinitely, covering the body with sores, but fortunately there is positive cure in the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment, a preparation which by its marvellous soothing and healing powers, brings quick relief from itching and heals up the sores.

Mr. William Crafts, jr., Burk's Falls, Ont., writes: "Our little boy, aged three years, broke out with eczema all over his face, hands and back, and we had a terrible time trying to relieve his suffering. It was so bad that when he scratched it would almost make the blood flow. The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly brought relief and made a thorough cure, as there has never any return of the disagreeable ailment. We always keep Dr. Chase's medicines in the house and find them very useful."

Mrs. M. McCann, 4 Short street, St. John, N. B., writes: "My little girl, three years old, had her face covered with eczema and it was beginning to spread all over her body. I tried many different ointments, and the doctor could not do her any good. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment and she was completely cured by one box. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough for the good it has done her."

Dr. Chase's Ointment has proven especially successful in the cure of baby eczema, as well as the prevention of this torturing disease, when used for chafing and skin diseases, in which eczema finds its beginnings. Sixty cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A HORSE

John McCullough Escaped Unhurt, but Was Dragged Some Yards

J. McCullough, one of the corporation labourers, has an escape last evening that he will not soon forget. He was crossing the street at the corner of George and Hunter streets, shortly after 6 o'clock, when he was struck by a horse driven by a Bobcaygeon man. Mr. McCullough was knocked down, and the horse passed over him, fortunately without its hoofs touching him. He managed to grasp the front wheel and prevented it from going over him, although he was dragged for some yards before the horse was brought to a halt. He was unhurt, with the exception of a few bruises and a bad shaking up. Spectators stated that the horse was being driven in a reckless manner, and that it was a miracle that Mr. McCullough was not killed.

BIRDS SHOWN WERE STOLEN

Port Hope Gentleman Found Some Missing Property at the Fair

Among the poultry exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial yesterday, was one of especial interest, inasmuch as the birds shown had been stolen and were not shown by their right owner. A Port Hope man, who had some valuable chickens taken from him recently, was a visitor at the Fair yesterday, and identified the birds in question as his property. The man who had exhibited them had decamped in the meantime, but fortunately left the poultry behind him, and the Port Hope gentleman recovered his property. It is not known whether the thief will be prosecuted or not; at any rate he made his escape from the grounds yesterday.

WIFE HOLDS HUSBAND, BURGLAR FLED

She Thought he Had a Nightmare and Held Him Tight

Cleveland, O., Sept. 28. — Because Mrs. David Ordway, No. 22 Elmwood street, Lakewood, believed that her husband had a nightmare, a burglar who entered the house a few nights ago, got away with a diamond ring valued at $300, and a stud valued at $200. Ordway was awakened by a burglar in the room. With a shout he tried to jump out of bed and pursue him. His yell aroused his wife and she seized him just as he was making the flying leap.

"Burglars! Burglars!" he screamed, but she held him down firmly and tried to pacify him. Meantime the robber hustled downstairs and escaped with the jewellery.

EAST CITY STANDS UP PROUDLY FOR ITS RIGHTS

Another Claimant in the Street Beauty Competion

(Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I must let you know that East City is in the running in the matter of attractive streets. Stand at the crossing of Hunter street and Lake street, look south towards the lake and your eyes will be filled with a vision of quiet beauty, over arching trees, clean street, tidy lawns and—I must say truth—some fences that are not quite as ornamental as they should be. I wont, however, hesitate to challenge either Gilmour street or Homewood Avenue to a comparison. These streets on each side are nice enough, but when it comes to the roadbed, the driveway, the roads on both streets are an abomination. Lake street poses as an all-round generally fair beauty—not an image of brass with feet of clay—or mud. I will leave the verdict to any level-headed man or woman.

Yours truly,

LAKEVIEW.

HAT CLEANING MACHINE INSTALLED

An Important Branch Added to Business of Yeates Brothers—A Convenience To Men

Mr. Louis Yeates returned last night from Kingston, where he went to negotiate for procuring a hat-cleaning machine which will be installed in the shoe-shine parlours of Yeates Brothers next week. Every style of hat may be cleaned with the machine, which is operated by electricity, and after having passed through the process they look equal to new.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

Big Field Assured in The Junior Road Road

Many Boys Training for The Junior Race Conducted by the Examiner on Thanksgiving Day — Much Enthusiasm

THE FORM OF ENTRY

There is one event scheduled for Thanksgiving Day in Peterborough which will be a success, if numbers and enthusiasm count for anything. It is the Junior Road Race, to be run by the Examiner in connection with the senior race, inaugurated last year. Dozens of boys, of all ages from eight years up, have been besieging this office since the announcement was made last Saturday, and they are all anxious to enter. They are all confident, too, that they can win. A number of the younger boys connected with the Y.M.C.A. have commenced to train in earnest, and last night several went for a three-mile run, finishing strong and fresh.

Entry forms have now been prepared and may be procured at this office at any time after to-night. It will be noticed from the entry form, a copy of which is given below, that the parent or guardian of the contestant is required to make an age declaration before the entry will be satisfactory.

Orders are being placed with the manufacturers for the three medals, which will be given the winners, — gold, silver, and bronze—and they will be on exhibition in a short time.

For the information of the prospective contestants, a copy of the entry form is given to-day. These forms may be procured at this office.

Entry For

Examiner Road Race for Juniors, to be held Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, October 31, 1907, at 10 o'clock a.m.

Conditions

Distance—Five Miles.

Open to any amateur in the county of Peterborough, seventeen years of age last birthday, or under.

The form below must be filled in by the parent or guardian of the contestant, and handed in to the Examiner office not later than Saturday evening, October 26, 1907.

Form of Entry

I, ——, age —— last birthday, hereby enter in the Examiner Road Race for Juniors, for 1907, and certify that I can qualify under the conditions set forth.

The Troubles Of A Letter From Oshawa To Peterboro'

Was Posted August 7th, Returned Thrice to Writer and Was Finally Brought to Peterborough By a Traveller

FAILURE OF THE MAILS

One would scarcely believe that His Majesty's mails would fail to carry a letter from Oshawa to Peterborough if it was properly addressed, and yet that is the case, and after being returned to its destination three times, a local gentleman who chanced to be in Oshawa this week kindly brought it to this city, and handed it to the person for whom it was intended. Some one blundered or was negligent and suspicions point strongly to the latter.

The letter was posted on Aug. 7th in Oshawa by Dr. R. Armstrong, of that town, and addressed to Mr. Wm. Allen, Peterborough. Also on the letter was printed, "If not called for in five days return to P. O. Box 587, Oshawa, Ont. Mr. Allen was expecting this letter and called for it but was told that it was not in Peterborough. One of the stamps made in the local office is blurred but it looks like Peterborough, Aug. 7. On the letter is stamped, "not called for," telling that it was returned to the writer.

Dr. Armstrong then wrote as the address: "Wm. Allen, Rubidge street, Peterborough, "and a second Oshawa stamp shows that it passed through the office there on Aug. 28th. The Peterborough stamp that seems to coincide with that is Sept. 4th, although a little late. Some station stamp is also on the letter but it is not legible. Mr. Allen was still inquiring for the letter, and on the face of it in one corner is written "Please deliver this letter as he has been inquiring for it." This writing is strange and was not written by Dr. Armstrong.

The last date on it is Oshawa, Sept. 13th, and the words "not called for" are printed in four places.

The poor letter has certainly been mislaid somewhere in the post office or through negligence was not delivered. It certainly has had a varied time during the past two months and its experience is not much like that of the commonplace journey of the ordinary letter. The free delivery of the mail has not come too soon if such a circumstance is to be often repeated and with the new system such an affair should not materialize.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitions probably the most foolish is that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of external applications, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

GRAND TRUNK'S BIG PLANS FOR OTTAWA

Ottawa is to have a fine new G.T.R. station, built on Government property, and for the use of all the companies, the Minister of Railways to settle any disputes that may arise. The Grand Trunk will also build a large hotel on the south east corner of Major's Hill Park. It will have three hundred rooms and one hundred bath rooms, and will be called Chateau Laurier. Work will begin on both the station and the hotel within a month.

Music and Drama

HER LORD AND MASTER

Fair night packed the Grandd last night when the Summers Stock Co. put on "Her Lord and Master," a strong play in which all the players acquitted themselves favourably. The story is one in which a woman's every thought is centred upon money and is balanced by the sweet innocence of a blind girl. Belle Stevenson appeared to advantage in the latter role and Florence Natol as Mrs. Jim Peyton was also prominent. Harry Waterhouse, as the simple boy and the staunch friend of his blind sister, and Arthur Stone, as her lover, won much praise for their acting.

Geo. H. Summers had an original part to play, as Aunt Dinah, the protectress of the helpless children. The whole was greatly enjoyed by the large audience that was present. The specialties were good and the singing with pictorial slides was appreciated. The last appearance of the company will be tonight when they will make an appropriate ending with a strong production.

AN EVANGELIST TO VISIT HERE

Word was received in the city yesterday that W. J. Mapelsden, evangelist of Buffalo, who was here, it will be remembered last winter and conducted meetings in the Gospel Hall, would be in the city next Sunday and would remain for some weeks conducting special services in the Gospel Hall again. Since his last visit Mr. Mapelsden has toured the States, holding meetings in a number of cities.

WEDDING BELLS.

GUERIN-CREVRER

A wedding of interest to many Peterborough persons was celebrated on Tuesday, in the Sacred Heart Church, Toronto. It was the marriage of Miss Eva Marie, daughter of Mrs. Sophrimes Crevrer, Toronto, to Mr. Joseph Guerin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus GGuerin, of Peterborough, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Father LeMarsh. The bride, who was given away by Mr. Fayle, an intimate friend of the bride's family, was attired in cream silk eolienne trimmed with pearl sequin trimming empire fashion, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. The ter of the bride, who wore a costume of blue gloria over silk, with pearl sequin trimming and a large white picture hat. She carried pink roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Napoleon Crevrer, brother of the bride.

A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony and in the afternoon a reception was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Guerin spent their honeymoon in Peterborough, and left yesterday for Toronto, where they will reside.

TURF CLUB TO HOLD MATINEE

They Will Have a Number of Races on Thanksgiving Day

The Peterborough Turf Club has decided to hold a matinee on Thanksgiving afternoon at the Driving Park. This will be welcome news to the many local people who like to follow the horses. Two or three events will be on the programme and as there is a large number of fast horses in the city and district some good sport should be seen. Of course whether the event will be held or no depends upon the weather conditions.

FIRST RUGBY GAME OF SEASON

Argos Will Meet The Locals Here Next Saturday

The first Rugby game of the season will be played here a week from to-day, when the Toronto Argos will clash with the Peterboroughs at Riverside Park. The Argos have about the same team that gave the Tigers such a hard battle last season and it will keep Peterborough on the move to hold the doughty oarsmen. The locals have been practising faithfully all week and will be in good shape by next Saturday. In spite of the weather a good squad was out at Riverside Park this afternoon and had a lively practice in the mud. The practices will be continued every evening next week and every player must be out in uniform.

BOYS' CLUBS TO HOLD FIELD DAY

The Members of All Saints and Knox Church Boys' Clubs to go in For This Event in Near Future

An interesting meeting of the Boys' Club, of Knox Church, was held last night. The feature of particular interest was the address given by the pastor, Rev. H. J. Keith, on "The Boys of India."

With a view of securing new members the club was divided into two sides, with Mr. Walter Perks as captain of the Blues and Mr. Robert Thomson, leading the Reds. The defeated side has to provide a supper for the winners. It was decided to cooperate with All Saints' Boys Club and hold a field day in the near future. A committee was appointed to confer with All Saints' Club, with this in view.

TENDERS CALLED FOR NEW ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH

Tenders are being called to-day for the erection of the new Roman Catholic Church, to be built in the south end of the city on the corner of Romaine and Aylmer streets.

Tenders will be received up to Monday, October 14, at 6 p.m., and must be addressed to His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, Bishop of Peterborough. Plans and specifications for the work may be seen at the office of the architects, Messrs. Belcher and Heathcote. The new church will be built of stone and will be a handsome structure. Since the first tenders were called, some modifications have been made, changes in the material to be used constituting the greater number of them.

It is probable that the concrete foundations for the church will be made this autumn, if the tenders submitted are satisfactory.

Inside History of The Defunct Sugar Company

Mr. J. W. Garvin Gives The Public Some Facts Concerning The Internal Economy of the Company he Was Connected With

HE EXPLAINS HIS POSITION

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Re defunct Peterborough Sugar Company, Limited,—I have recently learned with surprise that there is considerable misapprehension abroad in the city and county in regard to the above company. In justice to the undersigned, will you do me the favour to place before your readers the following facts:—

1. The Sugar Company originated with Mr. T E Bradburn and Mr. A P Poussette. The provisional directors were Messrs. T E Bradburn, James Kendry, Thomas Hunter, Arthur Stevenson and J W Garvin.

2. When I consented to act as a provisional director I was under contract to go to Detroit, on the 1st of March, 1908, as Michigan State Manager for the Manufacturers' Life of Canada, with a salary of $3,000 per annum, travelling and hotel expenses, an overriding commission on the work of my agency staff, and the usual renewal interest. This being so, I secured a written release from Messrs. Bradburn and Poussette, from any obligation to pay the company for the $1,000 of stock subscribed for by me, in the requisition for the charter.

3. At the first meeting of the Provisional Board, Mr. T E Bradburn was appointed president and Mr. A P Poussette, secretary. The latter also acted as the Company's solicitor; and the bookkeeping was done, and capably done, in his office. Subsequently Mr. Poussette resigned the secretaryship, and the Managing Director was appointed in his stead.

4. About two weeks before the time of my departure for Detroit, Mr. Bradburn urged me strongly to cancel my engagement with the Manufacturers' Life, and to accept the Managing Directorship of The Peterborough Sugar Company, Limited, with a salary at the rate of $3,000 per annum, together with a small commission on the stock sold, sufficient to pay office and travelling expenses. Mr. Bradburn gave me distinctly to understand that if I refused his request he would persevere no longer in the flotation of the company, and he and I should have to suffer the loss of $3,000, which we had raised by a joint note and forwarded to the National Construction Company of Detroit.

Under such pressure I yielded, procured release from my engagement with the Manufacturers' Life, and accepted the managing directorship of the Sugar Company.

5.—Not a director had paid $1.00 into the treasury of the company, excepting Mr. Bradburn and myself, and that sum had gone to the National Construction Company, and not one bona fide subscription had been received from anyone else at the time of my appointment.

I was expected to sell sufficient stock to pay my own and other salaries, to pay the National Construction Company, to provide for the wages of the men in the beet fields, etc., and to attend carefully to the management of the company as well.

6.—It was not intended by the promoters of the company that the subscribers in the charter requisition should be held liable for their subscriptions. So, after seeing members of the Board, and the recently-appointed head of the Agricultural Department, I started out to sell the stock, with a bona fide subscription list of $3,000 only—T. E. Bradburn, President, $1,000; J. W. Garvin, Managing Director, $1,000; Thomas Hunter, Director, $500, and Dr. Jeffs, Agriculturist, $500.

7.—The original price of the sugar factory to the company, in cash, stocks and bonds, was to be $565,000. This sum was to be paid, from time to time, to the National Construction Company, Limited, of Detroit.

Within six weeks after I became Managing Director, I forced the latter company to reduce this price to $450,000, and that without a single change being made in the specifications. It took two trips to Detroit to squeeze out $115,000 of water. Mr. Poussette accompanied me on the first trip, when the price was lowered to $500,000.

8. It has been assumed by many in Peterborough that the Sugar Company was wrecked by the bad management of the Managing Director. Will they be surprised to learn that, apart from instructions given by the provisional board, the Managing Director took no definite action in conducting any part of the affairs of the company, until a committee, consisting of the President, the company's solicitor, and the Managing Director, had carefully considered every detail, and decided unanimously. Hence if any blame attaches to the management, which is not admitted, apart from decisions of the Board, it must fall equally on T. E. Bradburn, J. W. Garvin and A. P. Poussette.

9. There would have been but little difficulty in successfully floating the Peterborough Sugar Company, had it not been for the unexpected failure of the beet crop in Michigan, (due to excessive rains,) during the years 1902 and 1903. This not only scared the capitalists of that state, but also discouraged Ontario capitalists. A year or two before Wallaceburg and Berlin had raised the necessary capital in Michigan and in Ontario with comparative ease.

10. After months of hard, determined effort, with little success, Mr. D. A. Gordon, president of the Wallaceburg Sugar Company, was induced to undertake the construction of our sugar factory, and to accept the presidency of our company. He was then, as now, known as the Ontario Beet Sugar King. He had succeeded in Wallaceburg, and was confident he could succeed in Peterborough. All he asked the city of Peterborough to do was to guarantee the company's bonds to the amount of $100,000, and not a bond was to be issued by the city until the factory was erected and the machinery installed. He and others pointed out, that the city would have $400,000 in buildings, machinery, implements, etc., as security, yet the bylaw was defeated. [illegible] carried the city would not have lost $1.00, and a great sugar factory would have been constructed and in operation two years ago. These facts being so, is it fair to blame the Company's management?

11. The defeat of the bylaw forced the Company into liquidation. In July of this year the liquidator paid every creditor in full with five per cent. interest to date. About a year before a large number of the creditors sold their claims for forty cents on the dollar. Why they did this, or what inducement to sell was held out to them, is not known to me. Had they waited another year they would have received every dollar due them with interest as above indicated.

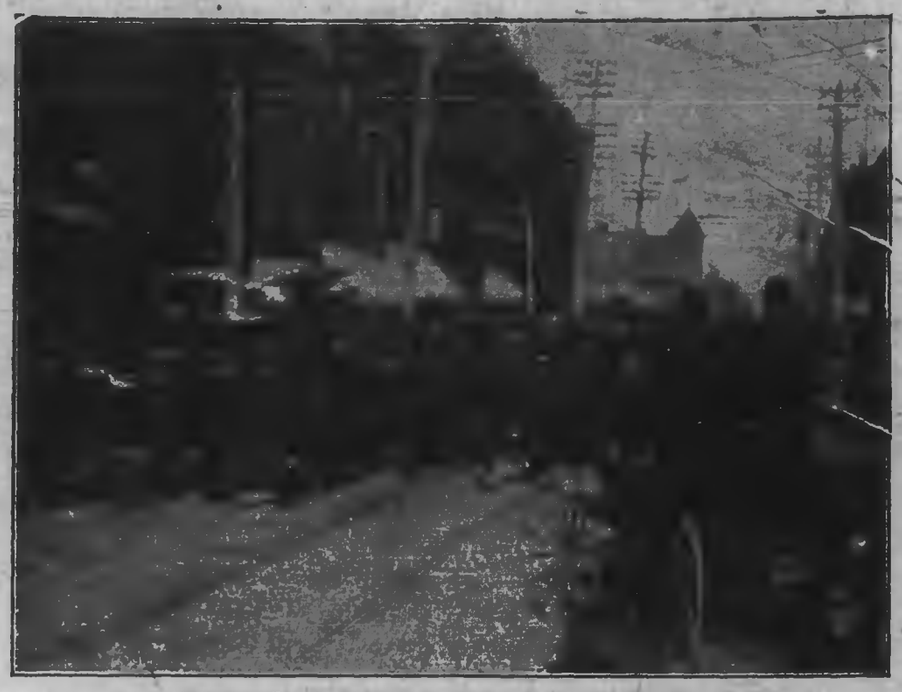
12. The shareholders of the Company are also to receive in cash, five per cent. of the face value of their stock.

13.—When the company failed, notwithstanding I had drawn out of the treasury little more than half of my salary, and had gone into debt $1,000 in a vain attempt to save the company's credit, at once, unhesitatingly, I obligated myself to the amount of $3,500, to save lady shareholders from loss. All my savings out of salary the last three years have gone to wipe out these obligations.

14.—While under no obligation, either legal or moral, to repay the losses of shareholders, yet, if financially able, as I expect to be in the near future, it will give me great pleasure to do so. No experience in life has been more painful to me than the knowledge that fellow citizens had lost money by taking my advice, or by having faith in my ability and judgment.

Yours very truly,
J. W. GARIN.

DEEP INTEREST BEING TAKEN IN THE EXAMINER ROAD RACE TO BE HELD THANKSGIVING DAY



Scene at The Finish of the Examiner Road Race on George Street in Front of This Office Last Year

With the approach of Thanksgiving Day the interest in the two road races to be conducted by the Examiner, increases, and, if present indications are to be relied upon the events this year will be even more warmly contested than they were in 1906. The Y. M. C. A. will again furnish a number of runners, several of these who ran last year, again signifying their intention of competing, among them Ernie Wilson, who finished such a good second in the race of last year. Some new men, too, have developed surprising speed, and will give some of the favourites a hard run for first place. In addition to the entries from this association, it is understood that there will be several unattached runners from the city, while the county will also produce a number.

Entries may be made until Saturday night, October 26th, four weeks from to-night.

The junior race will be run at the same time, the youngsters starting five miles from the city at the same hour that the seniors start from Lakefield, ten o'clock sharp. This year, by reason of the fact that a double race is being run, an extra set of officials will be required. They will be appointed in ample time prior to the race.

Last year the finish of the race presented a scene which will not soon be forgotten. This year, with the addition of the junior race, and the increased interest in the event for the seniors, the excitement will be intensified. The public interest shown in last year's race is indicated by the reproduction of a photograph taken at the finishing tape as given above.

PRESIDENT LEARY IS JUBILANT AT THE CONCLUSION OF SECOND DAYS' EVENTS

"What do I think about the fair? Why I am more than pleased—I am delighted with the way things went to-day. This is the best exhibition ever held here, and, say, do you know—there were over 6,000 people on the grounds this afternoon and the best part of it is they all went home delighted. When the performances were all over there must have been more than 200 called on the directors and myself in the secretary's tent before leaving the grounds to congratulate us on the success we made of it. Why, if there isn't a soul pays admission to-morrow we wont go behind, and that looks pretty good for an exhibition that was supposed to be on the wane.

"Pull out with a surplus? Well, I guess we are if the rain only hangs off to-morrow. The day was a grand success and everything went off far better than I expected. The morning clouds were rather threatening, but with the assistance of Providence in this respect and the faithful work of the directors we are ahead of the game.

"But you wait till next year. We have not let the day pass without experiencing and noting the deficiencies in minor matters and we intend to profit by our mistakes. I was glad to see so many citizens of Peterborough turn out and I only hope they'll all come back to-morrow and bring their friends."—President Leary.

A window that is attracting considerable attention to the passersby is The Tate Optical Company's display, 412½ George Street. A neatly printed card displayed in the centre tells the story.

The display of over 35,000, (thirty-five thousand) records of Spectacles and Eye Glasses made by their firm for their patients during the last few years is something unique and not often seen and goes to show to some extent the volume of business done by this firm. Coupled with that Mr. Babcock says that during the month of August (this year) the amount of business done was greater than any previous month since the firm has been established.

Fierce Fight In A Canyon

Surveying Party Attacked by Guggenheims' Men.

RESENTED THEIR INTRUSION

Sharp Tussle In Yukon District—Six Men Were Shot at and Wounded—Were Surveying For Nome Railroad—Walked Into Ambush—Refused to Be Bluffed and Received Shower of Bullets.

Valdez, Alaska, Sept. 28.—Six surveyors and workmen were shot and wounded in a clash between the Guggenheim forces of the Copper River & Northwestern Railroad and the Alaska-Nome Railway. All the wounded were men of the latter company.

The party was making a preliminary survey for the Nome Railroad, which is planned from Valdez to the summit. They had advanced 100 yards up the canyon when they were surprised by an ambush of the Guggenheim men, headed by Edward Hassey, once a United States marshal.

Hassey hailed the surveyors and ordered them to stop, saying his men would shoot if any further advance was made. The surveyors believed Hassey was bluffing and continued working. They were met by a fusillade of bullets. Deputy marshals are searching for the assailants.

WALKING ON TRACKS.

Wandering Doukhobors Give C. P. R. Deal of Trouble.

Winnipeg, Sept. 28.—The C.P.R. authorities to-day wired to Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. R. P. Roblin, pointing out the condition of affairs in regard to the Doukhobors who are at Kenora and Whitemouth. The telegram reads, in part:

'They are now proceeding on their march. With the sparse population around Lake Superior, the cold winter coming on and the danger resulting from walking along the tracks, action should be taken at once.

"We offered to take them back to Yorkton, but they persist in their march along the track."

Premier Roblin has stated that the government can take absolutely no part in the affair.

LIES IN DEEP WATER.

Wreckage of Quebec Bridge Will Not Obstruct Navigation.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Engineer Cowie of the harbor commissioner's staff, in replying to people interested in St. Lawrence navigation, who expressed fear that the wreckage of the Quebec bridge would be detrimental to the early opening of navigation in the spring of 1908, states that the steel work is in such deep water that it cannot possibly make any difference or interfere with the passing out of the ice, neither can detached parts be moved and become dangerous, as the whole mass of steel is solid and may never be moved. The shore portion might collect some ice, but it can cause no trouble.

A Ferryboat Tragedy.

Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 28.—A special to The Advertiser from Mobile says that Leslie Vermille, a white boy of Mobile, and 15 negroes were drowned in the Tombigbee river at McCrew's Shoals on Thursday, while crossing the river in a ferryboat from the Government's works, where they were employed. They were on their way to dinner when the accident occurred. About mid-stream the little boat drifted from control of the men into the rapids and soon capsized. Two of the negroes in the boat scrambled on top as it overturned, but the other occupants were thrown into the swift current and were drowned almost instantly. On account of the strong undertow, rescue work was impossible. Late in the evening two of the bodies, both negroes, were recovered, and the others are being dragged for.

Indemnity Not Discussed.

Tokio, Sept. 28.—(C. A. P.)—It is authoritatively stated here that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Commissioner Ishii did not at their recent meeting touch upon the question of an indemnity for the losses which the Japanese incurred in Vancouver, and the restriction of immigration. They discussed only the measures to be taken to prevent a recurrence of disorders and the maintenance of the existing treaty. The consul-general at Ottawa has since had under consideration the various claims made, but the particulars are as yet unsettled. The Japanese Government is appointing an extra official to supervise immigration affairs.

Strike Gas at Calgary.

Calgary, Sept. 28.—After boring for natural gas for the last 14 months the efforts of the Natural Gas Co. were rewarded on Thursday by its discovery in paying quantities. The strike was made at 2,360 feet.

Missionaries All Safe.

Shanghai, Sept. 28.—Advices received here from Suichowfu say that the Protestant missionaries there are all safe.

In Warm Weather

Vinol is as delicious as a fresh orange, and as soothing as can be to the weak, irritable stomach. It coaxes back lost appetite, improves digestion and creates strength throughout the whole system. We strongly recommend Vinol to all who are weak and run-down from any cause,—particularly to delicate women and children, old people and for those who have pulmonary troubles. Money back if you try Vinol and are not satisfied.

LUSITANIA RAN SLOWLY.

Average Speed on Eastern Voyage Was Only 22.58 Knots.

Queenstown, Sept. 28.—The Cunard line steamer Lusitania, from New York Sept. 21, arrived here at 3.56 a. m. yesterday, the passage thus occupying 5 days 4 hours and 19 minutes, or 3 hours 26 minutes more than her outward run. The only record broken was that of the Lucania of the same line.

The comparative slowness of the voyage cannot be attributed to fog. On only one day, Monday, was fog entered on the log, and the ship ran 524 miles that day, only six miles below her best day's work. On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday a strong northeasterly wind, with a rough sea, was encountered.

The American coal was said by the engineers not to have been so satisfactory as the coal used during the westward trip, and the stokehole work was not altogether up to the proper mark. But the confidence of the engineers in the Lusitania's ability to beat all competitors when things are running smoothly is not diminished.

The new liner behaved splendidly during the very heavy weather of the last three days of the trip, and the passengers were lavish in their praise of the comfort which they enjoyed on board the vessel.

NO TRACE OF ANY WRONG.

Chairman of Bridge Commission Says Every Care Was Taken.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The commission which has been making an enquiry into the causes of collapse of the Quebec bridge brought its Canadian sittings to an end in Ottawa yesterday afternoon, and go to New York next week.

Mr. Holgate, the chairman, after the last witness had been examined, said: "As far as we have been able to learn, there had been the greatest care taken all along the line to ensure the safety and permanency of the Quebec bridge structure.

"The best engineers on the continent prepared the plans and specifications, and a wonderful care and accuracy in carrying them out was shown.

"We found absolutely no trace of dishonesty or graft in connection with the construction of the bridge. This seems to be the case of the best engineering brains on the continent and the very best accepted engineering methods being on trial.

"As far as the Government's connection with the enterprise is concerned, it seems to us that everything is quite regular, and everything was done that should have been done."

Rudyard Kipling Arrives.

Quebec, Sept. 28.—Rudyard Kipling, whose prose and verse have charmed the English-speaking world, was a passenger on the Empress of Ireland which arrived in port at a very early hour yesterday morning. It was expected that he would remain in the ancient capital for a few days, as apartments had been reserved for him at the Chateau Frontenac, but at the last moment he decided to proceed west without delay, and, accordingly, left on the C.P.R. special at 8 o'clock for Montreal.

He left his cabin with Mrs. Kipling and crossed the wharf to take the train, which was in waiting just a few hundred feet away, thus almost entirely excluding the possibility of his according an interview on things Ca-

He wore a dark overcoat and derby hat, and, although he is slightly below medium height, there is a magnetism about his personality that instills confidence in his sincerity.

"Yes," he said to a reporter, "I've come to Canada and I expect to be here for several weeks. Your country has undoubtedly made wonderful progress since I was last here ten years ago, and it will indeed be most interesting for me to note as I go through your principal cities what steps you have made in this direction. I have followed closely your doings out here, and it's a great pleasure for me to be among the Canadian people once more."

Prince Taken For Thief.

Perugia, Sept. 28.—Prince Louis of Battenberg was the victim of an error on the part of the local police on his arrival here from Florence yesterday, but he accepted the incident with a good grace and made no complaint.

When he stepped off the Florence train he was stopped and searched by detectives, who had received instructions from Florence to look out for three men charged with the theft of a pocketbook on the train.

On learning of the mistake made by his subordinates, the commissioner of police hastened to call at the prince's hotel and apologise. Prince Louis derived much amusement from the mistake.

Squad After Bad Indian.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—Sheriff Wright of Hull left yesterday with a squad of police to arrest an Indian at Otter Lake, some 30 miles back from Hull among the Laurentian Mountains. The Indian shot Bailiff Seguin of Hull, who was sent to arrest him for violating the game laws. Seguin is dangerously ill, but may recover.

Wireless Trolleys Next.

Lyons, France, Sept. 28.—Experiments in transmitting electrical energy long distances without the use of wires are proceeding here with the greatest secrecy but it has been ascertained that a miniature railroad has been successfully operated under the new invention in the park on the Chateau Amplepuis.

An Enquiry at Once.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The Department of Marine has ordered a commission of enquiry into the collision of the steamer Hurona and Mongolian off Amour Point, in the Lower St. Lawrence. The necessary subpoenas will be issued to-day, and the enquiry will open in Quebec on Monday, under the presidency of Commander Spain.

One Hundred Drowned.

Malaga, Spain, Sept. 28.—A renewal of the rain yesterday is causing fresh inundations and a suspension of the rescue work. A bread famine is feared.

The bodies of about 100 drowned persons have been recovered near here.

Fire Reported In Chinese City

One Hundred Lives Reported Lost at Wu Chow.

INCENDIARISM IS SUSPECTED

Hundreds of Houses and Boats Destroyed—Damage Amounts to $250,000 — Inhabitants Were Bitterly Opposed to Additional Taxation For Customs — Shops and Houses Being Pillaged.

Hong Kong, Sept. 28.—Hundreds of houses and many boats and pontoons were destroyed yesterday by a fire at Wu Chow, on the Siakiang River, about 180 miles from Canton. About 100 lives were lost.

The conflagration is said to have been due to incendiarism in connection with the recent establishment of a new interior customs stations at Wu Chow, the inhabitants of which are bitterly opposed to any extra taxation.

The fire was put out after a kerosene depot had exploded. Property valued at a quarter of a million dollars was destroyed.

Looting is now going on in Wu Chow, but all the foreigners there are safe.

MARRIED FOR LOVE.

Sad Story of ex-Crown Princess of Saxony.

Paris, Sept. 28.—The brief stay in Paris Thursday of Signor Enrico Toselli and his wife, the ex-Crown Princess of Saxony, to whom he was married in London, Sept. 25, is amusingly described by The Matin. The couple arrived here at daylight and went to the refreshment room of the railroad station, where Signora Toselli ordered some chocolate and Toselli asked for beer and saurkraut.

The bride was described as looking tired, worn and old enough to be Toselli's mother, but she displayed a [illegible] towards her husband, who, however, replied to her questions only in monosyllables while bolting his food. He afterwards smoked a cigarette, blowing the smoke in his bride's face.

Later Signor and Signora Toselli took a dilapidated night cab, drove through the streets for two hours and then went to a small hotel, from which they started in the afternoon for Italy, by way of Switzerland. A despatch received here from Geneva, Switzerland, quoted Signora Toselli as "rejoicing" at her pluck in marrying for love, and saying she and her husband were soon going to Africa with her little daughter, the Princess Anne Monica Pia.

BOXERS BURN MISSIONS.

Outbreak In China—Priest and Converts Murdered.

Shanghai, Sept. 28.—An outbreak of Boxerism has occurred at Wankangsien, in the southern part of the Province of Kiangsi.

An Italian priest and a number of converts have been murdered at the Village of Tawouli, and the Lazarist Fathers' mission at Kanichowfu has been burned.

The missionaries escaped to Kiafu, whence they telegraphed for assistance.

Killed at Port Elgin.

Port Elgin, Sept. 28.—The Port Elgin fair here yesterday was a success, but was marred by an accident which cost John Donald of Southampton his life.

In the saddle horse class the horses were sent around the track, and one of them, a fractious beast, bolted at an opening near the gate.

Mr. Donald, a man nearly 70 years of age, was struck in the face and knocked down, the animal falling on him and injuring him internally. He died in about 20 minutes.

A young man named D. Caven was also injured, but not seriously.

Eight Injured In Wreck.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 28.—Eight persons were injured in a wreck on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Juniata Bridge, west of Duncannon, yesterday, when the Altoona accommodation, leaving Harrisburg at 10.40 a. m. ran into a freight train. Railroad officials say nobody was killed. A relief train having four physicians aboard was rushed through to Harrisburg.

Ultimatum to Sultan.

Teheran, Sept. 28.—A petition signed by high officials and the commanders of the army was presented to the Shah to the effect that unless the sovereign accepts without reserve and will act according to the demands of a constitutional government, they will resign in a body from his service.

Explosion Kills One.

Coshocton, Ohio, Sept. 28.—Two persons were burned, one fatally, in an explosion in the dry cleaning department of the Eureka Laundry & Domestic Rug Co. here yesterday.

Tank Blew Up And Kills Men

Terrific Explosion Kills Three Men In New York.

BODIES WIDELY SCATTERED

Lighted Lantern Causes Bad Accident —Twenty Thousand Gallons Were Fired—One Victim Was Hurled 100 Feet Away—Another Body Found Inside the Tank—Windows of School Shattered.

New York, Sept. 28.—Twenty thousand gallons of crude oil stored in a tank in the Borough of the Bronx exploded with terrific force while three men were drawing oil from it early yesterday, killing the men almost instantly. The dead are James Cooper Unionport, James Reilly of Westchester, and Richard Smith of Van Nest, all of which villages are in Westchester County.

Cooper was employed by the officials of the Morris Park racetrack to sprinkle the track with oil in preparation for an automobile race. Reilly and Smith were his assailants. Early yesterday they went to the tank, on Protectory avenue, and began to fill a sprinkling cart with the oil. Reilly and Smith were sent to the top of the tank, while Cooper remained by the wagon.

It is supposed that a lantern carried by one of the men ignited some loose oil under the tank.

The explosion which followed tore off the top of the tank, and sent it flying into the yard of the Catholic Protectory near by, shattering many of the windows of the protectory.

Policemen who were nearby found Cooper lying near the blazing tank with his clothing afire. He died in a few minutes. One body, believed to be that of Reilly, was found badly burned in a swamp a hundred feet from the tank, and another believed to be that of Richard Smith was found in the tank after it had been flooded with water.

EXCLUSION, NOT LIMITATION.

League Out West Not Pleased With Sir Wilfrid's Answer.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 28.—The local Asiatic Exclusion League interprets the Government's decision to send a special commissioner to Japan as an attempt to delay the settlement question, and has sent this protest to Sir Wilfrid Laurier:

"The league endorses the exclusion of Japanese, unless specifically passported to Canada. The existing limitations having been already exceeded, we demand the exclusion of any further immigrants this year. We also feel that the matter has already been sufficiently investigated, and that the Government only needs to act. We demand exclusion by legislation, not limitation."

SHIP BOY'S SAD TALE.

Cruelly Treated by Captain and Mate —Men Sent to Jail.

Campbellton, N.B., Sept. 28.—Capt. Kristiansan and his mate of the Norwegian barque [illegible] were each fined $100 each with three months in jail for cruelty to a German boy at Bonaventure.

His hands and feet were tied so that he was scarcely able to move more than a few inches. He was kept in this position for days, and fed on burned crusts and water.

G. N. R. CONDUCTOR ACCUSED.

Sent for Trial on Charge of Being Drunk on Train.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Adelard Mahen, conductor on the Great Northern Railway of Quebec, was sent to the King's Bench for trial on a charge of drunkenness while in charge of a train.

There was a bottle of gin in the van, which was half full.

The other half, it is claimed, was in the conductor.

Boozing Women.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 28.—Rev. Frederick E. Hopkins, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, went home on Thursday night both convinced and "tuckered out."

All afternoon he had led a party of several men on a tour through many of the leading downtown restaurants, obtaining statistics on what he terms "boozing women."

Following are net results: Women seen in restaurants, 463; number of women drinking liquor, 269.

PROPERTY ON HIGH SEAS.

Safety Cannot Be Assured In Time of War.

The Hague, Sept. 28.—Ten reports concerning various proposals connected with warfare at sea were disposed of yesterday at the seventh plenary sitting of the Peace Conference.

The transformation of merchantmen into warships, without restrictions regarding the place where the change may occur, was approved.

The report on the question whether a period of grace shall be granted merchantmen belonging to belligerents, which are in an enemy's port at the opening of hostilities, was next adopted.

Reports in favor of the same laws and customs to govern naval, as well as land war, and the inviolability of the mails, were approved unanimously.

The report on the inviolability of property at sea, on which the vote was 21 ayes and 11 nays, less than the two-thirds vote required for its adoption, together with an expression of hope that an understanding on this question would be reached in the future.

The reports on blockades and the destruction of neutral prizes were read and set forth the impossibility of reaching an agreement on them during the sessions of the present conference.

ARRESTED AFTER FOUR YEARS.

Escaped From Jail at St. John While Awaiting Trial.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—Chief Detective K. P. McCaskill of the provincial detective force returned yesterday from Washington, D. C., with a prisoner who had escaped from the jail at St. John, N. B., four years ago.

The prisoner was a young fellow named Daniel Glass, who was arrested four years since for nearly murdering his cousin and attempting to burn his house. Before he came up for trial, however, Glass escaped by sawing through the bars of his cell, and for a long time was never heard of. He, however, had a craze for military work, and the provincial detectives had descriptions of him sent to all the military headquarters in the United States.

About a couple of months ago Glass joined a hospital corps at Washington, and promptly proceeded to get into the trouble which led to his detection, and the provincial detectives were notified.

Chief McCaskill went to Washington, and after some difficulty succeeded in securing Glass' discharge from the United States army. As the prisoner waived extradition he was [illegible] trial for his alleged crimes.

SHOT AT CLUB MANAGER.

Young Woman Attempts Murder and Suicide at Montreal.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—In the main billiard-room of the Checker and Chess Club, East St. Catharine street, Miss Celanie LaPointe, a dressmaker, yesterday afternoon fired a revolver at the club manager, Ludger Houle, wounding him, and then shot herself in the head. Her life is despaired of.

Houle was fired at while his back was turned, and the bullet entered behind his right ear. He will probably entirely recover in a few days.

The parties had been friends for ten years.

Ten Years For Broker.

Winnipeg, Sept. 28.—J. D. Edwards was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary for the theft of $462 from Dr. G. C. Matheson, a dentist. Edwards sold shares of the Investment Protective Association to Matheson, which Magistrate Daly pronounced a fraud from start to finish.

Magistrate Daly said that Edwards was formerly convicted in Toronto. In that city the prisoner was in business as a broker. He signed a contract to sell many shares of stock with the Ashnola Gold Co. These shares Edwards sold, but the returns were not satisfactorily made to the company. Before he had been in confinement long he was pardoned by the Minister of Justice.

Only a Little One.

London, Sept. 28.—(C. A. P.)—The Manchester Courier says that Premier Bond has made a great fight on behalf of his country's laws, but it will be small consolation to him to know that, whether or not Sir Edward Grey's action be constitutionally correct, he would hardly have ordered act so strenuously had one of the great colonies been a party to the dispute.

Eastport, L. I., Sept. 28.—Although unable to read or write, Llewellyn Jenkins, who died at his home here last night, left a fortune estimated at more than $100,000.

Jenkins lived frugally and amassed his wealth through shrewd investments in mortgages and real estate. He was seventy-seven years old. Several children survive.

Soldier Gets Six Months.

Kingston, Sept. 28.—James Lawlor, a soldier, was sent to jail for six months for breaking into the house of George Eccles. He was chased away by Eccles and drew a revolver on his pursuer.

Run Over by Thresher.

Welland, Sept. 28.—Charles Dunn, aged 40 years, a well-known farmer of Crowland Township, was killed on Thursday by being run over by his threshing machine.

Perished on Pits.

Belleville, Sept. 28.—Tucca Lectace, alias Joseph Plouffe, a young French-Canadian, charged with burglary and other offences, will know his fate on Monday.

Arthur Valneff and Arthur Deltace turned King's evidence, and testified against Lectace, who, they asserted, was the leader of the trio, and incited them to steal.

Ursuline Nuns Expelled.

Gravelines, France, Sept. 28.—The Ursuline nuns were expelled from their residence on Thursday by a detachment of troops, assisted by gendarmes.

A large crowd gathered and expressed their displeasure at the proceedings. They cheered the nuns repeatedly, and the gendarmes were powerless to disperse them.

Mr. King Denies.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, denies that he made the statement that Chinese have superseded the whites in sawmills in British Columbia because of their sobriety and efficiency.

Drank Horse Liniment.

St. Stephen, N.B., Sept. 28.—Charles Core, who has been drinking heavily for some time, went into Cone's Livery Stable on Thursday night and drank a quantity of horse liniment, supposing it to be whiskey.

The mistake was soon discovered, but efforts to save his life were unavailing, and he died at six o'clock yesterday morning.

To Avenge Lynching.

New Orleans, Sept. 28.—A despatch from Mobile says that the white men of Whistler, Ala., are armed for an organized attack on negroes who are said to be en route to Whistler to avenge the lynching of the negro Dossett last Sunday night. Fire alarm signals have been arranged to warn the whites.

Blaze at Chelsea, Que.

Ottawa, Sept. 28.—The new barns and stables of W. D. Hopper at Chelsea, Que., with their contents, were totally destroyed by fire on Thursday. The loss is estimated at $15,000, with partial insurance. The fire is supposed to have originated by spontaneous combustion.

Union President Arrested.

Haileybury, Sept. 28.—A crowd of boys broke up a meeting of the miners' union Thursday night. Mr. McGuire, president of the union, in trying to restore peace, used one of the boys rather roughly and was arrested.

WOULD AVENGE WRECK.

Train Crews Obliged to Flee From Incensed Relatives.

Bakersfield, Calif., Sept. 28.—In the wreck of a South Pacific work train, which collided with a freight near here on Thursday night, eight Greeks were killed and twenty others injured.

The crews of the trains are now fugitives, hiding in the hills to save themselves from the enraged comrades of the victims, who attacked the trainmen.

Police Officer Drunk.

St. Catharines, Sept. 28.—Another lively meeting of the police commissioners is now expected owing to the second police constable, within three weeks, having been, it is said, found drunk on duty. On Thursday, it is alleged, [illegible] ment was strongly opposed by Judge Carman at the meeting two weeks ago, was reported helplessly drunk in the vicinity of Welland station, Geneva street, and was taken to headquarters by Sergt. McCarthy, where he was suspended by Chief Parnell, who reported the facts to Police Magistrate Comfort, secretary of the commission.

The attractions in front of the grand stand were the best that have been offered in years, and the larger part of the crowd spent the afternoon very enjoyably in that part of the grounds. In other years, this feature of the Fair has been allowed to deteriorate, and the policy was a mistaken one, for it is evident that the people of Peterborough want more in the amusement line than has been hitherto offered at the Fair. The directors this year have realized this fact, and the wisdom of their course was indicated by the many complimentary remarks that were heard during the afternoon.

There were three good speeding contests and a vaudeville concert by some very talented performers. The management spared no expense in getting the best in this line that could be shown by the applause of the crowd, which heartily enjoyed the performance.

There were three events on the racing card, and all provided good sport. The 2.22 class was won in straight heats by Hazel Belle and Lou Bennett's City Queen annexed the 2.40 class, taking three half-mile heats. There were only two entries in the carter's race, and Geo. Gauthier won without trouble in a quarter-mile sprint.

2.22 Class

The 2.22 class brought out four good horses—Dr. Mac, owned by Dr. Broad of Lindsay; Dr. Johnston's Hazel Belle; Joe Allen, the property of Wm. Simpson, of Lindsay, and Martin Connors' Lady Gothard. The race resulted in a victory for Hazel Belle, who was teamed in splendid fashion by G. Cairns.

Starter Watson got them off to a good start in the first heat, Hazel Belle going to the front from the start. Joe Allen pressed hard all the way, but Dr. Johnston's good little mare was stepping beautifully, and pulled away from the Lindsay horse. Lady Gothard started the second half mile at a lively clip, but went off her feet and the entire string passed her. Joe Allen beating Dr. Mac out for second without trouble. The second heat was a repetition of the first, with the difference that Lady Gothard was never a factor. Hazel Belle went out in front at the wire, and had the rest trailing. Joe Allen took second again, although Dr. Mac made a great bid for the place, losing by half a length, after a lively whip contest down the stretch. To show what she could do, Hazel Belle drew right away from the other three, in the last heat, and in the second heat simply walked away from the procession. Dr. Mac and Joe Allen had another great duel for second place, and the former got the place, finishing half a length ahead.

The summary follows:

Hazel Belle, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough	1	1	1
Joe Allen, Wm. Simpson, Lindsay	2	2	3
Dr. Mac, Dr. Broad, Lindsay	3	3	2
Lady Gothard, Martin Connors, Peterborough	4	4	4

Time—2.22, 2.22, 2.26.

City Queen's 40 Class

Three entries contested the 2.40 class event, which was trotted in half-mile heats—Billy C, teamed by the owner, (W. Leith, of Millbrook City Queen, owned by L. Bennett, of Port Hope, and driven by "Bill" Elmhirst, and McCollum Bros.' Black Cloud, with Bert McCollum handling the ribbons. The Port Hope mare proved too speedy for the rest of the bunch and showed her heels nearly all the way. In the first heat Black Cloud got away to a good start, and looked to have the race well in hand. He was leading half way around but went into the air, and his chance was gone. City Queen passed like a flash, and although Black Cloud soon settled down it was too late to catch the flying leader and the Bennett entry won by a length.

City Queen had no trouble in the second heat, winning without a struggle. The real race was for second place and Black Cloud and Billy C. fought it out all the way, the black horse winning by half a length.

There was no change in the situation in the third heat. City Queen led all the way with the other two battling for second. The black horse succeeded in repeating the trick and won out again in a close finish.

The summary was as follows:

City Queen, L. Bennett, Port Hope	1	1	1
Black Cloud, McCollum Bros., Peterborough	2	2	2
Billy C., W. Leith, Millbrook	3	3	3

Time, 1.14, 1.10, 1.10.

The Carters' Race

There were only two entries in the carters' race, but it was one of the events of the afternoon. The two contestants were Geo. Gauthelier and W. Adlam, and the former won handily. The distance was a quarter of a mile with the finish in front of the grand stand. Adlam's horse took the lead at the start, but Gauthier, teaming like Ed. Geers, or some other Grand Circuit knight of the reins shoved his steed on in front as they turned into the home stretch, and won in a driving finish, with both horses on the gallop. The time was 50 seconds.

Mr. I. Watson of Toronto, made a very efficient starter, getting the horses away well and quickly. Mr. Fred Peake of Campbellford, was the judge; Mr. R. J. Munro, timer, and others who assisted were Messrs. J. O'Shea, and A. Rowntree.

The Vaudeville Events

As has been stated, the performance before the grand stand was a decided treat and the enterprise of the fair management is to be commended for providing such an entertainment for the patrons of the exhibition. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the programme, especially to the children, was the work of Madame Victoria's troupe of 14 trained dogs, who displayed marvellous sagacity and intelligence. Some of their tricks were most difficult and all of them were entertaining. Madame Victoria had them perfectly under control at all times, and the canines seemed to enjoy their work, and they were certainly fond of their mistress. The high jumping of the greyhounds greatly delighted the crowd.

George and Georgie demonstrated that they are an acrobatic team of great ability. Their work was applauded by the crowd. It included performances on the bounding billiard table, on the trapeze and also on the revolving ladders. Some of their feats were new to local people and were most cleverly carried out. Miss Bertha Phillips the lady contortionist, did some wonderful work in that line and was well received by the crowd.

EXHIBITS OF REAL MERIT

There were so many meritorious exhibits at the Fair that the reader will be interested in a brief description of some of those deserving of a more extended notice.

G. Walter Green's Display

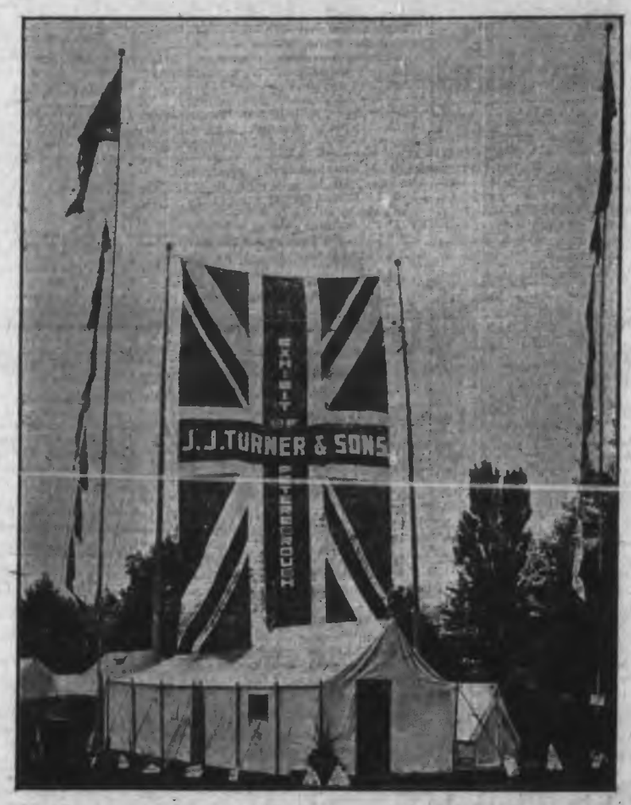
It must have been somewhat of a revelation to many of the visitors to witness such an unusual display of machinery from the works of Mr. G. Walter Green, of McDonel street, west. Until within the past few years Mr. Green's name has been most prominently identified with the manufacture of his superior pumps, tanks, windmills and several other allied lines. More recently, however, he has branched out into Foundry Casting and Machinery, and his success has been such that his premises have been enlarged by a new foundry, a new machine shop and a large warehouse for displaying his products and storing his patterns.

It was somewhat of a surprise to many therefore to find the resources of Mr. Green's rapidly growing establishment represented on the Fair Grounds by seven brand new machines, direct from his machine shop, and entirely built on his own premises. Each of these machines was of a sufficiently interesting and practical character to be easily understood and appreciated by the thousands of farmers, mill men and others who visited the exhibit. They consisted of a combined lath mill and bolter, lath binder and trimmer, shingle machine, shingle jointer, shingle packer and two sawing machines. Mechanically these have been admitted to be the best machines of their type that skill combined with experience can produce. Only the highest grades of material are allowed to enter into their construction, and expert workmen have been carefully selected to build them. Another point in their favour is that they are moderate priced machines, and are intended to suit the requirements of many jobbers, farmers and mill men who are looking for machines of this nature that require only a small investment. Mr. Green showed one of his lath mills in operation being driven by a gasoline engine. There was also shown two of Mr. Green's popular wood pumps, which may be said to have become the standard water suppliers for domestic, farm and stock use in this district.

Turner's Peerless Tents

It must have been the experience of every visitor to the Fair that chief among the striking features on the grounds was the monster flag floating over the tent exhibit of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons. It measured 40x60. A good half tone reproduction of the flag and the tent exhibit is shown herewith. Nothing like it for size has ever before been seen here, and it waves with triumphant mien as it heralding the new era in the success of Peterborough's Industrial Fair.

But it was Messrs. Turner & Sons exhibit of new tents which was of more real interest to the visitors, because of their superior usefulness and many special advantages to every community. The Turner firm is "never too old to learn," and are always embracing new ideas to keep abreast with the times. They erected on the grounds samples of their consumptive tents, double hospital tents and hunters tents. These were made additionally interesting by being fully equipped—the hospital and consumptive tents being fitted with cots, tables, chairs, stoves, etc. A further description is unnecessary, as every visitor must have inspected these tents and admired their utility. The hospital tents have been thoroughly tested during epidemics in different parts of the Dominion, as well as in portions of the United States, and Dr. Orr, of Toronto, has recently written the firm complimenting them highly on the admirable adaptation of these tents for sanitary purposes. So many orders have been dealt with by this firm for these tents for the isolation of contagious and other diseases that their endorsation by the Dominion and Provincial Governments has become a matter of pride to Peterborough as well as to Messrs. Turner & Sons.



Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons' Tents and Flag Exhibit

The McLaughlin Carriage Company's Exhibit

It took a mammoth exhibition tent to hold the very comprehensive display of up-to-date buggies, demorats, road-wagons, knock-abouts and sleighs and cutters, etc., which was put up by the energetic firm of Messrs. Leary & Storey, of Water street, the local agents for the McLaughlin Carriage Company, Limited, of Oshawa. This display out-classed anything of the kind ever seen at Peterborough's Industrial.

There were shown several handsome samples of covered top buggies with cushion, rubber and steel tires, finished in black, green and other shades of gearings. Several light and strong outfits with piano box or Cornish designs, beautifully finished, and ornamented with nickel-plated trimmings were much admired. A doctor's nifty trap was shown of the latest design; very roomy, and comfortably upholstered and complete in every respect. A farmer's family demcorat was also much admired. The display of sleighs shown embraced types of deep-seated, high-backed sleighs originated by the McLaughlins years ago, and which have been imitated by many other Canadian manufacturers, but never equalled. For 1907 the Company have produced what they claim to be the finest specimens of young men's butters ever marketed. They are beautiful in outline and comfortable in proportion. The wood work, iron work, painting, nickel-plated rails and brass screens are all the very best skill and workmanship can devise. The new "Stratheona" small seat sleighs make riding as attractive as an easy chair. Those with extra strong tops and reinforced side curtains and detachable storm boards, fills a long-felt want for protection against the strong, biting winds of the Candian winters. The "Arlington" is a good sensible sleigh, meeting the demand for a large, roomy family cutter, at a moderate price.

The McLaughlin surreys and traps are very stylish and comfortable outfits, with softly upholstered seats and back, and are the pride of the largest carriage factory under the British flag.

Messrs. Leary & Storey also exhibited samples of single and double harness, robes, horse blankets and other stable supplies, for which they are large retailers.

The "Simplex" Link blade Cream Separator

Alongside of Green's machinery display, a continued crowd of interested spectators was examining the operations and mechanism of the "Simplex" Cream Separator. The machine was connected with the power from the engine operating the machinery exhibit, and was constantly running for the inspection of visitors. The "Simplex" exhibit was in charge of Mr. G. A. Gillespie, of the firm of White & Gillespie, grocers and dairy supply men, George street. He was assisted by Mr. R. A. Peters, travelling salesman for this section. The "Simplex" is continually on the move, making new friends all the time, improving as it grows older, and doing better work all the time. Great success has attended the introduction of this separator in this district, and deservedly so, because it has proved that it is built on sound principles. Clean skimming is one of the best results of its perfect design, every part being worked out to effect this desideratum. Easy turning is another virtue it possesses, because of its skilful construction, as it surprises everyone who operates it to find how little power it requires. The "Simplex" gear runs so easily that a twelve-year-old boy can handle the milk of eight cows in less than half an hour, and not be out of breath when the run is out. The mechanism is so perfectly balanced, so nearly automatic, that the whole work of perfect cream separating, twice a day, won't use up any more energy than it takes to carry a bucket of water fifty yards. Some farmers say that they can double their dairying profits with the "Simplex" without buying a cow. Mr. Gillespie can show you that the "Simplex" Separator is the one thing your farm needs, right now. Doesn't matter if money is a little tight with you—he can fix it so that the "Simplex" will buy itself before you have to pay for it.

Higgins' Hardware Store

Attention is directed to the advertisement of the Higgins Hardware Store in another column of to-day's Examiner. The new blood introduced into the firm will give an opportunity for increasing the publicity of the excellent wares carried in stock, and the straightforward, practical methods adopted by its members. Count on seeing this firm when looking for your new stove or furnace this season.

The Davis Sewing Machine Exhibit

The special exhibit in the main building which was the cynosure of all feminine eyes was that of the Davis Sewing Machine, made by the J. H. Greene Music Company, of the Grand Opera House building, George street. The Davis Sewing Machines have been gaining ground rapidly in this district since their introduction into this section by the Greene Company, and the remarkably fine demonstration which was made at the Fair must have the effect of influencing sales. Three types of these high-class, light-running machines were being operated, on which work of different kinds were exemplified to the interested crowds of spectators.

Mr. Louis Mendel, Photo Artist, Whose Work Was Awarded Two First Prizes

These were the Davis Family Machine, the Davis Underfeed Machine and the Davis Vertical Feed Machine. The feed is the vital point in a sewing machine and in a description of the Vertical feed of the Davis machine its points of superiority were shown to prove its efficiency, durability and simplicity. The attachments for special work are both valuable and interesting. For manufacturing purposes and for tailors, dressmakers and others these are adapted to almost every class of work. The cabinet work used on the Davis machines is unequalled for beauty of design, elegance of finish and durability. The artistic swell front designs and the large side drawers are also features of beauty. The Davis ball-bearing stand is claimed to be the lightest running and most durable stand furnished. The Davis ball joint pitman is also a special feature which contributes greatly to its light running qualities. The low prices of these machines formed a genuine surprise, and must be one of their strongest claims.

Hundreds of little aprons were trimmed and hemmed up on the spot and given away, as well as large quantities of booklets and other advertising matter. Mr. Norris the expert Canadian traveller, and other expert operators, assisted Mr. Greene in making a very attractive and interesting exhibit.

The Fine Arts section was rendered additionally attractive this year by an unique exhibit of photography from the studio of Herr Mendel, George street. His work and his style represent results that only the real artistic temperament and genius can achieve. In his pose he seeks to bring about naturalness, which is the most important thing that underlies portrait work. His pictures are developed in conformity with his conception of the personality of the sitter. The camera does not always record nature as the human eye sees it. And it is in the intelligent use of the camera, the background, the lighting and the pose, that Herr Mendel shows his genius. One picture of a lady, done in a sepia, proved this. It was the gem selected by the judges of the Canadian Photographers' Association, recently, to be honoured with a position among the collection shown at the Toronto Industrial Fair. It showed the Rembrandt lighting with a light ground—a most difficult conception, and one which is seldom attempted. Two real carbons, the finest process in photography, were shown—a process seldom seen in Canada, and in which only a few gifted photographers in the United States, such as Strauss, of St. Louis, and Garo, of Boston, are eminently successful. A collection of five sketching photos was particularly admired for their artistic effect. One cabinet photo was shown, printed in two colours, pink and brown, which was very life-like and possessed those soft effects which lend such a charm of true art to a picture. Mr. Mendel was awarded first prize for best photographs (any subject), and first prize for best collection of photographs, not less than five pictures, Mr. Louis Mendel, Photo Artist, whose work received two first prizes.

Herr Mendel received his early training in the art of photography in Germany, where he was under instruction of some of the old masters and professors of photography in Vienna and elsewhere. He took courses in the various branches of the art, studying picture-making and photo geometry thoroughly. He has had thirteen years' practical experience, and in his studio on George street is favoured with a growing patronage, which is appreciative of the excellence of his work.

Grafton's High-grade Clothing

Messrs. Grafton and Company's ideal display of modern, high-grade clothing, partook of their usual open, above-board, hospitable nature. It was exhibited in a handsome red and white striped duck tent, next to the main building, right in the swing of the crowds as usual. One felt as if the welcome "hello!" invitation, was being sounded like this:

Hello, there, Bill!
You're welcome
To our town;
Do it up brown,
Or any shade of red.
The place is yours;
It's loaned to you for fair;
So there! 'Nuff, sed.

Since the Grafton store was established in Peterborough it has been a point of attraction for thousands of our citizens, both city and country, and their unique clothing displays at all our Fairs has been made with regularity year after year that has given them a prominence that must have become most valuable. To the man who believes that "it pays to pay for quality," Grafton's clothing seldom disappoints. They tell you, "We make everything we sell, and guarantee everything we make." The display this year is entirely new and up to the mark. The red first prize premium cards were conspicuous on their clothing, which was represented by the season's correct styles in men's and boys' suits, and overcoats, in the new colours of fabrics, of the smartest designs. The whole trim of the display was very creditable to those in charge. The new pleated background of white material covered with trailing ivy and smilax, furnished an admirable setting to the garments. Mr. Conway stated that Messrs. Grafton & Co. have started two new factories, in Dundas, one in Hamilton, one in Brantford, and one in Woodstock, in order to keep up with the demand for their goods, and because of the scarcity of labour in Dundas.

Lang & Maher's Catchy Exhibit.

The modern art of pleasing the people in the matter of clothing for men is in good hands in Peterborough. Men's fine suits and overcoats, neatly arranged in their portable clothing annex, was what the live firm of Messrs. Lang & Maher had to display to the thousands of visitors who passed and repassed their catchy exhibit. These represented Sovereign Brand, Fit-Rite and Northway garments, [illegible] dreds signs conspicuously displayed on the grounds, and almost every man on the grounds seemed to have one of their useful yard sticks. Visit "The Day light Store," 4 9—4 1 Hunter street, and you will be heartily welcomed.

From inquiries made to-day it was learned that there were between 5,000 and 6,000 paid admissions yesterday at the gates and that almost 1,000 occupied seats on the grand stand.

HOME-MAKING, THE BUSINESS OF LIFE, THINKS JOHN SNEED

John Sneed thinks that the business of life is home-making, and tells his daughter so in his letter on "The Making of a Successful Wife," published to-day. He writes on spending and saving to-day, and his views are of interest. They are also, in the main, the views that sensible people to-day take, though expressed, possibly in a new way. Young people, he thinks, should be economical, but not stingy. Read his letter to-day on page three. It will interest you.

A NEW METHODIST CHURCH IN THE SOUTH END OF THE CITY BEING SERIOUSLY DISCUSSED

The Necessity for Increased Church Accomodation Recognized at District Meeting—The Ministers Express Opinions

ARE MANY NEW FAMILIES

Present Churches of This Demonination are Insufficient to Accomodate all Who Would Attend

The question of the erection of a new Methodist church in the south end of the city, to provide a place of worship for the increasingly large number of Methodist families locating in that part of Peterborough, was discussed at some length yesterday afternoon at the Financial District Meeting of the Methodist church.

The importance of the matter may be judged, when it is stated that for over an hour the ministers and representatives of the churches in this district discussed the question, the result of which is represented by a motion passed to the effect that in view of the pressing need of further church accommodation for the city of Peterborough the District would hail with delight any movement calculated to meet this need.

In the course of the discussion the fact was pointed out that there were a large number of Methodist families in the south end of the city who are at the present time attending no church. They are too far from the George street church, and the Charlotte street church is already taxed to accommodate the members of its own congregation. There are already enough families in the south end to form the nucleus of a splendid congregation.

With a view of increasing the interest in the work of the Epworth League and Sunday schools, it was suggested that a joint convention of the forces of these two organizations would be productive of good, and it probable that this recommendation will be acted upon, and a convention arranged for the not distant future.

PREACH SUPERANUATION SERMONS

Rev. Dr. Griffin, of Toronto, to Preach in Charlotte Street Methodist

Rev. Dr. Griffin, of Toronto, will be the preacher to-morrow in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and his sermons will be in the interests of the Superannuation Fund of the Church in Canada. Dr. Griffin is in charge of this fund in the church, and, as a consequence is in a position to speak with authority upon this subject which is claiming more attention from the leaders in the church than has been given to it in the past. The treatment of the ministry by the church, and every church, in fact, has an influence, doubtless, on the action of the young men in declining to enter the ministry.

THE RALLY SUNDAY SERVICES

Annual Rally Day in Charlotte Street Sunday School To-Morrow—Addresses To Be Given

Rally Day will be observed to-morrow in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church Sunday School. On this day an effort will be made to bbeat the record of attendance, though primarily it is an effort to secure the attendance of every member of the Sunday School. Addresses will be given to-morrow by Mr. H. P. Kennedy and Mr. A. B. Cunningham, both actively engaged in work in this school. Music will also form an important feature of the service.

The Bishop Of London As Seen By A Boy Of The Slums

A Little Boy Tells of Bishop Ingram's Frequent Visits to the Poorer Class Where He is Generally Beloved.

HOW HIS FAME SPREAD

A famous man's actions come before the world's notice in divers ways, sometimes through the press, when the great deeds are communicated to everyone with detail and exactness: often by means of hearsay, which is done the less intentionally, but is not so far-reaching. At present, Bishop Ingram, of London, England, is visiting Canada, and by this time most people are acquainted with his journey through the land since his arrival, and his work in London, in his own diocese, has been constantly recounted in the public press. His benevolence and many kindnesses, his past career, all his life, in fact, have been laid bare to the public.

However, the story of a little boy who once lived in a part of the London slums, tells, in a few words, of the great Anglican bishop, whom this boy frequently met in the district. The boy is only a little lad, and has been working with Mr. Walter Stocker for several days. He chanced to speak with the boy about his home, and mention was made of the fact that the Bishop of London is now in Canada, and Mr. Stocker asked the lad if he ever saw His Grace. The boy, without any hesitation, answered that he had often seen Bishop Ingram, who visited in the slum district, and was known by hundreds of people, from the little children to the old men. The boy said that many times the bishop had been at his home, just as he had at all the others in the neighbourhood. The boy said that this home was at Bethnal Green, and there Bishop Ingram had visited homes and held large meetings in halls and churches. Everybody liked him because he was so good to them and tried to help them. The children, especially in the boys' district, knew the bishop and, in fact, he was known better than any other clergyman there.

The few statements made by the boy show that the greatest and best fame any man can have is to be revered by the poor from child to man, and to be held in their esteem, as the Bishop of London by the inhabitants of the poor district of the great city.

No Name, No Leaders, No Choir, Has This Church

A Peculiar Religious Community, Which Has a Branch in Peterborough—Mr. W. P. Douglas Attending Convention

MEETING HELD IN DETROIT

The peculiarity of a religious community which has no leaders, no name, no choir, and no music, are dealt with interestingly in a recent issue of the Detroit News, in which reference is made to Mr. W. P. Douglas, of this city, who attended a convention recently held in Detroit. The News says:

Of all the religious conferences that have been held in Detroit during the past year the one now in progress in Central Gospel Hall, Grand River avenue and Harrison street, is without doubt the most unique. This congregation of between 250 and 300 people, headed by Thos. D. W. Muir, hasn't even a name but is simply known as a Christian gathering. Men and women come from all parts of the United States, Canada, and even the British Isles, for the convention, not as delegates, nor to make addresses, but simply and solely for the purpose of being present at the Bible study and prayer services. No programme is arranged, no leaders have been selected, no questions of church polity will be discussed. There is no choir, no organ those present, as said by Evangelist Muir, singing and making melody with their hearts.

Everyone is welcome, no matter whether a member of the organization or not. All, too, are invited to drop in, and have luncheon or supper in the hall, meals being served free to all the visitors, and are provided by the members of the Detroit congregation. Last year at the conference some 1800 meals were served. The visitors are entertained at the various homes at night, and given their breakfast, but luncheon and supper are served in the basement of the hall so that the members of the congregation may be present at the services and not be obliged to remain at home to prepare meals.

This is the seventeenth annual meeting for Bible study and prayer, and about 400 people are in attendance. Among the visitors are R. Murdo, of Glasgow, Scotland; C. W. Ross, of Chicago, editor of "Our Record," W. P. Douglas, of Peterborough, Ont., and Edward Stack, a veteran evangelist of Norwich, Eng.

The meetings of Friday and Saturday are being held in the hall, owing to the big crowd expected on Sunday. The services on that day will be conducted in Perkins' hall, on Grand River avenue.

Conferences of a similar nature are held each year in Pittsburg, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, New Bedford, Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco and Portland, Oregon.

Evangelist Muir is just completing his twenty-sixth year in the work at Detroit, having come here with his bride and established his congregation by preaching in the open air, on the site of the soldiers' monument on Cadillac square. These services are said by Mr. Muir to have been the first open air meetings ever held here. Last year he pitched a tent and held services at Michigan and 4th avenue, eventually going to GGrand River avenue.

Last November the congregation removed into the pretty new hall in which the meetings are now being held. This cost with the site about $10,000, the money for the property being subscribed voluntarily. No assessments are laid for the expenses of the church, nor for Mr. Muir's salary. The people simply give what they feel they can afford, and from the prosperous appearance of the neat little hall and its furnishings, it would seem that they give generously.

Mr. W. P. Douglas will give the Gospel address in the Assembly Hall, George street, on Sunday night at 7 p.m.

To-morrow In City Churches

Harvest Festival services will be continued to-morrow in St. John's Church, when the music given on Thursday night will be repeated. In the majority of cases the pulpits will be occupied by the rector or pastor, Rev. Wm. Major having recovered sufficiently to resume his work. Rev. J. G. Potter is still out of the city, his pulpit being occupied by Mr. W. W. McQuade, of Montreal. In the Charlotte Street Methodist Church Rev. HOW TO MAKE THE BEST REMEDY

ine Recipe For Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble Gives Prompt Relief

FIX THIS FOR YOURSELF

A large health publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles, receives the greatest praise, viz., Fluid Extract dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is further stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings in a short time.

A well known local druggist states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these sponge-like organs and gives them power to shift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

Cut this out and hand to some sufferer, which would certainly be an act of humanity. 8

Great Admiralty Undertaking at Port mouth, England.

The Admiralty have sanctioned th plans for the construction of the ne lock at Portsmouth dockyard. Th lock, which is to cost a million ster ing of money, will be 861 feet lon and 121 feet wide, with a depth of 5 feet. The consideration of the plan has extended over about two years as there were several difficulties i connection with the site. An eminen civil engineer was called in for con sultation, but after considering hi report the Admiralty have decided t accept the scheme proposed by thei own engineers. The lock will be cu through the present coaling point o the dockyard, take in a part of No. ship basin, and enter the large basi that has an area of twenty-two acres The work, which is to be done by con tract, will take about two years t complete. At present it is impossibl to get the Dreadnought in or out o this basin, except at extremely hig tides, owing to that vessel's width an depth, and the peculiar shape of he hull. The existing locks are too nar row, and the ship has to be taken i by a circuitous route. All this wil be obviated by the new lock, whic will enable the big ship to be take at any state of the tide. The new lock, too, will hold two Dreadnought at once.

The interest in music enters more largely into our worship, possibly more than the majority of persons imagine. Recognising the fact that the musical portions of the services in the churches are of interest to many church-goers, the Examiner has established the practice of publishing on Saturday the music to be given in the churches on the following day, where this is practicable. Those in charge of the music in the various churches have been asked to supply a summary of their particular portion of the services. A number have complied with this request and to-day the following programmes of the music to be rendered in the various churches to-morrow are given.

WESLEY BROTHERS EXPANDING

"My Valet" a Prosperous Business—New Premises are Being Secured Now

NEW CONTRACTS FOR MEN

Wesley Brothers, proprietors of "My Valet" are planning to make extensions to their business premises, made necessary by the growth of the enterprise, in which they were the pioneers in Peterborough. Half of the store at present occupied by Mr. Gemell has been leased, and the front portion will be used as an office, while the rear will be utilized for work-rooms, and additional accommodation for the cleaning operations will be provided in a large brick structure to the rear of the store. During the short time since this business was established it has been successful beyond the most enthusiastic expectations. In the first place no delivery wagon was used, a boy calling for and delivering the goods on foot. It was not long, however, until the trade had grown to such proportions that it was beyond the limitations of this method, and a wagon was put on the road. Now it has been found necessary to place two rigs on the road in order to accommodate the ever increasing number of patrons.

The care of one's clothing is something which, in these days when more attention is being paid to appearance, requires an expert, and if a young man wishes to be well dressed it is essential that he should give the care of his attire to "My Valet." The majority of young men, and older ones, in fact, too, appreciate this, and the consequence is that Wesley Brothers find their business ever increasing.

There are, however, many men in the city yet who are not as well dressed as they might be. Not that they do not have good clothes, but because they are not properly cared for. It is surprising how much more economical it is to give Wesley Brothers the contract for caring for your clothing than to have the work done piecemeal. Drop in an see them about a contract. You will be surprised at the low cost.

THE BAPTISTS' WORSHIP ACROSS THE ROAD

Large Congregations Attend Yesterday At Park Street—Weekly Meetings

The Park street congregation worshipped on the west side of the road for the first time, yesterday. The services were very hearty and the day's income was exceptionally large.

The Sunday School was also large, each class being well represented. The banking up and the approaches to the church will be attended to at once, which will ensure comfort in worship during the short time it will be needed. Services for this week will be held as usual. To-night the B.Y.P.U. will meet, the subject to be "Lord's Supper." On Wednesday a public service will be held and on Friday the Building Committee will meet.

HELD CHRISTENING CEREMONY YESTERDAY

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Hill Receives Sacrament of Baptism

At St. Luke's church yesterday afternoon an interesting ceremony took place when the baby son of Mr. Cyril Hill was baptized by Rev. Dr. E. A. Langfeldt. The godfathers were Dr. T. J. Halliday and Lord Strathcona. Mr. Hill, father of the child, acted as Lord Strathcona's proxy, by request. The name given th little one is Hamilton Donald. After the ceremony a reception was held at "Auburn," the residence of Mrs. (Hon.) Robert Hamilton.

TOO MANY CHICKENS AND PRESERVES FOR THE MODERN PREACHER

Rev. Dr. Griffin Says Twentieth Century Does Not Produce as Big Men as the Early Days

A PIONEER PREACHER

Speaks in the Interests of Superanuation Fund of the Methodist Church in Canada

Too many chickens, and too much preserves, are spoiling the preachers of to-day.

This may not be the opinion of the preachers generally, but it was the opinion expressed yesterday morning by Rev. Dr. Griffin who preached in the Charlotte street Methodist church in the interests of the Superannuation Fund of the church. The veteran minister has been in the ranks for fifty-eight years, is a thorough Canadian, the third generation born on Canadian soil, and is in a position to speak with authority on the various stages of development of the Methodist church during the last half century.

It was particularly in the interests of the ministers who had borne the hardships of the pioneer stages of Canadian Methodism, that he made his plea yesterday. The ministers of the present day, those who were being paid good salaries, he said, were not only paying for their own superannuation out of their own salaries, but many of them were paying for the superannuation of one, and sometimes two others.

A warm tribute to the zeal, and also to the learning of the men who carried the torch of Methodism in Canada in the early days, when to be a preacher, meant hardship, and sometimes death, was paid by the speaker of yesterday. He believed that the present day, with its educational facilities, produced few equals, and no superiors, to the early Methodist preachers in Canada, and this belief was held in view of his half-century's experience. It seemed to be the opinion in these days that a man to be a successful preacher must have a knowledge of arithmentic, of algebra, of poetry, of history, and what not. These pioneer ministers knew little or nothing of these things but in ecclesiastical legislation and eloquence of speech, they have no superiors to-day. Where, he asked, to-day can be found men like Ryerson. "We haven't got as big men to-day," said Dr. Griffin. "The average is possibly better, but there are not the men who stand above their fellows like in the early days.

Referring to the growth of the Methodist church in Canada during the last fifty years, due largely, to the devotion of the ministers, Dr. Griffin said, that while half a century ago there were 5,000 Methodists in Canada, the number to-day had reached 300,000, with a large number of adherents, in addition. The three hundred preachers had grown to two thousand. The value of church property had increased to $14,000,000. The income of the Missionary Society then was $30,000, now it has grown to $300,000. Many of the ministers who were largely responsible for the growth of the church, during this period, had now become too old to pursue their duties, and are, by contract, under the care of the superannuation fund. There are nearly 300 ministers, 200 widows of ministers, and 75 orphans, to be cared for. Twenty per cent. of the amount paid the ministers was asked from the lay members of the congregations, the eighty per cent. being paid by the ministers themselves.

It is understood that the result of the appeal of the reverend doctor was satisfactory.

Seven Pickpockets At The Exhibition Last Week

Watched Board the Evening C.P.R. Train by Two Police Officers—May be Back Again

AN UNPROFITABLE VISIT

When the 4.48 C.P.R. train left Peterborough on Saturday afternoon no less than seven pickpockets left with it. At the station could be seen police officers Newhall and Meharry, who appeared as if they had just been through a grist mill, and they took great care to see that the septet of light-fingered gentry vacated the city Saturday evening.

The Peterborough Fair was a very unprofitable one for them. They were taken in tow by P. C.'s Newhall and McDonald on Friday—three in the morning and four more in the afternoon—and closely watched. They were made "wise" to the presence of the officers by some sympathizers, and at one time were near the Locks Bridge riding in a field.

At noon on Saturday some of [illegible] 11.14 C.P.R. train, but jumped off again at the rear as the train pulled out. They were watched by P. C. Newhall, going to an hotel, and shadowed during the afternoon until the 4.48 train came in. They were then told by the officers that unless they got out of the city that evening they would be arrested for vagrancy. The result was that three left on the first section and four on the second one. Their parting farwell to P. C. Newhall was that their trip to Peterborough this time was a poor one, but that there was more than one fair and circus here.

The Chief of Police, with his usual foresight around Fair time, had a couple of his men following from the two days they were here.

Canadian Pacific Jumps Up 14 Points; Big Surprise

The Feature of the New York Stock Exchange To-Day — Closes at 170

UP IN LEAPS AND BOUNDS

(J. R. Heintz & Co. Special.)

New York, Sept. 30.—The sports in Canadian Pacific were cornered on the Stock Exchange to-day and a sensational rise of 14 points in that stock took place. The stock had been declining steadily for several days past, and everyone got short of it on the tip that it was going below 150. It touched 157 this morning and then rallied slowly to 160, only to fall back to 158 again.

In the afternoon when the short sellers went into the loan crowd to borrow the stock to make their short contracts good they found there was none to be had. The bulls had taken everything at call and been sold and then refused to lend it. The result was a panic by the shorts as they tried to cover and found the market also bare of stock. The stock jumped up by leaps and bounds until it touched 171 and closed at 170, showing a net advance of 12 points for the day. What stock was loaned to-day brought a premium of 1-8 over night.

The general market, after showing extreme weakness in the early dealings, rallied with C.P.R., and closed strong.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE FRED HOWSON

Large Number of Young Men Present in the Cortege

The funeral of the late Frederick Howson, took place yesterday afternoon, from the family residence, Edinburgh street, to the Little Lake cemetery, and was very largely attended, the cortege being remarkable for the number of young men who took part, showing the esteem in which the deceased was held by those with whom he came in contact.

The Pattern Makers League was represented by a large delegation, who occupied carriages. The services were conducted by Rev. E. A. Pearson of the George street Methodist church, and Rev. Dr. Talling, of St. Paul's, both of whom referred in eulogistic terms to the good qualities of the deceased.

Many beautiful floral wreaths were received, including wreaths from the following: St. Paul's Young Men's Guild, Pattern Department of the C.G.E., the Ideal Porcelain Company of Port Hope, the Pattern Makers' League of North America, C. G. E. Angling Co., the Hamilton Pattern Works, the boys of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., the Peterborough Lock Co. and the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp of 1905-06.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases
Of all superstitions probably the most foolish is that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of external applications, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

EMPLOYEE SAID TO HAVE GONE WITH CASH

Was Engaged With Mr. Downham at the Creamery

It was reported this afternoon that one of the employees of the Peterborough Creamery had left the city, with a quantity of the proprietor's money in his pocket.

At the time of going to press, Mr. P. Downham could not be communicated with, so that the amount in the man's possession could not be learned. He is said to have called at a local hotel, collected $7 on account, which he added to what he already had.

THE WEATHER.

The rainfall fall of Saturday and Sunday takes rank as one of the heaviest of the year, the total amount being one inch and 14-100 on the level, and gave the country a much-needed drenching. The highest temperature yesterday was only 52 degrees and the lowest 46.

BAD GUESSING.

Our guileless evening contemporary works itself into a painful condition of worry over the connection it attributes to Mr. Stratton with the Liberal nomination in East Peterborough. Not, that it cares a farthing what Liberal represents the riding, but because it fears the possibility of a strong candidate being chosen. The Review seems to be a sort of mind-reader, and seems to fathom Mr. Stratton's intentions better than himself. In the course of a column or less, of speculative muddle, it seeks to convey the idea that Mr. Stratton is manoeuvring for the nomination in the East. In this connection, it says:

"But he is shrewd enough to feel his way, and tricky enough not to be thrown down, if he can avoid it. Every possible influence, direct and indirect, that can be brought to bear on the situation, every string that can be jerked, and every individual who can be worked, are in evidence in behalf of the candidature of the late Provincial Secretary. Almost everybody knows that Mr. Stratton wants the 'Grit' nomination in East Peterborough for the Federal Parliament, and wants it badly."

The fact is, that this is all mere speculation. Where is the evidence of the trickery alleged? What evidence has the organ to offer in support of its random guesses? Who is pulling strings? Who is working every possible influence? Mr. Stratton cannot prevent people from talking, speculating and gossiping, any more than our evening contemporary can be prohibited from giving currency to such crude guesswork. As a matter of fact, if the Review wants something in the line of truth, the truth is that Mr. Stratton has never asked for any nomination in the East Riding, and, in addition, the fact is, that he has never had to ask for a nomination in either riding. It is rather late in the day for him to be begging for a nomination, even if he had any idea of re-entering politics. The real worry of the Review, arises from the fact that there are two or three cautious Conservatives in East Peterborough, who would be glad to get the nomination, if they could be assured that Mr. Stratton would not be a candidate. It is not the present condition of things that is worrying the Review—it is conditions that may be created. Our contemporary seems to be fond of guessing. It might as well keep on guessing. If it doesn't strike any nearer the mark than it has done, no great harm will result.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Some newspapers are in luck. Natural gas has been struck on the premises of the London Free Press.

Kipling, bof Our Lady of the Snows," is in Canada, and he evidently still believes that this country is a region of frost. He has made provision for having things made hot for 'em. He has brought his wife with him.

Mr. Cockshutt is anxious to raise prices still higher through an increased tariff rate, in the interests of manufacturers. What about the people, almost equal in number to the capitalists, who have to pay the high prices? Where do they come in, in his and Mr. Borden's high tariff scheme?

Since Mr. Borden is not now in a position to issue a Royal Commission, while Mr. Whitney is in the business of governing the Province by Commission, he might, as a friendly turn, appoint a commission to Mr. Borden's interest to discover the origin and application of the big Conservative campaign fund used in 1904 and, incidentally, lay bare the motives and movements of the group of capitalists who tried to manoeuvre the defects of the Laurier Government.

D & A CORSETS

MR. BORDEN'S LATEST

Speaking at Victoria recently, Mr. Borden made use of language which is somewhat startling in the mouth of the leader of the Conservative party. "While recognizing our duty to the Empire," he said, "we respectfully maintain that Canada should be in all vital questions accorded freedom of judgment, as perfect and unfettered as that exercised by any other portion of the Empire, even as that exercised by the mother country herself."

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had used these words, his opponents would have interpreted them as a veiled threat at the mother country, and given them a treasonable twist. He encountered this sort of misrepresentation when he argued that Canada should have a larger measure of treaty making power. The Conservative press teemed with denunciation and with ponderous disquisitions to show that Canada could not have the right to make her own treaties because she had not the power to enforce them, or the necessary diplomatic machinery or national responsibility.

Mr. Borden goes further than the Premier in virtually declaring that in all matters affecting Canada, Canadian opinion should be supreme. What do the super-Imperialists and professional Loyalists think of this attitude? It is inconsistent with the nature of the constitutional tie between Great Britain and Canada which makes the legislature of Canada subordinate, in theory at least, to that of the mother country. It will shock "Tories" of the old school. But sensible Canadians will not quarrel with Mr. Borden's position, for he indicates the relationship to the mother country which Canada must eventually hold—that of perfect equality and absolute self government within the circle of the empire. Mr. Borden, however, has chosen to enunciate this important principle at a time when he hopes to make party capital out of it.—London Advertiser.

Doesn't the Advertiser know that nothing that Mr. Borden can say is surprising — that his policy is continentally elastic—made to fit the place he is speaking in — like the chameleon, changing colours with environment. At Halifax, the starting point of his transcontinental tour, his now notorious, but in the light of late speeches, unrecognizable policy, was put forth as containing "all things necessary to a perfect policy." It reached Peterborough, on its way West, in fairly good condition—with some of the round corners rounded off—but when it reached Winnipeg, it began to take new shape, and when it reached British Columbia, it had developed into high treason. Heaven knows what shape it will be in when it limps back to Halifax. Mr. Hugh Graham, of the Montreal Star, won't be able to recognise it as coming back "in the same way."

HOMEWOOD AVENUE STANDS BRAVELY BY ITS GUNS

Proud of It's Beauty, But Owes Little To City Council

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I was much interested in West End Gilmourite's letter in Friday's edition, especially his remarks about any competent judge giving Gilmour street first prize. I would remind this writer that some years ago Mr. Cox placed a building restriction on Homewood avenue that compelled all builders to keep back 25 feet from the street line, thereby making a uniform street. Any person walking along this really beautiful street will note the wisdom of this restriction. Contrast this with Gilmour street.

A resident of Homewood avenue succeeded this year in turning a vacant lot into a first prize winner for the best kept lawn and grounds in the city. This residence is not enclosed with a fence at all, but is entirely open. I did not hear of any person on Gilmour street, being mentioned in the awards.

The condition of Homewood avenue west of Walton street is a shame, and our city council should wake up and repair this street at once. I trust we will have some kind of a competition next year for the best kept street in the city. A competition of this kind would have a tendency to awaken a keener interest in the condition of the different streets of the whole city; then the man with the crops of burdocks and dandelions outside of the street line will have to wake up, also the man that deposits his grass and weeds in the middle of the street, after cleaning up his lawn.

Yours truly,
HOMEWOODITE.

LINDSAY ALARMED AT "FAILURE"

The Post of That Town is Afraid That Peterborough Fair Will Be a Failure This Year

IS LINDSAY JEALOUS?

The Lindsay Post is out with a "roast" for the Peterborough Industrial Fair, which is probably inspired by the realization of the fact that the boasted superiority of the Lindsay show is waning, and that Peterborough is coming into her own. The Post of Saturday was quite alarmed at the reported "failure" of the Peterborough Fair, which it refers to in the following terms:—

Despite strenuous efforts of the part of the directors and columns of verbosity vaunting the fair from the press of that town, the Peterborough Industrial was a failure yesterday, and the weather gave it a complete knock-out blow to-day. The chances are, according to authentic reports, the directors will have to meet a deficit. Peterborough has been striving for some time to have a first-class fair, but without avail, and the Lindsay Central continues to be the "best fall fair in the Midland district."

Mr. D. C. Trow and Mr. J. A. Williamson attended the Peterborough Industrial yesterday, and although Mr. Trow said the poultry exhibit was fair, the general exhibits and especially the attendance was discouraging. Barely 2,500 were present—not a third of the attendance at the Lindsay Central. To-day's rain will complete the failure.

WEEK'S MEETINGS AT ST. LUKE'S

Busy Week for Members of That Parish —Some Important Gatherings

The following meetings will be held at St. Luke's during the week:—

Monday, 7.30, the Girls' Auxiliary.

Tuesday, 8, Brotherhood of St. Andrew. A junior chapter will be formed and the boys are requested to attend.

Wednesday, 3 o'clock, Mothers' Guild.

Thursday, 2.30, Woman's Auxiliary.

Friday, 4 o'clock, Meeting of the Parochial Missionary Collectors at the residence of Mrs. L. Turner.

Friday, 4.15, Mission Band.

Friday, 8 o'clock, First social of the newly formed Anglican Young People's Association, to which all young people are invited. A strong committee has the programme in hand and a pleasant evening is assured. Refreshments will be served.

Collections were taken up in the Sunday School yesterday for the support of the field secretary for Sunday Schools, whose appointment was recently recommended by the Synod.

IMPROVEMENT IN THE ART EXHIBIT

A Judge Expresses Pleasure at Improvement in Quality of Art at the Fair

A lady who has been a judge of the art exhibits at the Peterborough Industrial Fair for the last five years, and who is, therefore, in a position to speak with authority, states that she has noticed a steady and gratifying improvement in the quality of the exhibits in this department during the half decade. Evidently the work of the Art Association in developing the ability possessed by the members is meeting with success.

"Hurry Zutoo Tablets. Everybody wants them. They give almost instant relief from headache. All who use them tell me the same story."

The above message was received from a well known merchant of Grantley, Ont.

Flattering to Zutoo Tablets, is it not? And yet, if you have tried these tablets, you know that the words of that message are true.

If you have not tried them, you have yet to experience how quickly they will cure any kind of headache, and how bright and well they will always leave you feeling.

We will send samples for nothing.

FEARFUL PAINS

SUGGESTIONS HOW WOMEN MAY FIND RELIEF.

While no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering it does not seem to be the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely. This is a severe strain on a woman's vitality. When pain exists something is wrong which should be set right or it will lead to a serious derangement of the whole female organism.

Thousands of women have testified in grateful letters to Mrs. Pinkham that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcomes women's special pains and irregularities.

It provides a safe and sure way of escape from distressing and dangerous weaknesses and diseases.

The two following letters tell so convincingly what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will do for women, they cannot fail to bring hope to thousands of sufferers.

Miss Matilda Richardson of 177 Wellington Street, Kingston, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Some four years ago my usually good health began to fail. I had severe pains in my back, my head ached. I would have dizzy spells, and during my monthly periods I would suffer intense pain. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so glad that I did, for it brought new life and health to me. My monthly periods were natural and painless, and my general health improved. I have not had an ache or a pain since, and I feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to tell you what your medicine has done for me."

Mme. Louise McKenzie, of Mount Carmel, Montreal, Canada, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had heard so much good about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before I started to take it for painful periods so that when it cured me I was not surprised. I had suffered with blinding headaches and pain until it seemed that I must scream. These pains lasted from five to ten days every month, and you can understand how glad I was to get relief. I am in the best of health, and am pleased to give you this testimonial for what your medicine has done for me."

Such testimony should be accepted by all women as convincing evidence that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound stands without a peer as a remedy for all the distressing ills of women.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound rests upon the well-earned gratitude of Canadian women.

When women are troubled with irregularities, displacements or ulceration of the organs, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, bloating, (or flatulency), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine, for you need the best.

Don't hesitate to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about your sickness you do not understand. She will treat you with kindness and her advice is free. No woman ever regretted writing her and she has helped thousands. Address Lynn, Mass.

"The Serge of the Serges"

BLUNOZ CANADIAN Semi-ready

In the first place "Blunoz" serge is not made in Nova Scotia.

In the second place, it is not all a blue serge, for it is a freely woven Australian wool serge in both the navy blue and black colors. You have a choice of either.

To be sure they call the Nova Scotians "Blunoses"—but that is not the derivative of "Blunoz" serge.

Only two woollen mills in Canada can make the "Blunoz" Serge—and the Semi-ready Company control and absorb in their tailor shops the entire output.

This is the Canadian Serge which has made the British mills "sit up," and it is the Standard cloth by which the Government judge the tariff needs of this particular Canadian industry.

Semi-ready "Blunoz" Suits, now $20, will cost $24 after January 1st, 1908.

Satisfactory Labour Conditions Are Reported

Ald. W. J. Johnston in the Labour Gazette Tells of Condition Prevailing in Labour Circles in This City

THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD

The current issue of the Labour Gazette contains a report of the labour conditions in Peterborough and district during the past month. Ald. Johnston, who is the local correspondent presents the following report:—

The general condition of labour has not varied from that of last month. Building activity has somewhat declined especially on houses. The heavy influx of immigration has overcrowded the labour market. Later on work will become more brisk as a number of large buildings now underway will be ready for woodworkers. The dredging of the channel of the Otonabee River is still being carried on giving employment to a large staff of men. The Bell Telephone Co. is burying building conduits under ground. The erection of the new Collegiate Institute, Normal School and Armouries is being hurried to completion. The laying of granolithic sidewalks, the building of new sewers and the laying of water works piping provided work for the labourers. Goods for the fall trade were being imported by retail merchants.

The Cavan swamp drain work provides considerable employment. When completed large tracts of land will be drained and used for growing grain, and pasture.

Grafton & Company have decided to close their place of business on Saturday evenings at 10 o'clock instead of 11 o'clock, as heretofore. Wholesale and retail trade was active during August. Wages and hours of labour were unchanged, and no unrest was reported in the labour market. Banks reported business fair.

Condition of Local Industries

Agriculture.—Work consisted mainly in harvesting the grain crop.

Lumbering.—The lumbering industry has been very active, the companies here doing a large export trade. The Cavendish Lumber Company's season's cut consisted of 300,000 logs, equivalent to 12,000,000 feet of lumber.o

Manufacturing.—All establishments were very busy, employing full staffs and running full time.

Mining.—The opening of the iron ore mines at Marmora will greatly increase mining activity in this vicinity.

Railroad Construction and Employment.—The Ballasting of roadbed and general section work were employing large forces of men.

Condition of Particular Trades

Building.—All were actively employed. Carpenters and joiners, painters, etc., were busy.

Metal, Engineering and Shipbuilding.—Iron moulders, workers and helpers, machinists and engineers, steam engineers, electrical engineers and linemen were busy, and brass workers of all kinds very busy. Blacksmiths, boilermakers, shipworkers, on repairs and remodelling, sheet metal workers, bicycle workers, tool sharpeners, horseshoers, jewellers, etc., found employment active.

Woodworking and Furnishing.—Woodworkers, upholsterers, varnishers and polishers, carriage and wagon makers were busy, and carbuilders, on repairs work, were actively employed, as were pattern makers and coopers.

Printing.—The allied trades were well employed, notwithstanding that August is always considered a slack month on account of the holiday season.

Clothing.—These trades had active employment, excepting hat makers, who found conditions dull.

Food and Tobacco Preparations.—All were actively employed, with ice-handlers very busy.

Leather.—Active conditions prevailed.

Miscellaneous.—All experienced active conditions. Theatre employees became active towards the end of the month. Laundry workers were very busy.

Transport.—Railway employees were never more active in every department, freight and tourist traffic being very heavy on all lines. Steamboat workers of every class had a very busy month. Street railway employees, cabmen, hackmen, carters and draymen were very busy, and teamsters busy.

Unskilled.—This class was actively employed.

District Notes

Work throughout the district consisted mainly of harvesting and threshing the grain, the crops turning out well. The apple crop is expected to be a good one. Berries were 15c. a quart, which is considered high. New potatoes were selling at 35c. per peck; butter, 24c.; eggs, 20 to 22c. a dozen; chickens, 90c. to $1.00 a pair. Beef, which has been retailing at 15 to 17c. a lb., has been reduced to 12 1-2 to 15c. a lb. There was abundance of vegetables of all kinds. Four thousand five hundred and ninety-five boxes of cheese sold for 10 13-16 cents on the Peterborough market. Saw and grist mills and general stores reported business very active.

Lindsay.—The Lindsay Cheese Board recently sold a quantity of cheese at 11 cents.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses of from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

When Your Health Fails--What Then?

BETTER TO GUARD AGAINST SUCH AN EMERGENCY BY KEEPING VITALITY AT HIGH-WATER MARK BY THE USE OF

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Good health is the capital of persons who earn their livelihood with brain and muscle.

In these days of strenuous life and keen competition there is no place for tired brains and weak bodies.

Success is for the strong and alert for those whose blood is rich and whose nerve cells are filled with vigour and energy.

It is not pleasant to contemplate what might happen with failing health, and for this reason it is well to heed the first symptoms of nervous exhaustion, such as brain fag, headache, nervous dyspepsia, sleeplessness, failure of memory and loss of power to concentrate the mind.

While Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has succeeded in curing many cases of partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia, and the most severe forms of nervous prostration and exhaustion, it is not well to delay treatment until these stubborn and dangerous diseases set in.

At the slightest indication of wasting nerve force, begin the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and with a few weeks' treatment you will be able to restore the vitality of the body to high-water mark, remove the cause of nervous disorders, and prevent serious results.

Miss Mary Leitch, Coulson, Simcoe county, Ont., writes: "When I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food my nervous system was all run down, and I suffered terribly with nervous headache and sleeplessness. Sometimes I could not sleep for three or four nights in succession. By the use of several boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food these troubles were entirely overcome, and I consider the preparation an excellent nerve tonic."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50; at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—1.

Window Was Shattered; Family's Narrow Escape

Long Ladder Fell From the Roof Through Window of Sanitary Inspector Thompson's Residence — A Bad Fright and Some Damage.

THE CURTAINS WERE TORN

To have the two side pieces of an eighteen-foot ladder come sailing through your window when you are enjoying the evening paper by the kitchen fire, is an experience that is as unpleasant and startling as it is rare, and Mr. Peter Thompson, city plumbing inspector, to whom it happened on Saturday evening, is not anxious to have it repeated, as in addition to being a shock to the nerves, it is apt to have a damaging effect upon property.

Mr. Thompson, who lives at 621 George street, was sitting a couple of feet away from the kitchen window, near the stove, and his wife and two small children were in the room when the accident occurred. Without the slightest warning, two long pieces of scantling crashed through the window, one piece hitting the stove and the other falling across the room, nearly striking Mrs. Thompson, who was sitting near the far wall. Two panes of glass were shattered and the pieces thrown over the startled Mr. Thompson, who, for a moment, was at a loss to know what had occurred, and wild thoughts of earthquake, bomb and other things, flitted across his mind. An examination of the scantlings solved the mystery. They proved to be pieces of a ladder which had been attached to the roof of the house to the south, and had been loosened from their fastenings by the wind and rain. The roof was very slippery and had given the timbers impetus enough to jump the ten foot lane intervening, and crash through the window of the house to the north.

Mr. Thompson had a very narrow escape. One of the pieces almost struck him, and if it had the results would have undoubtedly been serious, as the timbers fell with great force and were heavy enough to inflict bad injuries. Their force is shown by the fact that the sash of the window was broken, while inside the curtains were torn and an unfortunate flower pot smashed into fragments.

An Examiner reporter saw the wreck before the debris was cleared away, and it was quite easy to imagine that an attempt had been made to destroy the house if the circumstances had not been explained.

MRS. WM. DUNCAN WAS DISCHARGED

Special Session of Police Court Held Saturday Afternoon

At a special session of the Police Court on Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Wm. Duncan was charged with having stolen a gold chain from a local hotel on September 21. She pleaded not guilty and was finally discharged. The evidence went to show that Mrs. Duncan had found a fan with a gold chain on it, and thinking that it belonged to the proprietor's wife, who was out of the city at the time, she took the chain off and brought it to her home. That evening the owner of the chain found that it was missing and suspicion fell upon Mrs. Duncan. A search warrant was procured, and the lady's husband, with P. C. McLarry, visited Mrs. Duncan's house, and there the chain was found on the sideboard.

Taking all the circumstances into consideration, Magistrate Dunble decided to dismiss the case, and Mrs. Duncan was allowed to go free.

WHERE FILES AND RASPS ARE RECUT

A Shop is Opened on Downie Street for This Purpose

A shop for re-cutting files and rasps has been opened at 379 Downie street, by Mr. T. Mahoney. This is something new in Peterborough, and will be a great boon to many who have long been longing for something of this character. There is a probability before long that a new company may be formed to perform this work on a large scale, and and there is a possibility of a new and important industry being located in the city.

THE THANKOFFERING IS ARRANGED

Annual Service to be Held in St. Paul's Church In Short Time

Next Friday night Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville, will preach a sermon preparatory to Communion in St. Paul's church, and Communion will be celebrated on Sunday morning. The monthly meeting of the Ladies Aid Society of that church will be held on Friday afternoon, and on the following Friday the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will hold its annual Thankoffering service.

A CRAYON SKETCH WITH A HISTORY

Picture of an Old Landmark in Asphodel 75 Years Old

The crayon sketch, by Miss Ella Cameron, which hung in the Art Section at the Peterborough Industrial fair, proved to have an interesting history. It depicted an old stone chimney still standing on the farm of the late Hugh Christie, on the first concession of Asphodel, on the Norwood Road, and now occupied by his son, Edward Christie. The chimney is said to have been built in the year 1823, and the dwelling house, of which it formed a part, and which has since been torn down, was the birthplace of the mother of our esteemed citizen, Mr. George A. Gillespie, one of the most active of the Fair Directors. The old iron pot and tea kettle may be seen suspended over the fire place, under the chimney, as well as the old fashioned fire tongs. It is a rare old relic of ancient grandeur.

NEW LAY READER AT ST. LUKE'S

Mr. Arthur Kingdon Given License Yesterday by Rev. Dr. Langfeldt

At the morning service in St. Luke's yesterday Rev. Dr. Langfeldt presented Mr. Arthur Kingdon with the Archbishop's License for Lay Reader and Catechist. ALLAN DOONE'S BIRD STORY

Young Irish Actor Who Will Appear Here This Week Has a Fund of Interesting Anecdotes

Allen Doone, the versatile young star of the newest Irish play, "A Romance in Ireland," which will be presented at the Grand on Saturday, October 5, is somewhat of a story-teller, and having travelled widely, on both sides of the ocean, his stories possess the flavour of local colour which can only be imparted by one who has been on the ground and who has the power to observe and retain what is observed. While travelling in one of the obscure counties of Ireland, or, as we would say in this country, in the "tall grass," says Mr. Doone, he approached a typical Irish farmhouse, in front of which was gathered a knot of people who were listening to a "fakir," who was endeavouring to interest them in a wonderful remedy, which, he claimed, would cure almost all the ills that flesh is heir to! On the side of the cart was perched an immense green parrot, which the fakir gravely introduced as his "familiar," and frequently addressed as "Magumness." As Mr. Doone quietly mingled with the assembled peasants, he heard a brawny farmer say to a companion, "Thot crane divil up there seems to undhterstand every word the fella says; oi wondther kin it shpake?" Gradually the biz fellow approached nearer to the cart, till he stood directly alongside the parrot, at which he gazed attentively. Suddenly the parrot seemed to notice the man, and, cocking its head upon one side, in a remarkably knowing way, said "Hello!" The Irishman jumped at least a foot from the ground and, pulling off his cap, said in apologetic amazement, "Excuse me, sorr. Oi thought ye worr a burrd!" Taking advantage of the laugh caused by this incident, says Mr. Doone, the fakir quickly disposed of a bottle of his nostrum to nearly every "rube" in the crowd, with no trouble at all, and drove off with the parrot perched upon his shoulder, the bird whistling merrily 'The Rocky Road to Dublin."

CONDUITS CONCLUDED IN TWO WEEKS

Bell Telephone Co's Wires Will Soon be Underground

In two weeks' time the men engaged for the Bell Telephone Company in placing the conduits underground in the city will have completed their work. After the completion of this portion of the work the cables will then be placed inside the conduits. These are pulled through from the manholes by means of ropes, to the various poles where distribute the wires. Only one post is needed to make that distribution in each block of the business section, and most of these are being placed in the alleyways.

A CHINAMAN WAS INJURED

C. Q. Woo Fell in Getting off a Street Car Yesterday

C. Q. Woo, proprietor of the Chinese restaurant at the corner of King and George streets, had a narrow escape from serious injury. He was getting off a street car at King street last Friday, and jumped before the car came to a stop, with the result that the Celestial was thrown some distance, alighting heavily on his face and head. Before he could pick himself up he was almost run over by an automoobile going up George street, but crawled out of the way in time. His face was painfully cut by the fall.

RALLY DAY SERVICES A SUCCESS

Good Attendance Yesterday Afternoon at Charlotte Street Sunday School

To-night's meeting of the Epworth League of the Charlotte street Methodist church, will be in charge of the Sunday school committee of the League.

The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society, will be held to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 in the Guild room.

The rally day services at the Charlotte street Sunday school yesterday were well attended, and were very successful. Appropriate addresses were given by Mr. H. P. Kennedy and Mr. A. B. Cunningham.

Judging of Horses at The Final Day of Exhibition

No Gate Receipts Taken on Saturday—Exhibition Nevertheless Is A Success

WHAT MIGHT HAVE BEEN

The fifth annual Peterborough Industrial Exhibition now belongs to the past, but it has not gone by without leaving some pleasant and disagreeable memories in the minds of the president and directors. Friday the second day of the Exhibition, as all who attended know, was a gratifying success and was a reflection of the days of long ago, when every fair brought a surplus On Saturday, however, things were different. The bright weather of this morning seemed only to tantalize the directors and one was heard to remark sarcastically that now that the fair was over some fine weather would happen along.

Nevertheless the men in charge are thankful for small mercies and are pleased that their arduous labours of the past few months have borne good fruit. The president this morning stated to the Examiner that regardless of the unhappy weather of Saturday he was satisfied that there would be no danger of the expenditures exceeding the receipts. He was certain that if Saturday had been fine the surplus would have been in the neighbourhood of $1,000 as hundreds of farmers flocked to the city to attend and he knew there were many who didn't come who would have been there.

The directors will see that every person winning prizes at the exhibition will be paid in full and that none will be discounted.

THE LAST DAY

The final day of the Fair was the Jonah. The gatekeepers stood at their posts in the rain for several hours in the morning, but finally moved away and opened the doors to all who braved the elements. Not more than a score outside the officials, entered in the morning, but during the afternoon some 500 or more went down.

The conclusion of the judging of the horses took place after 1 o'clock regardless of the weeping clouds, but the attractions before the grand stand and the speeding in the ring events were cancelled. The 57th Regiment Band went down to the grounds, but were not needed, as nobody came to listen to the music.

To Poultrymen

The president requests that the poultry exhibitors, who have the drinking tins belonging to the association in their possession, to kindly return them to the office of Storey & Leary, Water street.

The superintendency of the grounds this year was performed satisfactorily by Mr. J. J. Bennett, who understands every detail in staking out the various spaces for special exhibits, and the other work coming under his jurisdiction.

The directors intend holding a meeting this week, when the business will be wound up.

All the directors who had members of the meeting, and the association will then be in a position to determine just how the financial situation is.

The president was very much pleased at the attendance of the merchants and the citizens of Peterborough, at the exhibition on Friday, and attributed the good financial outcome to their presence.

Board Of Works Has A Problem On Its Hands

Question of Sewer Accomodation For People on Park Street Causing Trouble to the Aldermen

TWO COURSES ARE OPEN

The Board of Works has a big problem on its hands just now in the matter of sewer accommodation for the people on Parnell street, and the committee will have to take up the question at once. The problem that has to be decided is whether a sewer should be built emptying into the Romaine street sewer, or whether the sewer should not be built until a trunk sewer has been constructed on Park street. The latter will have to be built sooner or later, but it may be ten years before it is done, and if it is decided to wait, the people living on Parnell street will have to do without a sewer.

That they need accommodation in this respect is granted, as their cellars are full of water after every rain.

To have the sewer empty into the Romaine street branch would mean that a part of the Park street sewer would be duplicated in the event of the trunk sewer being constructed there.

Mr. McDougall, the expert who prepared the plans for the local system, estimated that it would be sufficient to meet the needs of the city until the population was at least 30,000.

The Board may take up the matter at a meeting to be held this week.

RAIN WILL DO GOOD: COUNTY CLERK ELLIOTT GIVES OPINION

"The rain of the last few days, while it proved disastrous to the Peterborough Fair, has been a great boon to the country." This was the opinion expressed this morning by County Clerk Elliott, and there is no one in a better position to speak with authority than Mr. Elliott. Yesterday he took a drive through Smith and evidences of the need of rain were not lacking. Ploughing during the dry fall has been very difficult, and in fact in some places it has been almost impossible. The rain of the last few days, however, will remedy this, and it will also fill up the streams, which were becoming low.

UNIVERSITY OPENINGS TAKE MANY YOUNG PEOPLE FROM CITY

This week the universities are re-opening for their winter terms and this fact is responsible for the temporary removal from the city of a number of young persons who are either entering college or resuming their studies in the different educational institutions in the province. Queen's University, Kingston, seems to be gaining inpopularity so far as Peterborough students are concerned, for the number going there from this city this term is larger possibly than ever before. Among the young Peterborough students who will leave to-day or to-morrow for that institution are :—Miss Helen Dance, Miss Mattie Robertson, Miss Hazel Sanderson, Miss Edith Hunter and Messrs. Edward and Arthur Wood and Garnet Greer, of this city, and Miss Jean Campbell and Mr. Percy Skinner, of Keene. Mr. Gordon Manning has also left for Toronto, to resume his studies in Victoria University, and Mr. Ross Dobbin went to the city to enter on his studies at the School of Practical Science.

TWENTY CENT JUMP IN THE PRICE OF COAL FOR TO-MORROW

Another rise in the price of coal, is said to be due to-morrow, and this time, if the prophecies are fulfilled, it will be a twenty cent "touch."

In the past the price has been going up at the rate of ten cents each month per ton, but to-morrow, when the season for coal is at hand, it will be twenty cents higher. At least this is the unofficial statement made to-day by a man associated with the business.

There are several causes contributing to this result, one of them being the scarcity of coal at the mines, and the belief that before long it will be harder still to procure the fuel. In general, with the increased cost of labour, etc., the price of coal was bound to be increased, according to the opinion of the coal men and, in this case, their opinion goes, and the consumer pays the price.

MANY STRANGERS AT THE TEA

First Social Gathering at the Y.M.C.A. Under Auspices of Strangers' Fellowship Club Held Yesterday

The first stranger's tea for the season at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday evening was well attended and very enjoyable to those who were present. Mr. Harding was in the chair and commented on the fact that the general secretary, who had been instrumental in organizing the club and the work of promoting it, would be leaving the city soon. All the strangers present testified to the helpful hand the Association had given to them.

EVERY TEACHER AT THE RALLY

Pleasing Feature at Special Session of George Street Sunday School

Rev. H. J. Keith, pastor of Knox Church, will give an address tonight at the meeting of the Epworth League of the George Street Methodist Church on "Mission Work in India." The Class Leaders' Association of the city will meet tomorrow night, and on Wednesday night, following the prayer meeting, the Trustee Board will meet. To-morrow afternoon the Ladies' Aid Society will meet, and on Thursday afternoon Mrs. Morrow's Woman's Class will meet. The Rally Day services in connection with the Sunday School, held yesterday afternoon, were well attended, a significant feature being the fact that every teacher in the school was present, except the pastor, who was attending a funeral. An address was given by Mr. G. H. Williamson, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., which was in the nature of a farewell, and a solo was rendered by Miss Reesor. Choruses were also given by boys and girls.

THE INQUEST AT WESTWOOD

On the Death of Kelly, or Anderson Resumed This Afternoon

The inquest on the death of Henry Kelly or Anderson, the man whose dead body was found on the G. T. R. [illegible] days ago, is being resumed this afternoon at Westwood. The principal witnesses will be the members of the train crew, who arrived in the city this morning from Lindsay, to attend the inquest.

MR. ARMITAGE'S WORK SUCCESSFUL

Gratifying Results Reported at Recent Harvest Festival Held in Picton

At the recent Harvest Festival of St. Mark Magdalene's Church, Picton, of which Rev. W. L. Armitage, formerly rector of All Saints' Church, here, is vicar, a gratifying state of affairs was revealed. (The Picton Times, referring to the evidences of the successful work performed by Rev. Mr. Armitage, says:—

A collection of $476.00 was nearly $100 more than required to put the church financially out of debt. This represents an enthusiastic congregational effort extending more particularly over the past three years, during which time, since Rev. W. L. Armitage, as Vicar, has been in charge of the parish, the sum of $3,500.00 has been raised. Efforts will now be directed towards the building of a new and thoroughly modern Anglican church in the centre of Picton.

PRESIDENT THANKS THE CITIZENS

Their Presence at the Fair Friday Saves Financial Situation

Editor of Examiner,—

Dear Sir, — Allow me space in your columns to express my sincere thanks to the merchants and citizens of Peterborough for their attendance at the exhibition on Friday. I was greatly pleased to see so many of them present, and I have no hesitation in saying that without their assistance we would not have been able to meet our expenses. There were many from the country there on Friday, but I know that the greater number of them delayed coming until Saturday, and as unfortunately were greeted with bad weather on that day, we did not have the full measure of their financial assistance.

Therefore, the attendance at the Fair by so many of the citizens of Peterborough on Friday was directly responsible for the gratifying conclusion of the second day.

Yours, etc.,
R. H. LEARY,
President Peterborough Industrial.

WOMAN TELLS TROUBLES TO MAGISTRATE

Says Her Windows are Broken by The Kicks of a Neighbour

Mrs. Guerin, from Guerin, near Indian River, called on Magistrate Edmisch this morning, with a tale of woe to tell about the way her residence has been treated by a neighbour. The latter, she told the Magistrate, had kicked the panes of glass from her windows, and had broken the flooring of the well.

Stories of other destruction were also related, but before leaving, the woman half forgave her alleged wronger and decided to give him one more chance, before bringing the matter to court. She expects remuneration for her losses, and will be contented with this.

OBITUARY.

MRS. THOMAS O'BRIEN

The death occurred at Geneseo, N. Y., on Saturday morning, of Mrs. Thomas O'Brien, at the age of 70 years. The deceased, whose maiden name was Julia Milaha, was born in Ireland, but emigrated at an early age with her parents, who settled in Keene, Ont. Later she removed to Geneseo, N.Y., where she has since resided. Besides her husband, three sons and four daughters, she leaves to mourn her loss, four brothers in the United States, and a sister, Mrs. J. Soucie, of Perry street, city. Mrs. Soucie left yesterday to attend the funeral, which took place to-day at 10 o'clock, to the Roman Catholic cemetery at Geneseo.

Music and Drama

THE PRICE OF SILENCE

The Summers Stock Company concluded its engagement in Peterborough on Saturday night with the stirring melodrama, "The Price of Silence," in which a wife allows herself to be suspected of a murder because she believes her husband guilty of the crime. The plot was an unusual one, full of strong climaxes and heart interest, and was cleverly interpreted by the company. Miss Belle Stevenson was admirably cast as Ethel Douglas, the self-sacrificing wife. Mr. Summers played the part of a country boy in his inimitable fashion, providing abundant comedy.

At the matinee on Saturday, the old favourite play "HazelKirk" was presented to a large audience.

GUY BROS. MINSTRELS

The Buffalo, N. Y., Courier says: Guy Bros.' Minstrels gave a fine performance at the Opera House last evening and pleased a large audience. The company is a large one, their show is clean, bright and up-to-date. The first part appeared differently from the usual run of minstrels, which have heavy, ponderous settings.

In the Guy Bros. the scene represents the hunters after a chase. The scene effects are a revelation, you see the clouds passing, the sun, the moon, rise and go down, the water rippling over the rocks, something never seen in any other minstrel company, making a grand sight to behold. The usual number of good jokes, and excellent singing by cultivated voices were appreciated. The Guy Bros. gave a very pleasing performance. They appear at the Grand Opera House Thursday, October 3.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Caryle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

THE GENERAL MANAGER RESIGNS

Mr. Joseph G. Taylor is Leaving The Canadian Cordage Company's Employ

Mr. Joseph G. Taylor, who since January 1st, last, has been general manager of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company's plant, here, has tendered his resignation to the directors and at a meeting held on Saturday it was accepted. Mr. Taylor, during his residence in Peterborough has made a great many friends who will regret his departure, which will be followed by their best wishes for his future success. He is a practical man, and was for many years secretary-treasurer of the Standard Rope and Twine Company, of New York.

MR. WILLIAMSON ON ADVERTISING

Local General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. Gives Address at Convention on Advertising Plans

GROWTH OF THE WORK

The last issue of "Ideal Men" the official organ of the Ontario and Quebec Y.M.C.A. Committee contains a report of the recent convention of Association officers held at Orillia, where Mr. G H Williamson, secretary of the Peterborough Association, gave an address on "Advertising Plans." Mr. Williamson is one of the comparatively few men at the head of religious organizations who appreciate the importance of the co-operation of the newspapers in the work in which they are engaged. In connection with this convention some interesting figures concerning the growth of the Associations in America are given.

The number of Associations in North America has increased to 1,887, and the membership to 434,135, a net gain of 28,346, with the reports of 311 branches yet to be added. The active membership has made a gain of 12,549, and is 175,019, and there are committees.....The property owned increased from $34,132,245 to $39,183,750, besides building funds of $4,305,490 paid in and $7,189,320 more pledged. In addition to this sum the endowments, special funds, and equipment amount to $6,327,083. This makes a total for buildings owned, money in hand with funds and endowments of $49,700,038.....The Association's current expenses total $6,396,124, and the State Provincial International Supervisory expenses $526,445. The Foreign Budget has grown to $158,160.....The list of employed officers has grown to 2,400..... The educational class enrollment has risen from 36,826 to 42,170 men and boys, who paid tuition fees of $267,468, a gain of more than 23 per cent. .....For direct religious work there was spent $203,407, an increase of $37,025, and the students in Bible classes number 92,527.....Seven hundred Associations report 181,469 in physical work, a gain of 31,490, and the athletic teams have 34,934 members.....Situations secured by the Employment Departments number 24,-946, a gain of 5,611. Now 161 Associations have dormitories, in which the occupants have increased from 6,674 to 12,083.....The 231 Railway Departments rolled up this big figure, membership 87,860. There were 13,131 visits made to sick and injured, and the temporary hospitals and first aid were used 5,446 times.....Twenty-eight Army and eight Navy branches are in operation.

CAPABLE CONDUCTORS IN THIS CITY

Correspondent Thinks Peterborough Can Produce One Qualified to Take Charge of Musical Union

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir: When I read your article in Wednesday's paper re the projected musical union for Peterborough, it kindled pleasant anticipations. No one who is really musically inclined can doubt the benefit it would be to the city and its inhabitants. It would be the finest possible thing for rising musicians and an elevating influence for the general public. But on reading the article to the end I was considerably surprised to read your suggestion, that the "loyalty" (?) of the various choirs to their individual conductors would prevent the selection of a local man to conduct the union. If this feeling is the one actuating the choir members of the city, then the project is doomed from the commencement. It is a slight on the various choir leaders of Peterborough to suggest that not one is capable of such a position. I am not a member of any choir, but from what I have seen and heard I am confident that one could be chosen, in every sense capable, if the various choir members would drop their petty jealousies and pledge their support to the one chosen by the majority, for the sake of music, and not personal fancies. The idea of going to Toronto for a conductor is ridiculous. The city possesses talent in plenty to provide conductor, chorus and orchestra for a most successful musical union, and if "Staccato's" letter is a means of opening up a discussion of the project it may lead to a removal of all minor jealousies and misunderstandings, and a good society be the result. Let us hope so, for Peterborough needs one.

Yours sincerely,

"LEGATO."

In regard to Legato's reference to the article which appeared in the Examiner, it may be explained that no doubt whatever was thrown upon the musical ability of any of the choir leaders. It was suggested that the real difficulty would be in reconciling local jealousies to an extent that would insure the harmonious co-operation of all the musical elements —conductor and conducted—without which there was scant promise of the establishment of a successful vocal society. We have the musical talent; we have capable conductors. But have we the indispensable requisite — a disposition to select a leader among our local musical experts who could lead—not in a musical sense—but in the way of commanding the united co-operation of all our many local singers and musicians?

Y.M.C.A's Extensive Plans

The Coming Winter

Prospectus Issued Gives Summary Of the Work to be Carried on During This Season

ALL DEPARTMENTS BUSY

Under a new secretary (not yet chosen) and a new physical director the work of the Y.M.C.A. in this city for the coming year has been planned, and a prospectus just issued gives a general summary of the different departments of the work to be carried on during the coming year. Five branches are referred to—Spiritual, Educational, Physical, Social and Boys. Referring to the programme as mapped out, the prospectus says:—

SPIRITUAL

The question is often asked, "What is a spiritual man?" Rev. Elmore Harris, D.D., says: "A spiritual man is one who is controlled by the Spirit of God in all the relationships of life." The aim of this work is to bring such into all men's lives.

Evangelistic

The Evangelistic Band meets every [illegible] at 7.30. It is the heart of the activities of this department.

The evangelistic meeting for men and older boys on Sunday at 4 o'clock continues to be a strong force in the lives of those who attend it. A special series of addresses by local pastors begins with October 6. Special music by a male choir.

Bible Classes

Saturday Bible Club—Saturday at 8 p.m., led by the General Secretary; studies in the "Story of Jesus."

Gymnasium Men's Bible Club—5.45 p.m. on Tuesday evenings.

Young Men's Training Class — Studying the Sabbath school lessons, Sundays at 10 a.m.

Social Bible Club (Intermediate)—Tuesday, 8 p.m.

Four Boys' Bible Classes—Sundays, 10 a.m. Every member should be in some class. Send your name in.

Educational

The Association has always provided many features for the development of the mind of the man.

The Reading Room

This is well supplied with the best current magazines and papers of the day, embracing a number on technical subjects. The new lights make this room a very attractive and popular place.

The Debating Club

Plans are being arranged to make this popular club's programme better than ever. It should have a large membership for it includes so many helpful educational features. Organization meeting early in October.

The Evening Classes

The following subjects will be taught—24 lessons in each course. A tuition fee of $3 for each subject. Classes begin October 8:

Mechanical Drawing—Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7.30.

Architectural Drawing — Monday and Wednesday evenings (both classes in charge of a college graduate).

Electricity—Friday evenings; Instructor, Mr. W. H. Collier, Manager Pre-Payment Metre Company.

Mechanical Arithmetic and Geometrical Drawing — Friday evenings; Instructor, Mr. E. C. Srigley.

Employed Boys' Courses — Friday evenings — Arithmetic, Spelling and Writing.

Enroll now at the office of the Association.

PHYSICAL

The Gymnasium Classes

The aim of the classes is to combine exercise and recreation. There are classes for all ages, from the active school boy to the strenuous business and professional man.

The Instructor

Mr. C H James, late of India, with eleven years' experience as instructor in schools and military gymnasiums, will have charge of the work. He was also an instructor in the Sandow School and holds a certificate as a Military Physical Director.

The Classes

The following is the class schedule—all the classes opening during the week beginning Sept. 30th:—

Senior Young Men—Tuesdays and Fridays, 8 p.m.

Business and Professional Men — Mondays and Thursdays, 5 p.m.

Intermediate—Mondays and Thursdays, 8 p.m.

Senior School Boys — Wednesdays, 4.15 p.m.; Saturdays, 10.30 a.m.

Junior School Boys—Tuesdays, 4.15 p.m.; Saturdays, 9.15 a.m.

Fencing

Mr. James is an expert in teaching Fencing, and a class will be organized.

Basket Ball and Games

Basketball and other recreative games will have a large place in the programme this season.

The Baths

These include Showers, Tub, Needle and Plunge. Abundance of hot and cold water always.

SOCIAL

The live Social Committee will introduce many new plans this season to make the building a greater social centre. Every member is asked to co-operate.

"If you would have friends, you must be a friend."

Reception

A series of social events will be held at stated times, of which due announcement will be given.

Music and Social Games

These helpful social agencies will be extended.

Dormitory Department

The building has 14 well furnished bed rooms. Young men looking for rooms will be accommodated at most reasonable rates as vacancies occur.

The rates are lower than any association in the country providing the same privileges. There should be 1,000 members in this city. Any self-respecting man may join, regardless of nationality or creed.

Full Membership — Including all privileges is $6.00. $1.00 additional for a locker if one is desired.

Limited—$4.00, included all privileges except the gymnasium.

Intermediate—And School Boys, $3.00. Special privileges for all over 12 and under 17 years.

BOYS

The Y.M.C.A. plans always have a large place for boys between the age of 12 and 17. All boys employed during the hours of the day, and not attending school are allowed Intermediate privileges. The fees are $3.00 a year for each.

The Boy's Rooms

While the boys' rooms are not what we would like them—yet they will be equipped with games, reading matter, etc., where boys can profitably spend leisure hours. The boys department also has a library.

The Physical Work

The boys' classes have always been the best side of the physical work. The new Physical Director will have a personal interest in each boy The classes will be enjoyed by all.

Swimming

The plunge will be kept at an even temperature, and those who do not know how will be taught swimming.

The Bible Classes

Four groups under capable leaders will meet on Sundays at 10 a.m. "The Comrades in Christian Warfare," will be an organization of older boys.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, more watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

A window that is attracting considerable attention to the passersby is The Tate Optical Company's display, 412½ George Street. A neatly printed card displayed in the centre tells the story.

The display of over 35,000, (thirty-five thousand) records of Spectacles and Eye Glasses made by their firm for their patients during the last few years is something unique and not often seen and goes to show to some extent the volume of business done by this firm. Coupled with that Mr. Babcock says that during the month of August (this year) the amount of business done was greater than any previous month since the firm has been established.

Toronto Man Killed By Revolver

Macedonian Tradesman Mysteriously Shot in Toronto.

SUSPICION OF FOUL PLAY

Dead Man's Brother Says It Was Accident—But Police Think Otherwise—Weapon Was Hidden Under Mattress—Alleged Quarrelling Is Denied — Doctor's Statement Doubts Accident Theory.

Toronto, Sept. 30.—Michael Turpenoff, a Macedonian shopkeeper living at 21 Eastern avenue, was shot and killed in a room above his shop yesterday morning.

The explanation of the shooting, as given by his brother, Leo, and two boys, who were in the room at the time, does not satisfy the police, and has only possibility to favor its truth.

The brother says that Turpenoff had an argument in his room with the brother and two boys employed in the grocery. Turpenoff threw open his coat, and the revolver, dropping from his right breast pocket, fell to the floor. As Turpenoff stooped to recover it, it exploded.

The bullet entered the right arm on the outside slightly above the wrist joint, passing upward diagonally through the forearm. It came out on the inner side of the arm, just below the elbow, then penetrated the coat, vest and two shirts, entered the right breast slightly above the nipple and came out almost directly opposite at the back but did not penetrate shirt, coat or vest at the back.

The pistol is hammerless, and the only explanation which bears out the brother's story is that the thumb or fingers of the hand stretched out to regain the pistol upended it so that the barrel pointed against his wrist and a further pressure of the hand pressed the trigger.

Another theory is that the dynamite said to be in these cartridges exploded with the concussion when the gun fell, and that the dead man, having reached over to catch the gun as it dropped, received the wound.

Dr. Glendinning, in addition to his telephone call, was summoned by a Scotchman who is engaged in missionary work in the vicinity. This man and another son of J. K. Lee, the druggist, told him that a Macedonian had fainted in the street. It was not until the doctor had examined the man, who died as he entered the room, that he discovered he had been shot. Trupenoff was lying across the bed with his head to the wall. Dr. Glendinning moved him lengthwise in the bed and bound the hole in the right breast. The man was not bleeding from the wound and the doctor made no further examination of the body, giving him only an injection of strychnine.

The room was filled with Macedonians. Only one of these could speak English. Of this man the doctor enquired: "Were they quarrelling?" And he, coming close to the doctor, whispered "Yes." In replying to all other questions put to him he consulted with those in the room before answering.

The pistol with which the man is supposed to have been shot was mysteriously hidden when Dr. Glendinning arrived. He asked where the pistol was. After asking the brother of the dead man the reply came "in the bed."

Found Under Mattress.

The Macedonian looked between the mattress and springs from the outside. Finding nothing, he turned up the mattress from the bottom uncovering an old revolver, 32 calibre. The doctor examined it. The spring of the trigger was broken, and the gun had evidently not been used for some time. The men then turned the mattress from the far side of the bed, which was placed close against the wall and found another revolver resting on the springs about the centre of the bed. Dr. Glendinning took possession of the pistol, which was fouled at the muzzle, apparently from recent discharge. Dr. Glendinning says that the pistol could not have been placed where it was found by the man before he died, nor indeed would the man have been capable of any intelligent movement after he was shot.

ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY.

Hintonburg Girl Finds She Was Cruelly Deceived.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—Charles Gagne, who had a wife and children in Ottawa, surreptitiously courted and won the approval of Irene Schau of Hintonburg.

The pair elopsed to Montreal and married there a few days ago. The man called himself Russell.

The girl's brother-in-law, hearing of the other wife, who is now at Arnprior, went to Montreal, quietly spotted their lodging and called in a detective, who placed the bigamist under arrest.

Gagne owned up to his deed.

Miss Schau did not know he was married prior to the ceremony with herself. She has returned home heartbroken.

Italian Vengeance.

Kingston, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Giosoona Morana, an Italian, was indicted on Saturday by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. He was convicted of a crime in Westchester County several years ago upon testimony offered by Louigi Pica, and upon his release from prison early this year began searching for him. While in New York City he killed another Italian and fled to Ulster County, where in June he discovered Pica. After finishing a card game, Morana walked behind Pica, drew back his head and cut his throat. Emotional insanity will be his defence.

Disastrous Train Wreck In Ohio

Operator's Negligence Causes Death of Eight Passengers.

SWITCH WAS NOT TURNED

Twenty-One Badly Injured—Four Will Die—Express Dashed Into Freight Train on Siding — Impact Was Terrific—Speeding to Make Up Lost Time—Occupants of the Smoking-Car Suffered Most.

Wheeling, W. Va., Sept. 30.—Eight men were killed, four fatally injured and seventeen more or less seriously hurt late Saturday evening, when the Chicago & Wheeling express train No. 14, on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, was wrecked in the yards at Bellaire, O., a few miles below this city.

There are no Canadians among the dead.

Operator Responsible.

The wreck was due, it is said, to the failure of an operator to throw a switch. The westbound freight had received orders to meet the passenger at the western limits of the Bellaire yard, and was moving slowly along the siding. At the point where the wreck occurred, there is a very sharp curve, which prevents the engineers of eastbound trains from seeing more than a few feet ahead. The passenger train swung around the curve very rapidly, being three hours late, and should have gone on in safety on the main line. The switch to the siding, however, had not been turned, and the train shot on to the siding and into the freight. There was scarcely time to apply the brakes and no time for the engine men to jump.

Engines Reduced to Junk.

The two big engines were reduced to junk by the impact, but the worst damage was done to the smoker, which was telescoped so completely by the baggage car that every seat was thrown out of the coach. Every occupant of the smoker was badly injured. The passengers in the other day coaches and two Pullmans were thrown from their seats, but not seriously injured.

Engineer Galbraith was burned to a crisp. The injured were taken to the Glendale, W. Va., and Bellaire hospitals.

General Manager Fitzgerald, who was in the neighborhood on an inspection tour, and General Superintendent W. C. Loree of Wheeling personally superintended the rescue work. Great difficulty was experienced in removing the injured passengers from the wrecked smoker. Work was slow because every movement of the debris caused someone to shriek with pain, the victims being entangled in a mass of timbers and twisted iron.

Theatrical Company's Experience.

Among the passengers on the wrecked train were the members of Richard Carlos Spring Chicken Opera Co., which was to have played at Wheeling yesterday. All the members of the company escaped serious injury, except Alfred Belby, the musical director. It was found necessary to amputate his right arm, thus ending his career in the profession. He was riding in the smoker and was found with a heavy timber tightly binding him by the arms.

Engineer's Terrible Ordeal.

Engineer H. A. Lipscomb of the passenger train was caught beneath his engine, and it was found impossible to remove the broken iron from his body on account of the way in which one of his legs was entangled. Escaping steam across his face made it impossible to administer anaesthetics, and as a result physicians amputated the leg as he lay there conscious.

Despite the burning steam and the pain of the operation he bore it bravely.

EARLY MORNING BLAZE.

$30,000 Damage Caused by Defective Electric Wire.

Toronto, Sept. 30.—Defective electric wires are blamed for a $30,000 blaze, which broke out in the Carter-Crume Co.'s premises in the four-storey brick building at 447 West King street, on Saturday morning.

Type-setting machines, presses, type and paper were severely damaged, the loss being heaviest on machinery.

The western sections of the fire department, under Deputy Chief Noble, had a hard time of it for a while, owing to the dense smoke.

The fire apparently started in the southeast corner of the flat and, swept by a southeast wind, soon played havoc with the interior. The loss to the stock is fully covered by insurance.

Sixteen men and as many women were thrown out of work, and it will be a week or more before the company is able to resume operations.

London's New Lord Mayor.

London, Sept. 30.—Sir John Charles Bell, alderman of the City of London and head of a big brewery company, who has held a number of important offices in connection with the municipality, was on Saturday elected Lord Mayor of London, to succeed Sir William Treloar, Bart.

The election took place with all the customary ancient ceremonies in the Guildhall at noon. The new lord mayor will be installed in office November 9.

Britain's War Dogs Are Active

Plans For Extensive Manoeuvres of Three Principal Fleets.

NINE ADMIRALS TAKE PART

Beresford In Supreme Command—Forty-Nine Ships and Many Destroyers Will Be Engaged — Foreign Attaches Barred — Only Japan Will Send Representatives—Program Is Kept Secret.

London, Sept. 30.—Under the supreme command of Lord Charles Beresford, the combined home, Atlantic and Channel fleets will leave Portland about Oct. 14 for the autumn manoeuvres, which are being conducted in the North Sea this year, and will be somewhat similar to those held in the spring off the coast of Portugal. The greatest interest is being taken in this gathering of England's first line of defence, for while the usual fleet manoeuvres and exercises will be carried out, the main object, it is believed, is strategical, to teach the officers what the Admiralty would expect of them in case of war with Germany. The program is being kept a strict secret and journalists will not be invited to accompany the ships.

Lord Charles Beresford will be accompanied by no less than nine admirals, and the big ships of his fleet will include 25 battleships, 14 armored cruisers and 10 protected cruisers, with a fleet of smaller vessels, including torpedo-boat destroyers numbering over 60.

The naval attaches have not been given any information, and will not be present, except the Japanese, who as Great Britain's allies have in recent years been the guests of the officer in command on occasions of the kind.

The meeting of the fleets and so many officers is also to be taken advantage of to test the suitability of Cromarty, on Moray Firth, as a place of anchorage for big ships and its eventual adoption as an auxiliary naval base to that being developed at Rosyth, on the Firth of Forth.

HOW MISTAKE WAS MADE.

Deputy Minister of Labor Credited With Saying of Owyang King.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The mystery surrounding the despatch from Vancouver containing an alleged interview with W. L. Mackenzie King on the Oriental situation, has been solved.

The gentleman who was interviewed and whose opinions were attributed to the Deputy Minister of Labor was Owyang King, a member of the Chinese legation at Washington, who is now in Vancouver in connection with the trouble in that city. Owyang was evidently gibberish to the operator who received the message, so he substituted Mackenzie.

An Editor's Troubles.

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—Fremont Older, managing editor of The Bulletin, and prominently connected with the graft prosecution, was arrested here on Saturday evening on warrants sworn to by Luther Brown, who charges Older with criminal libel.

Burned $190.

Watertown, Sept. 30.—A woman in Watertown lost $190 in bills, the collateral having been placed in a stove for "safe" keeping during the summer months when it was not in use.

The loser is a poor woman who has to earn her own living.

Midland Prince Struck Dyke.

Sault Ste. Marie, Sept. 30.—The steamer Midland Prince, upboard with coal, struck at the dyke through the parting of her steering gear. The No. 1 tank on the starboard side is full of water. Temporary repairs are being made here.

London Election Date.

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—On account of some delay in arranging for the manhood suffrage vote, the London election for the Dominion House bye-election will not take place until Oct. 29.

All three bye-elections take place on the same day.

For Life.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Frank J. Constantine, recently convicted of the murder of Mrs. Louise Gentry, on Saturday, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Joliet.

Mr. Douglas Stocker Returns From Long Trip to Mexico

Has Been Away About Two Years Through Western Canada, California and Mexico---Many Interesting Incidents Of His Journey

Mr. Douglas Stocker, brother of Mr. Water Stocker, Homewood avenue, has returned to the city after an absence of over two years. Since he left Peterborough in April 1905 he has journeyed first through the Canadian North west to Vancouver, and Seattle, then south to San Francisco and on down through the beautiful valley of California, crossing into Mexico. He proceeded south to the now modern city of the Montezumas, Mexico City and visited many other interesting places returning north after travelling many hundreds of miles. Mr. Stocker came to Canada almost three years ago, worked in the C.G.E. Works about six months at his trade, blacksmith, and then started out to see Westeern Canada and the States along the Pacific Coast. In San Francisco he remained six months and was pleased with the conditions there. The country Mr. stocker states, is fast recovering from its great devastation and many buildings are in the course of construction. A noticeable feature about the new buildings is that they are being made stronger and more fire proof.

Life in Mexico City

Mr. Stocker speaks highly of life in Mexico and especially at the capital. The natives nearly all speak Spanish, which, Mr. Stocker says, is modified from the pure mother tongue, and as he calles a "lingo." Mexico City is modern in almost every respect and is closely related in appearance to an American city, and in fact the progressive sons of Uncle Sam have made manya dvances in Mexico and are found everywhere. Most of the houses, particularly among the middle and poor class are built of adobe the bricks being 16 in. by 10 in. on the front surface and the walls are made 2 ft. 6 in. thick. Houses there are built in a leisurely manner and are one story in height. The floor is nothing more than mother earth packed hard by constant use. They have no wooden floors, no chairs and indeed the household furniture is very scanty. The ordinary Mexican is always seen with a blanket, which is really his bed, for when night comes upon him, he simply rolls up in it, wherever he may be, and peacefully resigns himself to slumber.

The Home Life

Mr. Stocker described methods he saw in use at various times in the ordinary housework. The American meat chopper had found its way among the Mexicans, but they use it for grinding corn, which, after becoming through the chopper, they put in a stone trough and grind it by hand, until it is like flour. They moisten a handful with water and work it between their hands, patting it level until it is quite thin. Then they bake the cakes in an earthenware oven and eat it with beans, having coffee as a drink. The people are also frequently seen chewing a long piece of sugar cane, and sucking the juice, which, as a people, they are exceedingly fond of.

Mr. Stocker further described a public washing place which he had seen in Mexico City. A large concrete-paved square, with a trough all around it, to which fresh water is run, and here the poorer classes gather in crowds to wash their clothing, which they do without any washboard.

Public Gambling

Gambling, in Mexico, is a national weakness and in many places in Mexico City there are building solely for that purpose, while at the street corners one finds small wheels-of-fortune for the Mexicans of slender means.

The Americans help along the sport, and the women, especially, are frequenters of the larger and more fashionable tables.

Saw a Bull Fight

From Mexico City Mr. Stocker went to Aguascalientes, about 150 miles northeast of Mexico City. Here Mr. Stocker attended a bull fight at which a large crowd of men, women and children was present. The cruelty of the Mexicans is vividly portrayed in their national sport, and on this occasion five bulls were brought forward and all of them fought with great fury against their tormentors. He also visited a large museum in that city, and had the pleasure of seeing relics and antiques that date back at least five hundred years. One of the mementoes of the past was a large, smooth rock which was used by the Aztecs and was called the sacrifice stone. On it human lives were offered to the sun and other deities, and a little groove still remains on its surface by which the blood of the victim was drained off.

Mr. Stocker related many interesting incidents, all of which cannot be given here. Mr. Stocker intends to remain in the city for a short time, and will likely return to San Francisco, with the probability that he will sail for Australia and New Zealand.

Peterborough Team Will Be Strong This Season

Rugbyists Had a Lively Practice in the Mud on Saturday—Workout Every Night This Week

A BIG SQUAD LOOKED FOR

About fifteen members of the Rugby team turned out in the mud and rain on Saturday afternoon, and had a great work out. All the players acted like good mud-horses and heavy going did not seem to bother them a bit. The team gives promise of great strength this season and will surprise a few of them before the first game is well under way. Behind the line there will likely be Evans, Crowley, Quinlan, and Colledge, while for wing positions and the scrimmage there will be a large number of candidates, including Hurtubuise, O'Connor, Dickson, Crough, Gilbert, Dillon, Clarke, Fitzgerald, Meagher and other good ones.

The team will practice all this week, and every man should be on hand to-night at 7.30 o'clock, as with a game on Saturday the locals have little time to get into shape before the season opens. Manager Crowley expects a full turn out every evening this week at the Riverside Park.

David Hartley Wants Credit From Peterborough

For a Purse He Will Undertake to Break the Record For Long-Distance Walking

HE CAN BEAT REYNOLDS

David Hartley is willing to walk the 138 miles, the distance between Port Hope and Toronto and return, against time. He is willing, too, to demonstrate that he can do the distance in 34 hours, four hours less time than that attempted by Jimmy Reynolds last June, and an hour better than Reynolds is said to be willing to bet he can do it at the present time.

If a respectable purse is gotten up Hartley will undertake the task of walking the 138 miles, and further agrees that if he does not succeed he will not ask for any of the money. When he says a respectable purse he means, say $100, enough to pay him for the time occupied in training, and a little something in addition. He contends that it will be worth that much to the city to have a resident break the record for long distance walking. He is confident that he is able to do the distance in the time specified his past performances giving him this confidence. He is over 50 years of age, but claims that he is in as good condition today as he was 25 years ago, his vitality has been preserved and he is in perfect health.

If the purse referred to is raised Mr. Hartley will undertake the walk with a week's notice. His proposal is to walk half the 138 miles away from Peterborough, and finish here.

SAYS HARTLEY WILL FAIL TOO

Newcastle Independent Thinks Walk of 138 Miles Too Much For Anyone Except a "Professional"

The Newcastle Independent professes to believe that the task undertaken by Jimmy Reynolds and Scattergood cannot be accomplished by anyone except "a professional." Commenting on Scattergood's failure, the Independent says: But just like Jimmy Reynolds, Scattergood can do it all right and is going to show us that he can do what he can't do inside of a short month, but before he makes the attempt some other fellow, perhaps Hartley of Peterborough, should convince us still further that this trip cannot be made under ordinary circumstances by himself, Scattergood nor Reynolds, nor any other pedestrian except a professional.

Rev. Dr. O'Brien left this morning for Hamilton, where he will spend a few days.

TEN PIN BOWLERS TO MEET

Schedule Will be Drawn up at Majestic Alleys To-Morrow Night

A meeting of the ten pin bowlers of the city is called for to-morrow night, when the schedule for the season will be drawn up and other important business transacted. The meeting will be held at the Majestic Bowling Alleys, Water street, and all those who are intending to take part in the league this season are asked to be on hand, as it is highly important that the matter should be arranged at once.

BLACK CLOUD TO RUN IN MILLBROOK

Is Entered in Speeding Events There on Friday

Bert McCollum will go to Millbrook on Friday to drive "Black Cloud" in the 2.40 class in the speeding events at the Millbrook Fair. She will again be up against Billy C., the horse owned by W. Leith of Millbrook, who although only third in each heat here, is fast, and is billed by many to win in his native town. Black Cloud will also be entered in the 2.40 class at the Norwood fair. She took three seconds on Friday, and at Millbrook will make an attempt to beat City Queen, of Port Hope, who won here.

PETERBOROUGH BOYS WIN AT PORT HOPE

Gordon Campbell and Jack Dennistoun Successful in Sports

At the annual field day of sports of the Trinity College School, Port Hope, on Saturday, two Peterborough boys, Gordon Campbell, son of Mr. Peter Campbell, and Jack Dennistoun, were decidedly prominent, carrying off a large proportion of the prizes. Gordon Campbell was first in the 220 yards open for the R. S. Cassells Challenge Cup, in the quarter-mile open, in the senior obstacle race, and in the half-mile open for the Ewart Osborne Challenge Cup. He was second in the 100 yards open and in the three-legged race, while he was one of the three who won the relay race. Five firsts and two seconds is a record of which anyone should be proud. Jack Dennistoun won the 220 yards and plate race for juniors, and was second in the Little Side Landicap.

RUGBY

The Executive of the Peterborough Rugby Club will meet to-night at 8.30 o'clock in the Examiner office, when some important business is to come up. Every member of the Executive is expected to be on hand.

It is likely that word will be received this afternoon from Toronto in reference to Saturday's game, and the Executive hopes to be able to complete arrangements to-night.

The rugby enthusiasts in the city are reminded that the draw for the pair of trousers donated by Mr. Ed. Hunt takes place to-morrow night, so that those who have not secured tickets for the competition have little time left in which to do so. The tickets are still on sale at 25 cents, and by buying one you have a chance of winning an $8 pair of trousers, and at any rate are aiding the club, which just at present stands in need of all the assistance it can get.

There are a number of season tickets yet to be sold, and the public is urged to help the club along by buying one of these. The tickets sell at $1 each, and admit one to all the games of the club during the season.

BOARD OF TRADE TO TALK ABOUT ASSESSMENT

Meeting Called for Tuesday of Next Week—Public May Attend

There will be a meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening, Oct., 8th, at which the present mode of assessment will be dealt with. It is understood that the Board will invite the general public in order to obtain a consensus of opinion on the question which at present is a live one.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR OF Y.M.C.A. LEAVES

Mr. F. E. Dingman Goes to Berlin To-morrow and Later to Owen Sound

To-morrow Mr. F. E Dingman leaves the city for his home in Berlin and ultimately for the Y.M.C.A. in Owen Sound, where he has accepted the position of physical director. He will visit at home about ten days and on Oct. 10th he reports for duty in Owen Sound.

There are many friends of Mr. Dingman in Peterborough who regret to see his departure from the city and who wish him continued success at Owen Sound.

Mr. C. James, the recent appointment, to succeed Mr. Dingman, assumes his duties this evening.

THE CASE AGAINST MEEHAN LEFT OVER

Complainant Not Present at Court This Afternoon When Called

Owing to the absence of Mary Payne the complainant, at the High Court this afternoon, the charge against Herbert Meehan was left over until the next assizes. Meehan was bound over to appear at the Spring Assizes when the case will be proceeded with.

One Criminal Case on The Docket at Autumn Assizes

Opens This Afternoon Before The Honourable Mr. Justice Magee —Moore Against C.G.E. Before a Jury

JUDGE'S CHARGE TO JURY

The autumn Assizes of the High Court of Justice for the County of Peterborough opened this afternoon at 1 o'clock before the Honourable Mr. Justice Magee. The docket this year was light, there being only one civil case to be tried by jury, one without a jury and a case of criminal assault with a jury.

The members of the bar present were Messrs. D. O'Connell, H. F. McWilliams, G. N. Gordon, A. O. Langley (Lakefield), F. D. Kerr, E. L. Goodwill, N. F. Patterson (Owen Sound), Crown Prosecutor.

The grand jury was first empanelled with Mr. W. H. Meldrum as foreman, and in his address to the grand jury, His Honour Mr. Justice Magee stated that it was a matter of congratulations for such a large county as the county of Peterborough that there was so little on the docket of a criminal nature, and explained that most of the smaller cases of this character were now dealt with in Police Court or in the County Courts. The more serious offences, however, still came before a jury, and to-day there was one, and a very serious one, indeed, to be tried. He then referred to the allegations made by Mary Payne against a young man named Meehan, which have before this year been aired in the city Police Court.

He noticed from the sheriff's calendar that there were nine prisoners in the county jail, but that out of these, all but two were there for vagrancy. This, he considered, was a comparatively large number of persons to be in jail for such an offence, and he requested the jury to make thorough inquiries as to their conditions and to their capability for working. He also requested them, as usual, to inspect the city's public institutions, and also to bring in either a true or no bill in connection with the criminal case.

The first case to be considered this afternoon was that of Moore versus the Canadian General Electric Company. The former, it will be remembered, a short time ago caused a writ to be issued for $2,000 against the company for injuries he claimed to have received while working in the new transformer building, erected by the Dominion Construction and Engineering Company of Montreal. The plaintiff stated that the cause of the accident was the falling of a scantling upon his left foot, inflicting severe injuries. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appears for the plaintiff, and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the defendant.

The non-jury case is that of E. O. McCrohan against Jas. Kelly in connection with the license of the Royal Hotel.

At St. Peter's cathedral, this morning, the wedding was quietly solemnized of Mr. P. J. O'Brien, formerly of Toronto, and now of Cleveland, O., to Miss Sylvia Morgan, sister of Mrs. John Duigan, 209 Dalhousie street. Rev. Dr. O'Brien performed the ceremony in the presence of a few friends. During the ceremony Miss Pearl Morgan sang a solo in splendid voice. Mr. W. J. O'Brien was best man, and Miss Mary O'Brien of Toronto, the groom's sister, acted as bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brein will reside in Cleveland.

BROUSSEAU-HOBSON

A quiet but pretty September wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning when Mr. George Brousseau, the well-known local barber, was united in marriage to Mrs. Mary Anne Hobson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father O'Leary in the presence of a few intimate friends. Miss Nora Cronin was bridesmaid, while the groom was assisted by Mr. P. J. Fitzsimmons. The bride was attired in a charming gown of lavender silk.

At the conclusion of the ceremony a delightful wedding dejeuner was served at the residence of Mr. John Rickerby.

Mr. and Mrs. Brousseau will reside at 329 George street.

The groom's gift to the best man was a handsome pearl tie pin.

INCREASE MEMBERSHIP OF THE T. A. S.

During October a Special Effort Will Be Made

Yesterday afternoon the regular meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held, and was one of the most enthusiastic in years. Twenty new members were initiated and the Social Committee was revived for the coming winter. During the month of October a special effort will be made to swell the membership, and on Sunday next the society will receive Holy Communion in a body.

HARVEST HOME AT PARK STREET CHURCH

To be Held on Sunday, October 13—The Thanksgiving Services

Sunday, October 13, is fixed for the harvest home thanksgiving services in the Park Street Baptist Church. The church will be decorated with grain, fruits, and flowers. Thank offering presents and the first installment of pledges for the new church will be taken.

A man who enjoys his social glass should take Bu-Ju.

He needs Bu-Ju if he wants to enjoy health and his favorite drink for years to come. All Alcoholic drinks irritate the Kidneys. A man, who drinks regularly, is almost sure to have cloudy urine, brick dust deposits in the urine, headaches and pains in the back. In time, if neglected, serious trouble will result.

Bu-Ju

is the finest remedy in the world for all Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Neutralizes the effect of alcohol on the Kidneys. Bu-Ju is not a cure for drinking; but Bu-Ju does protect the steady drinker against Kidney Trouble.

Bu-Ju cures Rheumatism, too.

HUNTING PARTY HAVE RETURNED

Mr. Guy Quartermaine, son of Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary of the Board of Trade, and Mr. Frell Reid of the Bell Telephone Company, have returned from a hunting expedition in Cavendish and Anstruther. While there they were the guests of the Cavendish Lumber Company, and report having had an excellent time. They secured several partridge and ducks, but their chief sport was in quest of a big black bear which was chased from its lair by the hunters. Mr. Quartermaine, who carried a rifle, had a shot at bruin standing at close range and succeeded in touching his fur. The bear was tracked for several miles through the woods, but the hunters were not able to capture him.

HOME-MADE MEDICINE

Said to Relieve Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salatone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mixed and taken in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime, is stated by a prominent physician to give most excellent results in kidney or urinary afflictions, and also in rheumatism and sciatica. The mixture opens the clogged pores of the kidneys, thus assisting them in their work of filtering all waste and poisonous matter from the blood, and expels these in the urine. To allow this poisonous matter to remain means that it will settle in the muscular tissues or joints, and cause the untold misery known as rheumatism.

The mixture is composed of harmless vegetable ingredients which can be purchased at any good drug store, and mixed at home.

Anyone suffering from any of these afflictions will no doubt be pleased to learn of so simple and highly recommended remedy.

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Lena Rivers," "The Homestead on the Hill," "Tempest and Sunshine," Etc.

"Certainly not; our cavalier never flaw the inchide of a district schoolhouth, I know."

"I am quite sure he saw one yesterday," said Mary, relating the circumstance of Mr. Knight's meeting him at the spot where Ella came so near getting a fall.

"Did he go home with you?" asked Ella, in a tone plainly indicating that a negative answer was expected.

Mary understood the drift of her sister's questioning, and promptly replied: "Yes, he went home with me, and stayed to tea."

Ella's countenance lowered, while Miss Porter exclaimed, "I declare, we may as well give up all hope, for your sister, it seems, has the first claim."

"Pshaw!" said Ella, contemptuously, while Miss Porter, again turning to Mary, asked:

"Did you learn his name? If you did you are more fortunate than we were; and he came all the way home with us, too, leading Ella's pony; and besides that, we met him in the street this morning."

"His name," returned Mary, "is Stuart, and he lives in Boston, I believe."

"Stuart—Stuart—" repeated Ella; "I never heard Lizzie Upton, or the Lincolns, mention the Stuarts; but perhaps they have recently removed to the city. Anyway, this young man is somebody, I know."

Here Miss Porter, again looking down the road, exclaimed, "There, he's coming, I do believe!"

Both girls rushed to the window, but Mr. Stuart was not there; and when they were rescated Mary very gravely remarked, that he was probably ere this in Worcester, as she saw him in the eastern train.

"Why, really," said Ela, "you seem to be well posted in his affairs. Perhaps you can tell us whose graves he wished to find. He said he had some friends buried here, and inquired for the sexton."

Mary knew nothing about it, and Ella, as if thinking aloud, continued, "It must be that he got belated, and went from the graveyard, across the fields, to the depot—but, oh horror!" she added, "there comes Lizzie Upton and the rest of the Boston girls. Mary, I guess you'll have to go, or rather, I guess you'll have to excuse me, for I must run up and dress. By the way, wouldn't you like some flowers? If you would, just go into the kitchen, and ask Bridget to show you the garden."

Mary had flowers enough at home, and so, in spite of Ella's manoeuvre, she went out at the front door, meeting "Lizzie Upton, and the rest of the Boston girls," face to face. Miss Porter, who acted the part of hostess while Ella was dressing, was quickly interrogated by Lizzie Upton, as to who the young lady was they met in the yard.

"That's Ella Campbell's sister," said Miss Porter. Then lowering her voice to a whisper, she continued, "Don't you believe, Ella isn't Mrs. Campbell's own daughter, but an adopted one!"

"I know that," answered Lizzie," "but this sister, where does she live?"

"Oh, in a kind of a heathenish, out-of-the-way place, and teaches school for a living."

"Well," returned Lizzie, "she is a much finer-looking girl than Ella."

"How can you say so?" exclaimed three or four girls in a breath, and Lizzie replied, "Perhaps she hasn't so much of what is called beauty in her face, but she has a great deal more intellect."

Here the door bell again rang; and Ella having made a hasty toilet, came tripping down the stairs in time to welcome Rose Lincoln, whom she embraced as warmly as if a little eternity, instead of three days, had elapsed since they met.

"I had perfectly despaired of your coming," said she. "Oh! how sweet you look! But where's Jenny?"

Rose's lip curled scornfully as she replied, "Why, she met Mary Howard in the store, and I couldn't drag her away."

"And who is Mary Howard?" asked Lizzie Upton.

Rose glanced at Ella, who said: "Why, she's the girl you met going out of the yard."

"Oh! yes—I know—your sister," returned Lizzie. "Isn't she to be here? I have noticed her in church, and should like to get acquainted with her. She has a fine eye and forehead."

Ella dared not tell Lizzie that Mary was neither polished nor refined, so she answered that "she could not stay this afternoon, as Mrs. Mason, the lady with whom she lived was in a hurry to go home."

Miss Porter looked up quickly from her embroidery and winked slyly at Ella in commendation of her falsehood. Jenny now came bounding in, her cheeks glowing, and her eyes sparkling like diamonds.

"I'm late, I know," said she, "but I met Mary in the store and I never know when to leave her. I tried to make her come with me, telling her that as you were her sister 'twas no matter if she weren't invited; but she said that Mrs. Mason had accepted an invitation to take tea with Mrs. Johnson, and she was going there too."

Instantly Lizzie Upton's eyes were fixed upon Ella, who colored scarlet; and quickly changing the conversation, she commenced talking about her adventure of the evening before, and again the "magnificent-looking stranger, with his perfectly splendid eyes," was duly described.

"Oh! yes," said Jenny, who generally managed to talk all the time, whether she was heard or not. "Yes, Mary told me about him. He was in her school yesterday, and if I were going to describe George Moreland, I could not do it more accurately than she did in describing Mr. Stuart. You never saw George, did you?"

"No," said Ella pettishly; "but it seems to me Mary is dreadful anxious to have folks know that Mr. Stuart visited her school."

"No, she isn't," answered Jenny. "I told her that I rode past her schoolhouse yesterday, and should have called, had I not seen a big man's head protruding above the window sill. Of course I asked who he was, and she told me about him, and how he saved you from a broken neck."

Ella's temper, never the best, was fast giving way, and by the time the company were all gone she was fairly in a fit of the pouts. Running upstairs, and throwing herself upon the bed, she burst into tears, wishing herself dead, and saying she knew no one would care if she were, for everybody liked Mary better than they did her.

Miss Porter, who stood by, terribly distressed, of course rightly guessed that the everybody, on this occasion, referred merely to Mr. Stuart and Lizzie Upton. Ella was always jealous of any commendation bestowed upon Mary, seeming to consider it as so much taken from herself, and consequently could not bear that Lizzie should even think well of her. The fact, too, that Mr. Stuart had not only visited her school, but also walked home with her, was a sufficient reason why she should be thoroughly angry. Miss Porter knew that the surest method of coaxing her out of her pouting fit was to flatter her, and accordingly she repeated at least a dozen complimentary speeches, some of which she had really heard, while others were manufactured for the occasion. In this way the cloud was gradually lifted from her face, and ere long she was laughing merrily at the idea that a girl "so wholly unattractive as Mary should ever have made her jealous!"

CHAPTER XVIII.

The summer was drawing to a close, and with it Mary's school. She had succeeded in giving satisfaction to the entire district with the exception of Mrs. Bradley, who "didn't know why Tim should be licked and thrashed round just because his folks wasn't worth quite so much as some others," this being, in her estimation, the only reason why the notorious Timothy was never much beloved by his teachers. Mr. Knight, with whom Mary was a great favorite, offered her the school for the coming winter, but she had decided upon attending school herself, and after modestly declining his offer, told him of her intention.

"But where's the money coming from?" said he.

Mary laughingly asked him how many bags of shoes he supposed she had stitched during the last two years.

"More'n two hundred, I'll bet," said he.

"Not quite as many as that," answered Mary; "but still I have managed to earn my clothes, and thirty dollars besides; and this, together with my school wages, will pay for one term, and part of another."

"Well, go ahead," returned Mr. Knight. "I'd help you if I could. Go ahead; and who knows but you'll one day be the president's wife."

Like the majority of New England farmers, Mr. Knight was far from wealthy. From sunrise until sundown he worked upon the old homestead where his father had dwelt. Spring after spring, he ploughed and planted the sandy soil. Autumn after autumn he gathered in the slender harvest, and still said he would not exchange his home among the hills for all the broad acres of his brother, who, at the far West, counted his dollars by the thousands. He would gladly have helped Mary, but around his fireside were six children dependent upon him for food, clothing, and education, and he could only wish his young friend success in whatever she undertook.

When Widow Perkins heard that Mary was going away to school she forgot to put any yeast in the bread which she was making, and bidding Sally Ann "watch it until it rix," she posted off to Mrs. Mason's to inquire the particulars, reckoning up as she went along how much fourteen weeks' wages would come to at nine shillings (a dollar and a half New England currency) per week.

"'Tain't no great," said she, as simultaneously with her arrival at Mrs. Mason's door she arrived at the sum of twenty-one dollars. "'Taint no great, and I wouldn't wonder if Miss Mason fixed over some of her old gowns for her."

But with all her quizzing, and "pumping," as Judith called it, she was unable to ascertain anything of importance, and mentally styling Mrs. Mason, Mary, Judith and all, "great gumpheads," she returned home, and relieved Sally Ann from her watch over unleavened bread. Both Mrs. Mason and Mary laughed heartily at the widow's curiosity, though, as Mary said, "It was no laughing matter where the money was to come from which she needed for her books and clothing."

Everything which Mrs. Mason could do for her she did, and even Judith, who was never famous for generosity, brought in one Saturday morning a half-worn merino, which she thought "mebby could be turned and sponged, and made into somethin' decent," adding in an undertone that "she'd had it out airin' on the clothes hoss for more'n two hours!"

Sally Furbush, too, brought over the old purple silk which "Willie's father had given her." She was getting on finely with her grammar, she said, and in a few days she should write to Harper, so that he might have time to engage the extra help he would necessarily need, in bringing out a work of that kind!

"I should dedicate it to Mrs. Grundy," said she, "just to show her how forgiving I can be, but here is a difficulty. A person on seeing the name, 'Mrs. Polly Grundy,' would naturally be led to inquire for 'Mr. Polly Grundy,' and this inquiry, carried out, might cause the lady some little embarrassment, so I've concluded to have the dedication read thus: 'To Willie's father, who sleeps on the western prairie, this useful work is tremblingly, tearfully, yet joyfully dedicated by his relict Sarah.'"

Mary warmly approved of this plan, and after a few extra flourishes in the shape of a courtesy, Sally started for home.

A few days afterward, Jenny Lincoln came galloping up to the schoolhouse door, declaring her intention of staying until school was out, and having a good time. "It's forever and ever since I've seen you," said she, as she gathered up the skirt of her blue riding-dress, and followed Mary into the house, "but I've been so bothered with those city girls! Seems as though they had nothing to do but to get up rides in hay carts, or picnics in the woods, and since Henry came home they keep sending for us. This afternoon they have all gone blackberrying in a hay cart, but I'd rather come here."

At this point, happening to think that the class in Colburn who were toeing the mark so squarely would perhaps like a chance to recite, Jenny seated herself near the window, and throwing off her hat, made fun for herself and some little boys, by tickling their naked toes with the end of her riding-whip. When school was out, and the two girls were alone, Jenny entered at once upon the great object of her visit.

"I hear you are going to Wilbraham," said she, "but I want you to go to Mount Holyoke. We are going, a whole lot of us—that is, if we can pass examination. Rose isn't pleased with the idea, but I am. I think 'twill be fun to wash potatoes and scour knives. I don't believe that mother would ever have sent us there if it were not that Ida Selden is going. Her father and her Aunt Martha used to be schoolmates with Miss Lyon, and they have always intended that Ida should graduate at Mount Holyoke. Now, why can't you go, too?"

Instantly Mary thought of Mr. Stuart, and his suggestion. "I wish I could," said she, "but I can't. I haven't money enough, and there is no one to give it to me."

"It wouldn't hurt Mrs. Campbell to help you a little," returned Jenny. "Why, last term Ella spent almost enough for candies, and gutta-percha toys, to pay the expense of half a year's schooling at Mount Holyoke. It's too bad that she should have everything, and you nothing."

Here Jenny's remarks were interrupted by the loud rattling of wheels, and the halloo of many voices. Going to the door she and Mary saw coming down the road at a furious rate the old hay cart, laden with the young people from Chicopee, who had been berrying in Starbridge, and were now returning home in high glee. The horses were fantastically trimmed with ferns and evergreens, while several of the girls were ornamented in the same way. Conspicuous among the noisy group was Ella Campbell. Henry Lincoln's broad-brimmed hat was resting on her long curls, while her white sun-bonnet was tied under Henry's chin. The moment Jenny appeared the whole party set up a shout so deafening that the Widow Perkins came out in a trice, to see "if the Old Harry was to pay, or what." No sooner did Henry Lincoln get sight of Mary than springing to his feet, and swinging his arm around his head, he screamed out, "Three cheers for the schoolma'am and her handsome lover, Billy! Harrah!"

In the third and last hurrah, the whole company joined and when that was finished, Henry struck up on a high key:

"Oh, where have you been, Billy boy,
Billy boy,
Oh, where have you been, charming Billy?"

but only one voice joined in with his, and that was Ella's. Mary reddened at what she knew was intended as an insult, and when she heard her sister's voice chiming in with Henry she could not keep back her tears.

"Wasn't that smart?" said Jenny, when at last the hay cart disappeared from view, and the noise and dust had somewhat subsided. Then as she saw the tears in Mary's eyes she added, "Oh, I wouldn't care if they did tease me about Billy Bender. I'd as lief be teased about him as not."

"It isn't that," said Mary, smiling in spite of herself, at Jenny's frankness. "It isn't that. I didn't like to hear Ella sing with your brother, when she must have known he meant to annoy me."

"That certainly was wrong," returned Jenny, "but Ella isn't so much to blame as Henry, who seems to have acquired a great influence over her during the few weeks he has been at home. You know she is easily flattered, and I dare say Henry has fully gratified her vanity in that respect, for he says she is the only decent-looking girl in Chicopee. But see, there comes Mrs. Mason; I guess she wonders what is keeping you so long."

The moment Mrs. Mason entered the schoolroom, Jenny commenced talking about Mount Holyoke, her tongue running so fast that it entirely prevented anyone else from speaking until she stopped for a moment to take breath. Then Mrs. Mason very quietly remarked that if Mary wished to go to Mount Holyoke she could do so. Mary looked up inquir-

New Gold Camp OF LARDER LAKE

NORTHERN ONTARIO.

We earnestly recommend that you purchase the Highland Mary Gold Mines stock at 10 cents per share. This advice means riches to you. The time is not far distant when Highland Mary will be paying large and continuous dividends. By buying now at a price you can afford to pay you will be a participant in these assured profits.

As we have heretofore stated in our circular letters and advertisements, we are willing to stake our standing and reputation on the present conditions and the future outcome of the Larder Lake district and as to its possibilities. We believe it will be the most wonderful gold field that the world has produced. When we make these assertions it is after we have made most searching and thorough investigations. We do not believe that a financial house who has every facility at its command, having a number of experienced mining men in the field, and reliable and trustworthy mining engineers could go to more pains regarding the actual worth of a gold camp than we have done. We have been most cautious and we are very particular as to what we recommend for investment. We have built up a big business and the investors who place confidence in us and follow our advice number many thousands. We guard the interests of our investors just as closely and with as much care as we do our individual investments. This is the reputation we have attained among the investing public. We have gone to great expense in ascertaining the true merits and real conditions of the Highland Mary properties. In order to satisfy ourselves beyond question we despatched various crews of men to make examinations. They were supplied with all the necessities, such as hand drills, dynamite and camp outfits.

They have visited all of the properties, have blown out the ore, and we have had same assayed, not only by our own assayists but by others. The proofs that we have obtained demonstrate beyond question the great values of the HIGHLAND MARY.

The properties consist of 30 claims of 40 acres each, making a total acreage of 1,200 acres. The claims are in the locality of the famous Reddick claims, the Proprietary Gold Fields and the wonderful Blue Bell and Lucky Boys properties.

Law and Co., have experts and engineers who are rated among the best, engaged in examining and reporting on properties. Only those properties which have every indication of richness are handled by us; all the others are turned down as too risky. Our engineers and experts are in the field at a great expense, and it would not pay us to make a report on and sell the stock in any worthless company.

We are looking far into the future, and we thoroughly realize that the only way to hold our customers and keep them interested is for them to invest their money in stocks that have merit and that are sure winners.

THE MAN OR WOMAN WHO INVESTS THEIR MONEY THROUGH US CAN SIT DOWN AT THEIR HOMES AND FULLY REALIZE THAT WHATEVER FUNDS THEY HAVE INVESTED HAVE BEEN WELL PLACED.

You can absolutely depend that the officers and directors of the Highland Mary will expend the money received from the sale of Treasury stock in the development of the property. We wish to call your attention to the fact that 1,000,000 shares of the stock of this company are for the absolute use and benefit of the Treasury:

10c PER SHARE

(Par Value $1.00, Fully Paid and Non-Assessable.)

If you will compare the price, 10c per share, and the organization and incorporation of the Highland Mary against any of the other companies now upon the market, you cannot but realize the great percentage there is in favor of your investing your money in this stock in preference to any other.

Capitalization of Highland Mary, $3,000,000. Par value of shares, $1.00. 1,000,000 shares in the treasury for development purposes.

Coming to the most vital point of all, when you interest yourself in Highland Mary you are becoming a partner of people who are practical mining men, who have made fortunes out of mining, and who are willing to wait the development of this property to make their fortunes.

THE ENGLISH ORPHANS

ingly, wondering what mine had opened at her feet; but she received no explanation until Jenny had bidden her good-bye and gone. Then she learned that Mrs. Mason had just received one hundred dollars from a man in Boston, who had years before owed it to her husband, and was unable to pay it sooner. "And now," said Mrs. Mason, "there is no reason why you should not go to Mount Holyoke, if you wish to."

The glad tears which came to Mary's eyes were a sufficient evidence that she did wish to, and the next day a letter was forwarded to Miss Lyon, who promptly replied, expressing her willingness to receive Mary as a pupil. And now Rice Corner was again thrown into a state of fermentation. Mary was going to Mount Holyoke, and, what was more marvelous still, Mrs. Mason had bought her a black silk dress, which cost her a dollar a yard! and more than one good dame declared her intention of "giving up," if paupers came on so fast. This having been a panper was the thing of which Mary heard frequently, now that her prospects were getting brighter. And even Ella, when told that her sister was going to Mount Holyoke, said to Miss Porter, who was still with her, "Why isn't she getting along real fast for one who has been on the town?"

Mrs. Lincoln, too, and Rose were greatly provoked, the former declaring she would not send her daughters to a school which was so cheap that paupers and all could go, were it not that Lizzie Upton had been there, and Ida Selden was going. Jenny, however, thought differently. She was delighted, and so often as she possibly could she came to Mrs. Mason's to talk the matter over, and tell what good times they'd have, "provided they didn't set her to pounding clothes," which she presumed they would, just because she was so fat and healthy. The widow assumed a very resigned air, saying, "She never did meddle with other folks' business, and she guessed she shouldn't begin by 'tendin' to Mary's, but 'twas a miracle where all the money came from."

A few more of the neighbors felt worried and troubled, but as no attention was paid to their remarks they gradually ceased, and by the time Mary's preparations were completed curiosity and gossip seemed to have subsided altogether. She was quite a favorite in the neighborhood, and on the morning when she left home there was many a kind good-bye and word of love spoken to her by those who came to see her off. Mr. Knight carried her to the depot, where they found Sally Furbush, accompanied by Tasso, her constant attendant. She knew that Mary was to leave that morning, and had walked all that distance for the sake of seeing her and giving her a little parting advice. It was not quite time for the cars, and Mr. Knight, who was always in a hurry, said "he guessed he wouldn't stay," so squeezing both of Mary's hands he bade her good-bye, telling her "to be a good girl, and not get to running after the sparks."

Scarcely was he gone when Mary's attention was attracted by the sound of many voices, and looking from the window she saw a group of the city girls advancing toward the depot, laughing very loudly. Mary's heart beat very rapidly, for she thought her sister was coming to bid her good-bye, but she was mistaken. Ella had no thought or care for her, and after glancing in at the sitting-room, without seeming to see its inmates, though not to see them was impossible, she turned her back, and looking across the river, which was directly in front, she said in her most drawling tone, "Why don't Rose come? I shan't have time to see her at all, I'm afraid."

Lizzie Upton, who was also there, looked at her in astonishment, and then said, "Why, Ella, isn't that your sister?"

"My sister? I don't know. Where?" returned Ella.

Mary laughed, and then Ella, facing about, exclaimed, "Why, Mary, you here? I forgot that you were going this morning."

Before Mary could reply Sally Furbush arose, and passed her hand carefully over Ella's head. Partly in fear, and partly in anger, Ella drew back from the crazy woman, who said, "Don't be alarmed, little one. I only wanted to find the cavity which I felt sure was there."

Lizzie Upton's half-smothered laugh was more provoking to Ella than Sally's insinuation of her want of brains, but she soon recovered her equanimity, for Mr. Lincoln's carriage at that moment drove up. Henry sprang nimbly out, kissing his hand to Ella, who blushed, and then turning to Rose, began wishing she, too, was old enough to go to Mount Holyoke.

"I guess you'd pass about as good an examination now as some who are going," returned Rose, glancing contemptuously toward Mary, to whom Jenny was eagerly talking.

This directed Henry's attention that way, and simultaneously his own and Mary's eyes met. With a peculiar expression of countenance he stepped toward her, saying, "Good morning, schoolma'am. For what part are you bound with all this baggage?" pointing to a huge chest with a feather bed tired over it, the whole the property of a daughter of Erin, who stood near, carefully guarding her treasure.

Had he addressed Mary civilly she would have replied with her usual politeness, but as it was, she made no reply, and he turned to walk away. All this time Tasso lay under the table, winking and blinking at his old enemy, with an expression in his eyes which Henry would hardly have relished could he have seen him.

"Hark! Isn't that the cars?" said Jenny, as a low, heavy growl fell on her ear; but she soon ascertained what it was, for as Henry was leaving the room he kicked aside the big umbrella which Sal had brought with her for fear of a shower, and which was lying upon the floor.

In an instant Tasso's growl changed to a bark, and bristling with anger, he rushed toward Henry, but was stopped by Sal just in time to prevent his doing any mischief. With a muttered oath, which included the "old woman" as well as her dog, the young man was turning away, when Jenny said, "Shame on you, to swear before ladies!"

After assuring himself by a look that Ella and the city girls were all standing upon the platform, Henry replied with a sneer, "I don't see any ladies in the room."

Instantly Sal, now more furious than the dog, clutched her long bony fingers around his arm saying, "Take back that insult, sir, or Tasso shall tear you in pieces! What am I, if I am not a lady?"

Henry felt sure that Sal meant what she said, and with an air of assumed deference, he replied as he backed himself out of his uncomfortable quarters, "I beg your pardon, Mrs. Furbush, I forgot that you were present."

The whistle of the cars was now heard, and in a moment the locomotive stood puffing before the depot. From one of the open windows a fair young face looked out, and a voice which thrilled Mary's every nerve, it seemed so familiar called out, "Oh, Rosa, Jenny, all of you, I'm so glad you are here; I was afraid there would be some mistake, and I'd have to go alone."

"Isn't your father with you!" asked Henry, bowing so low that he almost pitched headlong from the platform.

"No," answered the young lady, "he couldn't leave, nor George either, so Aunt Martha is my escort. She's fast asleep just opposite me, never dreaming, I dare say, that we've stopped."

"The mischief!" said Henry. "What's to be done? The old gent was obliged to be in Southbridge to-day, so he bade me put Rose and Jenny under your father's protection; but as he isn't here I'll have to go myself."

"No, you won't either," returned Ida. "Aunt Martha is as good as a man any time, and can look after three as well as one."

"That's Ida Selden! Isn't she handsome?" whispered Jenny to Mary.

But Mary hardly heard her. She was gazing admiringly at Ida's animated face, and tracing in it a strong resemblance to the bovish features which looked so mischievously out from the golden locket, which at that moment lay next to her heart.

"All aboard," shouted the shrill voice of the conductor, and Mary awoke from her reverie, and twining her arms around Sally Furbush's neck, bade her good-bye.

"The Lord be with you," said Sally, "and be sure you pay strict attention to grammar!"

Mary next looked for Ella, but she stood at a distance jesting lightly with Henry Lincoln, and evidently determined not to see her sister, who was hurrying toward her, when, "All aboard" was again shouted in her ear, while at the same moment the conductor lifted her lightly upon the step, where Rose and Jenny were standing.

"This car is brim full," said Rose, looking over her shoulder, "but I guess you can find a good seat in the next one."

The train was already in motion, and as Mary did not care to peril her life or limbs for the sake of pleasing Rose, she followed her into the car, where there was a goodly number of unoccupied seats, notwithstanding Rose's assertion to the contrary. As the train moved rapidly over the long, level meadow, and passed the Chicopee burying ground, Mary looked out to catch a glimpse of the thorn-apple tree which overshadowed the graves of her parents, and then, as she thought how cold and estranged was the only one left of all the home circle, she drew her veil over her face and burst into tears.

"Who is that young lady?" asked Ida, who was riding backward and consequently directly opposite to Mary.

"What young lady?" said Rose; and Ida replied:

"The one who kissed that queer-looking old woman and then followed you and Jenny into the cars."

"Oh, that was Mary Howard," was Rose's answer.

"Mary Howard!" repeated Ida, as it the name were one she had heard before; "who is she, and what is she?"

"Nobody but a town pauper," answered Rose, "and one of Jenny's proteges. You see she is sitting by her."

"She doesn't seem like a pauper," said Ida. "I wish she would take off that veil. I want to see how she looks."

"Rough and blowsy, of course, like any other country girl," was Rose's reply.

By this time Mary had dried her tears, and when they reached the station at Warren she removed her veil, disclosing to view a face which, instead of being "rough and blowsy," was smooth and fair almost as marble.

"That isn't a pauper. I know," said Ida; and Rose replied:

"Well, she has been, and what's the difference?"

"But where does she live now?" continued Ida. "I begin to grow interested."

"I suppose you remember Mrs. Mason, who used to live in Boston," answered Rose. "Well, she has adopted her, I believe; but I don't know much about it, and care a good deal less."

"Mrs. Mason!" repeated Ida. "Why, Aunt Martha thinks all the world of her, and I fancy she wouldn't sleep quite so soundly if she knew her adopted daughter was in the car. I mean to tell her. Aunt Martha, Aunt Martha!"

But Aunt Martha was too fast asleep to heed Ida's call, and a gentle shake was necessary to rouse her to consciousness. But when she became fully awake, and knew why she was aroused, she started up, and going toward Mary, said in her own peculiarly sweet and winning manner, "Ida tells me you are Mrs. Mason's adopted daughter, and Mrs. Mason is the dearest friend I ever had. I am delighted to see you."

Jenny immediately introduced her to Mary as Miss Selden, whispering in her ear at the same time that she was George's aunt; then rising she gave her seat to Aunt Martha, taking another one for herself near Rose and Ida. Without seeming to be curious at all, Aunt Martha had a peculiar way of drawing people out to talk of themselves, and by the time they left the cars for Mount Holyoke she had learned a good share of Mary's early history, and felt quite as much pleased with the freshness and simplicity of her young friend as Mary did with her polished and elegant manners.

CHAPTER XIX.

"Oh, what a forlorn-looking place!" exclaimed Rose Lincoln, as from the windows of the crowded vehicle in which they had come from the cars she first obtained a view of the not very handsome village of South Hadley.

Rose was in the worst of humors, for by some mischance Mary was on the same seat with herself, and consequently she was very much distressed and crowded. She, however, felt a little afraid of Aunt Martha, who she saw was inclined to favor the object of her wrath, so she restrained her fault-finding spirit until she arrived at South Hadley, where everything came in for a share of her displeasure.

"That the seminary!" said she contemptuously, as they drew up before the building. "Why, it isn't half as large or handsome as I supposed. Oh, horror! I know I shan't stay here long."

The furniture of the parlor was also very offensive to the young lady, and when Miss Lyon came in to meet them she, too, was secretly styled "a prim, fussy, slippery-tongued old maid." Jenny, however, who always saw the bright side of everything, was completely charmed with the sweet smile and placid face, so well remembered by all who have seen and known the founder of Mount Holyoke Seminary. After some conversation between Miss Lyon and Aunt Martha it was decided that Rose and Jenny should room together as a matter of course, and that Mary should room with Ida. Rose had fully intended to room with Ida herself, and this decision made her very angry; but there was no help for it, and she was obliged to submit.

Our readers are probably aware that an examination in certain branches is necessary ere a pupil can be admitted into the school at Mount Holyoke, where the course of instruction embraces three years, and three classes, junior, middle, and senior. Rose, who had been much flattered on account of her scholarship, confidently expected to enter the middle class. Jenny, too, had the same desire, though she confessed to some misgivings concerning her knowledge of a goodly number of the necessary branches. Ida was really an excellent scholar, and was prepared to enter the senior class, while Mary aspired to nothing higher than admission into the junior. She was therefore greatly surprised when Aunt Martha, after questioning her as to what she had studied, proposed that she should be examined for the middle class.

"Oh, no," said Mary quickly, "I should fail, and I wouldn't do that for the world."

"Have you ever studied Latin?" asked Aunt Martha.

Before Mary could reply, Rose exclaimed, "She study Latin! How absurd! Why, she was never away to school in her life."

Aunt Martha silenced her with a peculiar look, while Mary answered that for more than two years she had been reading Latin under Mrs. Mason's instruction.

"And you could not have a better teacher," said Aunt Martha. "So try it, by all means."

"Yes, do try," said Ida and Jenny, in the same breath, and after a time Mary rather reluctantly consented.

"I'll warrant she intends to sit by us, so we can tell her every other word," muttered Rose to Jenny, but when the trial came she thought differently.

It would be wearisome to give the examination in detail, so we will only say that at its close Rose Lincoln heard with shame and confusion that she could only be admitted into the junior class, her examination having proved a very unsatisfactory one. Poor Jenny, too, who had stumbled over almost everything, shared the same fate, while Mary expecting nothing and hoping nothing, burst into tears when told that she had acquitted herself creditably in all the branches requisite for an admission into the middle class.

"Mrs. Mason will be so glad, and Billy, too," was her first thought; and then as she saw how disappointed Jenny looked, she seized the first opportunity to throw her arms around her neck, and whisper to her how sorry she was that she had failed.

Jenny, however, was of too happy a temperament to remain sad for a long time, and before night her loud, merry laugh had more than once rung out in the upper hall, causing even Miss Lyon to listen, it was so clear and joyous. That afternoon Aunt Martha, who was going to call upon Mrs. Mason, started for home, leaving the girls alone among strangers. It was a rainy, dreary day, and the moment her aunt was gone Ida threw herself upon the bed and burst into tears. Jenny, who occupied the next room, was also low-spirited, for Rose was terribly cross, calling her a ninny-hammer," and various other dignified names. Among the four girls Mary was the only cheerful one, and after a time she succeeded in comforting Ida, while Jenny, catching something of her spirit, began to laugh loudly, as she told a group of girls how many ludicrous blunders she made when they undertook to question her about Euclid, which she had never studied in her life!

And now in a few days life at Mount Holyoke commenced in earnest. Although perfectly healthy, Mary looked rather delicate, and it was for this reason, perhaps, that the sweeping and dusting of several rooms were assigned to her, as her portion of the labor. Ida and Rose fared much worse, and were greatly shocked when told they both belonged to the wash circle!

"I declare," said Rose, "it's too bad. I'll walk home!" [illegible] it": and she glanced at her white hands, to make sure they were not already discolored by the dreaded soapsuds!

Jenny was delighted with her allotment, which was dish-washing.

"I'm glad I took that lesson at the poorhouse years ago," said she one day to Rose, who snappishly replied:

"I'd shut up about the poorhouse, or they'll think you the pauper instead of Madam Howard."

"Pauper? Who's a pauper?" asked Lucy Downs, eager to hear so desirable a piece of news.

Ida Selden's large black eyes rested reprovingly upon Rose, who nodded toward Mary, and forthwith Miss Downs departed with the information, which was not long in reaching Mary's ears.

"Why, Mary, what's the matter?" asked Ida, when toward the close of the day she found her companion weeping in her room. Without lifting her head Mary replied, "It's foolish in me to cry, I know, but why need I always be reproached with having been a pauper? I couldn't help it. I promised mother I would take care of little Alice as long as she lived, and if she went to the poorhouse, I had to go too."

"And who was little Alice?" asked Ida, taking Mary's hot hands between her own.

In a few words Mary related her history, omitting her acquaintance with George Moreland, and commencing at the night when her mother died. Ida was warm-hearted and affectionate, and cared but little whether one were rich or poor if she liked them. From the first she had been interested in Mary, and now winding her arms about her neck, and kissing away her tears, she promised to love her, and to be to her as true and faithful a friend as Jenny. This promise, which was never broken, was of great benefit to Mary, drawing to her side many of the best girls in school, who soon learned to love her for herself, and not because the wealthy Miss Selden seemed so fond of her.

Neither Ida nor Rose were as happy in school as Mary and Jenny. Both of them fretted about the rules which they were obliged to observe, and both of them disliked and dreaded their portion of the work. Ida, however, was happier than Rose, for she was fonder of study, and one day, when particularly interested in her lessons, she said to Mary that she believed she should be tolerably contented, were it not for the everlasting washing.

Looking up a moment after, she saw that Mary had disappeared. But [illegible] fixed it. It's all right, I told her I was a great deal stronger than you, that I was used to washing, and you were not, and that it made your side ache; so she consented to have us exchange, and after this you are to dust for me, and I am to wash for you."

Ida disliked washing so much that she raised no very strong objections to Mary's plan, and then when she found how great a kindness had really been shown her, she tried hard to think of some way in which to repay it. At last George Moreland, to whom she had written upon the subject, suggested something which met her views exactly. Both Ida and her aunt had told George about Mary, and without hinting that he knew her, he immediately commenced making minute inquiries concerning her of Ida, who communicated them to Mary, wondering why she always blushed so deeply, and tried to change the conversation. In reply to the letter in which Ida had told him of Mary's kindness, George wrote, "You say Miss Howard is very fond of music, and that there is no teacher connected with the institution. Now, why not give her lessons yourself? You can do it as well as not, and it will be a good way of showing your gratitude."

Crippled With Rheumatism

CURED BY GIN PILLS

Mr. Derraugh certainly did have a hard time of it, winter before last. Caught cold, and it settled in his kidneys. First thing he knew, he was in bed with Rheumatism. He nearly went mad, the pain was so intense. The doctors gave him the usual treatment—and pretty nearly burnt his legs off with liniments and blisters—but the Rheumatism went right on aching.

Then a friend stepped in and said, "Why don't you try GIN PILLS?" After a great deal of persuasion, Mr. Derraugh did try GIN PILLS. You never such a happy man in your life, after he had taken two boxes. Pain all gone—stiffness and lameness completely left—that ache in back and hips disappeared—and he was well in no time. That was two years ago and he has been in perfect health ever since.

Contracted a severe cold. Rheumatism followed and the sharp pains took me so often and were so severe that I had to take to bed. For several months I could get no relief, until I started to take "Gin Pills." In five days I was up and around the house. My pains are gone and I have not had a return of the old trouble since. I wish also to say that "Gin Pills" gave me the first painless passage of urine I have had in two years.

PANDORA RANGE

The easiest way to remove ashes from a range is with an ash pan—the Pandora method (see illustration).

Such an extra large ash pan is provided with the Pandora that it will contain more ashes than will accumulate in one day.

All the ashes are in the pan, too, because they are guided there by flanges attached to either end of the fire-pot.

Easiest, cleanest, quickest, is the Pandora way.

With the scraper and pan provided with every Pandora it's merely a matter of a minute or so to clean out the dirt in the Pandora flues.

Less dirt accumulates in Pandora flues than in ordinary flues, because they are wider and deeper, with no bolts, projections or crevices to catch the dirt, consequently you need not clean them out so often.

Saves a lot of labor, does the Pandora.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora write direct for Free Booklet.

The Making of a Successful Wife

By CASPER S. YOST.

MENDING FAMILY JARS.—Cut Your Quarrels to the Minimum by Trying Not to Have Any at All—And Don't Put Left Over Fusses Into the Refrigerator For Tomorrow.

[Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.]

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—A little while ago—just a little while, it seems to me, though it may seem ages to you, when you were a little bit of a child—I used to take you on my knee in the evenings by the firelight and tell you stories. Sometimes they were just to entertain you, but some other times they had lessons hidden in their sugar coats. Now, I want you to imagine yourself a baby girl again and that you are cuddled up in my lap, with your curly, golden head nestling against my shoulder, and that I am telling you the story about the two kings and the buttermilk pail. Perhaps you don't remember the story of the two kings and the buttermilk pail. Well, dearie, keep your head right there on my shoulder, and I'll tell it to you now.

Once upon a time there were two kings, pretty good sort of fellows as kings go, but they were both tremendously fond of buttermilk. One of them liked it so well that he had a pail made for his special use that was the wonder of the world. It was hammered out of pure gold, so bright and shiny that when it was hung out to air the sun hurried up and got behind a cloud, and it was set with diamonds and rubies as big as walnuts. At last its fame reached the other king, who had been contentedly drinking his buttermilk out of a ten cent tin pail and wiping his mouth on his shirt sleeves, and he straightway fell sick with envy. So he sent special messengers to the first king's court to try to buy the wonderful buttermilk pail.

But the first king laughed them to scorn. "Ha, ha," he cried, for he was full of buttermilk and indignation, "go tell your craven king to stick to tin." So they departed. And when they had made their official report and filed their expense account the second king jumped out of his royal bed and kicked his royal pajamas out of the window. "Gadzooks," he cried, "let me at him." So they went to war. And when they had fought for years and thousands of good men who couldn't afford buttermilk and didn't like it anyhow had been killed the first king called a truce, and they had a parley. "By the way," said the first king, "what did we start this row about?" "Blessed if I can remember," said the second king, "but, whatever it was, you're another." "And you're another," said the first king. So they went at it again, and after they were both dead from appendicitis or rheumatism or something like that it was discovered that the second assistant lord of the poultry yard had been using the golden buttermilk pail to feed the chickens for the past twenty years.

Your Little Disagreements.

It's hardly necessary to say, my dear, that I am not telling this story exclusively for your entertainment. I don't know whether you see the point or not, but it's there, and I am moved to uncover it by a little conversation, scraps of which I could not help but hear as they floated over the back of the car seat in front of me this morning. It was just the ragged end of a family quarrel, an insignificant little spat between a young man and his young wife, but it carried my thoughts to you and William. Of course I know you never quarrel, and even if you did you are too well bred to do it in public. I can hear you say this, with a toss of your pretty head and a retrousse curl of your dainty nose that ought to be either tempting or exasperating to Bill, according to the way he feels. All the same, little girl, unless you and he have got your diplomas and been measured for your heavenly uniforms I am satisfied that you have your little disagreements. And I don't blame you at all for that. We are all more or less human, and no doubt, in order to keep things from getting too monotonous down here, the good Lord has so arranged matters that no two of us can always have the same opinions. You can see at once, can't you, what a dreary place this would be if we all thought alike? Why, we'd all wear exactly the same kind of clothes, live in houses the same size and color, eat the same food, and there wouldn't be anything at all to talk about. These differences of opinion are just as natural and probably just as frequent in your home as in your next door neighbor's, and quarrels are merely disagreements gone to seed.

A little quarrel now and then isn't a bad thing in any family. On the contrary, my dear, it has its virtues. Domestic life is too likely to become humdrum if it is all cooing and billing. It needs spice. But just a pinch, little girl, just a pinch. You know what delightful spice cake your mother makes. Well, now, suppose she should make a mistake and put in as much spice as she does flour. Wouldn't be fit to eat, would it? That's just the difference. As the good book says, a little leaven leavens the whole lump, but you want to be mighty careful about getting too much leaven in. It's so easy to go too far, particularly in the matter of family quarrels. The best way to hold them down to the right proportions is by trying hard not to have any at all. Being human, you probably can't do it, but the mere effort will serve to keep them from jumping out of the spice box into the flour bin, so that when I say solemnly and with parental sternness, don't quarrel, I mean don't quarrel any oftener than you can possibly help.

Make Up Quickly.

But when you do quarrel—and this is the meat in the cocoanut—when you do quarrel, make it up quickly. Don't let it drag. Don't put it back in the refrigerator and warm it up for tomorrow. Have it out at once and then—forget it. That's the quality that makes the little tiffs between husband and wife harmless; that's the gentle art of forgetting. One of the happiest couples I ever knew was old Jerry Palmer and his wife, who used to live just around the corner from us. I really believe there never was a day that they did not have a quarrel, and I am just as confident they never had it on their minds when they went to sleep. I mention them just to show the possibilities of forgetting, not as an example for you to follow—not by a long shot. Palmer and his wife were exceptional cases.

Don't put it in the refrigerator.

They were a good deal like some Mexicans who won't eat strawberries unless they are seasoned with red pepper. Their daily life had to be seasoned red hot. Such a diet, mental or physical, is unhealthy for ninety-nine out of a hundred married couples, and you and Bill, I'm pretty sure, belong to the ninety-nine. So I say, try not to have any family jars at all, but when there is any broken crockery around the house mend it the same day before the lights go out. Then your quarrels will be like little summer clouds that obscure the sun for awhile, but make it seem all the brighter when they pass. There is nothing much sweeter in life, my dear, than the sunburst of love and trust which follows a domestic shower—that is, if the love and trust are there and undimmed.

Mend it the same day.

When Quarrels Are Nursed.

The trouble is, my dear, that too many quarrels are not allowed to pass. Like prize chickens, they are fed and nursed and petted and grow stronger and harder to kill every day. They are drawn out—it's quarrels I'm talking about now, not chickens—they are drawn out day after day until love grows tired and slips out the front door, never perhaps to return. And all for what? Just a little too much pride, just a little too much stiffness of the neck, just a little too much derned fool stubbornness. That's it. "He's wrong, and I won't give in." That's what you say. No doubt that's what he says. And so you go on with the corners of your mouths turned down and the ends of your noses turned up, sacrificing all that is good and true and beautiful in life for a buttermilk pail. Do you get the point of that story now? Practically all quarrels, particularly domestic ones, are about comparative trifles, but they are too often carried on until the real cause is forgotten and in its place is a mutual antagonism, unforgiving and unrelenting, the destroyer of happiness and chief commissioner of supplies for the divorce courts. Oh, my little girl, quarrel if you must, but don't let it drag, don't let it drag!

Love slips out the front door.

But, you may protest, he says things that hurt, things one can't forget so easily. Uh-huh! I guess so. But, my dear, I'll bet my old gray horse against a small boy's pocketknife that what he says to you is like soothing syrup compared to what you say to him. The good Lord provided every human with some means of offense or defense. A man's is his fist; a woman's is her tongue. Civilization has so far progressed that a man—that is, a gentleman—cannot use his natural weapon in dealing with a woman. That's all right. Civilization has made some mistakes, but that isn't one of them. But it has placed no such limitations on woman's weapon and ages of constant use have given her a skill that puts a man at a pretty considerable disadvantage. Whether she uses it as a poniard or a meat ax depends upon her temperament, but the result is usually the same—the man picks up his hat and jumps for the front door. Now, it's a peculiarity of a woman under such circumstances that, while she remembers with highly magnified clearness all that he says and much that he didn't, she entirely forgets the occasional remarks she made herself. I want you to reverse that process. Think over what you said and long before time for Bill to come back from work you will be in the proper frame of mind to meet him with a kiss, to be your own sweet self, serene and smiling, just as if a quarrel had never happened since the world began. Then, for heaven's sake, don't refer to the disagreement again. You can bet your life Bill

Each Entitled to Opinions.

Of course you are entitled to your own opinions, all you want of them. So is he. But let me tell you one thing, my little girl, and if I was a printer I'd put it in the biggest type to be had—there never was an opinion that was worth the price of your happiness. Have your opinions, but don't try to impress them on Bill with a potato masher. That way isn't effective, and, besides, it lacks refinement. When you want him to think your way just put your arms around his neck and—But, pshaw, you know how! All women do. The trouble is they sometimes allow their tempers to bind them to the old reliable, never failing method that they have had copyrighted since the days of Mrs. Adam. It's an old saying that it takes two to make a quarrel, and there's another almost as old—that it takes but one to end it. Both are equally true, but when it comes to closing up a domestic controversy a woman will succeed where a man will only get his foot in deeper, and she can do it without concessions, without humiliation, by the simple trick of forgetting. That's the stuff that will mend family jars quicker and more effectively than anything else. Paste the recipe in your cookbook, my dear, and take a look at it every time you get on the warpath. So long, little sweetheart. Your affectionate dad,

JOHN SNEED.

Tried It.

"What!" cried genial Popkins, slapping his friend Jobson on the back. "You are in love with Maud Dawson and too bashful to propose to her! Think shame of yourself, man! Just you follow my plan. I was out walking one night with a lady, who is now my wife, and we came to a jeweler's shop, and I pointed to the engagement rings in the window and said, 'Wouldn't you like one of these?' and she said 'Yes,' and so it was all settled."

"Capital idea!" cried the bashful Jobson. "I'll try it this very night."

Twenty-four hours later the two friends met once more.

"Well, Jobson," cried Jopkins, "did the plan work?"

"Work!" groaned Jobson. "I should think it did! Just listen. I took Maud along High street and stopped at Goldstein's, the jeweler's, and I pointed to the engagement rings in the window and asked her if she would like one, and she smiled and blushed and put her hand on my arm and said, 'Oh, yes, dear George; I would like that one,' and 'that one' was 15 guineas!"—London Tit-Bits.

His Surprise.

"Do you know," he said, "that I was almost overcome with surprise the first time I ever saw you?"

"I noticed," she replied, "that you seemed to be considerably nonplussed."

"Yes. For a moment I was speechless. You see, I had heard a great deal about you. Your friends had begun six months before we met to plan to bring us together."

"I don't see what that could have had to do with the surprise you say you felt when you saw me for the first time."

"Why, I found you to be so beautiful and you were dressed with such exquisite taste."

"Indeed! I suppose my 'friends,' as you call them, had given you to understand that I was homely and a frump. So kind of them, I am sure."

"Oh, no! They never did so, I assure you—at least didn't do so intentionally. But they did keep telling me right along that you were very intellectual and deeply interested in public affairs."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Prophecy Came True.

When Lord Rosebery, who was 60 the other day, was just able to toddle, he was driven by his parents to a moorland farm on the Midlothian Rosebery property. The child was left in charge of the farmer's spouse. The gude-wife had the palm of Maister Airchie—as he was then called—examined by a gypsy spaewife, or fortune-teller, who happened to be at the farm.

Promptly the woman, without being informed who he was, said that one day the little fellow would hold the highest position in the land. The farmer's wife said nothing about this to Lord and Lady Dalmeny, but she told all her neighbors. Memories of what the spaewife had said were green in the neighborhood when Lord Rosebery became premier, and it was held that the prediction had been fulfilled to the letter.

Undigested Food

When any portion of food remains in the stomach and refuses to digest, it causes the torments of indigestion. This undigested food rapidly ferments, irritating the sensitive coating of the stomach, while other parts of the body, particularly the head, suffer in consequence.

So long as this undigested food remains in the stomach, the discomfort continues. A few doses of stop all fermentation, sweeten the contents of the stomach and give natural assistance that relieves the stomach of its burden. The use of Beecham's Pills gradually strengthens the stomach nerves and soon restores them to a normal, healthy condition.

Beecham's Pills positively cure all stomach troubles, while their beneficial effects on the liver and kidneys greatly improve the general health.

Beecham's Pills have been used and recommended by the general public for over fifty years.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Easier—Hogs Show Firmness in U. S. Markets.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—London cables are firmer, at 10c to 13½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 10c per pound.

Toronto Junction Live Stock.

TORONTO JUNCTION, Sept. 30.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 72 carloads, composed of 1617 cattle, 80 sheep and lambs and 36 calves.

Exporters.

Prices ranged at from $4.25 to $5 per cwt.; bulls at $3.50 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

There was a good demand for the best butchers', but common and inferior were slow sale. Picked lots sold at $4.70 to $5; best loads, $4.30 to $4.60; medium, $3.75 to $4.20; cows, $2.50 to $3.75; canners, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

Feeding steers, $3.25 to $3.50, and bulls $2.25 to $2.50. These quotations were for distillery cattle.

Milch Cows.

Milkers and springers sold at $35 to $56 each.

Veal Calves.

Trade was good. Prices ranged at from $4.50 to $6.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Export sheep sold at $4.40 per cwt.; lambs at $5.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, reported hog prices unchanged, at $6.12½ per cwt. for selects and lights and fats at $5.87½ per cwt.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Sept. 30.—(Special.)—Exports for August were 11,852 cattle, 810 sheep and for the season to date 71,981 cattle, 4955 sheep, which shows a decrease of 22,777 cattle and 2545 sheep, as compared with the corresponding period last year.

At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Sept. 28, were 4518 cattle, 429 sheep and lambs, 3724 hogs and 768 calves. The offerings for local consumption this morning were [illegible] sheep and lambs, 1000 hogs and 500 calves. The run of cattle to-day was the heaviest this season, as, in addition to the above there were fully 900 head at the east end market, making a total of 2500, which were far in excess of the local requirements of the trade and in consequence the market was depressed some, prices showing a decline of ¼c to ½c per lb., as compared with those paid a week ago. In addition to the above the quality of the stock offered showed no improvement, the bulk of it being half finished, which also added weakness to the situation and, coupled with these facts, cable advices from Liverpool on Saturday reported trade very slow on account of hot weather and noted a decline in prices of ½c to ¾c per lb. since this day week, with choice Canadians quoted at 11c to 11¼c and ranchers at 10c to 10½c per lb. At the reduction of prices here noted above there was a good demand from local butchers and outside buyers and an active trade resulted, which indicates that the consumption of beef is now on the increase on account of the cold weather. Choice beeves sold at 4¼c to 5c; good at 4c to 4¼c; fair, at 3½c to 3¾c; common, at 2¾c to 3¼c, and canners at 1¾c to 1¾c per lb. There was no change in the condition of the market for sheep and lambs. Supplies are coming forward freely, but as the demand is good for both local consumption and export account, the feeling is steady and an active trade continues to be done at unchanged prices. Sheep sold at ¾c to 4¼c and lambs at 5¼c to 5½c per lb. Supplies of calves were fairly large for the season, for which the demand is good at prices ranging from $3 to $12 each. The market for hogs remains about steady, owing to the fact that the offerings are not excessive and in addition to this advices from European sources on Canadian bacon during the past week show no important change as compared with the previous one. The demand from local jobbers and packers for supplies continues good and a fairly active trade is passing with sales of selected lots at $6.25 to $6.50 per cwt., weighed off cars.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Sept. 30.—Cattle—Receipts, 6000 head; fairly active and steady; prime steers, $6 to $6.50; shipping, $5.25 to $5.85; butchers', $4.50 to $5.75; heifers, $3.50 to $5.25; cows, $3 to $4.40; bulls, $2.50 to $4.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50 to $4.50; stock heifers, $2.40 to $3.60; fresh cows and springers steady, $30 to $54.

Veals—Receipts, 1500 head; active and 25c higher, $5 to $9.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,200 head; active; pigs 10c to 20c higher, others 5c to 10c higher; heavy, $6.60 to $7; mixed, $7 to $7.20; yorkers, $7 to $7.15; pigs, $6.60 to $6.75; roughs, $5.50 to $6; stags, $4.25 to $4.75; dairies, $6.50 to $7.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 14,600 head; active and steady; lambs, $5 to $8; yearlings, $5.75 to $6; wethers, $5.60 to $5.75; ewes, $5 to $5.25; sheep, mixed, $3.50 to $5.25; Canada lambs, $7.50 to $7.75.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Beeves—Receipts, 4747; good to choice steers steady to firm; medium and common slow to a shade lower; bulls and cows steady; steers, $4 to $6.65; bulls, $2.50 to $4.25; tailers, $2.25; cows, $1.25 to $4.15. Exports to-morrow, 2200 cattle and 3500 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 2583; veals firm; grassers lower; westerns lower. Veals, $4.50 to $5.90; grassers, $2.50 to $3.25; few at $5.50; western, $4 to $4.25.

TO RESTRICT PASSPORTS.

Commission on Jap Question to Appeal to Mikado.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—A complete statement of Canada's argument against a continuation of the present large influx of Japanese immigrants into this country is being prepared by the Government for presentation to the Government of Japan.

No doubt a commission or commissioner will present the argument to the Mikado's Government at Tokio. It will be pointed out in this statement that when the treaty with Japan was signed by Canada there was an express understanding that the Japanese law restricting the issue of passports to intending emigrants to a limited number each year would continue to be enforced.

In the Japanese emigration laws it is expressly stated that any emigrant obtaining a passport under false representation is liable to a heavy fine in addition to the cancellation of the passport. The enforcement of this clause by Japan would have a large influence in stopping the influx of Japanese to British Columbia by way of the Hawaiian Islands.

Other points that will be emphasized are that public opinion in this country, as shown by the utterances of public men in the press, and by the resolutions of the Labor Minister, is unanimously opposed to any large or sudden influx of Oriental immigration, and that the present rate of immigration, if continued, will result in unnecessary racial friction in British Columbia, and will militate against the development of trade between Canada and Japan as desired by both Governments.

EDITOR FIGHTS DUEL.

Fight With Swords In Old Style at St. Pierre Rink.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 1.—Contrary to expectations the duel between Editor Mazier of The Reveil and Dr. Dupuy was fought in the rink at St. Pierre Miquelon.

It was believed that the differences had been settled in court, but the opposing factions clamored for satisfaction in the ancient French style and the two met. There was a large gathering in the rink. Swords were chosen as the weapons. After ten minutes of fierce fighting the editor received a bad thrust of the sword in the right breast. His second, Dr. Thibaud, seeing the nature of his friend's wound, declared Mazier unable to continue the fight.

The duel was the result of an article in The Reveil, questioning the honor of Dr. and Mrs. Dupuy.

It is reported that Mazier will be compelled to accept another challenge to a duel from Lelefre, a prominent shipowner of St. Pierre.

SHOW BIG FALLING OFF.

Grain Shipments Not Nearly So Large as Last Year.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The Department of Trade and Commerce has received from Mr. C. Castle of Winnipeg, a statement of the shipments of grain by vessels from Fort William and Port Arthur from the opening of navigation, April 29, 1907, to Aug. 31, 1907, and also for the crop year of 1906, which is from Sept. 1, 1906, to Aug. 31, 1907.

From April 29 to Aug. 31 last, there was carried in Canadian vessels from these ports 20,721,617 bushels, and in foreign vessels 5,838,069 bushels, making a total of 26,599,686 bushels of wheat.

For the crop year 1906, Canadian vessels carried 51,719,952 bushels. There was in store on Aug. 31, 1906, 507,574 bushels, and on Aug. 31, 1907, 6,460,979 bushels, an increase of 5,933,545 bushels of wheat.

Grampian Broke the Record.

Montreal, Oct. 1.—Having broken the record from Glasgow to Quebec and Montreal, the new Allan liner Grampian arrived last night in charge of Capt. Outram, the only Canadian in charge of an Allan steamship.

The Grampian is an exact counterpart of the Corsican, which has made three trips to the St. Lawrence. She left Glasgow a week ago Saturday at 6 p.m. and reached Quebec Sunday afternoon at 2.30, making the voyage under eight days.

The new vessel has accommodation for 136 first-class, 292 second and 1,428 steerage passengers. These with a crew of 210 would make 2,066 souls on board. Her cargo carrying capacity is 7,000 tons.

Gave Life to Save Wife.

Rome, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. William Sisbower of New London, eight miles west of here, were drowned in the Erie Canal yesterday. A man fishing some distance away saw the woman run out of the house near the canal and jump in. She was immediately followed by her husband, who attempted to rescue her, but failed.

A Customs Record.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—The customs receipts of the Dominion for the six months since March amounted to $31,402,735, which is an increase of $6,418,990 over last year. The revenue for September alone was $5,903,638, an increase of $546,295, and far and away the best showing on record.

Two Killed in Wreck.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 1—The last train on the 'Frisco road known as the Meteor, due in St. Louis at 11.30 a.m., was derailed and wrecked near Dixon yesterday morning. Two employes were killed, one seriously injured, and the passengers were badly bruised.

Judge to Resign.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—Hon. Judge Larue, who has graced the Quebec judiciary during the past 21 years, will shortly resign owing to ill-health.

TORONTO SHOOTING CASE.

Turpenoff Believed to Have Met His Death by Accident.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—While many conflicting points are still in evidence in connection with the shooting of Nicola Turpenoff, the Macedonian shopkeeper, on Sunday at his home here, the theory of accidental shooting seems now to carry a weight of probability.

The story of Leo, the brother, while it has taken several forms in the telling, as presented by several interpreters, is constant in the main point, that the pistol was dropped and exploded upon contact with the floor, causing the death of the man who was bending over to recover it.

An expert in guns and gun wounds, who examined the fatal weapon yesterday, gave the following opinion:

"The pistol is a Browning of Belgian make, identical with the Colt's automatic magazine pistol. The breach of this pistol when fired in the ordinary way recoils, throwing out the empty shell and throwing up a cartridge from the magazine, ready for a second shot.

"The weapon when examined was found to contain six cartridges and one empty shell. This would show that the pistol had fallen on its butt, with the wider side toward the man. The impact with the floor exploded the charge, preventing the slipping of the breech and the expulsion of the shell."

Coroner Powell opened an inquest at the morgue yesterday.

MUST BE ABSTAINERS.

No More Drinkers on St. Catharine's Police Force.

St. Catharines, Oct. 1.—A meeting of the police commissioners was held yesterday, when Mayor Riddell and Police Magistrate Comfort took sides against Judge Carman in the discussion of incidents which occurred at the last meeting of the commissioners.

After an extra lively session of two hours, the board finally decided to meet next Monday to consider charges against the police. Talk of an investigation was quite lively, the mayor and magistrate at one time threatening to have the conduct of the judge enquired into, and the judge informing the magistrate that an investigation against him might bring something to light.

Several resolutions to the effect that it is desirable that none but total abstainers be engaged on the police force of cities and towns, St. Catharines being especially mentioned, were adopted on motion of the judge, but the mayor and magistrate refused to adopt a resolution to compel men now on the local force to become total abstainers.

WOMAN'S FAKE STORY.

Invents Tales of Assault by Indian to Arouse Sympathy.

Hensall, Oct. 1.—Maggie Brown of Seaforth claimed she was assaulted by an Indian on Sept. 20, and Detective Reburn of the Attorney-General's Department was sent to investigate. After working on the case some days he came to the conclusion that the story of the assault was invented to win sympathy from the parties with whom she was stopping, and two doctors were called in, both of whom confirmed the detective's theory. It was found that the wounds on her body were self-inflicted.

KILLED IN ELEVATOR.

George Fry Meets Dreadful Death at Blonde Factory.

Chatham, Oct. 1.—George Fry, young married man, lost his life under tragic circumstances here yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

He was going up in the elevator from the first to the second floor in Blonde's mill. It is supposed the elevator failed to stop, and in fright the victim attempted to escape from the car, when he was caught between the car floor and the roof of the second floor. He was nearly decapitated.

Two Prisoners Released.

St. Thomas, Oct. 1.—Sheriff McColl yesterday received notice from the Department of Justice to release Elijah Keilor, sentenced for one year for sending criminal postcards through the mails, and Thomas Cusack, sentenced to six months for stealing railway brass. They both have served three months.

Japs Looted Village.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 1.—A report has been made to United States Consul Smith of Vancouver by Capt. Munro of the schooner Casee of the alleged pillaging of the Alaskan village on Litak Bay, on southwest Kodiak Island, by the crew of a Japanese sailing schooner operating in Behring Sea this season.

FLOOD EXACTS A HEAVY TOLL

Thirty Emigrants Swept Off Quay Into the Sea.

MANY PEOPLE ARE STARVING

Bodies Found in the Mud — Eight Persons Killed by Collapse of Church — Three Houses Washed Away—Many Stores Ruined— Total Damages Estimated at Nearly Four Million Dollars.

Malaga, Oct. 1.—The greatest distress is everywhere prevalent as a result of the storms and floods of last week. The Government with difficulty is preventing famished persons seizing and eating decayed foodstuffs that have been thrown out by storekeepers. The work of clearing away the foul-smelling mud left in the streets by the floods is being pushed rapidly. Many bodies have been found in the mud. A band of emigrants which was encamped on a quay the night of the flood awaiting a steamer has not been seen since, and it is feared all its members perished. The damage done by flood is placed at $3,800,000. A number of stores were ruined. A number of steamers arriving here reported having seen a number of bodies floating in the bay. These are believed to be some of the emigrants who were washed off the quay, and who numbered more than thirty. A church and three houses at Benamerrara, a town twenty miles from this place, collapsed, killing eight persons.

KIPLING IS PLEASED.

Famous Author Says Canadians All Look Happy and Prosperous.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—Rudyard Kipling, the famous litterateur, known to Canadians, not only by reason of "My Lady of the Snows," but because of his many notable works, passed through Ottawa on the transcontinental train yesterday afternoon en route to the cost.

"Anything to tell us?" was hurled at the distinguished traveler.

"It is just 15 years since I was last on Canadian soil," he replied, "and I must say that I feel really happy to be back among you once more."

"Of course you must have observed great changes in the interim?"

"Remarkable," was the expression of Mr. Kipling. "I noticed the change everywhere right up from Quebec. You Canadian people all look so happy and prosperous," went on Mr. Kipling, "that it really does one good to come amongst you."

Kipling Goes West.

Montreal, Oct. 1—Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling left yesterday morning for Vancouver and Victoria. They will return east in three weeks.

Ex-Treasurer Suicides.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Ambrose C. McGlachlin, city treasurer of Rochester from 1831 to 1864, was found in his bed in a dying condition yesterday from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by himself.

Longshoremen Strike.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 1.—About 500 longshoremen and teamsters struck here yesterday, when the crews of the Leyland and Austria-American steamers started stowing cotton in vessels.

BANDITS HAVE BEEN ROUNDED UP

Magoon Will Crush Out Cuban Insurrection.

DEALS WITH A STRONG HAND

Orders Troops to Capture, Kill or Drive Rebels Into the Ocean—Signs of Unrest But No Further Disturbance Expected — Danger From Strikes — The Government Has Ample Means.

Santiago, Cuba, Oct. 1.—Thirty additional men of the rural guard left here yesterday on a special train to aid Capt. Dougherty in running down Adalfo Lacalle and his band of forty men who have been located in the vicinity of Guano. Lacalle is paying cash for his supplies at the country stores.

Exchanged Shots.

Havana, Oct. 1.—The small band of rebels, which has been traversing the country about Mayari, in Santiago Province, has, according to late despatches, again exchanged shots with the pursuing rurales. The latter are close on the heels of the bandits.

While there are signs of unrest in various parts of the island, the opinion prevails here that no serious disturbance is likely. In commenting on the situation The Diario de la Marina says:

"There is no reason, therefore, for extraordinary alarm, or for believing Cuba is on the brink of an abyss. Even the strikers have not yet committed any act of violence. If their disagreement with the railway companies is not settled other men will be found shortly to run the trains. In this case any attempts on the part of the strikers to resort to force will be punished according to law. The situation, for all these reasons, is not so grave and the Government has ample means to cope with it."

Governor Magoon has determined to deal with outlaws and insurrections with a strong hand. The orders of the rurales, it is stated, are to capture, kill or drive them into the ocean.

JUDGE RESERVED SENTENCE.

James Wadsworth Found Guilty of Receiving at Queenston.

St. Catharines, Oct. 1—James Wadsworth was yesterday morning convicted before His Honor Judge Carman on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Clarence Stevens, Harry Lammon, and Cecil Donald, boys who stole butter from Grand Trunk cars at Niagara Falls, and who were last week convicted at Welland, gave evidence to the effect that Wadsworth knew the goods were to be stolen from cars, and later received from them at his hotel in Queenston.

Evidence of several other witnesses was also given, and though the judge held the prisoner guilty, he reserved sentenced till to-day, and will in any case at the request of F. W. Griffiths, the prisoner's counsel, prepare a stated case for the Court of Appeal.

Clinton Bylaw Carried.

Clinton, Ont., Oct. 1.—A bylaw to raise $53,000, to establish a system of waterworks for fire protection and domestic use, was voted on here yesterday and carried by a majority of 79.

SERIOUS ACCUSATION AGAINST DOCTOR

Alleged to Have Administered Poison to His Rival.

WIFE IS ALSO CHARGED

Woman Was Formerly Wife of Murdered Man—Suggested "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" Existence—Aconite the Poison Used—Was Previously Arrested For Killing His Child For Insurance.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 1.—A murder trial of widespread interest was begun here yesterday, when Dr. Thomas L. Rowland and his second wife, the widow of Charles R. Strange, a locomotive engineer, faced the charge of having murdered Mr. Strange by poison, so that they might wed. Effort will be made to prove that Dr. Rowland was a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" in real life, and that to all appearances he led an exemplary existence, while secretly making a study of deadly poisons and plotting murder. He was even arrested on a charge of having poisoned his own child in order to get some insurance money, but he was let go because the chemists could find no trace of poison in the tests which they made. In the present case Dr. Rowland is alleged to have used aconitine, a rare and deadly vegetable poison. Judge Benjamin F. Long will preside at the trial, while prominent counsel appeared on each side of the case. A special venire of one hundred and fifty men has been drawn for service on the jury.

CHAUFFEUR HAD HARD LUCK.

Finds Bridge Washed Away and Is Arrested For Speeding.

St. Catharines, Oct. 1.—Arthur Geyer, a chauffeur employed by Harry Vars of Buffalo, was fined $5 by the magistrate yesterday morning for fast going in Beamsville.

He left Toronto for Buffalo. At Burlington he found a bridge washed away and took his car through the creek, where it struck a rock and the services of a team of horses were secured, for which the owner demanded $10. Going through Beamsville Geyer exceeded the speed limit. Constable Tufford telephoned the police here and Geyer was arrested. He deposited his money as security.

Six miles from here Geyer's gasoline began to run short, and as they demanded $3 for six gallons at the little store, about double the price he decided to come back to St. Catharines and wait until morning.

Yesterday morning Magistrate Comfort imposed the usual fine of $5.

AFFAIRS IN MANCHURIA.

China's Resistance to Japan Causes Complete Deadlock.

Pekin, Oct. 1.—There has been a complete deadlock between China and Japan over Manchurian affairs since June last, and the attitude of the United States towards Japan has now become a feature of the situation.

The new administrations at Mukden and Pekin welcomed what the officials [illegible] "in the interest of American's spirit," in sending the battleship fleet to the Pacific after apparent indifference to the far eastern situation, and, as a result, the Chinese officials are resisting the demands of the Japanese.

Monument to U. S. Soldiers.

Niagara Falls, Oct. 1.—Ninety-three years ago British and United States soldiers fought at Lundy's Lane. On Sunday a monument was dedicated to the memory of Capt. Abraham Huller Hull and nine men of the Ninth U. S. Infantry, who fell in the fight.

The Niagara Frontier Landmarks' Association and the Daughters of the War of 1812 of Buffalo, to whose lot the dedication fell, were welcomed by the Lundy's Lane Historical Society, who escorted them to the scene of the ceremonies.

The monument is built of huge blocks of grey granite.

Brockville Nominations.

Brockville, Oct. 1.—The provincial bye-elections nomination proceedings passed off quietly yesterday afternoon. As expected, W. A. Lewis, Liberal, and A. E. Donovan, Conservative, were placed in nomination, and each addressed about 300 of the electors, assembled in Victoria Hall.

BLAZE ON "BICKERDIKE."

Firemen Had Close Call — Were Overcome by Gas.

Kingston, Oct. 1.—Yesterday afternoon shortly after one o'clock the steamer Bickerdike arrived in port and was found to be on fire.

The fire steamers received a hasty call to the drydock and soon the water was playing on the flames. The blaze was down in the hold.

About three o'clock the firemen stopped putting water into the vessel and the work of removing the cargo was started. The fire was extinguished at 5 o'clock. The greatest injury will be to the cargo.

Two of the firemen, suffocated by the gases, had to be carried out. The steamer Bickerdike belongs to the Montreal and Great Lakes Navigation Co. and was built in Buffalo in 1873. She is 233 feet long and is loaded with package freight for Port Arthur.

Power Commission in Shape.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—"All that so far has been announced in the press with reference to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission," remarked Hon. Mr. Whitney yesterday, "is pure conjecture. But we are moving ahead steadily, getting everything into shape."

The Power Commission are to meet this morning at the Parliament Buildings with a Cabinet meeting directly afterwards. Among the matters to be considered are the power question and the $00 loan guarantee.

Hon. Mr. Matheson, in respect to the $00 loan guarantee, yesterday said that negotiations were in progress, and that if the guarantee were renewed there was no chance whatever of the amount in question—$1,-000,000—being reduced for some time to come.

GREETS NEW DOMINION.

Canada Sends Message of Congratulation to New Zealand.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—New Zealand's assumption of the dignified title of Dominion of New Zealand was marked by the following exchange of cables between Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Premier Ward:

"Ottawa, Sept. 25.—To Premier Ward, Wellington, N. Z.: Best wishes and all success to the new Dominion. —(Signed) Laurier."

"From Wellington, N. Z., Sept. 25.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Ottawa: The Dominion heartily thanks her elder sister and hopes to follow in her footsteps.—(Signed) Ward."

Hon. Mr. Prevost Resigns.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—At yesterday's meeting of the Provincial Cabinet at the Parliament Buildings, the resignation of Hon. J. B. B. Prevost, Minister of Colonization, Mines and Fisheries, was received, and, after discussion, accepted.

Hon. Mr. Prevost's case against Mr. Assetine was heard, it will be remembered, in the spring and the jury disagreed. It is on the list for the fall term of the Criminal Court opening here next week.

Killed at Allandale.

Barrie, Oct. 1.—Three freight trains following each other in rapid succession from Hamilton pulled into the Allandale station Sunday night about 11 o'clock. The failure of the brakes to work on the third, permitted it to strike the centre train with some force. The engine on the latter buckled, killing the fireman, a young man named Robert Blackburn of Coe Hill.

The crew of the last train was unfamiliar with the road, this being their first trip.

His Head Blown Off.

Hamilton, Oct. 1.—A fatal accident occurred on Sunday at Bronte. John Armstrong, employed as a farm hand by James Peacock, accidentally killed himself by shooting. He found a shotgun in the driving shed, and started to examine it. The gun went off, and Armstrong's head was blown to pieces.

D[illegible]

Ingersoll, Oct. 1.—In West Zorra on Saturday the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Johnsten was almost instantly killed by the kick of a horse.

When found by the father the child was still breathing, but he passed away as he raised him in his arms.

Captain Killed on His Ship.

Escanaba, Mich., Oct. 1.—Capt. James W. Nicholson, aged 62, of Buffalo, fell through an open hatch into the hold of his boat, the Caledonia of the Corrigan-McKinley fleet, on Sunday and was instantly killed. His neck was broken.

Germany Uneasy.

London, Oct. 1.—Great uneasiness prevails in German commercial circles at the prospect of a preference to Britain by Australia.

Horse's Kicks Fatal.

Smith's Falls, Oct. 1.—Edward Lambry, hosteler of the Union Hotel, died on Saturday from kicks by a horse.

Board of Education Decides Upon the Purchase of Property ---Routine Business Transacted at Meeting Last Night

At the regular meeting of the Board of Education last night the principal matters that came up outside of regular business were the resignation of Principal Fessenden and the proposal of Mr. Dumble that the Board should purchase a piece of land north of the Queen Alexandra School for playground purposes. This was agreed to by the Board. The land will cost $375 and some improvements will have to be made including the tiling of the creek running through he land.

A grant of $25 was made to the Collegiate Institute pupils for prizes at the annual sports.

There were present Messrs. Robt. Fair, chairman; D W Dumble, B E Ackerman, W S Robinson, L M Hayes, John Crane, Dr. Burnham, W H Hill, Dr. Morrison; H W Morphet, acting secretary in the absence of Mr. Morrow.

Communications

The following communications were received:

From Philip Card, applying for the position of janitor of the new Collegiate Institute—Committee on Appointments.

From Geo. E. Robb, chief engineer, in regard to the inspection of the Central School boiler. — Property Committee.

From Ruth E. Carlisle, accepting the position of supply teacher on the public school staff.—Committee on Appointments.

From W. Avery, accepting the position of janitor of the King Edward School.

From J W Harvey, accepting a position on the Collegiate Institute staff.

From A. Mowat, accepting the position of inspector of public schools.

From the members of the Sports Committee of the Collegiate Institute asking the Board for financial assistance and thanking them for favours in the past.

From C Fessenden, asking that he be retired from the duties of principal of the Collegiate Institute at the end of the year, but still be retained as teacher.—Committee on Appointments.

The Supervision Committee reported, recommending the appointment of Mr. Harvey to the Collegiate Institute staff and of Wm. Avery as janitor of the King Edward School.

On motion of Mr. Hill, Miss Edna Rogers and Miss N. Hall were appointed assistants in the Kindergarten, starting Sept. 25th, at a salary of $22.50.

On motion of Dr. Morrison, seconded by Mr. Hayes, the architect of the Collegiate Institute will be instructed to cut out the partition between the head masters room and class room in the new Collegiate to make one large class room.

More Play Grounds

Mr. Dumble strongly advocated the purchase of the triangular piece of land north of the Queen Alexandra School for use as a play ground. The land, he said, could be acquired for $375 and by the expenditure of about $300 more the drain running through the property could be tiled and a plateau constructed there. It would make a splendid play ground for the the younger children and he expressed himself as being very much in favour of its purchase.

The chairman objected to the property because of the fact that the land was not level and would not, he thought, be suitable for a play ground.

Mr. Crane was in favour of the Board acquiring the property if the price was deemed reasonable.

Mr. Robinson made a strong objection to the scheme, saying that the Board should exercise economy as much as possible. In regard to the property he said there was no hurry. It had been untouched for years and would likely remain so. He pointed out that taxes were high enough at present.

Mr. Dumble returned that false economy had cost the Board dearly on several occasions in the past and the speaker referred to the South Central and West Ward schools where there were no play grounds to speak of.

Mr. Hill expressed himself as being in favour of the purchase. The Queen Alexandra School, when the Normal School was completed, would be one of the most important schools in the city. He thought that the people of Peterborough would approve of the action of the Board. The speaker also referred to the mistakes in this respect in the past.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, seconded by Mr. Hill, the Building Committee was authorized to purchase the land in question from Mr. Hannah for $375, and to place the earth from the school excavation on the property.

It was moved by Mr. Hayes, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the Board make a grant of $25 for prizes at the annual field day of sports of the Collegiate Institute.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Pringle, Miss Dorothy Hall's leave of absence was extended to November 1.

It was moved by Dr. Morrison, seconded by Mr. Crane, that the matter of furnishing the Collegiate Institute and Queen Alexandra School be left in the hands of the respective building committees, and to ask for tenders for the same. — Carried.

On motion of Mr. Hill, the Queen Alexandra School Building Committee was instructed to have the date of the old and new school, with the name "Queen Alexandra," engraved upon the building.

Mr. Pringle recommended the purchase of two sets of Blackwood-Chambers' Encyclopaedia for use in the King Edward and East City Schools, and on motion it was decided to adopt the suggestion.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

PETERBOROUGH LAYMAN'S EVANGELICAL ASSOCIATION

The semi-annual meeting of this old and worthy association was held on Monday evening last at the residence of Mr. Joseph Batten, Maitland street. The President, Mr. W Might, in the chair. Reports of the work at the jail and the Protestant Home were shown to have been of a very helpful and encouraging character. These laymen who have given their time in speaking the Truth and words of comfort and cheer to those who are not permitted to enjoy the usual privileges of the Gospel, are fulfilling a Christian and benevolent duty. At their gatherings in the Protestant Home and in the Jail the opportunity is afforded of awakening the inmates to a sense of the fellowship they have in Him who died, not to save the churches, but to save the people.

After votes of thanks were passed to to the retiring officers, the following new officers were elected for the ensuing term:—

President—Mr. Joseph Batten.
Secretary—Mr. Isaac Richardson.

Among those present were several of the pioneers of this Layman's Association who have rendered faithful service in this good work for over a quarter of a century.

WANTED
Every Man, Woman and Child in Peterborough

To call at our store for the great strength creator and health restorer which we have ever sold Vinol. It is not a patent medicine but the most valuable cod liver preparation made by an extractive concentrating process from fresh livers without a drop of oil to nauseate and upset the stomach and retard its work, and tonic iron which is a needful constituent for the blood added.

We do not believe that there is a person in this vicinity who cannot be benefitted by Vinol at this season of the year. Vinol is delicious to taste and it is recognized as the greatest strength creator for old people, weak, sickly women and children, nursing mothers, and after severe sickness.

Vinol is unequalled for hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Creates an appetite and makes those who are too thin fat, rosy and healthy.

We have had so many experiences with Vinol and seen so many wonderful results from its use that we offer to return money without question if it does not accomplish all we claim for it. McDermid and Jas. Peterborough, Ont., also the Mark Drug store.

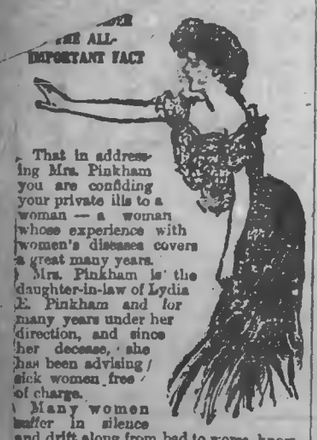
WOMAN!



That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman — a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it "I do not believe it will help me."

The English Orphans

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Lena Rivers," "The Homestead on the Hill," "Tempest and Sunshine," Etc.

Without waiting to read further, Ida ran in quest of Mary, to whom she told what George had written. "You don't know," said she, "how much George asks about you. I never saw him so much interested in any one before, and half the girls in Boston are after him, too."

"Poor fellow, I pity him," said Mary; and Ida continued:

"Perhaps it seems foolish in me to say so much about him, but if you only knew him you wouldn't wonder. He's the handsomest young man I ever saw, and then he's so good, so different from other young men, especially Henry Lincoln."

Here the tea bell rang, and the conversation was discontinued.

When Rose heard that Mary was taking music lessons, she exclaimed to a group of girls with whom she was talking, "Well, I declare, beggars taking music lessons! I wonder what'll come next? Why, you've no idea how dreadfully poor she is. Our summer residence is near the almshouse, and when she was there I saw a good deal of her. She had scarcely anything fit to wear, and I gave her one of my old bonnets, which I do believe she wore for three or four years."

"Why, Rose Lincoln!" said Jenny, who had overheard all, and now came up to her sister, "how can you tell what you know is not true?"

"Not true?" angrily retorted Rose. "Pray, didn't she have my old bonnet?"

"Yes," answered Jenny, "but I bought it of you, and paid you for it with a bracelet Billy Bender gave me —you know I did."

Rose was cornered, and as she saw no way of extricating herself she turned on her heel and walked away, muttering about the meanness of doing a charitable deed, and then boasting of it!

The next day Jenny chanced to go for a moment to Mary's room. As she entered it Mary looked up, saying, "You are just the one I want to see. I've been writing about you to Billy Bender. You can read it if you choose."

When Jenny had finished reading the passage referred to, she said, "Oh, Mary, I didn't suppose you overheard Rose's unkind remarks about that bonnet."

"But I did," answered Mary, "and I am glad, too, for I had always supposed myself indebted to her instead of to you. Billy thought so, too, and as you see, I have undeceived him. Did I tell you that he had left Mr. Selden's employment, and gone into a law office?"

"Oh, good, good, I'm so glad," exclaimed Jenny, dancing about the room. "Do you know whose office he is in?"

"Mr. Worthington's," answered Mary, and Jenny continued:

"Why, Henry is studying there. Isn't it funny? But Billy will beat him, I know he will—he's so smart. How I wish he'd write to me! Wouldn't I feel grand to have a gentleman correspondent?"

"Suppose you write to him," said Mary laughingly. "Here's just room enough," pointing to a vacant spot upon the paper. "He's always asking about you, and you can answer his questions yourself."

"I'll do it," said Jenny, and seizing the pen, she thoughtlessly scribbled off a ludicrous account of her failure, and of the blunders she was constantly committing, while she spoke of Mary as the pattern for the whole school, both in scholarship and behavior.

"There!" said she, wiping her gold pen upon her silk apron (for Jenny still retained some of the habits of her childhood), "I guess he'll think I'm crazy, but I hope he'll answer it anyway."

Mary hoped so, too, and when at last Billy's letter came, containing a neatly-written note for Jenny, it was difficult telling which of the two girls was the happier.

Soon after Mary went to Mount Holyoke she had received a letter from Billy, in which he expressed his pleasure that she was at school, but added that the fact of her being there interfered greatly with his plan of educating her himself. "Mother's ill health," said he, "prevented me from doing anything until now, and just as I am in a fair way to accomplish my object some one else has stepped in before me. But it is all right, and as you do not seem to need my services at present, I shall next week leave Mr. Selden's employment, and go into Mr. Worthington's law office as clerk, hoping that when the proper time arrives I shall not be defeated in another plan which was formed in boyhood, and which has become the great object of my life."

Mary felt perplexed and troubled. Billy's letters of late had been more like those of a lover than a brother, and she could not help guessing the nature of "the plan formed in boyhood." She knew she should never love him except with a sister's love, and though she could not tell him so, her next letter lacked the tone of affection with which she was accustomed to write, and was on the whole a rather formal affair. Billy, who readily perceived the change, attributed it to the right cause, and from that time his letters became far less cheerful than usual.

Mary usually cried over them, wishing more than once that Billy would transfer his affection from herself to Jenny, and it was for this reason, perhaps, that without stopping to consider the propriety of the matter, she first asked Jenny to write to him, and then encouraged her in answering his notes, which (as her own letters grew shorter) became gradually longer and longer, until at last his letters were addressed to Jenny, while the notes they contained were directed to Mary!

CHAPTER XX.

Rapidly the days passed on at Mount Holyoke. Autumn faded into winter, whose icy breath floated for a time over the mountain tops, and then melted away at the approach of spring, which, with its swelling buds and early flowers, gave way in its turn to the long bright days of summer. And now only a few weeks remained ere the annual examination at which Ida was to be graduated.

Neither Rose nor Jenny were to return the next year, and nothing but Mr. Lincoln's firmness and good sense had prevented their being sent for when their mother first heard that they had failed to enter the middle class.

Mrs. Lincoln's mortification was undoubtedly greatly increased from the fact that the despised Mary had entered in advance of her daughters. "Things are coming to a pretty pass," said she. "Yes, a pretty pass; but I might have known better than to send my children to such a school."

Mr. Lincoln could not forbear asking her in a laughing way, "if the schools which she attended were of a higher order than Mount Holyoke."

Bursting into tears, Mrs. Lincoln replied that "she didn't think she ought to be twitted of her poverty."

"Neither do I," returned her husband. "You were no more to blame for working in the factory than Mary is for having been a pauper!"

Mrs. Lincoln was silent, for she did not particularly care to hear about her early days, when she had been an operative in the cotton mills of Southbridge. She had possessed just enough beauty to captivate the son of the proprietor, who was fresh from college, and after a few weeks' acquaintance they were married. Fortunately, her husband was a man of good sense, and restrained her from the commission of many foolish acts. Thus when she insisted upon sending for Rose and Jenny, he promptly replied that they should not come home. Still, as Rose seemed discontented, complaining that so much exercise made her side and shoulder ache, and as Jenny did not wish to remain another year unless Mary did, he consented that they should leave school at the close of the term, on condition that they went somewhere else.

"I shall never make anything of Henry," said he, "but my daughters shall receive every advantage, and perhaps one or the other of them will comfort my old age."

He had spoken truly with regard to Henry, who was studying, or pretending to study, law in the same office with Billy Bender. But his father heard no favorable accounts of him, and from time to time large bills were presented for the payment of carriage hire, wine, and "drunken specs" generally. So it is no wonder the disappointed father sighed, and turned to his daughters for the comfort his only son refused to give.

But we have wandered from the examination at Mount Holyoke, for which great preparations were being made. Rose, knowing she was not to return, seemed to think all further effort on her part unnecessary; and numerous were the reprimands, to say nothing of the black marks which she received. Jenny, on the contrary, said she wished to retrieve her reputation for laziness, and leave behind a good impression. So, never before in her whole life had she behaved so well, or studied as hard as she did during the last few weeks of her stay at Mount Holyoke. Ida, who was expecting her father, aunt, and cousin to be present at the anniversary, was so engrossed with her studies that she did not observe how sad and low-spirited Mary seemed. She had tasted of knowledge, and now thirsted for more; but it could not be; the funds were exhausted, and she must leave the school, never perhaps to return again.

"How much I shall miss my music, and how much I shall miss you," she said one day to Ida, who was giving her a lesson.

"It's too bad you haven't a piano," returned Ida, "you are so fond of it, and improve so fast." Then after a moment, she added, "I have a plan to propose, and may as well do it now as any time. Next winter you must spend with me in Boston. Aunt Martha and I arranged it the last time I was at home, and we even selected your room, which is next to mine, and opposite to Aunt Martha's. Now, what does your ladyship say to it?"

"She says she can't go," answered Mary.

"Can't go!" repeated Ida. "Why not? Jenny will be in the city, and you are always happy where she is; besides, you will have a rare chance for taking music lessons of our best teachers; and then, too, you will be in the same house with George, and that alone is worth going to Boston for, I think."

Ida little suspected that her last argument was the strongest objection to Mary's going, for much as she wished to meet George again, she felt that she would not on any account go to his own home, lest he should think she came on purpose to see him. There were other reasons, too, why she did not wish to go. Henry and Rose Lincoln would both be in the city, and she knew that neither of them would scruple to do or say anything which they thought would annoy her. Mrs. Mason, too, missed her, and longed to have her at home; so she resisted all Ida's entreaties, and the next letter which went to Aunt Martha carried her refusal.

In a day or two Mary received two letters, one from Billy and one from Mrs. Mason, the latter of which contained money for the payment of her bills; but on offering it to the principal, how was she surprised to learn that her bills had not only been regularly paid and receipted, but that ample funds were provided for the defraying of her expenses during the coming year. A faint sickness stole over Mary, for she instantly thought of Billy Bender, and the obligation she would now be under to him forever. Then it occurred to her how impossible it was that he should have earned so much in so short a time; and as soon as she could trust her voice to speak, she asked who it was that had thus befriended her.

Miss —— was not at liberty to tell, and with a secret suspicion of Aunt Martha, who had seemed much interested in her welfare, Mary returned to her room to read the other letter, which was still unopened. It was some time since Billy had written to her alone, and with more than her usual curiosity, she broke the seal; but her head grew dizzy, and her spirits faint, as she read the passionate outpouring of a heart which had cherished her image for years, and which, though fearful of rejection, would still tell her how much she was beloved. "It is no sudden fancy," said he, "but was conceived years ago, on that dreary afternoon when in your little room at the poorhouse your laid your head in my lap and wept, as you told me how lonely you were. Do you remember it, Mary? I do; and never now does your image come before me, but I think of [illegible] wish that you should one day be mine first entered my heart. Morning, noon, and night have I thought of you, and no plan for the future have I ever formed which had not a direct reference to you. Once, Mary, I believed my affection for you returned, but now you are changed, greatly changed. Your letters are brief and cold, and when I look around for the cause I am led to fear that I was deceived in thinking you ever loved me as I thought you did. If I am mistaken, tell me so; but if I am not, if you can never be my wife, I will school myself to think of you as a brother would think of an only and darling sister."

This letter produced a strong effect upon Mary. She thought how much she was indebted to one who had stood so faithfully by her when all the world was dark and dreary. She thought, too, of his kindness to the dead, and that appealed more strongly to her sympathy than aught else he had ever done for her. There was no one to advise her, and acting upon the impulse of the moment, she sat down and commenced a letter, the nature of which she did not understand herself, and which if sent would have given a different coloring to the whole of her after life. She had written but one page, when the study bell rang, and she was obliged to put her letter by till the morrow. For several days she had not been well, and the excitement produced by Billy's letter tended to increase her illness, so that on the following morning when she attempted to rise, she found herself seriously ill. During the hours in which she was alone that day she had ample time for reflection, and before night she wrote another letter to Billy, in which she told him how impossible it was for her to be the wife of one whom she had always loved as an own and dear brother. This letter caused Mary so much effort, and so many bitter tears, that for several days she continued worse, and at last gave up all hope of being present at the examination.

"Oh! it's too bad," said Ida, "for I do want you to see Cousin George, and I know he'll be disappointed, too, for I never saw anything like the interest he seems to take in you."

A few days afterward as Mary was lying alone, thinking of Billy, and wondering if she had done right in writing to him as she did, Jenny came rushing in, wild with delight.

Her father was downstairs, together with Ida's father, George, and Aunt Martha. "Must the first thing I did," said she, "was to inquire after Billy Bender! I guess Aunt Martha was shocked, for she looked so queer. George laughed, and Mr. Selden said he was doing well, and was one of the finest young men in Boston. But why don't you ask about George? I heard him talking about you to Rose, just as I left the parlor."

Mary felt sure that any information of her which Rose might give would not be very complimentary, and she thought right; for when Rose was questioned concerning "Miss Howard," she at first affected her ignorance of such a person and then when George explained himself more definitely, she said, "Oh, that girl! I'm sure I don't know much about her, except that she's a charity scholar, or something of that kind."

At the words "charity scholar," there was a peculiar smile on George's face; but he continued talking, saying, "that if that were the case she ought to be very studious, and he presumed she was."

"As nearly as I can judge of her," returned Rose, "she is not remarkable for brilliant talents; but," she added, as she met Ida's eye, "she has a certain way of showing off, and perhaps I am mistaken with regard to her."

Very different from this was the description given of her by Ida, who now came to her cousin's side, extolling Mary highly, and lamenting the illness which would prevent George from seeing her. Aunt Martha also spoke a word in Mary's favor, at the same time endeavoring to stop the unkind remarks of Rose, whom she thoroughly disliked and who she feared was becoming too much of a favorite with George. Rose was not only very handsome, but she also possessed a peculiar faculty of making herself agreeable whenever she chose, and in Boston she was quite a favorite with a certain class of young men. It was for George Moreland, however, that her prettiest and most coquettish airs were practiced. He was the object which she would secure; and when she heard Mary Howard so highly commended in his presence, she could not forbear expressing her contempt, fancying that he with his high English notions, would feel just as she did with regard to poverty and low origin. As for George, it was difficult telling whom he did prefer, though the last time Rose was in Boston rumor had said that he was particularly attentive to her; and Mrs. Lincoln, who was very sanguine, once hinted to Ida the probability that a relationship would sooner or later exist between the two families.

Rose, too, though careful not to hint at such a thing in Ida's presence, was quite willing that others of her companions at Mount Holyoke should fancy there was an intimacy if not an engagement between herself and Mr. Moreland. Consequently he had not been in South Hadley twenty-four hours ere he was pointed out by some of the villagers as being the future husband of the elder Miss Lincoln, whose haughty, disagreeable manners had become a subject of general remark. During the whole of George's stay at Mount Holyoke Rose managed to keep him at her side, entertaining him occasionally with unkind remarks concerning Mary, who, she said, was undoubtedly feigning her sickness so as not to appear in her classes where she knew she could do herself no credit; "but," said she, "as soon as the examination is over she'll get well fast enough and bother us with her company at Chicopee."

In this Rose was mistaken, for when the exercises closed Mary was still too ill to ride, and it was decided that she should remain a few days until Mrs. Mason could come for her. With many tears Ida and Jenny bade their young friend good-bye, but Rose, when asked to go up and see her, turned away disdainfully, amusing herself during their absence by talking and laughing with George Moreland.

The room in which Mary lay commanded a view of the yard and gateway; and after Aunt Martha, Ida, and Jenny had left, she arose, and stealing to the window, watched the company as they departed. She could readily divine which was George Moreland, for Rose Lincoln's shawl and satchel were thrown over his arm, while Rose herself walked close to his elbow, apparently engrossing his whole attention. Once he turned around, but fearful of being herself observed, Mary drew back behind the window curtain, and thus lost a view of his face. He, however, caught a glimpse of her, and asked if that was the room in which Miss Howard was sick.

Rose affected not to hear him, and continued enumerating the many trials which she had endured at school, and congratulating herself upon her escape from the "horrid place." But for once George was not an attentive listener, notwithstanding his apparent indifference, he was greatly disappointed at not seeing Mary. It was for this he had gone to Mount Holyoke; and in spite of Rose's endeavors to make him talk, he was unusually silent all the way, and when they at last reached Chicopee, he highly offended the young lady by assisting Jenny to alight instead of herself.

"I should like to know what you are thinking about," she said rather pettishly, as she took his offered hand to say good-bye.

With a roguish look in his eye, George replied, "I've been thinking of a young lady. Shall I tell you her name?"

Rose blushed, and looking interestingly embarrassed, answered, that of course 'twas no one whom she knew.

"Yes, 'tis," returned George, still holding her hand, and as Aunt Martha, who was jealously watching his movements from the window, just then called out to him "to jump in, or he'd be left," he put his face under Rose's bonnet, and whispered, "Mary Howard!"

"Kissed her, upon my word!" said Aunt Martha with a groan, which was rendered inaudible to Ida by the louder noise of the engine.

CHAPTER XXI.

In Mrs. Mason's pleasant little dining parlor the tea-table was neatly spread for two, while old Judith, in starched gingham dress, white muslin apron, bustled in and out, occasionally changing the position of a curtain or chair, and then stepping backward to witness the effect. The stuffed rocking-chair, with two extra cushions and a pillow, was drawn up to the table, indicating that an invalid was expected to occupy that seat, while near one of the plates was a handsome bouquet, which Lydia Knight had carefully arranged, and brought over as a present for her young teacher. A dozen times had Lydia been told to "clip down to the gate and see if they were comin';" and at last seating herself resignedly upon the hall stairs, Judith began to wonder "what under the sun and moon had happened."

THE ENGLISH ORPHANS

She had not sat there long ere the sound of wheels again drew her to the door, and in a moment old Charlotte and the yellow wagon entered the yard. Mary, who was now nearly well, sprang out, and bounding up the steps seized Judith's hand with a grasp which told how glad she was to see her.

"Why, you ain't dreadful sick, is you?" said Judith, peering under her bonnet.

"Oh, no, not sick at all," returned Mary, and then, as she saw the chair, with its cushions and pillows, she burst into a loud laugh, which finally ended in a hearty cry, when she thought how kind was every one to her.

She had been at home but a few days when she was solicited to take charge of a small select school. But Mrs. Mason thought it best for her to return to Mount Holyoke, and accordingly she declined Mr. Knight's offer, greatly to his disappointment, and that of many others. Mrs. Bradley, who never on any occasion paid her school bill, was the loudest in her complaints, saying that, "for all Tim never lost a speck, and stood at the foot all summer long when Mary kept before, he'd got so sassy there was no living with him, and she wanted him out of the way."

Widow Perkins instead of being sorry was glad, for if Mary didn't teach, there was no reason why Sally Ann shouldn't. "You'll never have a better chance," said she to her daughter, "there's no stiffcut needed for a private school, and I'll clap on my things and run over to Mr. Knight's before he gets off to his work."

It was amusing to see Mr. Knight's look of astonishment when the widow made her application. Lydia, who chanced to be present, hastily retreated behind the pantry door, where with her apron over her mouth she laughed heartily as she thought of a note, which the candidate for teaching had once sent him, and in which "I's" figured conspicuously, while her mother was "polightly thanked for those yeast!"

Possibly Mr. Knight thought of the note, too, for he gave the widow no encouragement, and when on her way home she called for a moment at Mrs. Mason's, she "thanked her stars that Sally Ann wasn't obliged to keep school for a livin', for down below where she came from teachers warn't 'fust cuts!'"

One morning about a week after Mary's return, she announced her intention of visiting her mother's grave. "I am accustomed to so much exercise," said she, "that I can easily walk three miles, and perhaps on my way home I shall get a ride."

Mrs. Mason made no objection, and Mary was soon on her way. She was a rapid walker, and almost before she was aware of it, reached the village. As she came near Mrs. Campbell's the wish naturally arose that Ella should accompany her. Looking up she saw her sister in the garden and called to her.

"Wha-a-t?" was the very loud and uncivil answer which came back to her, and in a moment Ella appeared round the corner of the house carelessly swinging her straw hat, and humming a fashionable song. On seeing her sister she drew back the corners of her mouth into something which she intended for a smile, and said, "Why, I thought it was Bridget calling me, you looked so much like her in that gingham sunbonnet. Won't you come in?"

"Thank you," returned Mary, "I was going to mother's grave and thought perhaps you would like to accompany me."

"Oh, no," said Ella, in her usual drawling tone, "I don't know as I want to go. I was there last week and saw the monument."

"What monument?" asked Mary, and Ella replied:

"Why, didn't you know that Mrs. Mason, or the town, or somebody, had bought a monument, with mother's and father's and Franky's and Allie's names on it?"

Mary waited for no more, but turned to leave, while Ella, who was anxious to inquire about Ida Selden, and who could afford to be gracious now that neither Miss Porter nor the city girls were there, called after her to stop and rest when she came back. Mary promised to do so, and then hurrying on, soon reached the graveyard, where, as Ella had said, there stood by her parents' graves a large handsome monument.

William Bender was the first person who came into her mind, and as she thought of all that had passed between them, and of this last proof of his affection, she seated herself among the tall grass and flowers which grow upon her mother's grave, and burst into tears. She had not sat there long ere she was roused by the sound of a footstep. Looking up, she say before her the young gentleman who the year previous had visited her school in Rice Corner. Seating himself respectfully by her side, he spoke of the three graves, and asked if they were her friends who slept there. There was something so kind and affectionate in his voice and manner that Mary could not repress her tears, and snatching up her bonnet, which she had thrown aside, she hid her face in it and again wept.

For a time Mr. Stuart suffered her to weep, and then gently removed the gingham bonnet, and holding her hand between his, he tried to divert her mind by talking upon other topics, asking her how she had been employed during the year, and appearing greatly pleased when told that she had been at Mount Holyoke. Observing, at length, that her eyes constantly rested upon the monument, he spoke of that, praising its beauty, and asking if it were her taste.

"No," said she, "I never saw it until to-day, and did not even know it was here."

"Some one wished to surprise you, I dare say," returned Mr. Stuart. It was manufactured in Boston, I see. Have you friends there?"

Mary replied that she had one, a Mr. Bender, to which Mr. Stuart quickly rejoined, "Is it William Bender? I have heard of him through our mutual friend, George Moreland, whom you perhaps have seen."

Mary felt the earnest gaze of the large, dark eyes which were fixed upon her face, and coloring deeply, she replied that they came from England in the same vessel.

"Indeed!" said Mr. Stuart. "When I return to the city, shall I refresh his memory a little with regard to you?"

"I'd rather you would not," answered Mary. "Our paths in life are very different; and he of course would feel no interest in me."

"Am I to conclude that you, too, feel no interest in him?" returned Mr. Stuart, and again his large eyes rested on Mary's face with a curious expression.

But she made no reply, and soon rising up, said it was time for her to go home.

"Allow me to accompany you as far as Mrs. Campbell's," said Mr. Stuart. "I am going to call upon Miss Ella, whose acquaintance I accidentally made last summer. Suppose you call too. You know her, of course?"

Mary replied that she did, and was about to speak of the relationship between them, when Mr. Stuart abruptly changed the conversation, and in a moment more they were at Mrs. Campbell's door. Ella was so much delighted at again seeing Mr. Stuart that she hardly noticed her sister at all, and did not even ask her to remove her bonnet. After conversing awhile upon indifferent subjects, Mr. Stuart asked Ella to play, saying he was very fond of music. But Ella, like other fashionable ladies, couldn't of course play anything—"was dreadfully out of practice and besides that, her music was all so old fashioned."

Mr. Stuart had probably seen such cases before, and knew how to manage them, for he continued urging the matter until Ella arose, and throwing back her curls, sauntered toward the piano, saying she should be obliged to have some one turn the leaves for her. Mr. Stuart of course volunteered his services, and after a violent turning of the music-stool by way of elevating it, and a turning back by way of lowering it, Ella, with the air of a martyr, declared herself ready to play whatever Mr. Stuart should select, provided it were not "old."

A choice being made, she dashed off into a spirited waltz, skipping a good many notes, and finally ending with a tremendous crash. Fond as Mr. Stuart was of music, he did not call for a repetition from her, but turning to Mary asked if she could play.

Ella laughed aloud at the idea, and when Mary replied that she did play a little, she laughed still louder, saying, "Why she can't play, unless it's 'Days of Absence' with one hand, or something of that kind."

"Allow me to be the judge," said Mr. Stuart, and leading Mary to the piano, he bade her play anything she pleased.

Ida had been a faithful teacher, and Mary a persevering pupil, so that whatever she played was played correctly and with good taste; at least Mr. Stuart thought so, for he kept calling for piece after piece, until she laughingly told him her catalogue was nearly exhausted, and she'd soon be obliged to resort to the scales!

Ella looked on in amazement, and when Mary had finished playing, demanded of her where she had learned so much, and who was her teacher; adding that her fingering was wretched; "but then," said she, "I suppose you can't help it, your fingers are so stiff!"

For a moment Mr. Stuart regarded her with an expression which it seemed to Mary she had seen before, and then consulting his watch, said he must go, as it was nearly car time. After he was gone Ella asked Mary endless questions as to where she met him, what he said, and if she told him they were sisters. "How elegantly he was dressed," said she. "Didn't you feel dreadfully ashamed of your gingham sunbonnet and gown?"

"Why, no," said Mary. "I never once thought of them."

"I should, for I know he notices everything," returned Ella; and then leaning on her elbow so as to bring herself in range of the large mirror opposite, she continued, "Seems to me my curls are not arranged becomingly this morning."

Either for mischief, or because she really thought so, Mary replied, "that they did not look as well as usual;" whereupon Ella grew red in the face, saying that "she didn't think she looked so very badly."

Just then the first dinner bell rang, and starting up Ella exclaimed, "Why-ee, I forgot that ma expected General H—— to dine. I must go and dress this minute."

Without ever asking her sister to stay to dinner, she hastily left the room. Upon finding herself so unceremoniously deserted, Mary tied on the despised gingham bonnet, and started for home. She had reached the place where Ella the year before met with Mr. Stuart, when she saw a boy, who she knew was living at the poorhouse, coming down the hill as fast as a half-blind old horse could bring him. When he got opposite to her he halted, and with eyes projecting like harvest apples, told her to "jump in, for Mrs. Parker was dying, and they had sent for her."

"I've been to your house," said he, "and your marm thought mebby I'd meet you."

Mary immediately sprang in, and by adroitly questioning Mike, whose intellect was not the brightest in the world, managed to ascertain that Mrs. Parker had been much worse for several days, that Sal Furbush had turned nurse, faithfully attending her night and day, and occasionally sharing "her vigils" with a "sleek, fancy-looking girl, who dressed up in meetin' clothes every day, and who had first proposed sending for Mary." Mary readily guessed that the "sleek, fancy-looking girl" was Jenny, and on reaching the poorhouse she found her suspicions correct, for Jenny came out to meet her, followed by Sally who exclaimed, "Weep, O daughter, and lament, for earth has got one woman less and heaven one female more!"

Passing into the house, Mary followed Jenny to the same room where once her baby sister had lain, and where now, upon the same table, lay all that was mortal of Mrs. Parker. Miss Grundy, who was standing near the body, bowed with a look of very becoming resignation, and then as if quite overcome, left the room. Just then a neighbor, who seemed to be superintending affairs, came in, and Mary asked what she could do to assist them.

"Nothing until to-morrow, when, if you please, you can help make the shroud," answered the woman, and Jenny, catching Mary around the neck, whispered, "You'll stay all night with me; there's no one at home but Rose, and we'll have such a nice time."

Mary thought of the little room upstairs where Alice had died, and felt a desire to sleep there once more, but upon inquiry she found that it was now occupied by Sally Furbush.

"You must come and see my little parlor," said she to Mary, and taking her hand she led her up to the room, which was greatly improved. A strip of faded but rich carpeting was before the bed. A low rocking-chair stood near the window, which was shaded with a striped muslin curtain, the end of which was fringed out nearly a quarter of a yard, plainly showing Sally's handiwork. The contents of the old barrel were neatly stowed away in a square box, on the top of which lay a worn portfolio, stuffed to its utmost capacity with manuscript.

"For all this elegance," said Sally, "I am indebted to my worthy and esteemed friend, Miss Lincoln."

But Mary did not hear, for her eyes were riveted upon another piece of furniture. At the foot of the bed stood Alice's cradle, which Billy Bender had brought there on that afternoon now so well remembered by Mary.

"Oh! Sally," said she, "how came this here?"

"Why," returned Sally, hitting it a jog, "I don't sleep any now, and I thought the nights would seem shorter if I had this to rock and make believe little Willie was in it. So I brought it down from the garret, and it affords me a sight of comfort, I assure you!"

Mary afterwards learned that often during the long winter nights the sound of that cradle could be heard, occasionally drowned by Sally's voice, which sometimes rose almost to a shriek, and then died away in a low, sad wail, as she sang a lullaby to the "Willie who lay sleeping on the prairie at the West."

As there was now no reason why she should not do so, Mary accompanied Jenny home, where, as she had expected, she met with a cool reception from Rose, who merely nodded to her, and then resumed the book she was reading. After tea Mary stepped for a moment into the yard, and then Rose asked Jenny what she intended doing with her "genteel visitor."

"Put her in the best chamber, and sleep there myself," said Jenny, adding that "they were going to lie awake all night just to see how it seemed."

But in spite of this resolution, as midnight advanced Jenny found that Mary's answers, even when Bill Bender was the topic, became more and more unsatisfactory, and finally ceased altogether. Concluding to let her sleep a few minutes, and then wake her up, Jenny turned on her pillow, and when her eyes again opened the morning sun was shining through the half-closed shutters, and the breakfast bell was jingling in the lower hall.

When Mary returned to the poorhouse she found a new arrival in the person of Mrs. Perkins! The widow had hailed Mike as he passed her house the day before, and on learning how matters stood, offered to accompany him home. Mike, who had an eye for "fancy-looking girls," did not exactly like Mrs. Perkins' appearance. Besides that, his orders were to bring Mary, and he had no idea of taking another as a substitute. Accordingly, when on his return from Mrs. Mason's he saw the widow standing at the gate, all equipped with parasol and satchel, he whipped up his horse, and making the circuit of the schoolhouse, was some way down the road ere the widow suspected his intentions. "Thanking her stars" (her common expression) "that she had a good pair of feet," Mrs. Perkins started on foot, reaching the poorhouse about sunset. She was now seated in what had been Mrs. Parker's room, and with pursed-up lips, and large square collar very much like the present fashion, was stitching away upon the shroud, heaving occasionally a long-drawn sigh, as she thought how lonely and desolate poor Mr. Parker must feel!

"Will you give me some work?" asked Mary, after depositing her bonnet upon the table.

"There's nothing for you," returned Mrs. Perkins. "I can do all that is necessary, and prefer working alone."

"Yes, she shall help too, if she wants to," snapped out Mrs. Grundy, with one of her old shoulder jerks. "Mary's handy with the needle, for I larnt her myself."

In a short time Mrs. Perkins disappeared from the room, and Sally's little bright eyes, which saw everything, soon espied her out in the woodshed asking Mr. Parker "if Polly Grundy couldn't be kept in the kitchen where she belonged." Scarcely had she left the shed when Miss Grundy herself appeared, fretting about "the meddlesome old widow who had come there stickin' round before Mrs. Parker was hardly cold!"

This put a new idea into Sally's head, and the whole household was startled as she broke out singing, "the loss of one is the gain of another," and so forth. Mrs. Perkins proposed that she should be shut up, but Miss Grundy, for once in Sally's favor, declared, "she'd fight before such a thing should be done;" whereupon Mrs. Perkins lamented that the house had now "no head," wondering how poor Mr. Parker would get along with "such an unmanageable crew."

Numerous were the ways with which the widow sought to comfort the widower, assuring him "that she ached for him clear to her heart's core! and I know how to pity you, too," said she, "for when my Hezekiah died I thought I couldn't stand it." Then by way of administering further consolation, she added that "the wust was to come, for only them that had tried it knew how lonesome it was to live on day after day, and night after night, week in and week out, without any husband or wife."

Mr. Parker probably appreciated her kindness, for when after the funeral the following day she announced her intention of leaving home, he ordered Mike to "tackle up," and carry her. This was hardly in accordance with the widow's wishes, and when all was in readiness, she declared that she was afraid to ride after Mike's driving. Uncle Peter was then proposed as a substitute, but the old man had such a dread of Mrs. Perkins, who Sal (for mischief) had said was in love with him, that at the first intimation he climbed up the scuttle hole, where an hour afterwards he was discovered peeping cautiously out to see if the coast was clear. Mr. Parker was thus compelled to go himself, Miss Grundy sending after him the very Christian-like wish that "she hoped he'd tip over and break the widow's neck!"

CHAPTER XXII.

Vacation was over, and again in the halls of Mount Holyoke was heard the tread of many feet, and the sound of youthful voices, as one by one the pupils came back to their accustomed places. For a time Mary was undecided whether to return or not, for much as she desired an education she could not help feeling delicate about receiving it from a stranger, but Mrs. Mason, to whom all her feelings were confided, advised her to return, and accordingly the first day of the term found her again at Mount Holyoke, where she was warmly welcomed by her teachers and companions. Still, it did not seem like the olden time, for Ida was not there, and Jenny's merry laugh was gone. She had hoped that her sister would accompany her, but in reply to her persuasions Ella answered that "she didn't want to work—she wasn't obliged to work—and she wouldn't work!" quoting Rose Lincoln's "pain in the side, callous on her hand, and cold on her lungs," as a sufficient reason why everybody should henceforth and forever stay away from Mount Holyoke.

FERROZONE

You are getting pale and thin. You're dragged down with a "don't care" feeling that makes life most unhappy. Your strength is fleeting away, and weakness is creeping in. Every day your chances for cure becomes smaller.

Trouble is you don't assimilate your food, consequently the body is poorly nourished. The blood is thin, lacks those red corpuscles that denote health.

You can only prevent a total collapse by building up all the powers of the body with Ferrozone, which will surely make you well. Ferrozone creates tremendous appetite, increases the power of digestion, and insures perfect assimilation. Everything you eat is at once converted into nourishment.

FERROZONE makes rich, pure blood, a surplus of energy, new life for the nerves and all over-strained organs. Robust health will glow on the cheeks, jovial spirits, increased weight, and a clear, active brain will evidence a few of the benefits that follow Ferrozone.

The effect of Ferrozone is instant, yet permanent. For upbuilding and invigorating the listless and depressed it has no equal. It's the concentrated nourishment in Ferrozone that makes it so beneficial. We guarantee it contains no opiates, no alcohol, nothing but the most strengthening qualities known in medicine. Won't you use Ferrozone; it will surely make you well.

GAINED 15 POUNDS.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 228 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. I weigh fifteen pounds heavier than ever before, and feel like a new man.

The Making of a Successful Wife

MAN'S MINIATURE FAILINGS.—Let Bill Smoke Around the House if It Keeps Him at Home—Don't Expect a Mere Male Biped to Be a Paragon of Propriety—His Physical Comfort.

[Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.]

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—It takes some women longer than others to wake up to the fact that their husbands are not truly and absolutely and altogether perfect, and some are likewise slower than others in becoming reconciled to the commonplace. I don't know what you expected of Bill, but it seems to me that I have already put it pretty plain to you that whatever it was he would fall considerably short of the mark, being human and a man. And it's a mighty good thing that he does, too, for woman's ideal man won't fit into the everyday life of this practical age. He'd be run in by the cops before he got a block away from home just on suspicion. He'd be as lonesome as the little boy that got lost in the cornfield. Did I ever tell you that story? Remind me of it the next time I'm at home. It's a pretty good story, but just now I've got some things to say that will be hard to keep within the limit of a two cent stamp.

You present a pretty big indictment against him. At any rate, I've no doubt it looks that way to you. You say that he wants to smoke at home; that he drops various and sundry things, like magazines and cuffs and such, around the house, and that sometimes in the evening he even goes so far as to put his feet on the library chairs. That's awful, simply awful! But, my dear little girl, it might be worse. These are grievous shortcomings; I'll have to admit it, even though I plead guilty to them myself. But these very failings prove to me that my estimate of William is correct. He's just a man, a plain, ordinary man, but still he is a man. Somehow or other we just can't make our conduct jive with the edicts laid down for the pure, the good and the beautiful, and when a woman gets a man whose faults are home grown she'd better accept them with resignation and thankfulness and then proceed to make virtues of them.

"He'd be run in by the cops.

No Nonsense About Billy.

For virtues they can be, little girl, though they are negative. The very charges you make against William indicate to me that he loves his home, and when a man manifests an affection for his own fireside you can bet your sweet little life that he has in him the materials that good husbands are made of. Your charges show me that he spends his evenings at home and that he is up in the morning clear headed and ready for business. They show me that there is no nonsense about Billy. He isn't one of those fellows who want to embroider violets on the summer clouds. He's on to his job. He recognizes the fact that the chief object of his existence is to provide are a common trouble. Impurities which should be thrown off from the body have a tendency to remain in the system, thus clogging the pores and giving rise to all sorts of disagreeable skin troubles. Zam-Buk applied to the skin has a most wholesome effect. It stimulates and helps the skin to throw off any impurity and restores the skin to a healthy state.

"Zam-Buk is the best household balm ever brought into a home." Such is the opinion of Mrs. Sarah McDonald, of Birr, (Ont.) She says:—"My little girl had a severe and obstinate rash on her skin. I applied Zam-Buk a few times and the skin trouble which had defied all other remedies, went away like magic."

bread and oleo and a few other things, like stuffed olives and embroidered shirt waists, for you. Therefore and consequently he must hustle. You probably don't know it—few women do—but it's a pretty serious proposition, this business of taking care of a family. It's a responsibility that mighty soon takes the superfluous sentiment out of a man. Understand me, now, I said superfluous, the kind that slops over and runs down the sides like molasses on a jug, just as sweet as that on the inside, but gummy and useless.

A safety valve, as it were.

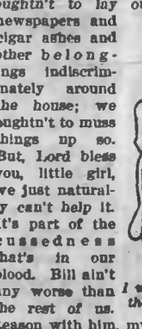
But, getting back to Billy's faults, I want to tell you how they look to a man, to an old man, who has always believed that good manners and courtesy, which come pretty near being the same thing, are just as important at home and a little more so than anywhere else, but who doesn't look upon the "Handy Manual of Etiquette" as the law and the gospel nor accept as infallible the teachings of the professor of deportment in the young ladies' seminary. And, firstly, as to smoking: That, I admit, is a fault, but it is one with so many saving graces that it really ought to be encouraged by the Society For the Promotion of Domestic Happiness. It is pretty generally accepted that the natural, inborn, innate cussedness of the masculine sex has to have an outlet, a sort of moral or mental safety valve, as it were, to keep it from tearing loose and breaking up things—some of the Ten Commandments, for instance—and it is a fact beyond question that a good cigar or one of its decent substitutes will answer that purpose with less harm to himself and less damage to his surroundings than anything else. You may grant all this and still wonder why he can't do [illegible] away from home. If so, your college education is defective, for it failed to teach you some mighty important things about the effects of tobacco on the human system, particularly the human brain. Taken in moderation, its action is at once sedative and stimulating. It promotes digestion, quiets the nerves, and while it tranquillizes the mind it doesn't deaden it. On the contrary, its mental effect is that of oil on a squeaky axle. It makes the wheels run easier and at the same time faster.

On the curbstone alone.

A Man's Physical Comforts.

A good dinner, a comfortable chair, the company of a sympathetic and loving wife and a fragrant Havana make a combination that will carry a man about as near to heaven as he can get on this side of the Jordan. It brings out all that is good in him, removes the worries of the day, straightens out the wrinkles in his brain, makes him more amiable, a pleasanter companion, a better husband. Leave out the cigar, and the cares of business are likely to stay with him; he is grumpy and irritable, ready to quarrel at the drop of the hat and about as entertaining as a lobster salad in the throes of digestion. If you make him go out and sit on the curbstone alone while he takes his after dinner smoke the effect is morally and physically bad, and the first thing you know he'll be chasing off to some place where he can smoke in comfort. That's the beginning of the end. It's a wise woman who lets her husband smoke at home, and if my advice has any weight with you you'll encourage the habit in Billy—in moderation, mind you—but for goodness' sake beg him to get a better brand of cigars than the one he gave me as I was leaving home the last time.

The other habits that you object to are just failings, and they are so nearly universal among the wearers of trousers that their absence would indicate something radically wrong. I don't know why it is, and I don't think the scientific fellows ever tried to explain it, though they have wasted their lives in investigating things of much less importance, but the fact remains that few men can be really, truly comfortable unless they can get their feet off the floor when they sit down. I have a kind of notion that it's one of nature's methods of equalizing the circulation of the blood. Possibly women had the same instinct originally, but ages of cruel repression seem to have effaced it. At any rate, it doesn't appear to worry them, while it does have a pretty considerable to do with the cheerfulness of the other sex. I think I have pointed out to you the importance of making a man comfortable in order to keep him contentedly at home. Well, my dear, pedal elevation is one of the means to that end. I don't suppose you know that Abraham Lincoln used to study law with his feet on the mantelpiece. No? Well, he did, and it was one of the surest indications of his greatness. But I wouldn't encourage Bill to go that far. It's all right in a bachelor apartment, but I'll admit that it is neither pretty nor dignified in the home. Nor is such an extreme elevation necessary to his comfort. A chair will do, any old chair, but don't deny poor William that solace for his evening hours.



The one he gave me.

Disorder Is Man's First Law.

You've probably read somewhere that order is nature's first law. Some old timer with a reputation for wisdom to maintain is said to have been responsible for it. It may be so, but my experience with nature forces me to doubt. However, that's neither here nor there. The point I want to make is that whether nature has any such an ordinance or not, first or last, it's doggoned certain that there's no law of that kind in the statute books of man. You notice I don't say mankind. I mean man, just plain man, with whiskers and starched shirts. With women it's different. Order is not only their first law, but it's the first paragraph in their constitution. That tidy must hang just so; that sofa pillow must stand exactly in this position; for the land's sake, I wonder who raised that window shade so high! Disorder is more truly masculine, and in this respect man is at his best, or, rather, his worst, at home. I am mighty sorry about this; honestly I am. It ain't right. We really oughtn't to lay our umbrellas and newspapers and cigar ashes and other belongings indiscriminately around the house; we oughtn't to muss things up so. But, Lord bless you, little girl, we just naturally can't help it. It's part of the cussedness that's in our blood. Bill ain't any worse than the rest of us. Reason with him, my dear. Show him how much it adds to your work and your worry. Show him how tremendously important it is from the feminine standpoint that everything should be in its proper place and stand at the proper angle. But go at him gently. Tell him about it when he's feeling in a good humor. We're all aware of this failing, but most of us are apt to bristle up when you come at us too suddenly. Maybe you can educate it out of Bill. I hope so, little girl; I really do. But go slow. It's a big job.

I wonder who raised that window shade.

You see, my dear, it all comes back to the very first thing I told you, that men ain't much account anyhow, and you've got to take them pretty much as they come, faults and failings and all, and do the best you can with the material. Your Bill's a good deal above the average, but he's just a man, and you can't hope to make him all that you think he ought to be. If you did so you probably wouldn't like the job yourself after you'd finished and got a square look at it. I wouldn't countenance any vices—don't believe Bill has any—but a wise wife will shut her eyes to many of the faults and failings of her husband, make virtues of others and rub out the rest like your mother used to do my headaches.

You wouldn't like the job yourself.

It's getting late and I've got a hard day's work before me tomorrow, so good night. Your loving old dad,

JOHN SNEED.

P. S.—I opened this to inclose the address of my cigar dealer at home. Tell Bill if he'll ask this man for my favorite brand he'll get a smoke that will make the sun shine on a cloudy day. J. S.

A Wise Mouse.

The cat had watched the little hole in the barn for hours at a time every day, but the wise mouse had watched the cat, and so he had never been caught.

But one night, when the moon was hidden, the mouse sauntered out in search of food. It was so dark that he did not see the cat, who sat behind a bush watching for him. In less time than it takes me to write it the cat had seized the poor little trembling mouse. "Now I shall eat you," threatened the cat as he put the mouse down on the ground, with one paw on his back that he might not escape.

"Very well," sighed the wise mouse, "but will you first grant me one request?"

"Yes," replied the cat, "I will do that, as it is customary to grant last requests to people who are about to die. What is it?"

"I have often listened to your singing and greatly admired it. Will you please sing one song to me before you eat me?"

"With pleasure," replied the cat, for he was very vain about his voice. So he straightened himself up and sang with all his might. He forgot all about the wise mouse until he finished his song, and when he looked around for the applause he expected the mouse had vanished.—New York Press.

The Deacon's Philosophy.

Deacon Walker philosophizes thus: I overlook lots of things, but here is one fact that hasn't got away from me. It is a whole lot easier to sit back in the congregation and criticise the sermon than it is to get up in the pulpit and preach a crackerjack yourself. Somehow or other people just can't get the idea out of their heads that way down at the bottom of every old maid's trunk is the photograph of the man she could have married. I have noticed that when a girl deliberately baits her hook and goes to fishing for a husband she is more apt to land a crawfish than a black bass. "Agamemnon," said I to one of the members of our church the other day, "aren't you going to give anything toward the preacher's salary this year?" "No," he replied very emphatically. "I gave $5 one year and didn't get a bit more trade from the members, and I made up my mind that it was simply throwing money away."—Kansas City Journal.

Felt His Importance.

Lord John Russell, when on a visit to Queen Victoria at Balmoral, asked Her Majesty's own piper to have some one play in his presence. "What kind o' a piper do you want?" asked the man. "Just such another as yourself," said the English statesman. Drawing himself up, the musician said grandly, "There's plenty o' lords like yourself, but very few pipers like me."—London Mail.

Keir Hardie's London Home.

Mr. Keir Hardie's London home is a picturesque old house in Nevill's Court, a quaint little alley connecting Fetter Lane with the great printers' colony of New Street Square. The simple stone-paved pathway that leads from one end of the court to the other is only a few feet wide. Mr. Keir Hardie's modest mansion, which is fully 400 years old, is built of massive timber through and through, with irregularly projecting casements, winding wooden stairway, and outer walls of plaster stained and tanned with the weather and smoke of centuries.

There is a pleasant little story—and a true one—of Mr. Keir Hardie's discovery of this London home of his. Wishing to be nearer his work in Fleet street, the Labor leader gave up an almost equally ancient house in Chelsea, where he had lived ever since he came to town, and wandered about seeking a lodging after his own heart. Chance directed his footsteps to Nevill's Court, and tapping at the door of the very house now tenanted by him, he applied for the vacant rooms. The worthy landlady, however, after looking him up and down, refused to let him have them without references. The good woman's astonishment can be imagined when the tweed-clad stranger reeled off the names of a dozen members of Parliament as intimate sponsors for his respectability.

THE TEMPERATURE NEVER VARIES

The draft construction of the GREAT IDEA steel range insures a perfect regularity of heat—every GREAT IDEA is fitted with an oven thermometer that will prove this. The temperature is always in exact control.

The baffle plates fitted to all oven bottoms in the GREAT IDEA, and the quarter-inch air space between the cast iron oven top and the steel oven top insures an even distribution of heat. The flues throughout—even the flues under the oven—are protected with three thicknesses, one of asbestos and two of steel, thus preventing escape of heat from the range body.

CAN KEEP THE CUP.

British Yachtsmen Will Leave America Cup Regulations Severely Alone.

Dublin, Oct. 2.—Sir Thomas Lipton again has expressed his deep regret at the refusal of the New York Yacht Club to accept his challenge to a race for the America's Cup, and in a lengthy letter to the Royal Irish Yacht Club he sets forth his reasons in detail. The committee of the club met last night.

The committee of the Royal Irish Yacht Club, in cabling its formal acknowledgment of the refusal of the challenge, expresses the regret of the committee and all the members of the club that a race could not be arranged. At the same time the secretary of the committee cables Sir Thomas Lipton's in full.

One of the leading honorary officials of the Royal Irish Yacht Club, said the committee, had approved of confining the reply to a mere formal acknowledgment. The terms of the communication of the New York Yacht Club precludes discussion, although the position assumed in the New York Yacht Club's resolutions was debatable on several points.

Yachting men on this side of the Atlantic regards the resolutions of the New York Yacht Club, as removing the America's Cup out of the field of sport. Sir Thomas Lipton would have put himself in the wrong with British yachting opinion had he acted otherwise than he has done, and it is now to be hoped that he will turn his attention to the sport to the home waters.

SCRAMBLED FOR STOCK.

Shares Were Sold From Pulpit While Prayer Meeting Was In Progress.

New York, Oct. 2.—While a fervent prayer meeting was going on Monday night in the Macedonia classroom, in the basement of Big Bethel, a colored church on West Twentieth street, shares in an African gold mine were sold at 10 cents a share on the pulpit platform of the edifice. The subscription was so liberal that announcement was made of an advance to 25 cents a share after midnight.

The mining property staggers under the formidable title of the Arkansu Usuwar & Dompem Syndicate, and is situated on the gold coast of West Africa, where the tribal chiefs granted a concession to a New York company, incorporated in South Dakota. Alfred C. Cowan, the colored lawyer, is chairman of the company's committee of exploitation.

$5,000,000 GIVEN.

Wealthy American Lady Bequeathes Vast Fortune to Charity.

Philadelphia, Oct. 2.—By the will of Miss Anna T. Jeanes, well known for her philanthropic work among the Society of Friends and the negro race, which was admitted to probate yesterday, she left nine-tenths of her entire estate, valued at about $5,000,000, to charity.

By the will $1,029,000 is bequeathed for the benefit of the negro race. Some time ago this bequest was paid over to Booker T. Washington and Hollis Burke Frissalle, as trustees, and a codicil, dated Feb. 27, 1907, revoked that particular provision of the will. Among the institutions benefited are Swarthmore College and a score of hospitals in this city and elsewhere.

THE CANADIAN BOOK.

Rudyard Kipling Looks For It to Be Written by No Outsider.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Before leaving for [illegible] Rudyard Kipling was asked as to his writing a Canadian book, and he replied that he might, but could not say.

But he added: "The great Canadian book will not be by me or any outsider. It will be by a Canadian. You are a young country. You are growing. Go on developing your resources, and some day in the fullness of time will come the Canadian book."

No Farewell Tour This.

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 2.—General William Booth, commander of the Salvation Army, of the world, was given a warm welcome in this city last night. This is the second place he has visited since coming from Canada. The opera house, where he spoke, was crowded to the doors, and the venerable religious worker was loudly cheered. Commander Eva Booth also made a brief address. In the course of his address, General Booth said: "This is no farewell tour, and I have never given the matter of discontinuing my present active work a thought, for as long as there is sufficient strength left in my body, I shall be found on the firing line, fighting vice and lending a helping hand where wretchedness and poverty stalk."

Keir Hardie In India.

London, Oct. 2.—(C. A. P.)—Kier Hardie is making a triumphal tour of Eastern Bengal under the auspices of native agitators, and is feted and garlanded with flowers.

He declares there is no reason why India shouldn't be self-governing, like Canada.

Located by an "Ad."

Vancouver, Oct. 2.—W. H. Alward of St. Thomas, Ont., through an advertisement, has just located here his missing sister, wife of W. A. O'Hara, a hotel clerk.

She is one of the heirs to $70,000 left by her aunt, Mrs. Ostrander, killed in the San Francisco earthquake.

FRANCE TO COMPETE.

Proposal to Send Rifle Team to Enter For the Palma Trophy.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—France may send a team for the next Palma trophy match. A letter to this effect has been received by Major Winter, secretary of the D. R. A., from the French National Rifle Association.

In July, Major Winter sent to the French association the regulations of the last match. The communication, however, apparently reached the president too late for action.

He has written for the results of the recent contest at Rockliffe, and has further stated that if a comparison with their own effieiency is favorable, a team will doubtless be entered in 1908. Les Tireurs Francaise would add even greater international interest.

TAFT IN TOKIO.

States That War Between Japan and States Would Be Criminal Insanity.

Tokio, Oct. 2.—Secretary of War Taft aroused the wildest enthusiasm and loud cheers when, during the course of his speech at the banquet given in his honor by the municipality of Tokio and the Chamber of Commerce, he declared that war between the United States and Japan would "be a crime against modern civilization, and as wicked as it would be insane," adding that neither people desired it, and that both Governments would do their utmost to guard such an awful catastrophe.

The Secretary spoke with intense earnestness, his speech being the result of careful deliberation and preparation.

Viscount Shibusawa presided at the banquet, and, in welcoming Mr. Taft, paid a glowing tribute to the greatness of the nation which the Secretary represented, the friendliness which the United States had always displayed for Japan, and the influence which America exerted throughout the world.

ENDS IN DEATH.

Family Quarrel Results In Attempted Murder and Subsequent Suicide.

Brockville, Oct. 2.—As the result of a domestic quarrel Daniel Reno of Newton Falls attempted to kill his wife, at the home of her aunt in Antwerp, afterwards putting a bullet into his own head and dying about an hour later. The woman left her home and came to Antwerp, leaving their 19 months old babe with Reno. He followed her and while begging the woman for a kiss in the yard he drew a revolver and fired, the bullet taking effect in the arm. Mrs. Reno fell. Regaining her feet she ran quickly towards the house, when Reno fired again, the bullet grazing the head of a neighbor who was attracted by the first shot.

Reno then turned the weapon on himself, putting a ball into his head near the right temple and fell to the ground. He raised himself upon his elbow and fired the remaining cartridge at the child sitting in a buggy a few feet away. The bullet missed it.

"CORPSE" AROSE.

Young Woman Climbs Out of Coffin While Mourners Flee.

Chicago, Oct. 2.—A despatch from Wheeling, W. Va., says: Relatives of Mrs. Frederick Hartzell, the young wife of a farmer living near Huntington, were bemoaning her death Monday, a few minutes before the minister arrived to conduct the funeral rites, when she suddenly sat up and climbed out of the coffin.

There was a rush of mourners for the open air, windows being used as exits. The minister swooned when a pale-faced woman, over whose body he had been called to conduct services, met him at the door.

The family was too poor to have a physician, and the woman fell into a swoon, in which state she remained for four days.

Archbishops Convene.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Archbishop O'Connor of Toronto and Archbishop Langevin of St. Boniface reached Ottawa yesterday morning.

Four more archbishops are expected to-day to attend the annual meeting of the archbishops of the Dominion, held in the palace here, for the discussion of matters pertaining to the church in Canada.

All will be present except Mgr. Ord of Victoria. Those who will be here are: Archbishops Begin, Quebec; O'Connor, Toronto; Bruchesi, Montreal; Gauthier, Kingston; Langevin, St. Boniface; McCarthy, Halifax, and Duhamel, Ottawa. The proposed plenary council may be one of the matters discussed.

Hail Insurance.

Winnipeg, Oct. 2.—The question of hail insurance is being taken up for practical consideration by the Manitoba Government.

Hon. Mr. Roblin has instructed E. M. Wood, deputy municipal commissioner, to enquire into the question of hail insurance and obtain all available data with the view of assisting the Government in its conclusions regarding this important matter.

It is understood that if a comprehensive and workable scheme can be shown to be feasible the Government will introduce legislation to that end.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables About Steady—Hogs Up at Buffalo; Lower at Chicago.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—London cables are firmer, at 10c to 12¾c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9¾c to 10¼c per pound.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market since Friday, as reported by the railways, were 73 carloads, composed of 1274 cattle, 495 hogs, 1629 sheep and lambs, 296 calves and one horse.

Exporters.

There were none bought for export, unless it was a few bulls, which were worth from $3.50 to $4.25 per cwt.

Butchers.

Picked lots were quoted at $4.70 to $5, but these were equal in quality and better than many of the best exporters offered lately, and few in number; steers, 1150 to 1300 lbs., $4 to $4.30; common to medium, light cattle, $3.25 to $3.75; cows, $2.50 to $3.75; canners, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a fair delivery for a Tuesday's market. Messrs. Murby bought 150, the bulk of which were from 600 to 800 lbs. each, at $2.25 to $2.75 per cwt.; a few steers, 1050 to 1100 lbs. each, sold at $3.25 to $3.60; bulls at $2.25 to $2.60 per cwt.

Milch Cows.

The milkers and springers offered were generally speaking a common lot, with a few fair to good quality. Prices ranged at from $30 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Too many horsey, coarse calves are coming on the market, with few of the right kind. Prices were unchanged at $3 to $7 per cwt., but it must be remembered that only prime new milk-fed calves bring the latter price, and there are few of this class being offered.

Sheep and Lambs.

Trade in sheep and lambs was steady at unchanged quotations. Export ewes, $4.25 to $4.40; bucks, $2 to $3.50; lambs, $4.75 to $5.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

[illegible] prices unchanged at $6.12½ for selects and $5.87½ for lights and fats.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 300 head; fair demand and steady; prime steers, $6 to $6.50.

PASTOR'S WIFE GONE.

Lisbon Lady Left Her Home a Week Ago and Has Not Since Been Seen.

Brockville, Oct. 2.—Mrs. H. A. Prescott, wife of the Congregational minister at Lisbon, has been missing from her home since the middle of last week. She drove to Ogdensburg and later moved to Prescott on the ferry boat. There all trace of her ceases.

The matter has been the subject of much discussion, and while there are many rumors afloat in the neighborhood, there is no satisfactory explanation of the affair. The couple have been resident but a few months, and it is said their domestic relations were not the happiest. Mrs. Prescott is about 19 years of age.

Found Mother Dead.

St. Thomas, Oct. 2.—Mrs. Annie Muir passed away some time during Monday night at the home of her brother Mr. Dan Grant, Talbot street east. Deceased had not been in good health for some time, but her sudden demise was not expected. When her daughter went into her bedroom yesterday morning she found her mother dead. Deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grant, and was born in Peel Township, Wellington County, 50 years ago.

Barn Burned, Crops Destroyed.

Ingersoll, Oct. 2.—Damage estimated at $4,000 was caused by a fire Monday afternoon on the farm of Joseph E. Daniels, West Oxford. The fire was discovered in the barn.

The building, all this season's crop, and five cows were destroyed. Insurance $1,800.

Crushed Under Wheels.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Frederick Gutsman, aged 15, is dead at Arnprior. He fell off a wagon, was crushed by the wheels and died in his sister's arms before a doctor arrived.

Constitution For China.

London, Oct. 2.—A special despatch from Pekin says the Dowager Empress has issued a decree declaring the Government of China to be a constitutional monarchy.

Major-Gen. Ardagh Dead.

London, Oct. 2.—Major-Gen. Sir John Charles Ardagh, ex-director of military intelligence at the British War Office, died yesterday at Carnarvon, Wales.

Women as Aldermen.

From England comes the following little comment anent the recent bill to admit women to sit as aldermen and councillors:

The bill to enable women to sit as aldermen and councillors on county and borough councils has revived all the usual arguments for and against women serving on public bodies. It is regarded as likely to promote the suffragist movement, and some even see in it the paving of the way to women sitting in parliament and upon the bench at assizes. It does not seem likely that the bill will be passed this session, in spite of the Government's intentions to this effect; but if it does it is not likely to lead to any of these results. Women are already elegible for election on boards of guardians, parish councils, and school boards, and if the ratepayers do not want women on the larger councils they would have simply to say so at the polling booths. In all probability it would be found that women are more disposed to be careful of the ratepayers' interests than men. In any case there is nothing very convincing in all the objections urged against their serving upon local public bodies, which, in many cases, are not so perfect as to be impermeable to improvement.

MUST STAND TRIAL FOR FRAUD

American Millionaires to Face Criminal Indictments.

INSURANCE OFFICIALS NAMED

District Attorney Jerome Will Push Cases to the Bitter End—Men High In Financial World Must Defend Themselves on Serious Counts —Forgery and Perjury Are to Be Charged Against Them.

New York, Oct. 2.—Leading officials of several of the large life insurance companies were summoned by District Attorney Jerome yesterday to appear before the criminal branch of the Supreme Court to plead to indictments found against them by the grand jury.

Among the officials summoned were Charles S. Fairchild, formerly secretary of the United States Treasury, and formerly trustee of the New York Life Insurance Co.; George W. Perkins, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., also formerly vice-president of the same company, both of whom are accused of forgery; John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., accused on seven counts of forgery and three of perjury; Frederick A. Burnham, President George D. Eldredge, formerly vice-president, all of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Co., against whom collectively are pending fifteen indictments alleging forgery and perjury; Walter R. Gillette, formerly vice-president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co., charged with forgery, and Thomas D. Jordan, former comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance Co., against whom there are eighteen counts alleging forgery and perjury.

They are all ordered to appear in court on Monday.

A CONVICT WITNESS.

Crown Bank Embezzler Will Be Called to Witness Box From Penitentiary.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—Edwin Banwell, at present serving a sentence in the penitentiary for theft from the Crown Bank, will be brought to Toronto soon to testify in the court suit of the bank against the London Guarantee & Accident Co.

Banwell decamped with $48,000, of which all but $1,700 was recovered after the bank had spent $8,000 in getting him back from Jamaica. The bank wants to be reimbursed for the latter amount.

The guarantee company paid $2,500 into court, of which $1,700 is for the money lost, and $800 for the pro rata share of the expenses, which is all for which the company maintains it is liable.

The bank had two policies with the London company—one on Banwell for $5,000 and one on the accountant, through whose negligence it was alleged the defalcation of Banwell was possible, for $6,000.

Canada Will Settle Japan's Claim Without Protest.

VANCOUVER TO MAKE GOOD

Government Will Look to Western City For Re-embursement—Damages Will Run Over $5,000 — Special Meeting of the Cabinet Discusses the Whole Situation—Consul-General Made His Demands.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—The Dominion Cabinet met yesterday afternoon, with Sir Wilfrid Laurier presiding, but only three other members, Hon. Mr. Scott, Secretary of State; Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and Mr. Lemieux, Postmaster-General, were present.

According to one of the gentlemen there, no business was touched on except that relative to the claim made for the Japanese Government.

Dr. Munro, the Canadian immigration agent at Vancouver, was asked on Monday as to his authority for demanding passports direct to Canada from Japanese upon arriving there. A telegram was received from him yesterday, stating that it was formerly the custom to do this, and he was merely revering to it. He has been asked to stop it, as it is an infringement of the treaty.

Japanese Consul-General Noese waited on the Government yesterday and presented claims for damages caused by the riots in Vancouver. The damages will amount to between $5,000 and $6,000. The Cabinet was to meet and pass the amount. There will be no quibbling over it. The money will be paid and the City of Vancouver will be asked to refund the amount.

At yesterday afternoon's meeting, said one of the quartette that were present, we had barely a quorum and did nothing definite about the matter. Mr. Munro will be heard from in a day or two—at least that is what we expect—and until he is we thought it wiser to do nothing formal and so the claim was not passed yesterday.

Notwithstanding this, it is known practically certain that it will be passed, and, as intimated above, the Government will then look to Vancouver to settle.

Father and Son Burned.

Hamilton, Oct. 2.—Last evening about 7 o'clock George Hntchison got his boy to hold a lighted candle while filled a lamp with gasoline.

He did not have to wait long for the trouble. There was an explosion and the boy, man and shop were soon enveloped in flames.

The blacksmith and boy were severely burned and the shop was gutted, the loss amounting to several hundred dollars.

Steamer Metamora Burned.

Parry Sound, Oct. 2.—On Sunday evening, the big tug Metamora of the Midland wrecking fleet was burned to the water's edge in Shawanaga Bay.

The vessel ran on a rock and the crew went ashore and while absent from the boat it rolled over on its side and caught fire.

A BATTLE CRY HAS BEEN SOUNDED

License Holders to Organize to Fight Temperance Party.

WILL HOLD A CONVENTION

Consolidation of Various Liquor Interests of the Province Planned—Party Politics to Cut No Figure In the Campaign—Gathering In Toronto on Oct. 22—Secretary of the Association Resigned.

Toronto, Oct. 2.—A meeting of the executive of the Ontario License Holders' Protective Association was held yesterday, when E. Dickie, for 13 years secretary, tendered his resignation, which was accepted with regret. John Stormont of Toronto was elected secretary pro tem. Arrangements were also made for a mass meeting of all branches of the trade, to be held in this city on Oct. 22, for the purpose of reorganization.

T. P. Phelan of the Canadian Railway News Co., who is president of the Ontario License Holders' Association, made the frank statement last night that it had been found impossible to secure the harmony and unity of purpose necessary as an organization whose objects were to defend the interests of the trade, when each of the cities had its separate association, not responsible to the general body, picayune jealousies, as he explained, giving rise to friction.

"The idea is a general consolidation of the different interests engaged in the liquor trade. There are now different organizations throughout the province at present, but a plan of reorganization contemplates making such organizations committees of the whole body."

Mr. Phelan denied that politics played any part in the life of the association.

If the hopes of the executive are not disappointed, the meeting to be held within the next three weeks will be attended by between 500 and 800 license holders.

Mr. Phelan said that it was intended to adopt a vigorous policy of protection against would-be extremes of over zealous temperance workers.

A member of the executive, in discussing the reorganization plans last night, said that some dissatisfaction existed among license holders under the present regime, and that this was especially the case in the larger cities. He intimated that politics had something to do with the unsettled conditions and that there was a feeling in some quarters that the present Ontario Government was not dealing as generously in the matter of licenses as the former Government. Some of the members of the provincial association were "lukewarm," and it was felt that the system of a general organization for the province and separate associations for each of the cities of Ontario did not work well.

JOHN W. MORRIS KILLED.

Struck by a Train—Formerly Drove a 'Bus at Bowmanville.

Bowmanville, Oct. 2—John W. Morris, formerly driver on Glover's 'bus line for many years, was killed near Galbraith's crossing on the Grand Trunk Railway yesterday afternoon by the passenger train leaving Toronto at 1.50. He had lately been employed as section man in Conner's gang. Yesterday afternoon he was work at a culvert, and had occasion to cross the track for a shovel just as two trains were approaching in opporite directions. Morris evidently did not observe the train from the west, as he stood on the track watching the other train passing, and was struck by the engine and thrown on the side of the track. He lived about half an hour after the accident.

Morris was about 48 years of age, and had lived in Bowmanville all his life. He leaves a wife and five children.

Sarnia Man Killed.

Regina, Sask., Oct. 2.—Charles Nelson, a C. P. R. yard foreman, while working on the Arcola switch Monday coupling coaches, gave the signal to the brakeman, but eventually got caught between the coaches when the train started to move. No one knew of the accident, and the engine was uncouple and taken away, but immediately after the car inspector found Nelson in a terribly crushed condition jammed between two coaches. The engine was immediately rushed back and Nelson removed, but life was extinct. He was 28 years of age, and has a brother in Regina. His parents reside in Sarnia.

Boy Shot and Killed.

Mallorytown, Ont., Oct. 2.—A boy was accidentally shot and killed here yesterday.

Kenneth Ferguson, aged 3 years, was playing with his brother Alfred, aged 5 years, about noon yesterday, they having got possession of a loaded gun.

In some unaccountable manner Kenneth was shot through the head and instantly killed.

An Indian Murdered.

Vancouver, Oct. 2.—The provincial police are investigating the murder of an Indian who was found with his head covered in the water near the logging camp of the Hastings mill, this city. It is stated he was murdered by white men in a free fight, the result of a too liberal supply of whisky.

New Steamer for Lake Trade.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—A new steamer, destined for the lake-carrying trade, arrived in Montreal last night from Dundee. She is the G. R. Cole, and was built in Great Britain for the St. Lawrence and Chicago Navigation Co. for the grain carrying trade. She left for Toronto last evening.

Prisoner Expert Organist.

Kingston, Oct. 2.—Hillhouse Brown, the defaulting bank cerk of Hamilton, who is at present serving a term in the penitentiary, is an expert organist, and plays the organ in the prison chapel every Sunday morning and afternoon. He is an exemplary prisoner.

BOMB EXPLODED.

Fiendish Attempt to Assassinate Sheriff as He Entered His Home.

Baker City, Ore., Oct. 2—An attempt was made Monday night to assassinate former Sheriff Harvey K. Brown by blowing him up with a dynamite bomb.

One of his legs was blown off, an arm badly mutilated, and internal injuries were caused by the concussion.

Brown was returning home and as he opened his gate the bomb exploded, wounding Brown and blowing in the windows of the house. The authorities are unable to find any cause for the deed.

Mrs. Brown was prostrated by the shock and may not recover.

$100,000 For Opera Box.

New York, Oct. 2.—For the first time in nearly five years a box in the famous "diamond horseshoe" in the Metropolitan Opera House has changed owners.

For a price in excess of $100,000, Henry Clay Frick, millionaire iron master and long-time friend and associate of Andrew Carnegie, has purchased a coveted place in the parterre row, box No. 19, which, since the opera house was built, had been owned by the late Henry I. Barbey, who died last winter.

This is the first outright sale of a parterre box in the Metropolitan since January, 1903, when the late Heber R. Bishop's box was bought by James R. Haggin for $80,000.

Three Years In Kingston.

St. Catharines, Oct. 2.—James Wadsworth, the Queenston hotelkeeper, convicted on Monday of receiving goods stolen by five boys from the Grand Trunk cars at Niagara Falls, appeared before Judge Carman for sentence yesterday morning. Wadsworth pleaded that he had been drunk at the time, and that if he got free he would not be seen within 4,000 miles of Canada for ten years. The judge stated that the offence was too serious to be lenient with and sentenced him to three years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Canadian Clergy Swindled.

New York, Oct. 2.—Israel Salinki, a young Russian Jew, pretending conversion to Christianity and missionary worker to proselyte the Jews from Judism for the Christian Church, was exposed by Dr. Daniel H. Overton, pastor of the Greene avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn, and Rev. Hickman Denning, rector of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, last week, as being a rank fraud and swindler, having victimized clergymen and congregationalists, Catholics and Protestants, out of many thousands of dollars in Boston, Montreal, Cleveland and other cities, including Toronto, by begging contributions and taking up church collections.

Finding the police here after him he skipped out. From papers found in abandoned luggage he swindled clergymen and congregations in Toronto out of nearly nine hundred dollars.

Intercolonial Wins.

Montreal, Oct. 2.—The arbitrators appointed to settle the differences between the Grand Trunk and Intercolonial Railroads regarding running rights to the latter over the Grand Trunk from St. Rosalie Junction, have announced their reward.

The Intercolonial claimed that traffic originating on the Grand Trunk System west of Montreal destined for points on the Intercolonial was being forwarded elsewhere than via Montreal.

The award upholds the contentions of the Intercolonial and holds that the Grand Trunk committed a breach of contract, and an accounting has been tendered to ascertain the damage.

CUPID MISSED SEPTEMBER; IS GETTING BUSY FOR OCTOBER

Cupid is belated this year in his visit to Peterborough. The month of September was productive of fewer than the usual number of weddings, but October is evidently going to prove a more remunerative month for the marriage license vendor, the jeweller, and the parson, for yesterday, the first day of the month, no less than three weddings were recorded, and the prospects are good for a heavy crop of October nuptial events. The cold weather of the summer evidently put Cupid out of the reckoning, and he is getting in his archery a month later.

THE "BESSIE BUTLER" SCORNS THE "BOOZE"

Doesn't Take Kindly to The Bottle —Cold Water is Her Element And She Slides Gracefully Into The Canal

A SUCCESSFUL LAUNCHING

Many Attend The Interesting Function—Miss Gertrude McClellan Performs the Christening—The "Bessie Butler" is a Stoutly Built Boat

Consistent with her graceful appearance the staunch new government steamer, the "Bessie Butler" was yesterday afternoon gracefully launched into her native element—the Trent Valley Canal—at a short distance below the celebrated Peterborough Lift Lock. No steamer could have taken to the water more neatly and with more dispatch than did the "Bessie Butler." The moment the last supporting stays were hammered away she slid evenly down the slippery timbers into the waters of the Trent Canal.

The occasion was an interesting one and marks another link in the chain of importance the Dominion Government attaches to the canal and to the City of Peterborough. The descent from land to water and the christening of the "Bessie Butler" was witnessed by a large number of interested citizens among whom were many members of the fairer sex.

Miss Gertrude McClellan, daughter of Mr. J H McClellan, the superintendent of the canal, performed the interesting ceremony of the christening of the new steamer—but not without some little difficulty, due to the stoutness of the bottle containing the liquid. The "Bessie Butler" in common with many others of the feminine sex consciously, it appeared, scorned the spirits and it was not until several attempts were made that the bottle consented to be broken to perform the christening of the new steamer.

Steps Into Canal

In the first two attempts the bottle refused to break and fell into the canal with the red, white and blue ribbons attached. Four men in a punt fished with rakes and poles for some minutes when the christening material was again secured. Two more attempts were made to break the bottle against the hull of the steamer, the second was successful and Miss McClellan named the "Bessie Butler" amid loud applause.

The boat is named after Miss Bessie Butler, daughter of Mr. M J Butler, Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals. The steamer is a stout craft, well and substantially built. She is 90 feet long, with a 17-foot beam and an 18-foot hold, 100 tons burden and when completed will travel 15 miles an hour. The hull is stoutly built of oak with steel ribs and she is being fitted up with compound engines, the power to be supplied by Scotch boilers; electric light; accommodation for passengers and complete furnishings. When fully completed the estimated cost is $20,000.

A Successful Launch

The "Bessie Butler" has been built by the Polson Iron Works of Toronto, the employees of which have been working at the new steamer for the past five or more weeks. Mr. Jno. Main, chief engineer for the Company, many was present yesterday at the launching which was very capably supervised by Mr. A A Bauckham, the superintendent of the construction. Standing on a box the latter gentleman gave the necessary orders to clear away the props beneath and within six minutes' time the starboard had dipped down to meet the waters of the Trent Canal.

At the conclusion of the launching ceremony Hon. J. R. Stratton was asked to take the platform, which yesterday was a pile of lumber on the banks of the canal, and act as chairman over the after meeting.

Correctly Named

The chairman stated that it gave him very much pleasure to preside on such an important occasion. The "Bessie Butler" had been neatly launched and properly named. Perhaps no Deputy Minister had performed his duties more satisfactorily than had the present Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals, Mr. M. Butler, and it is a graceful compliment to his daughter Bessie, to have the steamer named after her.

The importance of the launching of this vessel was perhaps not fully known or appreciated. The Trent Valley Waterway was being rapidly completed by the Government of the day, and more work had been performed during the present administration than had previously been done. The waterway was now open from Lake Simcoe to Healey's Falls, and the work of superintending and the attention necessary to see that the work was done required means of navigating the waters, and this boat was being built and provided by the Government to enable the officers to properly discharge their duties in seeing that everything was done correctly, and the repairs and work done promptly from one end of the canal to the other. The speaker had observed that during the first six months of the present fiscal year the revenue of Canada had reached the immense sum of over fifty million of dollars, which was more than thirteen million dollars more than was collected during the whole of the first year of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government, and it was expected that the receipts for the current year would exceed one hundred millions of dollars, which was three times as much as was received during the first year of the Laurier administration. Now that the revenue is of such immense proportions, it is but fitting that the great natural resources of Canada should be utilized to the fullest possible extent, and it is fitting and right that this great waterway, which will be of so much importance when completed, to the whole of Canada, should have a portion of this revenue expended upon its development. This steamer, the "Bessie Butler," is but another means of recognising the importance of our waterway. He hoped that when the "Bessie Butler" was completed she would be the means of still further connecting and improving the conditions between the Georgian Bay and Lake Ontario. (Applause.) He had much pleasure in calling upon West Peterborough's popular representative, Mr. R. R. Hall.

Mr. R.R. Hall's Speech

Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P. for West Peterborough, was the second speaker. It was always an interesting occasion he said, to see a boat launched out on its journey of life, and the builders of the "Bessie Butler" were to be congratulated upon the easy and graceful launching that had just been effected. The placing of the "Bessie Butler" on the canal was a signification of the value what the Government placed in the Trent waterway. The Government had recognized that the canal was an important strip of water and that it should be kept up. The waterway is now navigable for a distance of 160 miles, and only the opening of some forty more is necessary to complete the chain so that a boat such as the "Bessie Butler" was needed for navigation purposes. The launching was another evidence of the chain of circumstances showing the value of the canal, all of which is now under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government. It had been maintained that there would not be water enough in the canal to run a good sized boat, but all doubts of that nature have now been cast aside. There are in this district about three hundred square miles of waterway upon which, at the present time, there are many improvements under way all along the chain of waters of the Trent Canal.

The Work Underway

At Buckhorn a dam is being constructed at a cost of $55,000, and also a new concrete bridge, which is only costing the county of Peterborough the sum of $3,000. Tenders have been invited for a $50,000 dam at Bobcaygeon, and surveys are being made for a dam and lock at Rosedale.

WHAT JOHN SNEED THINKS OF MINATURE ILLS OF MANKIND

John Sneed's daughter's husband, Willie, wants to smoke in the house, but the wife can't see it that way. John takes a hand in the game though, and helps Willie out. He tells his "little girl" a few things about the minature ills of men in general and of her Willie, in particular, and when he gets through the chances are that Willie will be able to smoke his cigar in the house, so long as he doesn't burn the curtains. Read the fifth letter of John Sneed to his daughter to-day. It is published on page four.

TO HELP THE PETERBOROUGH Y.M.C.N. IS COMMENDABLE OBJECT OF CITIZENS' WORK

BOY FALLS OFF STONEY LAKE STEAMER AND HE DROWNS IN THE LAKE

Sad Accident Yesterday Afternoon Near Davis' Island—First Fatal Accident At The Lake of The Season

SON OF MICHAEL COSTELLO

A Pupil of The St. Peter's School and Only Six Years of Age—Body Recovered This Morning

The season of 1907, could not pass by without a fatal drowning accident in the waters of Stony Lake, and the only victim this year is Francis Costello, a lad of only six years of age, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Costello, Thomas street, Peterborough.

His was the first life claimed during the whole year by Stony Lake, where so many spent the summer season in fun and amusement, and his death is of a particularly sad nature.

The little fellow has spent the past two weeks visiting at the home of his father's uncle, Mr. P. P. Young, Young's Point, and had he lived, would have been home again in a few days. On several occasions he went up the lakes with the steamer "Stoney Lake," to spend the day on board, while the boat crew were engaged in carrying freight to the various lake points.

Yesterday he left the point as usual to take in the round trip as far north as Mount Julian, but never reached that destination. The steamer called with some freight at Mr. A. L. Davis' island, and just as it was turning to sail for Mount Julian, the little fellow tumbled off, unseen by any of the crew. The speed at which the steamer was travelling was sufficient to draw his small body beneath, and not being able to swim could not prevent himself from going under. The body was not seen afterwards so that it was impossible for any of the crew to effect a rescue, although everything in the power of the captain, mate and engineer, was attempted. The body, however, was recovered this morning.

In Deep Water

As the little fellow tumbled from the steamer he fell into deep water. The crew of the Stoney Lake, assisted by a number of others, spent the remainder of the day searching for the body, but darkness had fallen without making the discovery. The boy's parents were informed of the sad affair last night, and his father, Mr. Michael Costello, left immediately for the scene of the fatality. This morning the diligent search was renewed and about ten o'clock the body was recovered by the assistance of grappling irons near the spot where he so mysteriously disappeared. It was brought by steamer to Lakefield and sent from there to the residence on Thomas street.

An Active Youth

Little Francis had not yet reached his seventh birthday, but was as quick, and active, and as clever, as a boy of ten. He went to St. Peter's school in the city, and had reached the Part II. class, where he was making rapid progress in his studies. He was a boy beloved by his parents, who, together with three children, are left to mourn his loss. He was the second oldest in the family, the others being Arthur, Agnes and Gladys.

When he left home his mother intended that he should only visit at the Point for a few days, but being rather delicate and fond of the outing, he had remained about two weeks.

At the time of going to press no arrangements had been made for the funeral of the deceased, but the remains will be buried in St. Peter's Cemetery here. Mr. and Mrs. Costello have the sympathy of many friends in the city who will regret to learn of such an untimely death of a boy so young and so promising.

ST. ANDREW'S PASTOR HAS RETURNED

After Trip to His Native Home in Nova Scotia—Will Give Important Lecture

Rev. J. G. Potter returned from his trip to the native city, Halifax, Nova Scotia, yesterday, and will conduct the prayer meeting rally in St. Andrew's Church tall to-night at 8 o'clock. The subject will be: "What Is My Larger Duty to My Church and Pastor?" Strangers and visitors also are cordially welcome.

Mr. Potter attended the great public meeting which greeted General William Booth in Victoria Hall, Halifax, and intends at an early date giving a lecture on the "Secret of the Success of the Salvation Army."

The chairman of the big meeting at Halifax was Hon. C. H. Murray, Premier of Nova Scotia. The Lieut. Governor proposed a vote of thanks to General Booth, which was seconded by Judge Longley.

SIX DAYS' FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN TO RAISE BUDGET FOR THE Y. M. C. A

Effort to Collect $1800 To Be Inaugurated To-Night at Gathering Of Board Of Directors And Citizens

TO BE A COMBINED MOVE

Enthusiastic Meeting of Those Interested Was Held Last Night —Will Clear Association By December 31st

To raise $1,800 in a six days campaign is the object of the Peterborough Young Men's Christian Association.

This campaign will be inaugurated to-night at a tea to be held at the Association building and participated in by the Board of Directors, chairmen of Committees and Citizens' Committee.

With this amount raised the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., will commence with a clean sheet on the last of the year, and the new secretary will take over the work with the expenses all met.

The effort is one into which the board and citizens are entering with enthusiasm, and there seems little reason to doubt that it will be crowned with success.

What was pronounced by the older Y.M.C.A. workers present—the most enthusiastic and in every way the best meeting of Directors and workers of the Y.M.C.A.—was that held in the building last evening.

Mr. Robt. Harding, President of the Association, occupied the chair and several important items of business relating to the Association were discussed, among others the question of a successor to Mr. Williamson, the present general secretary. The Board is unable to give any definite information yet, but hope that a good man will soon be secured.

Mr. Williamson then outlined the plan of the Six Day Campaign to raise the budget necessary to meet all the expenses of the Association by December 31st, and start 1908 with a clean sheet.

He stated that the Finance Committee had been unable to secure Mr. Thomasson, of the Provincial Staff, and further stated that he felt the obligation rested upon him to leave the work in good financial position with the budget all provided for.

He said the citizens of Peterborough could make no better endorsation of the work than by putting their shoulder to the wheel and securing the $1,800 required by the budge in subscriptions. He appealed to the Board and the Committeemen to leave the hands of his successor free to develop the Association work and not ask him to shoulder the financial burden.

Short addresses were made by many of those present, including Messrs. Harding, Bennet, Shook, Roger, Stabler, Dixon, Conmat and Thomson.

The young men were strongly represented at the meeting, and Messrs. Coleman, McLaren, Shook, Galley, Fred Hall and others responded for them. All promised active co-operation in the campaign it was decided, in addition to the amount raised by the Citizens' Campaign Committee that the young men raise $500 in new membership fees by Tuesday evening next, October 8th when the campaign will close.

Mr. Williamson leaves the city on October 10, so much work must be done before then.

The following were appointed to act as a Citizens' Campaign Committee, with Mr. J. C. Shook as chairman:— All the members of the Board, together with the following: Messrs. D. Hughes Charles, J Crawford, T J Matthews, R R Hall, Jas. Kendry, J R Stratton, T E Bradburn, Mayor McWilliams, E G Patterson, W H Denham, H Farr, W H Hamilton, F Brownscombe, H Read, J D Collins, Jas. Hamilton, Peter Campbell, Richard Hall, J H Larmour, W H Hill, R E Layfield, Jno. Carlisle, Robt. Neill and F H Dobbin.

Mr. Wm. McLaren is chairman of the young men's campaign committee, and Mr. Fred Hall of the boys' campaign committee.

All the members of the committees will meet at the building 8 o'clock to-night at 6.30 for tea, after which the campaign will be discussed and practically launched.

THE "LIMERICK" CRAZE HAS REACHED THE CITY

The Limerick craze has reached Peterborough. Every mail carries contributions to the various competitions being conducted as advertising propositions, and some of the poetic ability given evidence to and inspired by the fad which in England is carrying the people away, is said to be creditable.

The Limerick published in the Examiner last night on the assessment question has elicited a number of responses, and anyone who wishes to contribute to it is invited to do so.

RAILWAYS HOLD KEY TO THE COAL SITUATION SAY LONDON FUELD EALERS

The Coal Men in That City Are Not Following Lead Set by Those In Other Places and Prices Are Not Raised

MAY REMAIN THE SAME

The coal dealers of London are models. While the fuel dispensers in other towns and cities are giving the price of coal a boost, the London dealers—philanthropists that they are—leave the price at the point at which it has stood prior to October 1st.

A despatch from that city to-day says:

"The coal dealers of this city are not following the lead of many of the dealers in outside towns who have announced a general advance of 50 cents per ton on coal to take effect on and after October 1st.

The majority of the coal dealers seem to be of the opinion that they will not need to raise the price for some time, if they have to raise it at all. They say that it all depends on the railway companies who are at present unable to handle their traffic owing to the shortage of cars. So far, however they have managed to keep everyone fairly well applied and while none of the dealers has as much stock on hand as he would like to see, they all have enough to meet present demands."

There was no leaking, no cracking and no trouble, and everything in connection with the heating apparatus worked smoothly.

DECISIONS GIVEN IN LOCAL CASES AT OSGOODE HALL

Legal intelligence in the Toronto Globe, recording the findings in the Divisional Court, at Osgoode Hall, gives the following information concerning cases of local interest tried there yesterday:—

Port Hope Brewing & Malting Co., vs. Cavanagh.—Judgment (oral) on appeal by plaintiffs from judgment of MacMahon, J., 8 O.W.R., 985. Appeal in present form fails, but leave given to plaintiffs to amend their statement of claim by setting up the contract in question and making this contract the foundation of the claim, and thereupon there will be judgment for the plaintiffs upon the contract for the amount of their claim; reserving, however, the rights of the defendants under contract referred to. No costs to plaintiffs or defendants of this appeal or of action subsequent to issue of writ. R. A. Ward, Port Hope, and C A Moss for plaintiffs. W E Middleton for defendant.

Quinn vs. Fairbairn.—G H Watson, K.C., for defendant. S T Medd, Peterborough, for plaintiffs. Argument concluded from yesterday. Appeal dismissed with costs.

A "CINDERELLA" BARN DANCE

Interesting Social Event Will be Held in The Market Hall on October 24th

Arrangements are being made for a "Cinderella" barn dance to be held in the Market Hall on Thursday, October 24, from 8 to 12 p.m. Ladies in aprons and gentlemen in overalls and wide straw hats. A committee of St. John's young people is responsible for the dance, and are hard at work on the necessary arrangements. Miss Birdie Dawson is convenor of the ladies' committee and Mr. R. J. Devey of the gentlemen's committee.

NEW FREIGHT SHEDS FOR G.T.R.

Report Says They Will be Erected At Corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Sts.

The report that the Grand Trunk Railway intends to build new freight sheds at the corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets is confirmed by the negotiations with the City Council in connection with adding into their property on Bethune street, a report of which appears in another column. It is said to be the intention of the company to build new freight offices and sheds on the site of Mather's grain sheds. The latter will be removed to the corner of Bethune and Wolfe streets, which property the company will [illegible] street a siding.

KEEP GUESSING

The Review still keeps guessing. In last night's issue it showed renewed anxiety to learn whether or not Mr. Stratton will be a candidate in East Peterborough. The Examiner cares as little as a large proportion of the public what the Review thinks, or opines, or dreams. If Mr. Stratton attends an exhibition in the East Riding, or attends an annual meeting of the party he supports, or even says good morning to a Lakefield resident in passing through the village to the lakes, he is "paving the way." If he writes a letter to political friends in the Liberal party in connection with party matters, quite outside and unconnected with a nomination, he is "making an appeal for their influence." If a letter appears in any of the country papers, dealing in any way with political matters, it is Mr. Stratton. Is there no other political influence, public or private, besides Mr. Stratton? If the Review possesses any letter to any one in the East Riding in which Mr. Stratton asked for his support for a nomination why doesn't it publish it? But this it will not do, for, as a matter of fact, there is, and has been, no such letter. Is there any law against any friend of Mr. Stratton writing a letter to the district newspapers, with or without his approval? The question of Mr. Stratton being or not being a candidate is a matter between him and a properly constituted Liberal convention; the fear or taunts of the Review will not influence either of them, one way or another. Nor will our contemporary be able to find out anything until there is sometime to find out. It will have to keep guessing.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Borden's journalistic admirers have taken to calling him names. The Winnipeg Tribune describes him as a "live wire." The modern tendency is to bury live wires.

In the Brockville bye-election both candidates, remarks the Brockville Times, come from Athens, a classic village in Leeds county. The contest should be a fierce one when Greek meets Greek, then comes the tug of war.

The Brockvilel Times innocently asserts that "Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, has carried surprise and consternation into the ranks of the Laurier Government, and its supporters, by the vigour of his fight against 'wine, women and graft.'" Next we shall hear of a flock of doves striking terror and consternation into the ranks of a colony of hawks.

One brilliant evidence of the progress of the Canadian North-west, is the fact of the flourishing journalism the new country sustains. The last number of the Edmonton Daily Bulletin is at hand. This number is a twelve-page seven-column issue, well filled with live news matter, and contains nearly forty columns of live advertising matter. Progress is as strongly reflected, as it is helped and stimulated by, the columns of the newspapers of a community.

Henry Clews & Co., in their financial circular of September 28th, specify some of the causes which have led to the present business reaction in the United States. It is strange, the Brantford Expositor thinks, that there should be any kind of a setting up in a highly protectionist country, in which the exports largely exceed the imports, and we commend the fact to Mr. W F Cockshutt, who has sought to make the Fielding tariff responsible for any slackening of business which may have taken place in this country. Somehow or other, we cannot resist the conclusion that the reasoning of Mr. Cockshutt is based on false premises.

Mr. Borden in British Columbia, condemns the Anglo-Japanese treaty and praises Premier McBride's fight for better terms from the Federal Government. Mr. Borden, the London Advertiser points out, had no word of criticism for the Anglo-Japanese treaty when it came before Parliament. As to Premier McBride his demands were opposed by every other Provincial Government, including the Conservative Governments of Manitoba and Ontario. Mr. Borden is showing a chameleon-like facility for taking on the colour of the ground he happens to stand on. He is making speeches which would not be acceptable outside of British Columbia. This is not the role of a Federal leader.

The most active work is being performed below Peterborough. Mr. Alex. Grant, chief engineer, on the Trent Canal, is looking after the work with diligence and the $700,000 which the government recently placed in the supplementary estimates towards the completion of the canal is being expended. Below Peterborough the government is adopting a new policy in laying our the locks. Those to be constructed will be 175 feet by 33 feet in size which is much larger than the old ones.

In the Hastings section field notes and surveys are being taken for a new lock and a dam and at Healey's Falls the construction of three locks and a dam are going on as expeditiously as possible. The contract has been let for two locks and two dams at Campbellford at a cost of $550,000, and at Ranney Falls tenders will soon be invited for construction of five locks and five dams. At Chisholm's Rapids there will be one lock and a dam and at Frankford 5 locks and 3 dams for which tenders will soon be called. On October 10th tenders will be closed for the Trenton section of the Trent Canal.

To Speedy Conclusion

Therefore, said Mr. Hall, the government intends to bring to a speedy conclusion the work on the Trent Canal and the launching of the "Bessie Butler" should be a link of interest to those residing in the districts contiguous to the canal waters. He congratulated the officers of the canal and Polson Iron Works of which Mr. John Main was the head in the engineering department and it was also a matter for congratulations that the "Bessie Butler" was so well and favourably launched.

Mr. John Finlay

Mr. John Finlay, M. P., stated that he had not come prepared to make a speech. He had accepted the invitation to be present to see the "Bessie Butler" launched, and he was glad to be able to congratulate the member for West Peterborough and the officers of the canal upon the way in which the work was being looked after. He himself had been able to help the county by having a wharf built at Burleigh Falls. Provision had been made for one at Lakefield, and another had been built at Hales Bridge, and still another at Crowe's Landing. All these were for the convenience of the public. He had done his best to meet the requirements of the people whom he represented and he hoped that they were satisfied with his efforts. He congratulated those connected with the launching upon the neat way in which the boat had been placed in the water, and hoped that the officers of the canal would continue to serve the public as faithfully in the future as they had done in the past. (Applause.)

A Stout Steamer

Mr. John Main, chief engineer for the Polson Iron Works, was the next speaker. His remarks were words of assurance to the superintendent and the officials of the canal, that the new steamer, the "Bessie Butler," would be satisfactory for the work for which she was built. A few weeks ago the erection of the boat had been begun, and in a short time she had been made ready for launching. The engines, cabins, and electric light plant have yet to be installed, and, when finished, he assured the canal officers that she would be capable in of only of accomplishing her work in the matter of navigation but that she would be fitted up to provide every care for the passengers who travel on board.

The "Bessie Butler," he said, was 80 feet long, with a 17-foot beam, 18 feet deep, and would, when completed, carry 100 tons, and travel at the rate of 15 miles per hour.

The Polson Iron Works had recently finished a boat of exactly the same build for work on the Rideau Canal, and Mr. Main predicted for Mr. McClellan a happy sojourn on the new steamer on the waters of the Trent Canal. He was pleased to have had such a fine location for the erection of the boat, and congratulated his company on the good facilities for obtaining material, as in Peterborough.

A Prosperous Country

Col. McLean of Port Hope, an exwarden of the counties of Durham and Northumberland, who happened to be in the city, was an interested visitor at the launching. When called upon by the chairman, the colonel, in addressing the audience, said that it gave him a great deal of pleasure to be there on such an important occasion. The gliding of the "Bessie Butler" into the waters of the Trent Canal was another evidence of the prosperity of our Dominion. We should feel proud of our country, with its numerous facilities for the disposal of our produce, and of many of the facilities for carrying on the trade of Canada we know but little. He hoped, and felt certain, that the canal would fulfill object for which it was intended, and knew that this would be realized in a short time. Before sitting, Colonel McLean congratulated the Government on having such a superintendent as Mr. McClellan to look after the canal and the "Bessie Butler." (Applause.)

Population of 500,000

Rev. Wm. Major, rector of All Saints' Church, was next called upon. It was the first occasion in Mr. Major's life that he had ever been asked to participate in such a christening, and jocularly remarked that he usually had more trouble at the christening with water of the members of the feminine sex than was experienced yesterday with the "Bessie Butler." He was glad to have been present on such an occasion, which indicated the importance the Government placed on our city of Peterborough and the canal, and also to see the marked development of our country. The fact that a boat was needed was proof to show that Peterborough and vicinity were making rapid progress in matters of trade and commerce. Rev. Mr. Major congratulated Mr. Main on the manner in which such a successful launch was made, and hoped that the "Bessie Butler" would always go forward in life as smoothly on her voyage, and that she would live to see the day when Peterborough would have a population of 500,000. (Applause.)

Saving to the West.

Mr. J. H. McClellan, superintendent of the canal, was the last speaker. He thanked all for coming out to see the launching, through curiosity or otherwise. The boat, he said, was a necessity on the canal for navigation and accommodation, as well as for towing purposes. The amount of work going on all along the Trent canal was enormous, and it was only a matter of two or three years before the grain from the northwestern provinces would pass along to Lake Ontario on this waterway.

At this juncture the steam tug "Ajax" hove in sight hauling a big scowload of hardwood from Stony Lake, and, amid applause, amply demonstrating in a practical manner value of the Trent Canal.

The superintendent considered that the people of the Northwest should be interested in the great waterway. It meant, (when opened from Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, a saving of one cent on every bushel of grain from the West, and he hoped that the next time a boat would be required to look after the interests of the canal it would be one as large as could possibly be contained in the locks.

HARVEST FESTIVAL AT ST. MARK'S

A Most Successful Conclusion of Festival Services Reached Sunday When Tea Was Held

MR. PERRY IS LEAVING

The reputation of providing always the best entertainments was well sustained by the congregation of St. Mark's Church, Otonabee, who celebrated their annual Harvest Festival Monday night. On Sunday two services were held at the church, at which Rev. Wm. Burns, of Hastings, preached. The Holy Communion was administered at the morning service. Monday the festival was brought to a close by the harvest tea and programme. The ladies of the church had provided a tempting repast, and a large number of people, that filled the hall to overflowing, was present. After ample justice had been done to the provisions of the tea, the programme commenced. Mr. T. H. Perry, B.A., who has been in charge of the parish during the summer, presided in a very able manner. In opening the entertainment he welcomed those present, especially the large contingent that had come from Peterborough. The various numbers were as follows:

Doxology.
Chairman's address.
Vocal solo—Miss Smithson.
Reading—Mrs. T. Graystock.
Vocal solo—Miss Ruth Dawson.
Address—Rev. Wm. Burns.
Vocal solo—Miss Bertha Curtis.
Address—Rev. C. H. Marsh.
Reading—Mrs. T. Graystock.
Vocal solo—Miss Bertha Curtis.
Address—Mr. Joshua Smithson.
Vocal solo—Miss Smithson.
Address—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.
National Anthem.
Accompanist—Miss Charlotte English.

Mr. Perry referred to the happy time he had spent among the people of St. Mark's. He was much encouraged by the faithful families of the congregation. Unfortunately there were some spiritually dead ones, who could not be persuaded to go to church or take any part in God's work, those had thanked the people of St. Mark's for their many kindnesses and support, and he regretted having to go to finish his course at college, which meant his having to give up his work in the parish. He thanked Rev. Dr. Langfeldt for the good advice he had given him, and the splendid help he had been to him in gaining experience. He had never met nicer people than those of St. Mark's and St. Luke's.

As Dr. Langfeldt was called upon to speak the expressed his regret at losing Mr. Perry, who had done such excellent and earnest work. But he was glad to say that Mr. Perry would still continue to look after the parish, though he could not come as regularly as he would wish; he would at any rate spend the Christmas holidays in the parish.

Dr. Langfeldt made reference to the great assistance at the Harvest Festival given by Miss Lillian Smithson, of Bailieboro, niece of Mr. Joshua Smithson. The young lady officiated on Sunday at the organ, and again delighted the audience with her well-trained and sweet voice. On behalf of the congregation he thanked her.

Rev. Mr. Marsh, in his address, grew reminiscent and referred to his work at St. Mark twenty-five years ago.

Rev. Mr. Burns was highly humourous and kept the audience greatly amused from beginning to end.

The entertainment was a great success, everybody going away highly satisfied.

THE LAMENT OF THE "LIMERICK"

Yesterday the Examiner submitted a little "Limerick," with an invitation to complete the last line, which of course had been composed by the writer, but suppressed, thus:

The assessor, he boosts up our taxes
And permission of nobody axes.
It's far cheaper to rent
Or live in a tent,—

The first gentleman to furnish a solution was Mr. John Cronin, 260 Concession street, East City. In his capacity of lockmaster he furnished a key of the puzzle, on the spur of the moment. Hardly had the Examiner been issued than the limping Limerick was placed on its feet. The moment Mr. Cronin read the incomplete verselet his conception of the missing line, was given as follows:

"Than for McGee and McGrath so to wax us."

One meaning of "wax" being to increase, to raise, to boost, Mr. Cronin's verse will be recognised as one appropriate and more eloquent than the original. The completed verse of the Limerick, according to the dictum of Cronin, is therefore, this:

The assessor, he boosts up our taxes
And permission of nobody axes.
It's far cheaper to rent
Or live in a tent,
Than McKee and McGrath so to wax us.

Another solution is furnished by a North-end gentleman, as follows:

"Than life under rule of the Macs is."

This derives its point from the fact that the two assessors are Macs — MacKee and MacGrath.

Superstitions on Skin Diseases

Of all superstitions probably the most foolish is that when a rash or sore is healed and cured by means of external applications, it will "strike in" and do further harm. No reputable physician will give countenance to such a notion. Skin diseases of every form, and especially eczema, salt rheum, scald head, etc., are promptly relieved and certainly cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment.

AN ENGLISH RUNNER AT KEENE

John Bennett Will Enter Race in Connection With Fair To-Morrow

Keene, Oct. 2.—The first day of the Otonabee Fair opened with good weather prospects, and a continuation of the present conditions is all that is necessary to ensure the most successful exhibition in the history of the Agricultural Society. The secretary has been busy all day accepting entries, and it is anticipated, judging from present indications, that the number of entries this year will far exceed those of any previous year. With the enlarged grounds the Society is in a position to provide better accommodation for the exhibitors who appreciate this fact to the extent that they are showing a deeper interest in the fair. The live stock entries give promise of being extraordinarily large this year.

John Bennett, the English runner, who has been surprising the wise ones with his performances recently will probably enter the race to be held at Keene to-morrow in connection with the fair.

BLUE DEVILS

Get Rid of Indigestion and Things Will Look Bright and Joyous

Everything looks gloomy and dark to the person suffering with indigestion.

Until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form as a safe and effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, the "blue devils" made everything look dark, gloomy and depressing.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na the sick headache, dizzy feeling, bad taste in the mouth, distress after eating—all these are symptoms of a weak stomach — will disappear, and with perfect digestion there will be a joyous and beautiful outlook.

Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient for the vest pocket and cost 50 cts. Mr. Madill has seen so may cures made by Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets, that he gives a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

Mr. Seymour has shown his capability for this work by his many connection with the local rink and should make good in Lindsay. He will be greatly missed by several athletic organizations, being a member of the Strathcona Hockey team and the Crescent Rugby Club. many friends here wish him every success in his new venture.

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR THE FAIR

C.P.R. Will Run A Train From Norwood To Peterborough On Evening of Fair in That Town

This year the management of the Norwood Fair has arranged for a special train service returning after the Fair. In the past a coach has been attached to a freight train, adn the time of departure and arrivals t Peterborough was somewhat Problemetical. This year, however, a special train will leave Norwood at 6 o'clock, and will make a quick trip to Peterborough, stopping at Indian River, enroute.

That tired feeling will disappear; your appetite will improve; your digestion will be perfect, if you will take Miller's Compound Iron Pills. Sold by W. Madill.

A Message for Pile Sufferers

FROM TWO LADIES WHO HAVE BEEN CURED OF EXTREMELY TORTURING CASES OF PILES BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Russell county, Ont., writes:—"Eleven years ago I began to suffer from piles, and as they caused keen distress, and became worse, I doctored for them, but with little or no avail. They were bleeding, itching and protruding, and oh! the torture suffered at times can never be described. It was with suffering that the bowels moved, and, as nothing brought relief, I could only endure the misery with an aching heart and without hope of cure.

"Finally a lady friend told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment curing piles, and to my surprise I felt relief at once on using this ointment; the little tumors soon disappeared, the ulcers healed, and the bowels became regular. This was five years ago, and I have never been troubled with this terrible ailment since, a thousand thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Mrs. Capt. Clinansmith, Salvation Army, Essex, Ont., writes: "It is with pleasure that I write to you in praise of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Two years ago I was taken with a severe attack of protruding piles, and became so bad that I had to keep my bed, and could lie in no position except on my stomach. Doctors could give me no help, and the various oils and ointments used proved of no avail.

"One Saturday night, when I was suffering untold agony, my husband went to the drug store, for a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I had heard of as a cure for piles. Although I had almost given up hope, to the wonder of those around me, I was able to be up and on my feet by Monday, and have had no difficulty from piles since. As a treatment for all kinds of sores and burns, Dr. Chase's Ointment works like magic."

To persons who have given up looking for a cure of piles or hemorrhoids, this letter should bring new hope. There is, we believe, no more effective treatment for piles than Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Press Reports of West Altogether Too Roseate

A Peterborough County Farmer Says They Influenced Him to Buy Land in Alberta, But he Soon Came Back to Ontario

HIS FAMILY DISSATISFIED

"Dang these newspapers, anyway. Half these stories they tell about the big crops in the west ain't true." A Peterborough county farmer who had been "stung" in the west delivered himself in these terms to an Examiner reporter to-day. He didn't know he was talking to a reporter, though. He had, it appears, been attracted to the west by the glowing reports in the newspapers of the great yields of wheat, and the brilliant prospects for becoming rich. After making a trip of investigation he decided to buy some land in Alberta, which he did. Returning home he sold his farm and moved to the west to settle on his land, taking with him a new outfit of implements, cattle, horses and lumber with which to build his prospective home.

It was never built, though. When he got to the destination and was about to build the house the family, at least the younger portion of it ouded that Alberta was not to their liking, and the result was that the land was sold again, and the family returned to Ontario—to Peterborough County, where another farm was bought, and where once more they are settled down content to trust to their chances in this favoured portion of the Dominion.

The opinion of this gentleman is that Ontario—Peterborough county, at any rate—offers as good prospects for the young man as the much-vaunted west.

Principal Fessenden Sends in Resignation

Asks to be Relieved of The Duties of Principalship And To Be Retained on The Teaching Staff of The Collegiate

IN HANDS OF COMMITTEE

The announcement that Mr. Cortez Fessenden, principal of the Collegiate Institute, had resigned from that position, will come as a great surprise to the pupils of the school, and to the citizens generally. His resignation was tendered to the Board at the meeting last night, and gave as a reason for the step that the strain on his nervous system was proving too great. Mr. Fessenden asked that he be relieved of the duties of principal, and be retained as a member of the teaching staff, to take effect at the end of the present school year.

The matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments to deal with.

Mr. Fessenden has been principal of the local Collegiate Institute for the past seventeen years, during which time he has won the respect and esteem of all with whom he came in contact. While his resignation from the principalship will be regretted, it is pleasing to learn that he will in all likelihood be still a member of the teaching staff.

MUNICIPAL COAL YARD IS ADVOCATED BY CORRESPONDENT

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice that the combine has been increasing the price of coal to the extent of ten cents per ton, per month since June the first, last, and this month the increase has been doubled, making the price of that commodity, at the present time, $7.50. This last advance is accompanied by an announcement, which no doubt will be a consolation to the many poor people in our midst, who are not financially able to lay in their winter's supply, namely that these prices will be further increased, as the cold weather approaches, and in all probability will go as high as $8. Surely this action on the part of our coal merchants, will wake the people up to a sense of duty (if that is possible) and bring them to realize that the establishment of a municipal fuel yard would be in their interests, and the only means, whereby they can obtain one of the most important necessaries of life, at a reasonable cost, and be no longer at the mercy of a few individuals whose interest it is to stiffen prices.

Yours respectfully,
"PRO BONO PUBLICO."

Music and Drama

"Allen Doone", Ireland's Sweetest Singer and Comedian

Allen Doone, who will be pleasantly recalled for the fine impression he made in Joseph Murphy's "Kerry Gow" last season by his artistic acting and sweet singing, will, on Saturday next, matinee and night, present at the Grand Opera House his new and successful comedy-drama, "A Romance in Ireland," supported by George W. Kenney's superb company of players, with a wealth of scenic settings and adequate costuming, accessories and mechanical effects. Mr. Doone, now in his third season as a star of the first magnitude, is conceded by every play-goer of Irish extraction to be the representative Irish comedian of the time. He stands for all that is wholesome and uplifting in the characteristics of his race. His impersonations are not caricatures, but faithful, pleasing drawings from life, with the added embellishments of his own magnetic personality and his sweet singing. In "A Romance in Ireland," Mr. Doone portrays the part of a happy-go-lucky, mischievous, but good-hearted young fellow named "Larry O'Daly," who, having nothing in particular to do except to amuse himself, proceeds to do that in the most thorough manner. Squire Doyle owns a fast hunting mare, of which he is exceedingly proud, and of which he is also very careful, but Larry, who is desirous of cutting a figure on the hunting field, "borrows" the mare without permission, and so incurs the choleric old gentleman's displeasure, and is forbidden the house. This is a sad blow to the young scamp, as he is enamoured of the squire's pretty daughter, Nora, whom he is now under the necessity of visiting clandestinely, and it is on one of these secret visits that he is surprised by the squire, who, wild with rage, accuses the young man of the theft of a large sum of money, which he has just been robbed of. This leads to the development of the story of the play, which is laid in County Mayo, Ireland, in the seventeenth century, and is said to be one of the most interesting and dramatic seen in years, with an original, consistent plot and many unique situations. The old-time songs and dances of the period are a pleasing feature, and Mr. Doone will be heard in several new songs of his own composition—both comic and sentimental. Plan of seats opens to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, at the box-office.

ART ASSOCIATION'S ANNUAL

Officers of Peterborough Branch Were Elected Last Night—Miss Bennett is The New President of Branch

A SATISFACTORY REPORT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Woman's Art Association was held in the Y. W.C.A. building last night. There was a good attendance. Miss Hatton, president of the branch, occupied the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the annual report was read by the secretary. It was as follows:

The Peterborough branch of the W. A. A. held its executive committee meetings and one regular meeting this year. In November it was decided that a studio should be secured for the use of members, and a house, centrally located, was rented by the association, and sub-let, the front rooms being reserved for studio purposes. Furniture was loaned by the members, and with the aid of magazines and photographs, the room was made attractive. An exhibition of arts and crafts was held and the studio formally opened, and here during the winter months tea was served on one afternoon each week. The studio was also used by active members for wood-carving, and though it was found to be a very pleasant rendezvous, its privileges were not appreciated to an extent sufficient to warrant our retaining it.

The study of one of Mrs. Jamieson's works, entitled "The Madonna in Art," during the winter months proved most instructive. Photographs, loaned to us through the kindness of Mrs. Dignam, added greatly to the interest, which increased as the season progressed, and our study was brought to a close with the resolve that it would be resumed, if possible, in the autumn.

In April, Dr. Symonds very kindly consented to lecture before our association and delighted his audience by giving a talk on the subject of "The Democracy of Art." He showed the broad field which was open for the cultivation of that "love of art," which he said was instructive in every one, among all classes, even among the most uncivilized. He urged the local branch to undertake some practical work in connection with the schools.

The address was followed by a pleasant hour of social intercourse.

It was to be regretted that the foreign exhibition could not have been brought here from Toronto, but owing to the great expense which would have been incurred (in the neighbourhood of $70) it was not thought that it would be wise to undertake it.

The removal to Toronto of Miss Bertram, past president of the Peterborough branch, was a matter of deep regret to all of the members. Two warmly interested friends, Mrs. R. M. Deanstoun, the energetic convenor of our Social Committee, and Mr. Burnham, have removed to other cities.

We have lost one member by death and six by removal, leaving 64 on our roll at the present time.

AMY K. BENNET,
Secretary, Peterborough branch, W.A.A.

Miss Ackerman, the treasurer, read her report, which showed a balance on hand of ($14.11) fourteen dollars and eleven cents.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE ARE ENTERTAINED

Mr. Geo. Mulligan Gave Junior Sunday Scholars Pumpkin Pie Social

The junior members of the Sunday school connected with the Gospel Hall were last night entertained at the residence of Mr. G. W. Mulligan, 804 George street, at a pumpkin pie social. There was no doubt as to the enjoyment of the little ones, their merry shouts were evidence of this fact. During the evening Mr. H. S. McEwan gave a talk to the children, and Mr. Jas. Miller, of Belfast Ireland, gave some amusing experiences in Ireland for the benefit of the youngsters.

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear

What one or two applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin, is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use. By its healing, soothing and antiseptic influence, Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly cures chafing and skin diseases, and eruptions and leaves the skin, clear, soft and velvety.

MILLBROOK BOY WINS PRIZE

Eric Lefroy Won Two Mile Race For Seaforth Cup at Lakefield Preparatory School

The record of a Millbrook boy, Eric Lefroy, who, at the age of nine years, won the race for the Seaforth Cross Country Cup at the Grove Preparatory School, Lakefield, of which he is a pupil, is in many respects a remarkable one. There were forty-five entries, and in the face of this fact the Millbrook lad won the event, a two-mile race, his time being 14 minutes and 26 seconds. This promising young footrunner is a grandson of the late Mr. Archibald Wood, of Millbrook, and a cousin of Mr. J. W. Wood of this city.

G.T.R. Wants Permission To Put on New Switches

Want Sidings Into Their Property On Bethune Street South—Mr. Tiffin Has Consultation With The Board of Works

GEORGE STREET EXTENSION

The Board of Works Committee had a long consultation yesterday afternoon with Mr. W. R. Tiffin, General Superintendent of the Allandale Division of the G.T.R., in connection with several matters affecting the city and company.

The first place visited was at the corner of Wolfe and Bethune streets, where the G.T.R. wished permission to put in sidings to their property, and to instal the necessary switches. The company owns the south-western lot on the corner of Wolfe and Bethune streets, and also at the corner of Dalhousie and Bethune streets. They want sidings into both these lots and to do so they will of course require two switches, neither of which, it is claimed, will interfere with the street. The matter will be taken up by the Board at its next meeting.

The committee and Mr. Tiffin next visited the extension of George street, where there is a hitch over the crossing of the G.T.R. tracks by the street. This matter was discussed at some length. It will have to be settled by the Board of Railway Commissioners.

The diversion of the creek running along the Lakefield branch of the G.T.R., as far as Aylmer street, was next discussed, the committee going over the ground with Mr. Tiffin. There are three plans by which the creek can be diverted, at Barnardo avenue, at Edinburgh street, and into the river at the G.T.R. bridge over the Otonabee.

The company would receive no benefit if the creek were diverted at Edinburgh street, and refuse to pay any part of the cost of the work if this plan is decided upon.

The matter will be taken up by the Board at once.

Where Bread Is Twenty Cents And Crops Are Very Poor

Mr. R. C. Braund Returns From Western Trip—Visited on Both Sides of The Border—Canadian Conditions Are Better

AN INTERESTING STORY

Mr. R. C. Braund returned last night from an extended trip through the Central Western States and Manitoba, where he has been visiting, accompanied by his wife and Mrs. J. T. Braund. He has been through some of the finest farming lands in the districts through which he passed and with characteristic attention to detail Mr. Braund has many interesting incidents to relate.

He has been away five weeks and has returned in excellent health and determined to work with increased vigour. Leaving Peterborough the party first visited the Toronto Exhibition and continued on to Chatham. In that town Mr. Braund has many relatives, most of whom he had not seen in twenty-five years. Windsor and Walkerville were the next places of interest in the itinerary, after which several days were spent in Detroit, where Beele Island Park, the Zoo and other beauty spots were visited. Chicago required several days for a casual acquaintance and Mr. Braund and party went on to St. Paul. There the famous Como Park was visited and the party saw for the first time the celebrated gates ajar. Going into Southern Minnesota a short stay was made at Mrs. R. C. Braund's uncle's home. The land there is excellent for farming, but the crops are not very good this year.

How Prohibition Works

At Grand Forks, in North Dakota, Mr. Braund noticed a strange circumstance as a result of prohibition. North Dakota provides for prohibition but there are no restrictions on the liquor traffic in Minnesota. In this state is East Grand Forks, just across the river from Grand Forks in North Dakota. In the prohibition town there is not a single saloon, but in the other town the booze flows in torrents for to the 3,500 inhabitants of East Grand Forks there are 42 saloons. Mr. Braund declared that the noticeable fault of the men in that district is that they are inveterate smokers. Mr. Braund visited his brother, Mr. J. H. Braund, who is also carrying on a successful business in a thriving town in North Dakota. Mr. Braund and party next visited Winnipeg and came east to Fort William, took the C. P. R. steamer Athabasca and returned by boat to Owen Sound after a delightful voyage.

Bread 20 Cents

Regarding the general conditions in the states he visited, Mr. Braund was not well pleased with them. In the northern part of the States the crops are very poor. In most places the crops do not yield more than from five to seven bushels per acre, and the wheat is of a poor quality, being about the fourth grade. Bread sells at 20 cents for a large loaf weighing three lbs., and the outlook is that it will reach a still higher price. In North Dakota the water has to be carried from Lake Superior, owing to the alkali in the water in the state. The imported aqua pura sells at five cents a glass or twenty-five cents per gallon. Cabbage retail at twenty cnts a head, milk sells at ten cents per quart and for crab apples eighty cents per peck is the demand everywhere. Underwear that sells in Peterborough at fifty cents is sold in North Dakota and the surrounding districts at $1.35.

Work on Sunday

Disrespect for the Lord's Day is noticeable in the same state. Threshers working at full blast are commonplace sights and the grain is even carried to the cities to be placed in the elevators. Mr. Braund stated that a man earning one dollar per day in Peterborough is as well off as the man who earns $2.50 per day in Dakota or the west.

Prosperous in Canada

Coming north into Canada Mr. Braund says that the general outlook is comparatively bright. The crops are yielding much better than across the border, but there will only be a little over a half crop. The frost has done considerable damage and has been the worst set back. Mr. Braund says that he believes that wheat will go up to $1.50 per bushel before new wheat is again obtainable, and the people will have to pay from $3.50 to $4.00 per cwt. for flour.

Living in Winnipeg is rather costly along almost every line. A six-room house in the western metropolis rents at $30.00 per month and everything else is proportionately high. Mr. Braund states his experience has shown that Ontario is in a better condition than are the boasted western plains and the working man has better chances here than in the west.

Twenty-Two Years A Soldier, Now Asks For Public Charity

Mr. George Armstrong and His Wife Make a Strong Appeal To Be Placed in a Charitable Institution—Served the Crown For Years

ARE NOW DEPENDANTS

A pathetic appeal to the charity of this city was that which an Examiner reporter heard last evening when he called at the house where Mr. George Armstrong and his wife occupy a room through the kindness of the tenants of the house. The old gentleman is no longer able to work, being 83 years of age, decrepit and robbed by nature of the old energy with which he so faithfully served the British Crown for two and twenty years. His wife is 63 years old, but is an invalid, having been deprived of the use of her legs for the past seven years. Their past lives show that they are deserving of the assistance which they look forward to from the city of Peterborough.

An Old Soldier

Mr. Armstrong was born in Staffordshire, England, 83 years ago. Early in his life, in fact, at the age of 20 he enlisted in the 25th Regiment of the King's Own Borderers. He served twenty-two years, less six months. After a long service in India and active warfare in the campaign in Afghanistan, in 1868 he was given a free discharge at Montreal, serving, however, as a regular soldier in the Fenian Raids. For his work in this connection he was given a medal with two bars on his badge.

Remaining Years

Mr. Armstrong remained in Canada, working at Montreal, at the C. G. M. Works, at Hamilton and other places, but was handicapped by not having a trade, through a slight technicality in regard to his discharge from the service Mr. Armstrong was deprived of the pension which he deserved. He frequently wrote the War Office in this regard, but they always maintained that he could not obtain a pension. He has resided in Peterborough three years and has been employed at several of the factories, but through ill health could not remain at work.

Son Dead Two Years

About two years ago, in November, since coming to this city, Mr. Armstrong lost his surviving son, Dr. John Wesley Armstrong. He was in poor health when he came to Peterborough and was unable to practice his profession and finally died from lung trouble. He was 24 years of age and at the time of his death the family was living on Ware street. The only children left to him are two daughters, one in Buffalo and the other in Peterborough. The latter has a large family and is really not able to care for the old couple, her husband being but an ordinary workingman.

Mrs. Armstrong has been crippled for the last seven years, suffering from paralysis.

Deserving of Help

"Too long in the sentry box," was Mr. Armstrong's laconic reason for his present condition. "The best days of my life were spent for the Queen and surely now, when I'm an old man, the country will at least provide some place where I can pass the rest of my life. When at my own request I signed off and got my discharge I unknowingly signed away my right to a pension. The Canadian Government gave me 160 acres of land in Algoma several years ago for my share in the Fenian Raid and I sold it to a Bellerville lawyer."

"How much do you think I got for that land?" asked the old man.

Continuing, he said, "Well, you'd never guess. He gave me $25.00; in fact robbed me of my land.

How Can Help Be Given

Here is an old man who gave twenty-two of the best years of his vigourous life to the cause of English glory and is now a penniless, feeble old man, with but a few years before him, when he will pass from this earth, and living practically without a home. What he would like to have, so he says, is some place where he an his wife would feel assured that they could spend the rest of their lives in comparative comfort. He is of a cheerful disposition: in fact, he says that he has always tried to look on the bright side of life and is now confident that the people of this city will assist him. There are two homes for the aged in the county where he would like to gain admission, and those in authority should make an effort at once before the winter sets in to see that the old couple are happily settled for the rest of their days.

The house where they are living is on Park street and for reasons given by the tenants the number is withheld, but can be easily gained from Dr. Marshall, Hunter street, who has taken a deep interest in the old couple for a number of years and has materially assisted them as much as possible.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907.

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 235 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

CLASS LEADERS FOR INNOVATION

An Exchange of Leaders in The City's Methodist Churches to be Made in November—For Smaller Classes

At a meeting of the Class Leaders' Association of the Methodist churches of the city, held last night, it was decided by resolution to ask the pastors to appoint more leaders and reduce the size of the classes. In some cases there are at the present time fifty and sixty members, which the leaders consider too large a number to be visited, a duty which, under the discipline of the Methodist church, devolves upon the leaders of the classes. The association suggested that from 15 to 20 would be a satisfactory membership.

A committee was appointed to arpointed to arrange for one Sunday during November a general exchange of class leaders among the three Methodist churches in the city.

Mr. Jos. Batten, the president of the association, occupied the chair at the meeting.

WEDDING BELLS.

EDWARDS-MANTELL

Examiner Special.

Belleville, October 1. — A quiet but pretty wedding occurred in the city at five o'clock this evening, the principals being Mr. J. C. Edwards, of Peterborough, advertising manager for A. W. Cressman, and Miss Neva M. Mantell, of Tillsonburg. The ceremony took place at the residence of Rev. C H. Emerson, pastor of the Victoria avenue Baptist church. The bridesmaid was Miss Gertrude Mantell of Napanee, sister of the bride; and the groomsman, Mr. "Bert" Edwards, of Peterborough, brother of the groom. The happy couple had journeyed from their respective places of residence to this city, as a neutral point.

The bride looked very pretty in a travelling gown of navy blue invisible striped broadcloth, trimmed with silk braid, the waist being of embroidered net and Irish lace over taffeta, a hat of light blue felt faced with navy, arranged in large touque style, and trimmed with coque feathers and drak blue French roses.

After congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Edwards left for their future home in Peterborough.

Mrs. Edwards will receive, after Nov. 1st, at her home, 410 Charlotte street, Peterborough.

Last night Mr. Edwards was presented with two handsome crayon drawings and a burlap screen in a drawings and a burlap screen, in a weathered oak frame, mounted with burnt wood figures, from his fellow-employees on the Cressman staff.

The Chest Pains of Bronchitis

If the cough is dry and hard, if there is pain, soreness and tightness of the chest, if you have difficulty in getting your breath, you have reason to suspect that you have bronchitis. Lest it should become chronic or lead to serious lung trouble, do not delay the use of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, the most certain cure for bronchitis.

HIGHEST PRICE OF THE SEASON

2971 Boxes of Cheese Boarded To-Day And Sold 12 9-16 Cents

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough Cheese Board this morning, the highest price of the season, 12 9-16c, was paid, and most of the cheese was sold at that figure, although a quantity went at 12 1-2c. The number of boxes boarded was 2,971, a little in advance of the figure for the last meeting. The bidding was brisk.

GIRL'S DEATH LEAP.

Crowds Watch Her Jump From High Church Tower.

A young servant girl met with a tragic fate at Saggart, a small village near Dublin, recently.

Minnie Hunt, aged 21, was employed as a domestic in the district, and had seemed strange in manner. She obtained permission to go to church, and on her return informed a fellow-servant that she had been up in the church tower, and had made several efforts to throw herself over, but could not do it. Her employer had her examined by a doctor, who suggested that she should be kept under observation, and, pending the arrival of her mother, a woman was called in for this purpose.

Later on the girl asked for permission to go to mass, but Mr. Hutton, her employer, refused to allow her out. Later it was discovered that she had escaped, and had succeeded in making her way to the top of the church tower, which is about 120 feet high. Here, in view of a crowd of horrified spectators, she sat on the edge of the parapet. Efforts were made to reach her from the inside, but it was found that she had locked the door. She also threatened that she would jump if anyone came near her.

At last Father Seevers, the parish priest, and a police-sergeant forced the door, ascended the tower, and succeeded in getting quite close to the poor girl, but she still refused to come down.

For three hours the priest knelt within a few yards of the unfortunate girl on the top of the tower. He dare not approach closer, as each time he moved she advanced as if to throw herself over. He prayed and implored her to leave her terrible position, but she refused. He held up a crucifix, asking her to take it, but she would not, saying that she would meet him on the ground. When he offered to go towards her she would step forward as if to go over.

The situation was a terrible one. Suddenly she gave a loud shriek, leaped over the parapet, and fell on the gravelled walk of the churchyard. When picked up she was quite dead.

The Little Darling.

Mrs. Upmore (making a call)—Why, this is your latest photograph, isn't it? It's an excellent likeness of you, but it isn't so good of baby. Wasn't he—Mrs. Highmus—The idea! Did you think the little darling in my lap was baby? That's Fido!

Of Ratiocination.

Knicker — A boy's mother always finds out when he has been swimming. Bocker—And yet folks never know when a man takes a Wall street plunge.

"Keep Going" Is The Motto Adopted by Busy Havelock

Wonderful Building Expansion Still Continues—Reasons Given Why Havelock Should Progress—Cheap Power Soon Available

NEW STREETS OPENED

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Sept. 30.—This is Havelock's growing time. Great advances have been made, but still greater are looked for, as "Keep going," the Havelock watchword, is ever kept in view by the prosperous and enterprising citizens of Havelock.

The wonderful building expansion in Havelock still continues. Houses are continually being built, but still there is a demand for them. Houses are so scarce that, in some instances, two families are living in one, and rent is very high and will still continue to soar. Every building that can be called a house is pressed into service and occupied by one or two families.

In the spring of 1906 King street, north of Mathison street, was surveyed and opened up, and at once there was a rush to purchase the lots, and houses have sprung up on either side as if by magic, so that now every lot has been built upon, with the exception of four, and three of those not built on have been reserved as a school play-ground.

In the last few weeks another street has been surveyed and opened up north of George street and east of the Havelock park, and there has been a rush to purchase lots, and although they have been open for purchase only a few weeks, ten lots have already been sold, and one dwelling is in course of erection. This street will be known as Park street, or Mathison street east, and runs to the east end of the town.

Other dwellings have been erected all over the town. In the west end, on Alexander street, several houses of white brick and of the latest design have been erected, and a large number of lots on both sides of Donald street, north of Alexander street, have been sold and dwellings will be erected on them next spring. In the near future Mr. Thos. Curtis will erect a large brick block on Ontario street opposite the ice-house. On account of the large increase in business, Mr. Wm. Cornell has had a large planing factory of cement erected in the east end, where all kinds of work in planing will be done. Since the spring of 1906, sixty-five houses have been erected in Havelock, and still the demand for dwellings continues.

That Havelock will continue to grow and expand is a truth little doubted, for there are numberless reasons for it's doing so. The town seems as if it will grow northward more than south, for connection with the south is cut off by the C.P.R. yards, the two crossings to the south being about seven-eighths of a mile apart. There is good building land to the south and it is likely that some way will be found to better the connection with it. The town is also growing considerably at the east.

When the Georgian Bay grain route from Victoria Harbour has been built it will make a great advance in Havelock, as Havelock is quite sure to be the divisional point. Peterborough has a longing to have the divisional point in that city, but there is one thing wrong, and that is Peterborough is too far away from Havelock. Havelock is just about one hundred miles by direct line from Victoria Harbour, while Peterborough is only seventy-five, and that is too short for a division. When the line was surveyed last year it was found that the best route would be to pass a little south of Lakefield, pass near Warsaw, and strike the Havelock-Toronto line a little above Havelock, thus cutting Peterborough strictly out of it. This route would be the easiest to construct as no great sink-holes nor hills are met, and because it is a much easier grade than by way of Peterborough. The C.P.R. has also purchased a large stretch of land to the south of the yards at Havelock upon which to lay tracks, as a good many more tracks will be needed on account of the increase in traffic. Even if the new route did pass through Peterborough, the divisional point would still remain at Havelock, as Peterborough is too near to Toronto and too far away from Smith's Falls.

When this grain route is constructed it will cause the C.P.R. to station a large number of men at Havelock. It is estimated that one hundred men and their families will be stationed here, anyway, and perhaps more. There will be conductors, brakemen, firemen, engineers, car repairers, wipers, shopmen, etc., amounting up to the hundred mark. Havelock is composed mostly of railwaymen, and if the grain route is as important as the line now erected it will mean that the population will be doubled.

One hundred families means one hundred houses. The erection of one hundred houses will need a large number of masons and carpenters. The larger the population, the greater the demand for food. Thus there will be needed more stores, and so, following it on further and further, it can be seen how Havelock will soon become a town.

When the power at Healey Falls has been developed by the Northumberland-Durham Power Company, great things are in store for Havelock. Besides this, the Havelock Electric Light Company has made an addition to its property, whereby it will be able to supply about 800 additional horse-power. When all this horse-power has been developed companies will be able to get cheap electric power in Havelock, and this will cause factories to spring up in Havelock, as this is a good stipping point.

The farmers in the city have taken up the watchword of Havelock, "Keep going," and are contemplating erecting a creamery in Havelock. The need of a creamery in Havelock has long been evident, and since the Melrose Abbey cheese factory was destroyed by fire the idea has grown in favour with the farmers in this vicinity, so that in all probability a creamery will be in operation here in the near future. A meeting of the farmers and those interested in its erection will be held in a few weeks, when the contemplated project will be discussed.

The mining industry in East Peterborough which has lately been revived will benefit Havelock considerably, for it is the centre of them all. Blairton proves to contain a considerable amount of iron. The Seabrook mine at Preneveau, which was supposed to contain large values in gold, has turned out to be a valuable copper proposition. The gold mines at Cordova, which are being fixed up, will cause much more business to be transacted in Havelock.

With the way it is growing now, its superiority over the surrounding towns, and with the bright prospects that are now presenting themselves to help along its growth, Havelock is bound to become in the near future one of the most important and prosperous towns in this part of Ontario.

MANNING THE YARDS.

A Naval Ceremony That is Not What it Used to Be.

In the old navy, when United States ships were actually ships with yards, the bos'n's mate's call, "All hands cheer ship!" was followed by a much more picturesque ceremony than is possible now, when the vessels of the navy are fitted with but a single yard and that only used for signaling. At the word of command "Man the yards!" there was an amount of acrobatic scurrying on the main decks of the old ships that was calculated to make the ship visitor hold his breath, the thing looked so dangerous. The men forward in bluejacket uniform would fairly leap up the rope ladders, and almost by the time the echoes of the command had died away every yard on each mast would support scores of men and boys, all standing erect, most of them only held up by the crossed arms of the men beside them. This representation of a cross was held by all of the men, and it was their business to stand thus with absolute statuesqueness. Then the command "Cheer ship!" would be bawled out on deck by the chief bos'n's mate, and there would be a yell from cathead to mizzen that couldn't help but warm the blood of everybody within hearing of it. When the men manned the yards with all sail except topsails and stunsails set, such a picture was really beautiful, the men's uniforms of blue standing out in sapphire-like contrast to the cameo whiteness of the shrouds. This was a ceremony on all formal occasions, such as the visit aboard the old ships of distinguished men. And "Man the yards!" and "Cheer ship!" were commands always given when one of the old clippers of the United States navy was either departing for or arriving from a foreign station.

TO MASTER THE SHEET.

What You Must Learn if You Want to Be a Sailor.

One thing you have to learn before you can write sailor after your name, and that is to master a sail. Brute force is of no account. To use brute force with a sail is like employing it to capture an elephant or run down an untamed steed. Mastering a sail is a game of strategy, finesse, diplomacy, flattery, persuasion and perseverance, with fierce energy flashed in at the right instant. You must know your sail. Sails are not all alike. What will work with a jib will fail if applied to a mainsail or topsail.

When once a man has become skilled at this game he can do more at it than three lubbers. I've seen three men tackle a jib and come back on the head baffled and beaten after a fifteen minute fight, and then a fellow not a quarter their combined weight go out and conquer the sail, binding it captive in ten minutes.

A sail master has five hands—two on his arms, two on his legs, and his teeth. Besides, he has knees, his elbows, the grip of his thighs, his neck, and his whole body. He must be an octopus, a boa constrictor and a monkey, combining with their qualities the patience of an ox, the quickness of a tiger and the subtlety of a fox.—T. F. Day in the Outing Magazine.

His Medal.

The button worn by those to whom congress awards medals for special bravery in the country's service is blue with white stars, but it is not common enough for its significance to be generally understood. A city official who was entertaining a visitor who wore one of these buttons was puzzled by it and finally asked his visitor to enlighten him. The man hesitated modestly and began to explain that it was different from most decorations, especially foreign, which are usually brilliantly colored. Suddenly the official recalled what the medal meant.

"Oh, I understand now," he interrupted; "it certainly is different. There's no yellow in it."

The Price of a Feast.

A small boy whose tastes were bucolic
Found a melon and thought it a frolic,
So he ate every bite,
And they found him that night
In a state that was quite melancolic.

WESTWOOD YOUTH WHO MAY BE A GOOD RUNNER

The last few weeks have been productive of surprises in the discovery of foot-runners from unexpected sources. Westwood has produced the latest sensation. A young man, Waddell, by name has recently been making some fast time, and it is confidently expected by the people of that village that he will have no difficulty in carrying off the gold watch donated by the Directors of the Norwood Fair for the five mile race which will form a feature of that event this year. Waddell has been doing ten miles in an hour lately, and this performance is considered good enough to warrant the belief that he will be able to distance the other contestants.

WRITER ANXIOUS FOR RUGBY

Says There Should Have Been a City League

Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—What has become of the City League Rugby teams of last year? The season this year is dead as far as City League Rugby is concerned. The Quakers, Bankers and other teams are sadly missing and with the passing of the old guard, Peterborough is going to be without a team of the same calibre as those of the past which have won so many honours. Some years ago, the Rough Riders, Victorias, St. John's Boys and others were teams which developed first-class men who have stepped into senior ranks, but when these are gone where are the men to come from With such material as was brought out last year there should have been several teams in the city this year, when it was ascertained that a junior O.R.F.U. was impracticable. Such a condition should never again be allowed by the different athletic bodies of the city who possess men who if developed would make their mark on the gridiron.

Yours truly,
"OLD BOY."

CONCLUSION OF THE TENNIS SEASON

St. John's Young People Will Hold Closing Games To-Morrow

St. John's Tennis club will wind up the season on Thursday afternoon. Owing to the wet weather on Saturday last no play was possible but the players concerned will please assemble at the grounds at 3 p.m. In the event of Thursday proving wet the final games will be definitely abandoned.

RUGBY

The Victorias had their best practice of the season last night, fully eighteen of last year's seniors and intermediates being out, and a large number of juniors. There will be a practice again to-night, when everybody is expected to be out.

The Vics notified Hamilton today that they would not play any Tiger team here on Saturday, and so Hamilton need not send their intermediates here to play the Vics. The reason for the Vics' action is the uncertainty of the Tigers' intentions—the Toronto team wants the champion Tigers or none at all.—Toronto Star.

• • • •

There will be a full practice of the Peterborough Rugby team, to-night at seven o'clock at the Riverside park and every member of the club is expected out to get into shape for Saturday's game.

THE TURF

Mr. Geo. Lipsett's horse "Peggy" will run in the 2.40 class at the Keene Fair to-morrow. With "Black Cloud" and "Peggy" on the track, this speeding event should be a good one.

• • • •

"Black Cloud" left this afternoon for Keene in charge of Mr. Maurice Lowry, and she will be entered to-morrow in the 2.40 class in the speeding in the ring events at the Keene Fair. Bert McCollum will handle the reins. "Black Cloud" will be entered in the same event on Friday at Millbrook.

A Good Medicine.

Laughter not only gains friends, but it's a good medicine—keeps the eyes bright, the heart light and increases the number of red corpuscles. Perhaps that is the reason one sees so few fashionable people laughing. They are cultivating blue blood.

A man who was very ill was visited by his doctor, one of those lugubrious creatures, about as cheerful as a tombstone. He assumed the properly dejected air and inquired of the sick man where his friends were in case they need be notified and asking if he had any last request.

"Yes, one," the patient answered feebly.

"What is it?"

"I wish I had another doctor."

BIRD FLIGHT.

Some Curious Facts About the Size of Wings and Bodies.

In the attempt to discover some universal law of bird flight scientists have disclosed concerning a number of species a most puzzling paradox, perhaps the most mysterious of the enigmas that the subject presents. It is that in a number of birds and insects the size of the wings decreases in proportion to the increase in size of the body of the flying creature. The Australian crane, for instance, weighs over 300 times more than the sparrow, but in proportion has only one-seventh the wing area of the smaller bird.

This curious fact is equally striking if we compare birds with insects. If the gnat were increased in size until it was as large as the Australian crane and if the wings of the insect were enlarged to maintain the proportion they now bear to its body they would be about 150 times larger than the crane's.

It requires 3.02 square feet of wing area per pound to float the bank swallow, but to sustain the tawny vulture, a monstrous bird in comparison, requires only .68 of a square foot of wing surface per pound of body. The albatross, weighing eighteen pounds, has a spread of wing of eleven feet six inches, while the trumpeter swan, weighing twenty-eight pounds, has a spread of wing of only eight feet. The stork weighs eight times more than the pigeon, but in proportion has only half as much wing surface.—Everybody's Magazine.

PALFREY FOR DINNER.

It Was Not Horseflesh, However, That Dr. Johnson Ate.

Dr. Johnson in his journal mentions the interesting fact that he had on a certain day had "palfrey for dinner." Now, these three words have caused not a little trouble to the critics, and for this reason, that they know not what palfrey really is. It has been suggested that palfrey is a clerical error made by the doctor himself for pastry, but the doctor wrote so legibly and there is so much difference between the words palfrey and pastry that this position is not at all tenable.

Palfrey is defined in Johnson's celebrated dictionary as "a small horse fit for ladies," and some have thought that the doctor (whose feats as a [illegible] broken a record on the day in question and disposed of a small horse. All these and other conjectures are wrong, and we will proceed to give the correct explanation.

The word palfrey (sometimes pamfrey by the interchange of l and m) is still in use among the rustics of Scotland and the north of Ireland and means young cabbages when they first come to table in the spring. Such cabbages have not begun to "close" or become solid in the center. They are generally spoken of as "early pamfrey" and are considered a luxury. Dr. Johnson probably picked up the word from his friend Boswell or from some other Scotch acquaintance.—London Notes and Queries.

His Symptoms.

"Maybe that boy of yours will be famous some day," said the friend.

"I shouldn't be surprised," answered Farmer Corntossel; "he does like to wear curious clothes an' say things that sounds more surprisin' than sensible."

THE SIX DAYS' CAMPAIGN OPENS UNDER AUSPICIOUS CIRCUMSTANCES

Interesting Gathering of Citizens Taking Part in Campaign to Raise $1800 For Y.M.C.A. Held Last Night

MEN ARE ENTHUSIASTIC

Business and Professional Men Are Entering Into Work With Energy and Persistence

The Six Days' Campaign in connection with the efforts of the Y.M.C.A. and Citizens' Committee to raise $1,800 before Tuesday night was gotten off to a good start last night when a tea was served in the Board room at the Association building, and, amid an enthusiasm which seems to presage a successful termination to the effort, the campaign was launched. For the next five days the Y.M.C.A., and its objects will be pretty thoroughly exploited in the city, by the enthusiastic young men, and the substantial business man who are interesting themselves in this worthy object.

The members of the Citizens' Committee, chairmen of Committees and other prominent members of the Association were the guests of the General Secretary at the tea, held last night, and, after the good things which had been so generously provided by Coleman Brothers, the caterers, had been disposed of, Mr. J C Shook, the chairman of the committee in a brief speech, explained the objects of the gathering, to discuss the problem of raising the budget of $1,800 necessary to place the Association on a satisfactory financial basis by the end of the year. He explained that the appeal to the citizens for support was being made earlier this year than usual by reason of the fact that the Association year had been changed. While formerly it ended in the spring, in future it would end with the calendar year. This explanation was offered to meet the inquiries of those who remembered that they had made a subscription to the Association work during this present year.

The deep interest which the business men of the city are taking in this work seems to be an indication that the effort will be crowned with success. Among those who were present at the gathering last night, and who will join in the energetic canvass were: Mr. J. C Shook, Mr. D Wm Madill, Mr. J J Howden, Mr. J W Bennet, Mr. J H Cornell, Mr. R J Kidd, Mr. F J Thornton, Mr. H C Stubler, Mr. A E Dixon, Mr. John Carlisle, Mr. R M Glover, Mr. F H Dobbin, Mr. Wm Pringle, Mr. G M Roger and many others.

The officers of the Association were of course, well represented, and several of the members joined in the general effort. A thorough canvass of the city has been arranged for, and to-day the work commences.

Each night the result of the days work will be bulletined at the Association building, and it is confidently expected that when the six days are up on Tuesday night, it will have been found that the required amount has been raised.

To-night a rally will be held at eight o'clock, when Mr. Neale, assistant secretary of the Hamilton Association, who is in the city will give an address. To-morrow another tea—the teas are an important feature of this campaign—will be held, when the workers will be the guests of Mr. G M Roger, and on Monday night another tea, concluding the grand effort on Tuesday night by a feast extraordinary, which the Ladies' Auxiliary are expected to have charge of.

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear
What one or two applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin, is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use. By its healing, soothing and antiseptic influence, Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly cures chafing and skin diseases, and eruptions and leaves the skin, clear, soft and velvety.

Seized Live Wire And Was Thrown Down Embankment

Mr. Jack McCabe's Thrilling Adventure Yesterday—Wire Was Charged With 500 Volts—Others Had Narrow Escapes

HE WAS NOT INJURED

Mr. Jack McCabe, East City, had an adventure yesterday at noon with a live wire that he will not soon forget and which came very near costing him his life, although fortunately he escaped uninjured.

From the C.P.R. station a wire extends to the semaphore on the East City side of the bridge. Yesterday the wire was broken in some way and fell across the trolley wire on George street and immediately of course became charged with 500 volts. On the east side of the bridge the wire hangs as close to the ground so that a person has to stoop to pass beneath.

Mr. McCabe was going east along the bridge with a pair of Elephant Grey and Black Worsted Trousers in Vicunas, Llamas and Heavy Cheviots, together with his umbrella, when his body and outstretched hand came in contact with the wire. He received three distinct and powerful shocks before he could let go of the wire. The force was sufficient to throw him down the embankment into the ditch, but he escaped uninjured. The sensation was if some one had hit him three blows with a sledge hammer and try as he might he could not release himself from the wire until he had received three shocks, the first one pulling him to his knees.

Had he seized the wire with both hands there is no doubt that he would have been instantly electrocuted. Even if the ground had been wet his chances would have been slight so that he may be considered to have had a very narrow escape.

Several other people received shocks from the same wire, but none of them had such an exciting adventure as Mr. McCabe.

A HASTINGS "MASHER" WAS TAUGHT MUCH NEEDED LESSON

Hastings, October 3. — A young Hastings "masher" who has been annoying the ladies of the town with his undesirable attentions during the last few months, was taken in hand the other night by an athletic young fellow, and when he got through with the "masher" the latter was hardly in a presentable condition. It is probable, however, that the lesson intended to be taught was impressed upon him so forcible that he will not forget it, and in future the ladies of Hastings who happen to be on the street without an escort will be free from his obnoxious attentions.

THE "LIE" AND LARD WERE TOO MUCH FOR WEST END GOAT

Rumour tells of a goat in the west end which had a tragical ending. It had cleaned up all the corsets, tomato tins, etc., in the neighbourhood and in its enterprise invaded a summer kitchen, where it devoured the contents of a small pail of lard, finishing up with a stray copy of our back door contemporary, containing a particularly bilious set of political statements. Next morning the goat was found dead, and a post mortem examination revealed the cause of death. The goat's "innards" were found completely blocked by a solid chunk of soap—produced by the chemical combination of lard and lie. The details of this statement are not vouched for, but they are certainly as reliable as many of the statements in regard to political matters made in the dessert of the defunct butter.

THE WEATHER.

The weather has taken a turn to much warmer, which is an agreeable change to late conditions. Highest reading of thermometer yesterday 62 degrees; lowest 31 degrees. The barometer at noon to-day stood at 29.39, and showing falling from the high figures it has stood at for several days.

ADVERTISEMENT BROUGHT BACK THE PURSE

That the Examiner is a great medium for finding lost articles, was again demonstrated to-day. A gentleman yesterday advertised fro a purse which he had lost, and the same evening a young lad who found the purse, and restored to the owner, who expressed his admiration for the honesty of the boy, as well as for the efficiency of the Examiner's

A NARROW ESCAPE RECORDED

Corn Cutter Collapsed and Pieces of Knives Fell Like Hail Stones Among The Men Employed

ON AN OTONABEE FARM

On Friday afternoon while Messrs. Duffus Bros. were employed filling a corn silo for Mr. Wm. Shaw, in Otonabee, the roller plate broke and the knives dropped down to the knives, causing it to break into pieces. The cover was stripped from the machine and hurled sixty feet from the silo and a piece of the knife just passed one of the men at a harnessmaker and was found lodged in an apple tree some 100 feet away. The plates of the machine were broken into pieces about the men like missiles. At the same time a team of horses on the power took fright and ran away, causing further damage. Mr. Duffus was very fortunate to escape with a few slight injuries, and a broken machine for had the knife hit anyone it would have meant instant death.

THE HIGHEST ENDORSATION

The Examiner is greatly encouraged in its "good roads movement" by the receipt of a letter from Mr. A. W. Campbell, "Provincial Commissioner of Highways," one of the best, if not the best, authorities upon road and street construction in the Province. The letter was, perhaps, not intended for publication, but as it was not marked private, in view of the importance of the subject, the high authority it represents, and of its endorsation of the position of the Examiner in relation to its criticism of Peterborough street-making, or rather, street-marring, methods, it is published below:

Deputy Minister's Office,
Toronto, Oct. 2, 1907.

Dear Sir,—

I would be very much pleased if you could send me any spare copies you may have of your issue of September 28, containing extracts from my report on "Road-Making," and also your splendid comment on some of the principles of road construction and their application to your local work. This is an unique and forceful way of attracting attention to the principles which must necessarily be followed to secure proper results.

Yours truly,
A. W. CAMPBELL,
Commissioner of Highways.

The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.

If the city authorities will not wake up long enough to recognize the almost criminal conditions of Lansdowne street management prevailing in Peterborough by such a caustic and apropos criticism as that indirectly involved in this letter, to what influence or authority will they pay attention? A portion of Gilmour street was selected as a terrible example, and still remains a terrible example and type of conditions elsewhere. After ten days' work upon 250 feet of it west of Park, the street, so far as the first principle of road-making is concerned—drainage—is in a worse condition than before a large sum of money was spent, not to say wasted, upon it. Instead of properly grading and rolling the street and providing perfect surface drainage, and proper foundation, the gravel of three or four different qualities was simply dumped upon the old roadbed. This contained high places in the gutter which prevented the flow of water to the Park street drain at St. Joseph street, and formed pockets which created pools of water. These pools still form after rain, but under the gravel, not showing, but still doing their deadly work in under-soaking the gravel surface, so that it is easily cut up by wheels. Indeed, after Saturday's heavy rain, over the site of one of these covered pockets, the gravel was so soaked that the steam rolier "got stuck" in the slush, had to back out, and extra loads of gravel had to be placed—for the moment improving the surface, but additionally raising the dam, which prevents the escape of water and causes fatal softening of the road surface. In addition: This gravel seems to have been unevenly spread, forming advance mudholes. This is assisted by the varying quality of the gravel, some being nearly pure sand alongside of pure gravel, and which does not easily, if at all, become compacted. After two days under the Juggernaut of the steam roller, there are spots where the wheels of ordinary vehicles cut through. In many ways, "the last state" of the stretch of street in question, like the woman into whom the seven devils returned, "is worse than the first." When, in the name of common sense, will some intelligence and system be applied to the treatment of our streets, and, by careful and productive expenditure, put an end to the almost evidently wilful waste of the money of the ratepayers?

THE PUBLIC HEALTH

The great London, England, doctors, in their addresses at the winter opening of the medical schools, asserted that the day was coming when doctors in private practice would disappear, and be replaced by a public health officer. If this state of millennial bliss is to come in Ontario, we shall have to have a health act that will act, not the neutral and ineffective health act now on the statute book, which, good as it was for the time of its enactment, has largely been put out of the running by modern conditions. Under it we have a Board of Health, which, in the jargon of the pharmacopoela, is "inert," having the form of efficiency, without the power thereof. We have medical health officers, of the epicene gender, who are dangling in office between the devil and the deep sea — the nominal officer of an impotent board of health, and nominally responsible to a municipal body without, as a rule, the will to cooperate with the Board of Health. If we are to superannuate the doctors, and replace them by a public health officer, we shall have to begin by superannuating the present Health Act, and replacing it by a better article of legislation — something in conformity with the demands of modern conditions, and the advance of sanitary science. This should be urged upon the present Government. And urging is necessary, because they do not seem to have been seized of the full sense of their responsibility, in the treatment of sanitary matters. Shortly after the present Government came into power, the then Board of Health were commissioned, or undertook, to prepare a draft bill, embodying the conditions and requirements which their large experience, special knowledge and sense of the supreme importance of the subject, regarded as imperatively necessary to an effective and workable Health Act. But, as yet, nothing has been done, so far as is publicly known. The matter may have been forgotten entirely, and pushed aside by less weighty and important subjects, for nothing in the shape of provincial legislation and administration can approach the supreme import of the interests of the public health. This may be regarded as a hackneyed truism, but the public indifference attendant upon, and coincident with, the indifference of our governing body, demands an emphatic reminder.

HOPEFUL SIR THOMAS

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is able to present a, no doubt, matured and responsible opinion of the outcome of the wheat crop in the Canadian Northwest this year. At the twenty-sixth annual meeting of the company, in referring to the wheat crop, he said that the backward spring had caused a shrinkage of 25 per cent. in the marketable wheat as compared with last season. There will, however, be added, to a very considerable increase in the quantity of oats and other grains, so that with the higher price of wheat the farmers of Western Canada will receive, in the aggregate, quite as much for this crop as they did last year. Sir Thomas also states that there were no serious grounds for the apprehension that the business of the country would have a serious setback. Assurrances from such a competent authority, made upon the responsibility of his position and the importance of the occasion, are very reassuring, and discount the pessimistic predictions based upon the stringency of the money market. One swallow doesn't make a summer, and one partial shortage of the wheat crop in the Northwest does not condemn the country, nor diminish faith in the great resources of Canada and her steady and rapid progress and development.

EDITORIAL NOTES

For the first three quarters of the Provincial financial year, the receipts from Succession, or, as they are sometimes called, Death Duties, is a round three-quarters of a million, and, at this rate, the income from this source for the year will be a round million of dollars. If Mr. Matheson is able to present a good budget statement at the next session, he will owe no small share of it to a preceding Liberal Government, which provided, in face of the protests of himself and the Conservative party, the source represented by Succession Duties, which statesmanship originated and party politics obstructed.

HASTINGS YOUNG MAN IN TROUBLE

Took Horse and Buggy From Roseneath Which Did Not Belong to Him

A young man from Hastings, who attended Roseneath Fair on Friday, made a mistake which should teach him a lesson that will last for some time. When he wanted to come home to Hastings from the fair he took another man's horse and rig and drove to Hastings, leaving it in a local hotel stable, but the constable arrived next morning from Roseneath and took charge of the horse and also the young man, who, we understand, was allowed to settle the affair for $10, which was exceedingly cheap under the circumstances.

THE BRASSWORKER'S AT HOME

Very Enjoyable Affair in the Foresters' Hall Last Night

The first "at home" of the season, under the auspices of the Brass Workers, was held last night in the Foresters' Hall, Simcoe street, and was a most successful function. Last season the brass workers held several "at homes" which were looked forward to and very much appreciated by young people of the city. Last night's affair was fully up to the standard set last year and a most enjoyable time was spent by those present. The floor was in excellent condition and some thirty-five couples tripped the light fantastic until 12.30 o'clock. The music was supplied by a section of the Opera House Orchestra and their playing was a decided factor in the success of the evening. They were generous with their music and played all the popular music of the day.

SOME NEW WINDOWS FOR MARKET OFFICE

They Are Actually Installed—Prospects For a Stove

There were actually three new window panes installed in the market clerk's office to-day, and one of them was a beautiful curved glass placed in the south window, where for the past two or more winters a piece of rag has kept out the cold.

About the only article of furniture needed is a heating apparatus. The prospects are that the market will obtain the stove which has been used in the tax collector's office for several years. When the collector moves down to the new office in the old firehall the heater won't be necessary. This may be the way in which the market office will be supplied with a stove.

DEBATING CLUB ON THE MOVE

Re-organized Last Night For Winter Season—Election of Officers

The Debating Club of the Y. M. C. A. held its organization meeting last night for the winter season, when the work was discussed and officers elected. The officers for this season are:—

Pres.—Mr. Wilfrid Shiner.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. B. A. Lillie.
2nd Vice-Pres. — Mr. Wm. McLaren.
Secretary—Mr. Frank Simpson.
Treasurer—Mr. C. E. Coleman.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson, who acted so capably last year as critic of the club, was unanimously re-elected to that position, and an Executive Committee will be added later to the officers' list at the next meeting. It is the idea of the club to obtain representatives from the various manufacturing establishments in the city so as to get as many of the young men interested as possible.

The next meeting will be held on October 16, which will be of a social character. A programme for the season will by that time have been mapped out, and besides the discussion of this, there will be impromptu speeches, music and refreshments.

MANY BEEF CATTLE AT THE MARKET

Some All the Way From Young's Point—Price Not Very High

Messrs. Jno. and Jos. Young of Young's Point brought 18 head of fine young beef cattle to the market to-day. They were purchased by Mr. Gilbert Thompson, butcher, making 37 head bought by him to-day, besides 19 on Monday. He is keeping some of them for beef cattle and disposing of the remainder. Beef cattle now are about 2 1-2 cents per pound, live weight.

Request For New Siding Before The Board of Works

Owners of Properties To Be Considered---Engineer Reports On Cost of Benson Street Drainage---Sidewalks and Sewers Talked Of

The Board of Works held another session last night, and dealt with a large number of small matters in connection with sidewalks, sewers, crossings, etc.

Those present at the meeting were Chairman Duncan. His Worship the Mayor, Ald. McIntyre, Johnston, Bradburn, Wilson, Morgan the city engineer, and the street commissioner.

A letter was read from Mr. F. W. Doan, manager of the Bell Telephone Company, stating that between the sidewalk, and their new building on Hunter street, there was a space unfilled. He asked that this, as it belonged to the city, should be filled in before the winter comes. He also asked that a cement corrugated driveway be made over the sidewalk at the west end of the building.

It was moved by the Mayor, and seconded by Ald. Johnston, that the space be filled in between the sidewalk, and building, and that a driveway be constructed.—Carried.

The chairman read a letter from Mr. T. F. Matthews, of the George Matthews Company, stating that the condition of the roadway in front of the company's new store at the corner of Sherbrooke and Park streets, was very bad. The entrance to the front and side was not good, and Mr. Matthews suggested that large cement tile be laid to carry off the surplus water.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson, that the pipe on Sherbrooke street, be continued to the corner and that the necessary filling in in front of the store be also attended to.—Carried.

Ald. Johnston called attention to the need of two crossings in front of the two East City churches. He stated that if the city's employees were not prepared, that he could obtain a good man in East City to construct the crossings.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that these crossings be laid.—Carried.

Ald. Johnston asked why the crossing on Park street, across from Mr. Parker's residence was not constructed properly. He stated that instead of a crossing there was merely an approach made. The chairman stated that a crossing had been authorized, and that he didn't know until recently that only an approach had been made.

The old question of the right of the Gas Company to open the streets was again brought up last night.

Ald. Wilson called the attention of the Board to the loose manner in which some of the sewers were left after the pipes were laid.

Moved by Ald. Wilson, seconded by the Mayor ,that the Engineer be ordered to examine all sewer conditions made this year, and to see that the streets be left in as good condition as when found by the companies opening them.

G.T.R. Sidings

The question of the request of the G.T.R. to place sidings on the corner of Wolfe and Bethune streets and at the corner of Dalhousie and Bethune streets, which was mentioned in yesterday's issue, was brought up last night.

The Mayor's letter in answer to Mr. Tiffin was read, asking for a conference with him to look over the proposed sidings. The letter also reminded Mr. Tiffin that there were a couple of other matters to be dealt with together—the crossing on the extension on George street, and the diversion of the creek running along the Lakefield branch of the G.T.R.

It was moved by the Mayor, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that all owners of properties in the two blocks between Bethune and Aylmer streets and Wolfe and Sherbrooke streets, be notified of the request of the G.T.R., and that they be asked to file any objections they may have.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn, that the granolithic sidewalk on the south side of Townsend street, between Stewart and Park streets, be constructed, a petition for the same being presented.—Carried.

Ald. McIntyre moved that a granolithic sidewalk on the north side of Perry street, from George to Aylmer street, be constructed this year. The board sidewalk was considered to be good enough, so that a new one will not be built this year.

The City Engineer called attention to a poor sidewalk on the north side of Lansdowne street, where several persons are being injured every week. The scantling is rotten and should be removed or repaired, be considered. Moved by Ald. Wilson and Morgan, that the sidewalk be repaired, if possible, and if not, that it be removed.—Carried.

Mr. Martin Kirn, Stewart street, asked permission to connect with the Reid street sewer.

Moved by Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, that Mr. Kirn be allowed the connection, providing he pays the usual $25 over, the cost of connection, and that in the event of being connected with the trunk sewer later, that he then pay the frontage tax. —Carried.

Benson Street Drainage

The City Engineer submitted the following comparative estimates for the drainage of Benson avenue and Normal School:

(a) For serving all houses on Benson avenue between Smith and Stort street, with a maximum cut of 11 feet deep—$960.

(b) For serving the Normal School by a trunk sewer across the park and discharging into Barnardo avenue sewer, with a maximum depth of cut of five feet nine inches —$594.

(c) For serving all houses on Benson avenue, between Smith street and the Dixon Park, as well as the Normal School, by way of Smith street, with a maximum depth of cut of 24 feet six inches—$2,435.

By building as per plans A and B the total cost will be $1,554, as against $2,485 per plan C, a difference in cost of $931.

The first plan is being followed, the second will follow after, and the third will be discarded.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson, that a pipe sewer be constructed on Bethune street, between London and Dublin [illegible]—Carried.

Residents on Water street asked for some old plank to lay a sidewalk along Edinburgh street, from George to Water street. Moved by Ald. Johnston and McIntyre, that this be granted.—Carried.

Ald. McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston, that a board sidewalk be constructed from the Hunter street bridge to Roger street, on the north side. The attention of the Board was again called to this by Ald. Morgan, who stated that it was badly needed. The sidewalk was at last granted.

Ald. McIntyre called attention to a large hole in the Dixon street bridge which looked rather dangerous. The engineer stated that Mr. Fitzgerald had been notified and that the danger was being looked after.

Nerves Gave Out, Almost in Despair

TWO SEVERE CASES OF NERVOUS PROSTRATION WITH WHICH DOCTORS COULD DO NOTHING CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

Mr. Wm. Graham, Atwood, Ont., writes: "My wife had been ill for some time with nervous prostration, and we had two of the best doctors we could get, but neither of them did her any good. She gradually became worse and worse, could not sleep, and lost energy and interest in life. She was almost giving up in despair, when a friend advised a trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"From the first box of this preparation my wife used we noticed an improvement, and after using six boxes she is completely cured, and as well as ever she was—eats well and sleeps well, and feels fully restored. I cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine, and am satisfied that my wife owes her life to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food." This cure is certified to by Mr. C. H. McFarlane, druggist, Atwood, Ont.

Mrs. Ald. Stevens, Burgessville, Oxford County, writes: "Two years ago last November I was run down, and did not know what was wrong. I could not sleep nor eat, and at last my nervous system gave way entirely, and I had to go to bed. The doctor told me I had nervous prostration, and, though he doctored me for some weeks, I did not get any better.

"I then began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the time I had used six boxes I was entirely cured. People remarked how well I looked, and I said, 'Yes, and I feel well, that is the best of it, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did it.'"

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures disease of the nerves in the only natural and effective way—by enriching the blood and creating new nerve force; 50c a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—4

HOUSE OF REFUGE AUDIT

County Board of Management Auditing The Books There To-day

Today, Warden McNulty, County Councillor Scott and County Councillor Shaw are at the House of Refuge, Lakefield, making an audit of the books at that institution. The past summer has been a satisfactory one for the county dwelling place for its unfortunates, and the management has been all that could have been desired. The crops have been as good as those on any farm in the township, and the inmates are satisfied with their treatment.

County Clerk Elliott is assisting the Board of Management in making the audit to-day.

A Live Deer Captured By a Janetville Man

Mr. Bradburn Will Try to Domesticate Animal Captured by Him In Woods of Manvers

AN INTERESTING FIND

Quite an interesting wild animal story is on everybody's tongue in Janetville and vicinity. Not very far from Janetville there are miles and miles of swampy and wooded land, which is almost impenetrable. It is an ideal spot for ducks, partridge and other game, as the famous bear story of a few weeks ago will testify.

The latest denizen of the northern forests to seek these wilds and then forsake them for the haunts of men is a fine four year old deer.

It seems that about a week ago as Mr. Robert G. Bradburn was out in his lower pasture, salting his cattle he noticed among them an animal of a different shape and colour, from his usually good breed of cattle. He looked closer. It was a deer! Mr. Bradburn then started to walk slowly backward, with the salt, and the cattle and deer followed him right up to his door yard, when he called his wife to see what he had brought home. The animal stayed around for a few minutes and then becoming frightened at some movement on the part of Mr. Bradburn, leaped over the fence and made off into the woods, near the pasture.

In a day or two Mr. Albert McNeil, who lives about a mile from Mr. Bradburn's saw it come into his barnyard with the cattle one evening. There were two men present, and while the deer did not seem at all afraid of them, it wouldn't let them get near it. The farm dog then caught the animal's eye, and the two stood rivetted, watching each other's movements. The two men then stole around behind, among the cattle, and caught the deer by the hind legs. Mr. McNeil now has it in a box stall in the stable, where he can attend to it. Everybody for miles around has been to see it, and it has now become quite tame.

Chocolates And Cocoa To Join General Price Jump

In Some Cases Consumers Will Pay Fifty Per Cent Increase Over Former Price Charged

THE HOUSEWIVES ARE HIT

Cocoa and chocolates are to be dearer. At first blush this may be taken as an indication that it will affect only the young man who buys chocolates for his lady friends. Unfortunately, however, the effects are to be more far-reaching than that, and it is the housewife, who will possibly suffer the greatest. Wholesale grocers have been advised by the chocolate manufacturers that commencing at once an increase in price of from one to four cents a pound has been made on the different classes of chocolates and cocoa.

The ordinary person does not give much concern to the increase of prices, so long as they affect only the wholesaler or the retailer, but when the price to the consumer is increased it is a different story. This will be the case with the latest increase of prices. Cocoa powder, which formerly sold at ten cents a tin will in future, if the retailers are to make any profit be increased to fifteen, a jump of fifty per cent. Baker's Cocoa will go from twenty-five to thirty cents and chocolate, the price of which was ten cents a tin will also go to fifteen cents.

Following these increases it is assumed that it will be a matter of only a short time before an announcement will be made to the effect that candies of which chocolate forms a constituent part will also be raised in price.

SHORTAGE OF $2,000,000 IN RECEIPTS OF CHEESE

If the estimate of Chief Dairy Instructor G. G. Publow be correct, the dairy farmers of Eastern Ontario will receive about $2,000,000 less for their cheese this year than last year.

"The factories in Eastern Ontario," said Mr. Publow recently, "will average at least a cheese and a half a day less than in 1906. There are about 970 cheese factories in Eastern Ontario, which will be in operation about 150 days during the season.

"This means that these factories will make about 218,250 less cheese this year than last. The cheese will average about 80 lbs. each, or a total of 17,460,000 lbs. If this cheese is valued at 11 cents a lb., which is a fair price, it means that the value of the cheese made in Ontario this year east of Toronto will be $1,920,600 less than last year. Some factories," concluded Mr. Publow, "are averaging three cheese a day less than last year, and even more."

MERCHANTS OUT WITH CLUB FOR A TRAUDULENT BUYER

Some Peterborough merchants are out with a club looking for a freak. If they find him there will be some trouble for him, too—if the merchants are big enough. It appears that when the local merchants exchanged stories they found that three or four of them had been imposed upon in practically the same manner.

A stranger had visited the stores, generally selecting men's clothing establishments, though, in some cases, drygoods stores were selected. He would order a motley collection of goods, carefully inquiring the price of each article, and beating the clerk down in price, if he could. In the drygoods stores dress goods were purchased, and these, of course, were cut in lengths to suit the purchaser. His practice was to ask the clerk who waited on him, to tie the goods into one large parcel, and after asking him the price of the lot, left the store, remarking that he would call in a few minutes with the money. No one can be found, however, to whom he kept his promise, and the goods he pretended to buy, are still awaiting an owner.

Fire, Water and Light Talk
About The Making of Beds

The Duties of Fire Hall Drivers, Engineer and City Janitor Are Discussed—The Pay Of City Officials

MANY STREET LIGHTS OUT

At the conclusion of the session of the Board of Works last night the Fire, Water and Light Committee held away for a short time when considerable discussion was spent on the proposal made some time ago by the Property Committee to have Mr. Wilson, the city hall janitor make the beds at the fire hall. Looking after furnaces in the city hall and fire hall was also talked about but it all ended by leaving things as they were and having the question gone over in Committee of the Whole next week.

Those present at the meeting were Chairman Johnston, His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Morgan, Bradburn and Duncan.

The Water Commissioners requested a hydrant at the corner of Bethune and Dublin street.

On motion of Ald. Duncan and Morgan it was decided that the chairman report on the situation.

It was moved and seconded that the new hook and ladder be paid for as soon as the account was certified by the fire chief.

Many reports were received from citizens stating that various lights were out at various times during the past few weeks. On motion of the Mayor and Ald. Duncan it was decided to deduct from the Light and Power Company the amount equal to the loss of light, unless there are satisfactory reasons given to the chairman and city treasurer for the lights being out.

The chairman stated that new bells for the firehall drivers' and the fire engineer's houses would cost in the neighbourhood of $5.00. The drivers do not want the bells so that they will not get them.

Upon request, Mr. Pakenham, who was present, stated that the engineer was not compelled to attend all fires but only those at which the engine is required.

This matter was left in abeyance until some future date.

Janitor's Duties

In discussing the duties of Wilson, the new caretaker of the city buildings, the question of whether he should take care of the rooms in the new fire hall, and assume charge of the furnace in the city buildings, arose. Besides keeping clean the city buildings, Wilson has to act as messenger, delivering notices, etc., which at times takes up considerable time.

The Mayor thought Wilson might look after the furnace in the city buildings, and also the bedrooms in the new fire hall. Under present arrangements, the Parnell boys, fire hall drivers, take care of the bedrooms for which they receive $10 a year each, and Wainwright looks after the city buildings' furnace, for which he is paid $90. And should the Mayor's suggestion be adopted the assumption follows that Wainwright's present salary would be reduced by $90, and the Parnell boys' wages reduced by $50 a year.

Ald. Morgan contended that these men are not being paid any too much now, and it would be unfair to take any steps that would reduce their present income. He is a believer in civic employees being well paid, and would not agree to any action which would reduce their present wages. He contended that the present arrangements with Wainwright and the Parnell boys should stand, and that they should not suffer owing to the engagement of a new employee. He thought Wainwright should look after the furnaces in the new fire hall, and Wilson that in the city buildings, which would equalize things as far as those two men are concerned. As to looking after the bedrooms, he considered the present arrangements to be perfectly satisfactory to all concerned.

Ald. Bradburn offered that no change in present conditions should be made this year.

Ald. Johnston contended that money might be spent in many a worse direction than in giving fair wages to the city's employees to which Ald. Morgan heartily agreed.

An agreement on this question will be probably arrived at between the different committees, and definitely decided by the Committee of the Whole next Monday night, so far as this year's council is concerned at any rate.

SPLENDID FOR THE OLD FOLKS

Prescription To Relieve Bladder Trouble Which Anyone Can Mix

IT ACTS ON THE KIDNEYS

Cut this out and put it in some safe place, for it is valuable and worth more than anything else in the world if you should have an attack of rheumatism or bladder trouble or any derangement of the kidneys whatever. The preparation is simple, and can be made up by anyone at home. The ingredients can be had at any good prescription pharmacy and all that is necessary is to shake them well in a bottle.

Here it is: Fluid extract dandelion, one-half ounce; compound Kargon, one ounce; compound syrup of sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime. A few doses is said to relieve almost any case of bladder trouble, frequent urination, pain and scalding, weakness and backache, pain above the kidneys, etc. It is now claimed to be the method of curing chronic rheumatism, because of its direct and positive action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys. It cleanses these sponge-like organs and gives them life and power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood relieving the worst forms of Rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles. The extract dandelion acts upon the stomach and liver and is used also extensively for relieving constipation and indigestion. Compound sarsaparilla cleans and enriches the blood.

As you or anyone of your family, especially the old folks, may be attacked at any time it would be wise to cut this out and save it.

A well known local druggist is authority that this prescription is safe to use at any time.

Mix it yourself. 4

BOARD MUST GO SLOW WITH APPROPRIATIONS

Advice of Chairman Duncan Now Is To Make Haste Slowly

The Board of Works has got to advance with their appropriations slowly. Last night at their meeting the chairman stated that the committee would soon have to close the lid the appropriation box as the money was slipping rapidly away. His advise to the Board for the remainder of the year was to make haste slowly.

Mayor And Citizen Talk
Back At Each Other

The Mayor Will Not Be Coerced But Citizen Declines to do Any "Sweetening" or "Polishing"— In The Board of Works Session

TROUBLES OF A PETITION

A brief, but lively, tilt between the Mayor and a citizen, varied the happenings at the meeting of the Board of Works last night, when Mr. Thos. J. Moore, corner of St. Joseph and Charlotte streets, called on the Board to prove that his property was not encroaching on the street.

Mr. Moore wanted to know who had stated that he had built on the line of the street, at the last meeting of the board. He said that he had built according to the surveyor's plans and produced a certificate from Mr. Cameron, surveyor, that his property was situated in the proper place.

He had petitioned for a sidewalk, some time ago, and considered that the Board of Works, and the council, had simply "sat down" on him obtaining the walk. He had been willing to build the walk himself according to the conditions laid down.

The engineer at the last meeting said that he did not wish to have the walk laid down as the street at that place was not wide enough, and he wanted first to define the street line.

Mr. Moore was told that board did not accuse him of building on the street, but that the street line was wrong somewhere.

The Mayor said that he was opposed to any man building sidewalks apart from the city's jurisdiction, and Mr. Moore must be treated in this respect as all other citizens. The Mayor said that he had also been threatened by Mr. Moore in regard to votes at the next election, and this he said he would not tolerate. Mr. Moore or any other person, who made threats of this nature, would not be able to influence him in any manner whatever.

"Because a man doesn't sweeten and polish you up, he's nobody!" was Mr. Moore's answer.

The possibility of constructing a sidewalk on St. Joseph street, in front of this property, was discussed, but the Board could not see their way clear to do so this year, and Mr. Moore was forced to leave the meeting without gaining his request. He again offered to construct the sidewalk himself, under the same conditions, as before, but the Board declined.

Wild Duck Egg Gatherers
Reported From The North

Statement is Made That Eggs Are Stolen And Shipped in Barrels To United States

MAY BE NEW OCCUPATION

Gathering wild duck eggs from among the marshes and rice beds of the lakes to the north, and shipping them across the line for sale, is an occupation hitherto unknown. It is an occupation that has the catching of frogs to make money for a college course faded into the twilight, if it were only legitimate. But such is the labour, novel and startling, of men residing near the lakes to the north of Peterborough county, as reported here this week.

According to statements made by residents of the northern part of the county, and by Peterborough men who have travelled in that direction, there were recently sixteen barrels of wild duck and wild goose eggs shipped from Haliburton and vicinity across the border to the United States, to be consumed.

The information also adds that the practice has been going on for a few years and that annually many dozens of the products which the wild duck and goose have stored away among the marshes, have been stolen, and sold for gain.

Whether the spring eggs, or the second laying is what the egg-gatherers seek for, is not known; but if the former there must certainly be soon a noticeable change in the number of the feathered creatures in this vicinity.

NO FAIRY TALE THIS; ANOTHER LIMERICKER

To-day another correspondent furnishes a contribution to the Limerick suggested in the Examiner of Tuesday. It is as follows:—

Larger Business

Months of planning and working has given us desired results.

We had pictured an ideal in merchandizing that was not attainable under conditions existing before our extensive alterations.

We know what we must have to cater successfully in the building of a modern and enlarged departmental store such as we were confident was wanted in Peterboro.

While this business has grown by leaps and bounds—

The growth of the next few years will be away ahead of anything heretofore attained.

While all summer long we have been enlarging—

We have had our buying forces at work and have gotten together the largest assortment of goods ever gathered under one roof in Peterboro—

And at prices that will need no emphasis.

You will find, in spite of the marked upward tendency of all markets, that prices have been right, even below what you could think possible.

Our Introductory Sale under the new conditions starts Saturday morning at 8.10.

To-morrow's paper will give you a fair idea of the remarkable price attractions the new conditions make possible.

Every item in the large advertisement will bear scrutinising—

Every line, just as advertised, will be here, and here in abundance—

Sales force has been increased nearly one-third—

Quick and efficient service—

Goods delivered by our delivery system—

Money cheerfully refunded for any reason of dissatisfaction.

Yours for larger business,

A. W. Cressman.

Ambitious Proposal of George Street Methodists

Would Erect New Church in South End of City and Secure Assistant For Rev. Mr. Pearson to Take Charge

MISS REESOR RE-ENGAGED

GEORGE STREET PASTOR MAY SUPERINTEND NEW METHODIST CHURCH

Another step towards the erection of a new Methodist church in the south end of the city was taken last night, and, incidentally, a departure in connection with the pastorate of the George street Methodist church was suggested, when, at the meeting of the Trustee Board of that church, a resolution was passed asking the chairman of the district to call a meeting of the officials at an early date for the purpose of considering the question of the erection of the proposed church which, it is felt, is a necessity to furnish church accommodation for the Methodists in that portion of the city.

The proposal of the Trustee Board of the George street church, is to to erect the new church as an adjunct to that organization, and, if this plan is carried out, an assistant will be secured for Mr. Pearson, and this assistant will be placed in charge of the new church, under the superintendency of Mr. Pearson.

It is understood that the George street church is willing to assume this responsibility, and the proposition as outlined will be submitted to the general meeting, which will probably be held next week.

At the meeting last night Miss Reesor, who has completed one year's service as soloist in the George street Methodist church, was re-engaged at an increased salary for another year.

Rev. E. A. Pearson, Who May be Given Assistant in Case New Church is Built in South End

Outside of the routine business, the presentation of reports, etc., these were the matters which engaged the attention of the Trustees. The pastor, Rev. E. A. Pearson, occupied the chair.

THE NON-COMS DISCUSS PLANS

Hold the First Meeting of the Season Last Night

The first meeting of the Non-Coms. of the 57th Regiment for the season was held last night in the Mess Rooms on Simcoe street with a large and enthusiastic attendance. The plans for the coming season were discussed at length and the prospects for the winter are of the brightest. Last year the Non-Coms. had a most successful season and doubtless the operations this year will be equally as gratifying.

After the business of the evening was concluded a pleasant social time was spent.

ENTHUSIASM OF THE BOYS

Younger Members of the Y.M.C.A. Are Working Enthusiastically for Success Of Six Days' Campaign

THE SEASON HAS OPENED

That the Boys' Department is a good live and promising branch of the Y.M.C.A., was completely demonstrated last evening at the Boys' Department social which marked the opening of the season. Over fifty were present and a most enjoyable time was spent. Mr. Williamson presided and other senior workers in attendance were: Mr. J. F. Thornton, W. E. McCann, Dr. Middleton, chairman of the Boys Department, Geo. [illegible] and Fred Hall.

A short time was spent in story-telling, a prize of a box of chocolates being donated to the one giving the best. Then the work for the year was outlined and discussed.

A hearty welcome was given Mr. C. H. James, the new physical director, when the classes in the gymnasium were outlined.

Mr. Williamson then explained the six days' campaign and the boys soon caught the spirit of the movement, and are going out to land at least 50 new members by the 8th of October.

The following committee was appointed to push it—Fred Hall, chairman, H. Johnston, V. Mitchell, D. Layfield, H. Lees, J. Harstone, Ray Perry, Mel. Turner, W. Stratton, W. Fortye, Hugh Wallis, L. Stevens, Walter Perks, Stan. Croswell, and Elmer Sanderson.

Before the gathering broke up light refreshments were served, which were thoroughly enjoyed.

The success of the social is due entirely to the Boys' Department's social committee, of which Mel. Turner is the chairman.

THE FUNERAL OF FRANCIS COSTELLO

Is Held This Afternoon—No Person Saw Him Take the Fatal Fall

The funeral of the remains of Francis Costello, the little six-year-old boy, who was drowned in Stony Lake on Tuesday afternoon, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock to St. Peter's Cemetery, from the family residence on Thomas street. Further particulars of the drowning have reached the city which indicate that no person saw the boy drop into the lake. The steamer had just left a scow load of sand at Baptie's Island for Mr. A. L. Davis and was in the act of turning when the fatal accident happened.

As soon as he was missed by the crew, which must have been only a few moments after the fatal fall, his little cap was seen floating on the surface near the scow. It was not till then that it was actually realized the boy had been drowned. He never rose to the surface once and therefore prevented the only possible chance of his life being saved.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907.

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

DISTRICT COMPANION GAVE ADDRESS

At Meeting of Court Queen Alexandra A.O.F. Held Last Night

The regular meeting of Queen Alexandria Circle, was held last night in the S.O.E. Hall, and there was a good turn out of the members. The Chief Companion, Mrs. Stevens, presided. One candidate was duly initiated into the mysteries of Foresty. The District Chief Companion, Mrs. Lloyd, was present, and delivered an interesting address, saying how delighted she was to see such a large turn out of the members, and the way the Circle was increasing, and the interest the members were taking in it. Bro. Hamilton, Past District Chief Companion, also addressed the meeting. Miss Howell gave several selections on the piano, and sang a number of solos, which were greatly appreciated by all present. It was decided to choose a carpet ball team at the next meeting.

LAKEHURST FAIR ON FRIDAY

This Event in Capital of Harvey Gives Promises of Being Success

To-morrow the annual fair for the exploitation of the agricultural products of the township of Harvey will be held at Lakehurst. This year it is confidently expected that the fair will surpass all previous efforts. All that is required to make the event a success is good weather, which seems to be assured at the present time. A number from this city will in all probability attend.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED

Kill the Germs by Breathing Hy-o-mei—Gives Quick Relief

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years, naturally think that they cannot be cured, and become discouraged.

The reason they have failed of cure is because they have not treated the disease with the local remedy, Hy-o-mei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, so that its healing, medicated air, reaches the most remote air cells, kills all the catarrh germs, and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, to a healthy condition.

Catarrh is really a local disease and to cure it it must be treated by a remedy which reaches every spot in the nose and throat, where the disease germs lay. Hy-o-mei does this and gives relief from the first day's use.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1 and Mr. Madill gives a guarantee with every package to refund the money unless it cures.

WATCH RETURNED TO ITS OWNER

Man Had to Buy It Back at a Loss to Himself

The aftermath of the case of Barrie, the man who stole a gold watch from the residence where he was boarding on Parnell street, has just been brought to light. In police court he pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by a jury. The prosecution did not have enough evidence to secure a conviction and Barrie was discharged. Since then it has been learned that he got the watch from the man to whom he sold it, and returned it to its real owner. He sold the watch in the first place, the authorities say, for two dollars, and had to pay three dollars when he was buying it back again. Evidently the man's sense of the difference between mine and thine was awakened by his short stay in the gaol.

PLAIN TALK FROM THE DOCTOR

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder troubles, stated that to the following prescription is due a great deal of his success:

One ounce fluid extract dandelion;
One ounce compound salatone;
Four ounces compound syrup sarsaparilla.

Mix and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

This mixture will, he says, positively cure any diseases arising from weak, clogged or inactive kidneys, and will assist these organs to cleanse the blood of the poisonous waste matter and acids, which if allowed to remain, cause lumbago, lame back, rheumatism and sciatica, and at the same time will restore the kidneys to healthy normal action. The ingredients, which are purely vegetable and entirely harmless, can be procured from any good druggist and mixed at home at very little cost.

This advice will undoubtedly be much appreciated by many readers.

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 TRADE MARK ROGERS BROS.

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

ARE COAL PRICES TOO HIGH?

A Correspondent to Toronto World Furnishes Some Facts Relative to Cost To Dealers in That City

THE CONDITIONS HERE

The price of coal, and the recent increase, an action which seems to have been taken in unison by the dealers in the majority of towns and cities in the Province has aroused some discussion; discussion which in some places is not altogether complimentary to the dealers. A writer in the Toronto World to-day affirms that the price charged there for coal, $7.25 is exorbitant, and that at that figure the dealers are making more than a fair profit. There is one respect, of course, in which the conditions here are different from those in Toronto. The freight on coal from Suspension Bridge to Peterborough is $1.50 a ton, in transit of 60 cts., the rate to Toronto.

Figuring out the actual cost of coal to the Toronto dealers, the writer of the letter in the World says:—

"Let us look into the matter for a moment. The present cost of hard coal at the International Bridge is $5.50 per ton of 2,240 pounds, or $4.91 per ton of 2,000 pounds, our weight, and as sold to the consumers here; duty nothing; freight from the International Bridge to Toronto, 60 cts. per ton; switching to dealers' yards, nothing; average cartage from cars to customers, say 40c. (a man at $10 a week is supposed to average six tons daily delivery.) Total apparent cost to dealer in cellar of a citizen of Toronto, $5.91 per ton.

"Now, buying by the gross ton and selling by the net ton, in every 8 1-3 tons sold the dealer has a ton for himself. This is certainly worth considering, but this bit of information is never cheerfully furnished the public—in fact, the public are not supposed to take time to consider it. The public are supposed to pay for coal and burn it, and, like a good public, not be suspicious or ask too many questions.

REFUND WENT TO THE CHILDREN

The $40 Which the Doctors Got From Otonabee Navigation Company Goes To Children's Aid Society

The doctors of the city are generous. To-day the treasurer Aid Society received a letter from Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, enclosing a cheque for $40 to be applied to the funds of the society. The history of that $40 is interesting. When the doctors conducted the annual excursion to Idyl Wild early in the summer, the meals served at the hotel there were unsatisfactory. That is now a matter of history. Complaints were made, and the result of these complaints was that the Otonabee Navigation Company refunded to the doctors $40. At a meeting of the members of the medical profession held subsequent to the reception of this refund, the disposition of the money was discussed, and it was unanimously decided to donate it to the Children's Aid Society, which was done, and the treasurer gratefully acknowledges it.

WEDDING BELLS.

HILL-WARNER

At 2.30 o'clock this afternoon a quiet wedding was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson, at the residence of Mr. Peter Warner, 125 Brock street, when his daughter Susan, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles George Hill, of Toronto, in the presence of a few of the friends of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by Miss May Victoria Hill, sister of the groom, while Mr. Herbert McMillan, a cousin of the bride, supported the groom. After the wedding the usual dejeuner was served and on the 4.48 C.P.R. train the newly married couple left for their new home in Toronto.

TONA COLA IS THE SAME

The qualities of coca-cola were discussed by the Women's Christian Temperance Union in their district convention yesterday afternoon at Toronto. A resolution was offered strongly denouncing its use as creating that craze for more, and cultivating a desire for stimulants, opiates and narcotics. As the authority, however, on which the composition of the beverage was given was not named, the union laid the resolution on the table. In order to allow of an analysis being obtained by the superintendent of the scientific temperance department from a competent and recognized Canadian analyst. Tona-cola was also mentioned by one of the delegates as being similar in its composition.

TO RE-ORGANIZE CEMENT COMPANY

The Raven Lake Company Will Resume Operations After a Re-Organization Has Been Effected

The Raven Lake Portland Cement Company of Raven Lake, near Victoria Road, is to be re-organized. Arrangements are now under way to raise money to carry on the business. It is proposed to secure permission from the Ontario Government to write off 20 per cent. of the stock which is now paid up to the extent of $420,000, and reissue the amount among the bond and shareholders.

WOULD ENTER INTO A TREATY

Germany Seeks to Enter Into Agreement With Canada.

TRADE FAVORS TO CONTINUE

Consul-General at Montreal Has Been Trying to Further Commercial Understanding — Reichstag to Be Approached—May Be for Two Years — Germany and Her Export Trade to England.

London, Oct. 3.—(C. A. P.)—The Berlin Reichstag will be requested, at the end of November, to empower the bundsrath to grant Great Britain and the colonies a continuance of commercial favors under the most favored nation clause. It is as yet unascertained whether the proposal will be limited to two years or will contain a clause enabling the bundsrath to make the concession indefinite.

In preceding years it was regarded as certain that Australia as well as Canada would be exempted. But hopes are entertained here that Germany will be able to conclude direct arrangements with both for the regulation of their commercial relations.

The German consul at Montreal recently conferred with his Government with a view to promoting a commercial treaty between Germany and the Dominion.

Germany will continue to bring all possible pressure to bear to prevent Canada and Australia favoring the export trade of Britain at the expense of Germany.

BRUTAL DOUBLE MURDER.

Police Are Searching For the Hired Man.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Believing that he can throw some light on the double murder committed at Londonville, on the outskirts of Albany, the police of various places in this vicinity searched for hours yesterday for trace of Jacob Besche, a farm hand, but up to midnight had not located him.

The search began directly after the discovery of the bodies of Mrs. Katherine Dargats, wife of John A. Dargats, a farmer, and their nine-year-old adopted son.

The woman was bound about the neck and arms with ropes, her body suspended from a rafter in the barn in the rear of her home. Nearby was the body of her son, lying in a pool of blood, his skull being crushed in with an axe. John A. Dargats, husband of the woman, was taken into custody and will be held for the present at least.

The clothes of Besche were found in his room. His trunk was found later in the hayloft of the barn, concealed under a large quantity of hay. Besche, it is said, was in Albany on Tuesday.

RUSSIANS BLEW UP A MAIL CAR

Robbers at Odessa Have Pitched Battle With Police.

MANY WOUNDED, BOTH SIDES

Held Up Train With Two Hundred Passengers —Used Dynamite to Get at the Mails—Cars Set on Fire—Women and Children Badly Burned — Gendarmes Appear But the Thieves Escapes.

Odessa, Oct. 3.—A train having on board over 300 passengers, was held up Tuesday night by a band of robbers, who opened the mail car by exploding dynamite.

The explosion set the car on fire and the flames communicated to a crowded passenger car, with the result that a number of women and children were badly burned before they could escape.

While the robbers were trying to blow open the safe in the mail car they were attacked by some gendarmes, who were passengers on the train. A number on both sides were wounded, but the robbers escaped.

MECHANICS QUIT JOB.

Springhill Mines Now Being Worked by the Officials.

Springhill Mines, N. S., Oct. 3.—The mechanics quit work yesterday morning and the officials are now in charge of the mines. These include regular mine officials, besides a number of the company's office staff. High collars and fine linen are thus laid aside and brawn and backbone are essentials for the time being. All freight traffic on the company's line between Springhill Junction and Earnsboro ceased yesterday, but the passenger trains will run as usual.

In case of necessity the passenger crews will also be called out to assist in the general tie-up. The company has evidently not succeeded in getting the Government to take charge of the mine, as Inspector Cameron says that he has not received instructions to do anything.

Attorney-General Pipes was here on Tuesday to get the feeling of the men, and he must have been convinced that any compulsory measures on the part of the Government to assist the company would lead to serious trouble in the town. The men to a man would refuse to obey any orders to keep the mine running, let the penalty be what it would. The company is undoubtedly bothered by the situation, as the hope of beating the men is now at a vanishing point. It would seem that Deputy Minister of Labor King's appearance on the scene to-day is a very opportune time.

FOR HIS FAMILY'S SAKE.

Heroic Sacrifice of Motorman—Worked Night and Day.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—In the inquest opened last night to ascertain how Hugh A. Hayes, a motorman, came to his death here, it developed that Hayes held two jobs.

He had been working for the gas company here from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m. On Friday last he worked from 7 a.m. to 1 a. m., 16 hours, excluding meals, for this company.

On Saturday he worked from 7 to 5 at night. Then at 6.30 the same night he went on duty for the Street Railway Co. as motorman.

His car that night in some way collided with another one and he was so badly crushed that his leg had to be amputated and he died. Hayes held down the two jobs in an effort to offset expenses due to illness in his family.

He lost his wife only a few months ago and had had much sickness in the family. One boy was lame and a girl was threatened with typhoid fever at the time of his death, but has recovered.

Captures Live Deer.

Lindsay, Oct. 3.—A live deer has been captured by William Shields, near Janetville, and he has the animal now in his barn. It followed his cattle home, where it was caught by two men stealing up behind it and grabbing it by the hind legs.

Seven Persons Injured.

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 3.—Seven persons were injured in a collision between a freight and a passenger train on the Worcester, Nashua and Portland division of the Boston and Maine division here yesterday.

PORT HOPE JEALOUS OF THE NOTORICTY GIVEN TO HARTLEY

The Port Hope Guide of yesterday refers to the interview this paper published with David Hartley, relative to his offer to walk against Jimmy Reynolds of that town, in the following terms:—From the above it is quite apparent that Hartley is looking for the "long greens." He has made many loud boasts through the press, but, of course, talk is cheap. Just the other day the Examiner stated that Hartley had interviewed Reynolds in reference to a matched race and the barber had refused to walk against him. Reynolds tells us that he has never spoken to Hartley in his life and is at a loss to know why Hartley should make up this story. If Hartley is so confident of making the trip in 34 hours let him put up a wager, and the chances are that there will be plenty of takers.

Two Records Broken In The Jumping Contests

Records in Senior Standing Broad and Junior Running Broad Jumps Are Smashed—Other Sports on Friday

RACE FOR THE EX-PUPILS

Riverside Park was the scene of the jumping events of the Collegiate Institute sports last night. There were many contestants in both the senior and junior events, and two records were broken. A. McGarrity, in the senior standing broad jump, covered 8 feet 3 1-4 inches, which was 2 1-4 inches over the record, and Fred Wilson, in the junior running broad jump, went 12 ft. 4 3-4 in., which is 1 3-4 in. better than the standing record.

The following were the results last night:—

Senior Events--

Standing Broad Jump—1, A McGarrity; 2, A Bravender; 3, H Hall. Distance, 8 ft. 3 1-4 in; record, 8 ft. 1 in.

Running Broad Jump—1, A Bravender; 2, H Hall; 3, Jimmy O'Brien. Distance, 14 ft. 4 1-4 in; record, 16 feet.

Standing Hop, Step and Jump—1, A Bravender; 2, H Hall; 3, A McGarrity. Distance, 24 ft. 2 1-2 in. Record, 25 ft. 3-4 in.

Running Hop, Step and Jump—1, A Bravender; 2, A McGarrity; 3, H Hall. Distance, 34 ft. 3 in; record, 36 ft. 3 1-4 in.

Junior Events--

Standing Broad Jump—1, F Wilson; 2, V Hayes; 3, W Perks. Distance, 7 ft. 3 3-4 in.; record, 7 ft. 4 in.

Running Broad Jump—1, F Wilson; 2, V Hayes; 3, W Perks. Distance, 12 ft. 4 3-4 in.; record, 12 ft. 3 in.

Standing Hop, Step and Jump—1, F Wilson; 2, S Steely; 3, V Hayes. Distance, 21 ft. 2 in.; record, 22 ft. 8 1-2 in.

Running Hop, Step and Jump—1, F Wilson; 2, V Hayes; 3, F Feeney. Distance, 29 ft. 2 3-4 in.; record, 30 ft. 7 3-4 in.

The remainder of the Collegiate sports will be concluded on Friday afternoon on Nicholls Oval, when all the exciting events will be held. The 100 yards dash for ex-pupils of the Institute is attracting attention and there will be many, it is expected, participate. The prize for this contest will be donated by the staff.

There are also a couple of the teachers of the staff, and, by the way, one is small and the other tall, who claim to be sprinters, and it is hoped that they will give exhibitions of their prowess on the field day.

New Rules Explained By The Football Guide

No Interference And Wing Lines Must Stand Apart — Scrimage Instead of Snap Back Method Of Putting Ball in Play

NEW GUIDE IS PUBLISHED

The official Canadian Football Guide, was published yesterday, and a first glimpse of the new rules which are to govern Rugby this season can be obtained.

The principal change of course from last year is the substitution of the scrimmage for the snap back method of putting the ball in play, which means that there will be fourteen players instead of twelve. Another important change is that the wing lines must stand apart when the ball is being put into play.

The backs making a catch are protected by the following rule:

"Opponents who are off-side shall not come within 3 yards of nor interfere in any way with a player attempting to make a fair catch or receiving a bounding ball. In case the ball bounds 3 yards must still be given." The penalty is the same as usual, viz., loss of the ball and scrimmage on spot where ball was last played.

A Clean Scrimmage

The scrimmage rule is as follows: A scrimmage shall consist of three players, who must form one compact body; when the ball is fairly held within the grounds, one of the scrimmagers of the side to which it belongs, shall bring it into play where it was held by placing it dead in front of him; and one of the scrimmagers of the side in possession of the ball must then put it in motion in any direction, with his foot.

Opposing players must not come into contact with each other until the ball is placed on the ground, and no player shall touch the ball with his hand until it has been put in motion by a foot of one of the side in possession of the ball.

If any player being on the ground does not immediately get up, or if the ball is not put into play, or if an opponent interferes with the ball being put into play, or if during a scrimmage any player gets upon his knees, lies upon the ball, or touches it with his hands, before it is put in motion with the foot of one of the side in possession, the side offending shall be penalized.

If, after the scrimmage has taken its position the player who is to scrimmage the ball should voluntarily make any motion as if to put it into play, whether he withholds it altogether or only momentarily, it shall be considered off-side.

Lines Must Be Apart

At the moment when the ball is placed on the ground the players of both teams must be altogether behind the ball. Exceptions — The head and shoulders of the man who places the ball on the ground may be ahead of the ball, but only while so doing.

For any infringement of the above scrimmage rules the penalty shall be loss of the ball against the team in possession, and the loss of ten yards or a free kick against the side not in possession of the ball.

After the ball is put in play the players on the line of scrimmage of the side that has possession of the ball, shall not lock their hands or arms, but only while on the line of scrimmage, may obstruct the opponents with the body only. For an infringement of this rule the offended side shall be given the ball. The player running with the ball may use his hands or arms.

No player shall hold with his arms or hands an opponent who has not the ball. For an infringement of this rule the penalty shall be ten yards or the loss of the ball.

There is to be no throwing in on the touch line. When the ball goes into touch it is brought back and scrimmaged anywhere from 5 to 15 yards from the line.

NO GAME HERE ON SATURDAY

New Schedule Will be Drawn Up at a Meeting of the Executive To-night

There will be no rugby game here on Saturday, although it is likely that there will be a contest next week. Secretary McDonough of the locals, was in telephone communication with Secretary J B Hay, of the O.R.F.U. this morning and was informed that the senior series will consist of Westmount and Kingston in the East and Peterborough and Victorias in the West. Home and home games will be played in each division, after which the winners will play off for the championship.

There will be a meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive to-night and the probabilities are the Tigers II and Argos II will be turned adrift from the O. R. F. U. They will certainly not be admitted into the senior series as the other four clubs are decidedly opposed to have the intermediate teams admitted.

Secretary McDonough will represent Peterborough at the meeting to-night and an effort will be made to have the first game of the season played here with the Vics a week from Saturday.

CALUMET IMPORTED PLAYERS

Chicago Paper Alleges That Team Brought Three Players From Peterboro for Championship

A SCRAP OVER A CUP

Two Chicago lacrosse teams are having some difficulty in deciding the championship for the Comiskey Cup. A recent issue of the Chicago News had the following story:

"Having gone through the season, with practically no rules to govern their championship series the local lacrosse men have now come to a hitch wich will have to be straightened out before the final match for the Comiskey cup is played on Sunday afternoon at the south-side ball park.

"The champion Calumets have lodged strenuous objections to the playing of several men imported from Canada by the Shamrocks. The Calumets intend to play only their regular men, but the contenders for the cup assert that they have a right to play any man they please, there being no rules to the contrary.

"They further point to the fact that last season the Calumets had three importations from Peterborough, who were of great assistance to them in winning the cup. Two of the Shamrock players, Arthurs, and Timmiss, already have played here this season, and the other, Campbell, from Brantford, is coming with the intention of resiging here permanently.

"The Calumets have appealed their side of the case to Comiskey, and the Shamrocks also intend to see him. Both sides are eager for the championship and there is every prospect of a hard fight. Gourgeon and O'Malley will be out of the Shamrock line up, the former being sick, and the latter having a broken thumb. Rubidge will be away from the Calumets with a badly sprained wrist."

DEROIT CINCHES THE PENNANT

Tigers Took Two From Washington Yesterday—While Philadelphia Lost

Detroit practically clinched the championship of the American League yesterday byt aking two games from Washington while Lajoie's Cleveland team put Philadelphia on the blink by defeating them in a 4—3g ame. The Philadelphia team still has a chance although it is practically a hopeless one. To give them a look in the Tigers must drop two of the four games that they have to play while Philadelphia must win all five games they are scheduled to contest in which case Philadelphia would win by a fraction of a point. The success of the Tigers will be hailed with joy all over the realm of baseball. Fans everywhere, except, of course, in Philadelphia are pulling for Hughie Jennings' team and now that the ex-Baltimore manager has succeeded in [illegible] the finish, there will be general rejoicing. The post-series games for the world's championship between the Tigers and Cubs will be watched with interest by the bugs of the entire continent.

RUGBY

The Argos go to Montreal on Saturday to open the new Inter-Provincial Union with a game with Montreal, and what Chancer Elliott's mountaineers will do with the Oatsmen will be a shame. Looking at it from down this way it appears as if the Argos were outclassed. Their team does not compare with their last year's aggregation. The senior series of the O.R.F.U. would have been plenty difficult enough for the Toronto bunch and it won't take more than Saturday's game to show them their mistake.

• • • •

Every member of the rugby club is expected out to-night at Riverside Park at 7.30 o'clock. Although there will be no game Saturday, that is no excuse for not turning out to practice. The first game will be played next week, so that there is not much time in which to get into shape.

SPRINTING

It is likely that a number of Peterborough runners will take part in the five-mile race at the Millbrook Fair to-morrow. Harvey Staunton of the Y.M.C.A. started in the five-mile race at Keene to-day. "Longboat" Bennett was to have gone, but couldn't get away.

A BIG CONTRACT IS SECURED

Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons Will Supply 5,600 Flags to Rural Schools of Ontario

WAS A WARM COMPETITION

Messrs J J Turner & Sons to-day received notice from Toronto, to the effect that the contract had been awarded them for supplying 5,600 flags for the rural schools of Ontario. The government decided some time ago that each rural school should be supplied with flags, and tenders were invited from a number of firms, among those submitting figures being the T. Eaton Co., Robt. Simpson Co., and other large Toronto firms. It is, however, gratifying to Peterborough proje to know that in the competition a local firm won out. The Toronto Telegram, referring to the action of the Government in awarding the contract says:—

J J Turner & Sons are to supply the flags for OOntario's more than 5,600 rural schools.

The announcement that the contract was awarded to this firm was made this morning. The contract price was not given out, but the supplying of the flags will mean eventually at least one for each rural school.

The vote at the last session of the Legislature for the flags was $5,000.

"It's the Union Jack and no other flag," said Premier Whitney, there having been talk recently that the Canadian ensign might be selected.

CURVE AT CHARLOTTE ST. DELAYED

George and Charlotte Streets Are Not At Right Angle to Each Other

More delay than was expected will be caused by the placing of the "Y" by the Radial Railway Company at the corner of George and Charlotte streets, on account of Charlotte street not being at right angles to George street. The "Y" was made to suit a right angle so that the rails will have to be altered somewhat. The work will therefore not be completed this week, as expected.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed tenders, endorsed "Tender," will be received by the undersigned for the abutments (concrete) of a bridge over the Ouse River, in the Township of Asphodel, County of Peterborough, up to Oct. 11th next at 12 o'clock noon. Said tender to be accompanied with a marked cheque for $300, made payable to the County Treasurer, to be held until suitable securities are given for said abutments. All cheques of non-accepted tenders will be promptly returned.

Plans and specifications can be seen at the office of the County Engineer, J. E. Belcher, Esq., C.E., over the Toronto Loan & Savings Co.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it quickly quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries

Moved by Mr. Clancy, seconded by Mr. Lynch, that the offer of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company to supply coal to the schools be accepted, and that the Property Committee make the necessary arrangements for the placing of the same.—Carried.

The Board then adjourned.

SECOND TIME DRUNK THIS WEEK

Lost Twenty-Four Dollars and Landed in the Common Gaol

Phillip O'Brien will evidently spend the next 10 days within the inner shrine of Castle Nesbitt as a result of his last drunk. A few days ago he promised to drink no more and paid a fine of two dollars for imbibing too deeply but yesterday afternoon he was off on the same task with three sheets in the wind and the fourth fluttering. He was brought to the police station and laid away on the narrow bench to sober up.

This morning with great difficulty he managed to scale the stairs to the court room and faced Magistrate Dumble. To the court he said that his money was all gone and he had no knowledge of how he lost it. His Worship stated that a deep hole in river was the place for such people, and imposed a fine of two dollars to be paid forthwith. "Phil" could make a noise like two five cent pieces, but other than that mum was the word. He will thus have ten dry days on the hill. He is an old man, aged and decrepit and but a short time is left before his allotted span is cut off; he should be thinking of other things than Old Irish or any of the other brands.

NEW MUSIC HALL NEARING COMPLETION

Last Work Will Have Been Done By Next Monday

The new music hall in connection with the Conservatory of Music will be completed, in all respects, by Monday next. Some work has yet to be accomplished in connection with the heating apparatus which, together with a few other improvements, will complete the work. The concert room is large enough to seat 600 persons.

Arrangements will soon be made for an opening concert, which will be one of the musical treats of the season.

COULDN'T LOCATE THIS GIRL

The Interesting, Though Discouraging Efforts of Toronto Man to Find His Young Lady Friend in Hastings

THE GIRL FOOLED HIM

The Hastings Star tells the following story:—

A particularly well-dressed young man arrived in town one day last week from Toronto, and proceeded to make inquiries for a family which he had supposed were old residents of the vicinity of Hastings; but after making diligent search for his acquaintances for over a day, he was forced to return to Toronto without seeing them, as no one had heard the name; and thereby hangs a tale.

It appears that the young man had a lady friend in Toronto whose home town she gave as Hastings, and about a week ago the young lady came home on a visit, keeping up a correspondence with the young man in the meantime, and he had written a couple of times to her at Hastings, addressing the letters to the name she gave. On Wednesday the young man thought he would drop down and make a call, and in due time arrived in Hastings, but no person with the name the young woman gave could be found in this locality, and he had to return to Toronto without having any visit.

What will the young woman have to say when she meets the disappointed one on her return to Toronto?

THE ROAD LEFT IN BAD SHAPE

Complaints About Way City Left Simcoe Street

The condition in which Simcoe street has been left after making the sewer connections with the old fire hall is arousing considerable uncomplementary comment. A ridge of earth over a foot in height has been left running half way across the road and so far nothing has been done to level it off. The opinion was expressed this morning that the city was setting a very bad example to private companies in leaving the street in such a condition.

More Money For Farmers By Selling Live Weight

Department of Agriculture Gives Some Valuable Information About the Slaughtering of Hogs---Packing Houses Can Afford to Pay Higher Prices For The Animals Live Weight

The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, in a recent report, has issued a statement regarding the condition in which dressed hogs, slaughtered by the farmers, must be to be accepted by the packing house. And, as the farmers in Peterborough county kill many of their own hogs before marketing them, the report is a very interesting one to them, as well as to local butchers. The writer points out that for the farmer there is more profit in selling by live weight, and shows why the packing house is able to pay better prices if the hog is not slaughtered on the farm.

The introduction of the inspector of packing houses by the Government makes it very necessary that only healthy carcases be accepted, and also that these carcases be dressed according to the regulations.

The report issued by the Department is as follows:

Ottawa, Sept. 28, 1907.

The custom prevailing among farmers throughout Canada of slaughtering animals, particularly swine, upon their own premises and selling the dressed carcases on the local market is one which entails more or less loss to the producer. Before the advent of packing establishments the domestic trade was supplied by the local butchers, who were necessarily compelled to provide for future supplies, and as a result, the local markets were created. Conditions have changed, however, the local dealers no longer supplying the domestic trade, which has passed into the hands of the packing houses, which are now the distributing centres for meats. Packers can afford to, and actually do, pay higher prices and sell at lower values than the local butchers for reasons which are obvious, when one considers that profits are represented by the by-products. The packers are adverse to buying dressed carcases as they represent smaller profits in by-products, hams, dressed [illegible] imperfectly handled by the farmer, the meat in many cases being bruised and unsightly, this, as well as improper chilling, being deterrent to good prices. Animals, especially hogs, require scientific chilling, otherwise those parts which enter into the process of curing become sour and unfit for market. Packers prefer to buy their meats on the hoof, and for the reasons set forth above, are able to pay higher prices for the

No Diseased Meats

In view, however, of the large trade carried on in some parts of Canada, more particularly during the autumn and winter, in dressed pork, as well as in other dressed meats, attention may be directed to one of the requirements of the regulations made under the new Meat Inspection Act, which is likely to have a considerable effect on the business above referred to. The Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, having assumed the responsibility of inspecting and practically guaranteeing the healthfulness of all meats and meat products sent out by the packing houses, must of necessity protect itself by making sure that no diseased carcases are permitted to enter these establishments. The most effective way of preventing the entry of such diseased meat is, of course, the careful ante-mortem inspection provided for by the regulations, but in view of the large trade carried on in dressed carcases and of the fact that both farmers and packers have been in the habit of handling meats in this way, the officials in charge of the enforcement of the Act have decided to admit to the establishments under inspection, dressed carcases under such conditions as will enable them to judge with reasonable certainty as to whether the animal, prior to slaughter, was free from disease. Provision has therefore been made for the admission, on inspection, of dressed carcases with the head, heart, lungs and liver held by their natural attachments, such carcases to be inspected before entering the establishment, and, if found fit for food, to be so marked and admitted for packing purposes, while, if found to be diseased, to be condemned and tanked.

Leave Organs In

This being the case, it is incumbent upon every farmer bringing dressed hogs or other animals to the market to remember that unless the carcases are dressed in accordance with the regulations mentioned above, namely, with these organs left in their proper positions, it will not be possible for the representatives of the packing houses to buy such carcases for use in any of the establishments coming under the operation of the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

The presence of the buyers or agents of these establishments on our local markets have always been, at least to some extent, a safeguard against possible attempts by local combinations of butchers and others to depress the price of dressed meats, and it will be well for producers to bear in mind the new conditions, and when, for any reason, unable to market their stock on the hoof as they should undoubtedly do whenever possible, dress their hogs as well as other animals in such a way as to meet the requirements of the new Act.

Snow In Alberta Proves Beneficial, Not an Injury

What Secretary of The Board of Trade of Calgary Has to Say About The Recent Fall of Snow Experienced There

IT CANNOT HURT ALBERTA

Public opinion is something the Board of Trade of Calgary is very solicitous of. No one is going to slander that city if the secretary of the Board of Trade can help it. Mr. Richardson, the secretary, watches closely the newspapers in the east and pounces on anything which has a tendency to reflect upon the good name of Calgary. Mr. Richardson was afraid that the statements published in the Examiner concerning the heavy fall of snow experienced in that section of the county in the early part of September might give it a bad name, and writes to the Examiner to explain that possibly in the foothills of the mountains there may have been thirty inches of snow, as stated, there was only a fall of from 10 to 12 inches on the open prairie, while in Calgary itself there was only a paltry five or six inches, which, of course, as late in the year as the first week or two in September does not cut any figure.

As a matter of fact, what the majority of persons in the east regarded at the time as a calamity is said by Mr. Richardson to have been "most useful at the time, preventing damage by frosts." He adds, "It may seem strange to you that snow can come and go with as little damage as it is possible in Alberta, as snow of this depth in Ontario would take so much longer to go away that it would do considerable damage."

It is refreshing to learn that Alberta is able to pass over a fall of snow, which would ordinarily bury the most optimistic hopes of the Ontario farmer with so little concern.

PROMINENT NORWOOD RESIDENT DIES AT THE AGE OF 82 YEARS

Examiner Special.

Norwood, Oct. 2.—On Tuesday morning there passed away in Norwood one who had reached the patriarchal age of 82, in the person of Mr. J. P. Brown. Mr. Brown had long been an outstanding figure in the public life of the village and neighbourhood, having been a member of the Trustee and Quarterly Boards of the Methodist Church, and a former councillor, deputy reeve and reeve of [illegible]. In all these positions he acquitted himself with an unselfish desire to enhance the public good.

Robinson's "History of Peterborough County," published in 1884, says of him: "John P. Brown, of Asphodel township, was born in the city of Quebec in 1825. His father, the late Richard Brown, was from England, and had served several years in the navy, and had resided in various places throughout Canada, eventually settling in Goderich, Ont., where he [illegible] people in Quebec till about 20 years of age, where he learned the trade of a carpenter, and so has worked at the same in the States and Canada. He settled in Norwood in 1857, where he has lived, and in the township of Asphodel, ever since. He married Miss Caron, a native of Tyrone, Ireland."

Mr. Brown leaves a widow, six sons, David of South Dummer, John of Tonawanda, N.Y.; Gideon and William of Hornellsville, N.Y., and Maxwell of Asphodel, together with three daughters, Mrs. R. Elliott of Marysville, Kansas; Mrs. C. Stephenson of Revelstoke, B.C., and Mrs. J. H. Buck of Asphodel, and a large number of grand-children.

The funeral will take place from his late residence, King street, on Thursday, and proceed to the Methodist church, where service will be held, thence to the Norwood cemetery for interment.

Willow Roots Crawl Into Sewer Pipe And Burst It

Remarkable Situation At a West End Residence — Make Their Way Through Cement Joint

FORM NETWORK IN PIPES

There appears to be no obstruction which the roots of the wily willow cannot surmount. The latest performance of these little wanderers at a Gilmour street residence has perhaps everything previously accomplished by them faded away. The roots of this willow actually worked their way through the joints of a sewer pipe, stopped the water, and finally burst the pipe, entailing a loss of some $35 to the owner of the residence.

Two willow trees stand close by the side of the house, and are healthy specimens, appearing to be full grown. The roots of the trees have stealthily worked their several ways down through the earth until they arrived at the sewer pipe. Naturally, one would think that they would encircle the pipe, but these roots are different from the ordinary variety.

At a joint made between two lengths of pipe by cement, the roots had actually entered the sewer, and formed a net work of fibres, resulting in the clogging of the pipe. The cement was certainly porous, as far as the roots were concerned, and once gaining an entrance they quickly spread both inward and outward.

The result was that the water backed up into the cellar, and ultimately the sewer pipe was burst. A plumber was called to the rescue, and a trench had to be dug to repair the damages.

The owner of the trees states that he intends to kill them, as he doesn't wish to have a plumbing bill of $35 coming in three or four times a year. In order to do this he will try a novel scheme. He says that by boring a hole in the tree and pouring in a mixture of buttermilk and vinegar, the tree will soon be no more.

WAS BURNED BY STOVE WOOD

Organist's Tribute to Zam-Buk

When you get a burn or a scald lose no time in putting on a little Zam-Buk balm. It soothes the pain at once and heals quickly. H. E. Jenner, organist, of Carman, Man., writes:—"Some little time ago I took hold of a piece of wood in a box stove that I wished to move, thinking it had not caught fire. Unfortunately it was very hot and burned my thumb severely. I had some Zam-Buk handy and applied it, then bandaged up the thumb. The Zam-Buk took the fire out of the wound almost instantly and eased the pain. It seemed to penetrate to the very seat of the injury and give quick relief. I was very glad of this, because I had an engagement to play at an organ recital a few days later. Thanks to Zam-Buk, I was able to keep the appointment."

Zam-Buk heals sores, cures eczema, skin eruptions, ulcers, ringworm, itch, barber's rash, blood poison, bad leg, salt rheum, abrasions, abscesses, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin injuries and diseases. Of all stores and druggists, at 50 cents, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

The English Orphans

BY MRS. MARY J. HOLMES

Author of "Lena Rivers," "The Homestead on the Hill," "Tempest and Sunshine," Etc.

Mrs. Lincoln, who forgot that Rose had complained of a pain in her side long before she ever saw South Hadley, advised Mrs. Campbell, by all means never to send her daughter to such a place. "To be sure, it may do well enough," said she, "for a great burly creature like Mary Howard, but your daughter and mine are altogether too delicate and daintily bred to endure it."

Mrs. Campbell of course consented to this, adding that she had secured the services of a highly accomplished lady as governess for Ella, and proposing that Rose and Jenny, instead of accompanying their mother to the city as usual, should remain with her during the winter, and share Ella's advantages. To this proposition Mrs. Lincoln readily assented, and while Mary, from habitual exercise, both indoors and out, was growing more and more healthful and vigorous, Rose Lincoln, who was really delicate, was drooping day by day, and growing paler and paler, in the closely heated schoolroom, where a breath of fresh air rarely found entrance, as the "accomplished governess" could not endure it. Daily were her pupils lectured upon the necessity of shielding themselves from the winter winds, which were sure "to impart such a rough, blowsy appearance to their complexions."

Rose profited well by this advice, hardly anything could tempt her into the open air, unless it were absolutely necessary. All day long she half-reclined upon a small sofa, which at her request was drawn close to the stove, and even then complaining of being chilly she sometimes sat with her shawl thrown over her shoulders. Jenny, on the contrary, fanned herself furiously at the furthest corner of the room, frequently managing to open the window slyly, and regale herself with the snow which lay upon the sill. Often, too, when her lessons were over for the day, she would bound away, and after a walk of a mile or so, would return to the house with her cheeks glowing, and her eyes sparkling like stars, furnishing a striking contrast to her pale, sickly sister, who hovered over the stove, shivering if a window were raised, or a door thrown open.

In the course of the winter Mrs. Lincoln came up to visit her daughters, expressing herself much pleased with Rose's improved looks and manners. "Her complexion was so pure," she said, "so different from what it was when she came from Mount Holyoke."

Poor Jenny, who, full of life and spirits came rushing in to see her mother, was cut short in her expression of joy by being called "a perfect bunch of fat!"

"Why, Jenny, what does make you so red and coarse?" said the distressed mother. "I know you eat too much," and before Mrs. Lincoln went ous lectures concerning her diet; but it only made matters worse; and when six weeks after Mrs. Lincoln came again, she found that Jenny had not only gained five pounds, but that hardly one of her dresses would meet.

"Mercy me!" said she, the moment her eye fell upon Jenny's round, plump cheeks, and fat shoulders; "your arms are as broad as you are long. What a figure you would cut in Boston!"

For once the merry Jenny cried, wondering how she could help being healthy and fat. Before Mrs. Lincoln left Chicopee she made a discovery which resulted in the removal of Jenny to Boston. With the exception of the year at Mount Holyoke, Jenny had never before passed a winter in the country, and now everything delighted her. In spite of her governess's remonstrance all her leisure moments were spent in the open air, and besides her long walks, she frequently joined the scholars who from the district school came over at recess to slide down the long hill in the rear of Mrs. Campbell's barns and stables. For Jenny to ride downhill at all was bad enough, "but to do so with district school girls, and then be drawn up by coarse, vulgar boys, was far worse;" and the offender was told to be in readiness to accompany her mother home, for she could not stay in Chicopee another week.

"Oh, I'm so glad," said Rose, "for now I shan't freeze to death nights."

Mrs. Lincoln demanded what she meant, and was told that Jenny insisted upon having the window down from the top, let the weather be what it might; "and," added Rose, "when the wind blows hard I am positively obliged to hold on to the sheets to keep myself in bed!"

"A Mount Holyoke freak," said Mrs. Lincoln. "I wish to mercy neither of you had ever gone there."

Rose answered by a low cough, which her mother did not hear, or at least did not notice. Jenny, who loved the country and the country people, was not much pleased with her mother's plan. But for once Mrs. Lincoln was determined, and after stealing one more sled-ride down the long hill, and bidding farewell to the old desk in the schoolhouse, sacred for the name carved three years before with Billy Bender's jackknife, Jenny went back with her mother to Boston, leaving Rose to droop and fade in the hot, unwholesome atmosphere of Miss Hinton's schoolroom.

Not long after Jenny's return to the city she wrote to Mary an amusing account of her mother's reason for removing her from Chicopee. "But on the whole, I am glad to be at home," said she, "for I see Billy Bender almost every day. I first met him coming down Washington street, and he walked with me clear to our gate. Ida Selden had a party last week, and owing to George Moreland's influence, Billy was there. He was very attentive to me, though Henry says 'twas right the other way. But it wasn't. I didn't ask him to go out to supper with me. I only told him I'd introduce him to somebody who would go, and he immediately offered me his arm. Oh! how mother scolded, and how angry she got when she asked me if I wasn't ashamed, and I told her I wasn't!

"Billy doesn't appear just as he used to. Seems as though something troubled him; and what is very strange, he never speaks of you unless I do first. You've no idea how handsome he is. To be sure, he hasn't the air of George Moreland, and doesn't dress as elegantly, but I think he is finer looking. Ever so many girls at Ida's party asked who he was, and said 'twas a pity he wasn't rich, but that wouldn't make any difference with me—I'd have him just as soon as though he was wealthy."

"How mother would go on if she should see this! But I don't care—I like Billy Bender, and I can't help it, and, entre nous, I believe he likes me better than he did! But I must stop now, for Lizzie Upton has called for me to go with her and see a poor blind woman in one of the back alleys."

From this extract it will be seen that Jenny, though seventeen years of age, was the same open-hearted, child-like creature as ever. She loved Billy Bender, and she didn't care who knew it. She loved, too, to seek out and befriend the poor, with which Boston, like all other large cities, abounded. Almost daily her mother lectured her upon her bad taste in the choice of her associates, but Jenny was incorrigible, and the very next hour might perhaps be seen either walking with Billy Bender or mounting the rickety stairs of some crazy old building, where a palsied old woman or decrepit old man watched for her coming, and blessed her when she came.

[illegible] went up to Chicopee to make some changes in his house, preparatory to his family's removal thither. When he called at Mrs. Campbell's to see Rose he was greatly shocked at her altered and languid appearance. The cough, which her mother had not observed, fell ominously on his ear; for he thought of a young sister who many years before in the bloom of girlhood had passed away from his side. A physician was immediately called, and after an examination, Rose's lungs were pronounced diseased, though not as yet beyond cure. She was of course taken from school; and with the utmost care, and skillful nursing, she gradually grew better.

Jenny, who had never been guilty of any great love for books, was also told that her schooldays were over, and congratulated herself upon being a "full-grown young lady," which fact no one would dispute who saw her somewhat large dimensions.

When Ella learned that Jenny as well as Rose was emancipated from the schoolroom, she immediately petitioned her mother for a similar privilege, saying that she knew all that was necessary for her to know. Miss Hinton, too, being weary of one pupil, and desiring a change for herself, threw her influence in Ella's favor, so that at last Mrs. Campbell yielded; and Ella, piling up her books, carried them away, never again referring to them on any occasion, but spending her time in anticipating the happiness she should enjoy the following winter, when she was to be first introduced to Boston society.

Unlike this was the closing of Mary's schooldays. Patiently and perseveringly through the year she had studied, storing her mind with useful knowledge; and when at last the annual examination came, not one in the senior class stood higher, or was graduated with more honor than her[illegible] Miss Mason who was there, listened with all a parent's pride and fondness to her adopted child, as she promptly responded to every question. But it was not Mrs. Mason's presence alone which incited Mary to do so well. Among the crowd of spectators she caught a glimpse of a face which twice before she had seen—once in the schoolroom at Rice Corner, and once in the graveyard at Chicopee. Turn which way she would, she felt rather than saw how intently Mr. Stuart watched her, and when at last the exercises were over, and she with others arose to receive her diploma, she involuntarily glanced in the direction whence she knew he sat. For an instant their eyes met, and in the expression of his she read an approval warmer than words could have expressed.

That night Mary sat alone in her room, listening almost nervously to the sound of every footstep, and half-starting up if it came near her door. But for certain reasons Mr. Stuart did not think proper to call, and while Mary was confidently expecting him he was several miles on his way home.

In a day or two Mary returned to Chicopee, but did not, like Ella, lay her books aside and consider her education finished. Two or three hours each morning were devoted to study, or reading of some kind. For several weeks nothing was allowed to interfere with this arrangement, but at the end of that time the quiet of Mrs. Mason's house was disturbed by the unexpected arrival of Aunt Martha and Ida, who came up to Chicopee for the purpose of inducing Mrs. Mason and Mary to spend the coming winter in Boston. At first Mrs. Mason hesitated, but every objection which either she or Mary raised was so easily put aside that she finally consented, saying she would be ready to go about the middle of November. Aunt Martha, who was a bustling, active little woman, and fancied that her brother's household always went wrong without her, soon brought her visit to a close, and within the week went back to Boston, together with Ida.

The day following their departure Mrs. Perkins came over to inquire who "them stuck-up folks was, and if the youngest wasn't some kin to the man that visited Mary's school two years before," saying "they favored each other enough to be brother and sister."

"Why, so they do," returned Mary. "I have often tried to think who it was that Ida resembled; but they are not at all related, I presume."

Mrs. Mason said nothing, and soon changing the conversation told Mrs. Perkins of her projected visit.

"Wall, if it don't beat all what curi's things turn up!" said the widow. "You are going to Boston, and mercy knows what will become of me—but laws! I ain't a-goin' to worry. I shall be provided for some way."

"Why, what is the matter?" asked Mrs. Mason, noticing for the first time that her visitor seemed to be troubled.

After walking to the window to hide her emotions, and then again resuming her rocking-chair, the widow communicated to them the startling information that Sally Ann was going to be married.

"Married? To whom?" asked Mrs. Mason and Mary in the same breath, but the widow said they must "guess;" so after guessing every marriageable man or boy in town they gave it up, and were told that it was no more nor less than Mr. Parker.

"Mr. Parker!" repeated Mary. "Why, he's old enough to be her father, ain't he?"

"Oh, no," returned Mrs. Perkins; "Sally Ann will be thirty if she lives till the first day of next January."

"You have kept the matter very quiet," said Mrs. Mason; and the widow, exacting from each a promise never to tell as long as they lived, commenced the story of her wrongs.

It seems that not long after Mrs. Parker's demise Mr. Parker began to call at the cottage of the widow, sometimes to inquire after her health, but oftener to ask about a red heifer which he understood Mrs. Perkins had for sale! On these occasions Sally Ann was usually invisible, so week after week Mr. Parker continued to call, talking always about the "red heifer," and whether he'd better buy her or not.

"At last," said the widow, "I got sick on't, and one day after he'd sat more'n two hours, says I, 'Ebenezer, if you want that red heifer, say so, and that'll end it.' Up he jumps, and says he, 'I'll let you know in a few days'; then pullin' from his trousers two little nurly apples, he laid 'em on the table as a present for Sally Ann! Wall, the next time he come I was sick, and Sally Ann let him in. I don't know what possessed me, but thinks to me I'll listen, and as I'm a livin' woman, instead of ever mentioning the heifer, he asked as fair and square as ever a man could if she'd have him! and Sally Ann, scart nigh about to death, up and said 'Yes!'"

Here the widow, unable to proceed further, stopped, but soon regaining breath continued, "Nobody but them that's passed through it can guess how I felt. My head swam, and when I come to I was lyin' on the broad stair."

"Are they to be married soon?" asked Mrs. Mason, and Mrs. Perkins answered:

"Of course. Was there ever an old fool of a widower who wasn't in a hurry? Next Thursday is the day set, and I've come to invite you, and see if you'd lend me your spoons and dishes, and them little towels you use on the table, and your astor lamp, and some flowers, if there's any fit, and let Judy come over to help about cookin' the turkey and sperrib!"

Mrs. Mason promised the loan of all these things, and then the widow arose to go. Mary, who accompanied her to the door, could not help asking whether Mr. Parker had finally bought her red heifer.

The calico sunbonnet trembled, and the little gray eyes flashed indignantly as she said, "That man never wanted my red heifer a bit more than he wanted me!"

True to her promise Mrs. Mason the next Thursday sent Judith over to the cottage with her "spoons, dishes, little towels, and astor lamp," while she herself carried over the best and fairest flowers which had escaped the frosts of autumn. Mary was chosen to dress the bride, who, in spite of her red hair, would have looked quite well had her skirt been a trifle longer and wider. Mrs. Perkins had insisted that five breadths of silk were sufficient, consequently Sally Ann looked as Sal Furbush said, "not wholly unlike a long tallow candle with a red wick."

Mrs. Perkins, who flourished in a lace cap and scarlet ribbons, greeted her son-in-law with a burst of tears, saying she little thought when they were young that she should ever be his mother!

For the sake of peace Mr. Parker had invited Miss Grundy to be present at the wedding, but as this was the first intimation that Miss Grundy had received of the matter, she fell into a violent fit of anger, bidding him to "go to grass with his invitations," and adding very emphatically, that "she'd have him to know she never yet saw the day when she'd marry him, or any other living man."

Mr. Parker of course couldn't dispute her, so he turned away, wondering within himself, "what made wimmen so queer!"

The day following the wedding the bride went to her new home, where she was received by Miss Grundy with a grunt which was probably intended for a "how d'ye do." Uncle Peter expressed his pleasure at making the acquaintance of one more of the "fair sect," but hoped that "estimable lady, her mother, wouldn't feel like visiting her often, as mothers were very apt to make mischief." Sally Furbush was the only cool and collected one present, and she did the honors of the house so gracefully and well that but for the wildness of her eyes and an occasional whispering to herself, the bride would never have suspected her of insanity.

CHAPTER XXIII.

"Come this way, Mary. I'll show you your chamber. It's right here next to mine," said Ida Selden, as on the evening of her friend's arrival she led her up to a handsomely furnished apartment, which for many weeks had borne the title of "Mary's room."

"Oh, how pleasant!" was Mary's exclamation, as she surveyed the room in which everything was arranged with such perfect taste.

A cheerful coal fire was blazing in the grate, for no murderous stove was ever suffered to invade the premises where Aunt Martha ruled. The design of the Brussels carpet was exquisitely beautiful, and the roses upon it looked as if freshly plucked from the parent stalk. At one end of the room, and just opposite the grate, were two bay windows, overlooking Mr. Selden's fine, large garden, and shaded by curtains of richly embroidered lace. In front of the fire was a large easy-chair, covered with crimson damask; and scattered about the room were ottomans, divans, books, pictures, and everything which could in any way conduce to a young lady's comfort or happiness. On the marble mantel there stood two costly vases, filled with rare flowers, among which Mary recognized her favorites. But ere she had time to speak of it, Ida opened a side door, disclosing to view a cosy little bedroom, with a large closet and bathing-room adjoining.

"Here," said she, "you are to sleep; but you needn't expect to be entirely exclusive, for every night when I feel cold or fidgety, I shall run in here and sleep with you. Is it a bargain?"

Mary was too happy to speak, and dropping into the easy-chair she burst into tears. In a moment Ida, too, was seated in the same chair, and with her arm around Mary's neck was wondering why she wept. Then as her own eyes chanced to fall upon

Backache, "The Blues"
Both Symptoms of Organic Derangement in Women —Thousands of Sufferers Find Relief.

How often do we hear women say: "It seems as though my back would break," or "Don't speak to me, I am all out of sorts?" These significant remarks prove that the system requires attention.
Backache and "the blues" are direct symptoms of an inward trouble which will sooner or later declare itself. It may be caused by diseased kidneys or some derangement of the organs. Nature requires assistance and at once, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound instantly asserts its curative powers in all those peculiar ailments of women. It has been the standby of intelligent American women for twenty years and the ablest judges agree that it is the most universally successful remedy for woman's ills known to medicine.
Read the convincing testimonials of Mrs. Oakes and Mrs. MacNamee.
Mrs. J. P. Oakes of Prince of Wales Hotel, Head of St. Margaret's Bay, near Halifax, Halifax County, Nova Scotia, Canada, writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"After what your Vegetable Compound did for me, I am a firm believer that it is a wonderful medicine, and that any woman who is troubled with any of the ills we suffer from should try it and she will soon be convinced of its worth. Six bottles changed me from a peevish, despondent, sickly, ailing woman to a sweet-tempered, healthy one, who rarely ever has a pain now, and who before was rarely without one. As a regulator, strengthener and a tonic, I think it has no superior and I certainly endorse it."
Mrs. Anna R. MacNamee of corner Queen and Wellington Streets, Kingston, Ont. writes:
Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—
"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done all the good in the world for me. I suffered with irregularities, backache and severe pains all through my body, and was very nervous and blue. I think I used a dozen different kinds of medicines, some prescribed by the doctor and some recommended by friends, but one bottle of Vegetable Compound was worth more to me than all the other medicines put together. My general health began to improve as soon as I began to use the Compound, and in three weeks I was a perfectly well woman."
When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful periods, weakness, displacements or ulceration, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the female organs, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration, or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, "all-gone" and "want-to-be-let-alone" feelings, blues and hopelessness, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.
No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. No other medicine in the world has received this widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse to buy any substitute.
FREE ADVICE TO WOMEN
Remember, every woman is cordially invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham if there is anything about her symptoms she does not understand. Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, her assistant before her decease, and for twenty-five years since her advice has been freely and cheerfully given to every ailing woman who asks for it. "You Will Suffer all Your Life."

SAID ALL THE DOCTORS

Half a dozen of the best physicians told Mr. Baker that he had Chronic Rheumatism, and would have it as long as he lived. One day Mr. Baker read in a paper of a man who had Rheumatism just like him—who had been told by doctors that his case was hopeless—and who had been completely cured by GIN PILLS.

The two cases were so much alike that Mr. Baker decided he would invest 50c in a box of GIN PILLS and give them a trial.

It was the best investment he ever made. Before the first box was taken, he felt better all over, so he got another. He took that and bought a third, getting better all the time.

Hinesville, May 8, 1906.

I have been greatly benefitted by your Gin Pills, and all who have used them in this neighborhood speak very highly of them.

One of my neighbors, Mr. X., who suffered for years with Rheumatism, and who has spent hundreds of dollars with specialists without receiving the slightest benefit, was entirely cured by two boxes of Gin Pills. He is proclaiming their virtues from the "housetops."

Yours truly, D. L. BAKER.

We don't even ask you to buy Gin Pills—but to try them at our expense. Write us, mentioning this paper, and we will gladly send you a free sample of these wonderful Kidney Pills that cure Rheumatism. The Bole Drug Co., Winnipeg, Man.

the vases she brought one of them to Mary, saying, "See these are for you—a present from one, who bade me present them with his compliments to the little girl who nursed him on board the Windermere, and who cried because he called her ugly!"

Mary's heart was almost audible in its beatings, and her cheeks took the hue of the cushions on which she reclined. Returning the vase to the mantelpiece, Ida came back to her side, and bending closer to her face, whispered: "Cousin George told me of you years ago, when he first came here, but I forgot all about it, and when we were at Mount Holyoke I never suspected that you were the little girl he used to talk so much about. But a few days before he went away he reminded me of it again, and then I understood why he was so much interested in you. I wonder you never told me you knew him, for of course you like him. You can't help it."

Mary only heard a part of what Ida said. "Just before he went away." Was he then gone, and should she not see him after all? A cloud gathered upon her brow, and Ida, readily divining its cause, replied, "Yes, George is gone. Either he or father must go to New Orleans, and so George of course went. Isn't it too bad? I cried and fretted, but he only pulled my ears, and said he should think I'd be glad, for he knew we wouldn't want a great six-footer domineering over us, and following us everywhere, as he would surely do were he at home."

Mary felt more disappointed than she was willing to acknowledge, and for a moment she half-wished herself back in Chicopee, but soon recovered her equanimity, she ventured to ask how long George was to be gone.

"Until April, I believe," said Ida; "but anyway you are to stay until he comes, for Aunt Martha promised to keep you. I don't know exactly what George said to her about you, but they talked together more than two hours, and she says you are to take music lessons and drawing lessons, and all that. George is very fond of music."

Here, thinking she was telling too much, Ida suddenly stopped, and as the tea bell just then rang, she started up, saying: "Oh! I forgot that father was waiting in the parlor to see you. I've said so much about you that his curiosity is quite aroused, but I can introduce you at the table just as well." Our lady readers will pardon Mary if before meeting Mr. Selden she gave herself a slight inspection in the long mirror, which hung in her dressing-room. Passing the brush several times through her glossy hair, and smoothing down the folds of her neatly-fitting merino, she concluded that she looked well enough for a traveler, and with slightly heightened color, followed Ida into the supper-room, where she found assembled Mrs. Mason, Aunt Martha, and Mr. Selden. The moment her eye rested upon the latter, she recognized the same kindly, beaming eye and pleasant smile which had won her childish heart, when on board the Windermere he patted her head, as George told how kind she had been to him.

"We have met before, I believe," said he, and warmly shaking her hand bade her welcome to Boston.

Then seating her by his side at the table, he managed by his kind attentions to make both her and Mrs. Mason feel perfectly at home. Aunt Martha, too, was exceedingly polite, but after what Ida had told her Mary could not help feeling somewhat embarrassed in her presence. This, however, gradually wore away, and before the evening was over she began to feel very much at home, and to converse with Aunt Martha as freely and familiarly as with Ida.

The next morning between ten and eleven the door bell rang, and in a moment Jenny Lincoln, whose father's house was just opposite, came tripping into the parlor. She had lost in a measure that rotundity of person so offensive to her mother, and it seemed to Mary that there was a thoughtful expression on her face never seen there before, but in all other respects she was the same affectionate, merry-hearted Jenny.

"I just this minute heard you were here, and came over just as I was," said she, glancing at the same time at her rich, though rather untidy morning wrapper. After asking Mary if she wasn't sorry George had gone, and if she expected to find Mr. Stuart, she said, "I suppose you know Ella is here, and breaking everybody's heart, of course. She went to a concert with us last evening, and looked perfectly beautiful. Henry says she is the handsomest girl he ever saw, and I do hope she'll make something of him, but I'm afraid he is only trifling with her just as he tries to do with everybody."

"I'm afraid so too," said Ida, "but now Mary has come, perhaps he'll divide his attentions between the two."

If there was a person in the world whom Mary thoroughly detested it was Henry Lincoln, and the idea of his trifling with her made her eyes sparkle and flash indignantly that Ida noticed it, and secretly thought that Henry Lincoln would for once find his match. After a time Mary turned to Jenny, saying, "You haven't told me a word about—about William Bender. Is he well?"

Jenny blushed deeply, and hastily replying that he was the last time she saw him, started up, whispering in Mary's ear, "Oh, I've got so much to tell you—but I must go now."

Ida accompanied her to the door, and asked why Rose, too, did not call. In her usual frank, open way, Jenny answered, "You know why. Rose is so queer."

Ida understood her and replied, "Very well; but tell her that if she doesn't see fit to notice my visitors, I certainly shall not be polite to hers."

This message had the desired effect; for Rose, who was daily expecting a Miss King, from Philadelphia, felt that nothing would mortify her more than to be neglected by Ida, who was rather a leader among the young fashionables. Accordingly, after a long consultation with her mother, she concluded it best to call upon Mary. In the course of the afternoon, chancing to be near the front window, she saw Mr. Selden's carriage drive away from his door, with Ida and her visitor.

"Now is my time," thought she; and without a word to her mother or Jenny, she threw on her bonnet and shawl, and in her thin French slippers, stepped across the street and rang Mr. Selden's door bell. Of course she was "so disappointed not to find the young ladies at home," and leaving her card for them, tripped back highly pleased with her own cleverness.

Meantime Ida and Mary were enjoying their ride about the city, until coming suddenly upon an organ-grinder and monkey, the spirited horses became frightened and ran, upsetting the carriage, and dragging it some distance. Fortunately Ida was only bruised, but Mary received a severe cut upon her head, which, with the fright, caused her to faint. A young man who was passing down the street, and saw the accident, immediately came to the rescue; and when Mary awoke to consciousness Billy Bender was supporting her, and gently pushing back from her face the thick braids of her long hair. At first she thought she was not much hurt, but when she attempted to lift her head she uttered a cry of pain, and laid it heavily back upon his bosom.

"Who is she? Who is she?" asked the eager voices of the group around, but no one answered until a young gentleman, issuing from one of the fashionable drinking saloons, came blustering up, demanding "what the row was."

Upon seeing Ida, his manner instantly changed, and after learning that she, with another young lady, had been upset, he ordered the crowd to "stand back," at the same time forcing his way forward until he caught a sight of Mary's face.

"Whew! Bill," said he, "your old flame, the pauper, isn't it?"

It was fortunate for Henry Lincoln that Billy Bender's arms were both in use, otherwise he might have measured his length upon the side-[illegible] would hardly have relished in the presence of Ida. As it was, Billy frowned angrily upon him, and in a fierce whisper bade him beware how he used Miss Howard's name. By this time the horses were caught, another carriage procured, and Mary, still supported by Billy Bender, was carefully lifted into it, and borne back to Mr. Selden's house, Henry Lincoln also accompanying her, and giving out numerous orders as to "what ought to be done!"

Many of Ida's friends, hearing of the accident, flocked in to see and to inquire after the young lady who was injured. Among the first who called was Lizzie Upton, whom the reader has once met in Chicopee. On her way home she stopped at Mrs. Campbell's, where she was immediately beset by Ella, to know "who the beautiful young lady was that Henry Lincoln had so heroically saved from a violent death—dragging her out from under the horses' heels!"

Lizzie looked at her a moment in surprise, and then replied, "Why Miss Campbell, is it possible you don't know it was your own sister?"

It was Henry Lincoln himself who had given Ella her information, without, however, telling the lady's name; and now, when she learned that 'twas Mary, she was too much surprised to answer, and Lizzie continued, "I think you are laboring under a mistake. It was not Mr. Lincoln who saved your sister's life, but a young law student, whom you perhaps have seen walking with George Moreland."

Ella replied that she never saw George Moreland, as he left Boston before she came; and then as she did not seem at all anxious to know whether Mary was much injured or not, Lizzie soon took her leave. Long after she was gone Ella sat alone in the parlor, wondering why Henry should tell her such a falsehood, and if he really thought Mary beautiful. Poor, simple Ella!—she was fast learning to live on Henry Lincoln's smile, to believe each word that he said, to watch nervously for his coming, and to weep if he stayed away. There were other young men in Boston, who, attracted by her pretty face, and the wealth of which she was reputed to be heiress, came fawningly around her, but with most strange infatuation, she turned from them all, caring only for Henry Lincoln. He, on the contrary, merely sought her society for the sake of passing away an idle hour, boasting among his male acquaintances of the influence he had acquired over her by complimenting her curls and pretty face! He knew that she was jealous of any praise or attention bestowed by him upon another, and had purposely told her what he did of Mary, exulting within himself as he say the pain his words inflicted.

"I know he was only trying to tease me," was the conclusion to which Ella finally came, and then there arose in her mind a debate as to whether, under the circumstances, it were not [illegible] to treat her sister with [illegible] more respect than she was wont to do. "The Seldens," thought she, "are among the first. If they notice her others will, and why should not I?"

This question was at last decided in the affirmative, and toward the close of the afternoon she started for Mr. Selden's, on her way meeting with Henry, who asked "where she was going?"

"To see that beautiful young lady," returned Ella, rather pettishly; whereupon Henry laughed aloud, and asked "if it were not a little the richest joke he had ever put upon her."

Ella saw no joke at all, but as Henry had turned about and was walking back with her, she could not feel angry, and prattled on, drinking in his words of flattery, as he told her how charmingly she looked at the concert, and how jealous he felt when he saw so many admiring eyes gazing upon what he considered his own exclusive property. The very expressive look which accompanied this remark, made Ella's heart beat rapidly, for Henry had never before said anything quite so pointed, and the cloud which for a time had rested on her brow disappeared.

When they reached Mr. Selden's house Henry announced his intention of calling also to inquire after Mary, whom he respected on her sister's account! "But," said he, "I'm in something of a hurry, and as you girls have a thousand things to talk about, I hardly think I can wait for you."

"Oh! pray, don't wait," returned Ella, hoping in her heart that he would.

Upon asking for Mary she was taken immediately to her room, where she found her reclining upon a sofa, attired in a tasteful crimson gown, which gave a delicate tint to her cheeks. She was paler than usual, and her thick shining hair was combed up from her forehead in a manner highly becoming to her style of beauty. Until that day Ella had never heard her sister called handsome — never even thought such a thing possible; but now, as she looked upon her, she acknowledged to herself that Henry was more than half right, and she felt a pang of jealousy—a fear that Mary might prove her rival. Still she tried to be agreeable, telling her how fortunate she was in being at Mr. Selden's, "for," said she, "I dare say some of our first people will notice you just because you are here!"

Ida hastily walked to the window, standing with her back toward Ella, who continued, "I think it's so funny I've inquired and inquired about Mr. Stuart, but no one knows him, and I've come to the conclusion he was an imposter—or a country schoolmaster, one or the other."

There was a suppressed laugh behind the lace curtain where Ida stood, and when Mary began to defend Mr. Stuart she came out, and with great apparent interest asked who he was [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The Making of a Successful Wife

By CASPER S. YOST.

KEEPING UP SOCIALLY. — Don't Try to Kick Over Your Financial Traces—Can't Trot in the $10,000 Class on a $5,000 Income and No Use to Try It—Avoid the Dull Thud.

[Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.]

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—I have just been a witness to a tragedy. Within sight from the window of my room in the little country hotel where I am stopping today is a pretty cottage. I don't know how it looks from the street, for the rear elevation, as the architects say, is turned my way, but what I can see of it from this side leads me to believe that the owner is in a little better than moderate circumstances as circumstances go in a town of this size. He has a large and commodious back yard, in which he is raising chickens for pleasure. I know it's for pleasure because he graciously permits his wife to do all the work. At least I suppose it's his wife. Anyhow, she wears a faded red sunbonnet, one of those Japo-American kimonos that stop just a little too quick, and an air of authority that is quite unmistakable. There are a number of pens or runs or whatever they call them in this back yard, and each is occupied by a lot of birds of a feather. One pen, however, is evidently reserved for a bunch in which the owner takes a special pride. I don't know what kind of chickens they are—Polled Angus, maybe—but they're swell birds all right, and they are fed on the fat of the land, while their neighbors must be content with the crumbs that fall from Dives' table.

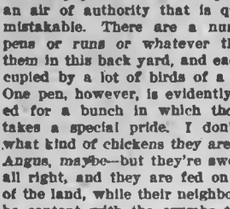
In one of the adjoining pens, however, was an ambitious young pullet who thought she was something of a swell herself and wanted to get into the push mighty bad. She was bigger and handsomer and could cackle louder than some of the aristocrats on the other side of the fence, so why not? After sizing up the height of the barrier she took a running jump, butted into the wire and fell to the ground, with a great squawking and flopping of wings. Not discouraged by failure, she tried again and again and finally got high enough and sailed majestically over into the charmed circle. Then the lady of the kimono emerged from the cottage and, after much shooing and dodging, caught the pullet and put her back in her own pen. Three times this performance was repeated while I watched, but when the mistress of the robes came sweeping down the path for the fourth time I saw there was going to be something doing in that back yard. And there was. Grasping Miss Pullet firmly by the neck, she gave a simple twist of the wrist, and just now the fragrant odor of fried chicken comes stealing, gently stealing, through my open casement.

The lady of the kimono emerged.

Flying High Socially.

I may be away off the track, but I have got the impression from sundry remarks in your letters of recent date that you are beginning to fly pretty high in a social way. I want you to have all the fun you can. Lord knows, dearie, I wouldn't cut you out of any real pleasure, not for worlds. And yet—well, it reminds me of the time when I used to think I was getting a bushel of sport skating around a hole in the ice trying to see how close I could get to the ragged edges. One day I broke my record, and when I got over the spell of pneumonia I couldn't for the life of me understand how I could have seen anything funny in that form of amusement. It's a good deal that way with this social whirl business. Now, I don't want you to misunderstand me, my dear. Society is all right. I don't want you to get me mixed up with those long haired and frayed trousers nincompoops who claim to think society is one of the devices of the gentleman with the red tights and the overheated griddle. Not on your life. I've got nothing against society. It would be a mighty lonesome world without it. What would our newspapers do? But that's getting away from the main road.

The point I want to get into your pretty little thinking box is that society is a good thing so long as you stay in your own class. Yes, yes, my dear, I know you're as good as anybody else. My personal opinion is that you're a whole lot better than anybody else, except your mother. But you haven't got quite as much money as some people I know, and that's the thing that makes class distinctions in this country so far as society, strictly speaking, is concerned. Take us Americans up and down the social ladder and we're pretty much the same. Mrs. Smith on the bottom round is just as good and sweet and sensible, possibly just as refined and accomplished, as Mrs. Van Twiller at the top. The difference is purely a matter of dollars.



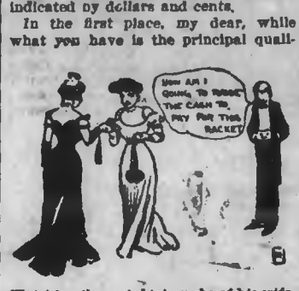
A bushel of sport.

Depends on Billy's Rating.

And that brings me around to you and Billy. Now, I don't know anybody on this green earth better entitled by beauty and grace and intelligence to shine in the very tiptop heaven of society than is my daughter. That's no taffy, little girl. That's the real goods, straight as a footrule. But these things are not accepted as a standard of measurement. It's Billy's rating in Dun's or Bradstreet's that does the work. If he's A1 in the financial register he's pretty well qualified to rank as A1 in the social register. The trouble with Billy is that he isn't A1 or even Z1. He might sing the old Sunday school song, "Is My Name Written There?" and get a negative answer, for Billy trains with the great majority and doesn't figure in the financial reports. Consequently his place and your place in the social scale are some distance below the top. And the quicker you get your location surveyed and make up your mind to play in your own yard until your bank account justifies a move the better it will be for both of you in more ways than can be indicated by dollars and cents.

In the first place, my dear, while what you have is the principal qualification for social position, it's mainly what you spend that puts you into the swim. You may have millions and cut no ice in society unless you can let loose of them pretty freely. On the other hand, you may blow in ten thousand a year on a five thousand income and manage to hold your head above water in the $10,000 class for awhile. But just for awhile, mind you. And that's what causes three-fourths of the evils that result from a woman's ambition to be like one of the candles on a birthday cake, a bright and shining light on the upper crust.

Yes, I know, Billy may be willing—he may even give you a boost. Maybe he's so doggoned proud of you that he just naturally wants to see you make all the folks around the corner sit up and take notice. I wouldn't blame him for feeling that way, 'deed I wouldn't; but my little girl, let me tell you there's many a man standing off in a corner watching the social triumphs of his wife with a smile on his face while his finger nails are cutting deep into the palms of his hands as he wonders where he's going to raise the money to pay for it. Many a man just grins and saws wood, but a display of teeth won't increase anybody's income materially, and one may smile and smile and be bankrupt still. No, honey, there's just one certain end to social ambition that goes ahead of one's income, and that's what the old time newspaper reporters used to call a dull thud. Something's going to drop, sure as shooting, and if I was making a book on it I'd be willing to make it a hundred to one shot that it would be you and Billy. I've seen many a man and many a woman come down like that and mighty few of them, mighty few of them, ever got able to climb back up again. "Poor Smith! He was a good fellow, but his wife ruined him." That's what they said every time. I don't want anybody to say that about my daughter.



Watching the social triumphs of his wife.

Just as contented as if I had won the Derby.

Keep In Your Own Class.

You see, it's just as I told you. The trouble ain't with society; it's the getting out of your class. It's doing like Miss Pullet—flying over the fence into company where she didn't belong. If you're going to get along in this world nice and comfortable and happy, you've got to recognize your own limitations. I never play poker with a man who starts the game with a five dollar ante. No, siree. I politely but firmly draw out. He ain't in my class, and I've got sense enough to know it. My bay mare is as fine an animal as ever came off the blue grass, and when I'm out for a spin with her nothing on four legs is going to pass me. But if a man comes along with a sixty horsepower automobile do you think I'm going to try to keep alongside of him? Not much. Like Jane. I pull to one side and wait till the dust settles, then I trot ahead just as contented as if I had won the Derby. And I don't have any hard feelings against the man in the auto either. If he's got the money to pay for it, why shouldn't he have one and ride in it too? I would.

And it's just the same to you, little girl, and the swells around the corner. They're nice people. There's good and bad among them, just as there are on the side streets, but they'll average up just as high as any of us. No use to rail at the faults of the so called high society. That's mostly sour grapes. They have their faults good and plenty. So have all of us. But they are able to set a pace that it would be foolish for you or me to try to keep up with.

Maybe some day, if you are wise now, you and Billy will have money to burn. Then you will be justified in setting a match to a little of it and cutting as wide a swath in society as you please, provided you do not lose sight of the fact that you have a home and a husband, possibly children, who are of more importance to you and your happiness than all the social victories you could win in a thousand years. Get all the pleasure you can out of life, honey, but be mighty sure that Billy's got the price and got it to spare. Your loving father,

Grandpa Sneed! Gee!

JOHN SNEED.

P. S.—I have just received a personal and confidential communication from your mother which tickles me almost to death. Grandpa Sneed! Gee!

All Were Notables.

Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and Lord Rosebery were returning from the theater one night. While crossing the street they were accosted by a ragged boy who, after sweeping the mud from their path, asked for alms.

Lord Rosebery was about to give the boy a coin when an idea struck him. "My boy," said Rosebery, "if you will hit that policeman a swat on the back with your muddy broom I will give you 10 shillings." Prompt to the word the boy crept in back of the officer and, raising his broom, struck him in the back, then turned and ran, but, to the dismay of Rosebery, the officer caught the boy after a chase of a few yards.

Not wanting to leave the boy in a fix, Rosebery tried to fix things up with the officer, but the worthy gentleman would not listen and took them all three up to the station.

They were taken before the judge of the station, and, after surveying them through his glasses, he took down a book and, turning to Chamberlain, asked his name. "Hon. Joseph Chamberlain," was the reply, and the judge smiled.

Rosebery responded also with his full title, "Lord Rosebery."

The boy was next, and, stepping to the front, he drew himself up to his full height and waited for the usual question, "Your name?"

"My name?" said the boy. "Well, judge, I'm not the kind as what goes back on me pals. I'm the 'Duke of Wellington.'"

Grim Jests.

Deathbed jokes are generally not authentic. The celebrated one attributed to Tom Hood, for instance—that he protested against blaming the undertaker who had blundered into coming before the great wit was dead and said that the man had "come only to urn a lively Hood"—is known to be decidedly apocryphal.

Nevertheless a remark somewhat of the same sort, which is attributed to Lord Chesterfield in his last illness, is undoubtedly authentic. Chesterfield was very ill, and his death was only a matter of a few weeks, but his physician advised that he be taken for an easy drive in his carriage, and he went out.

As the equipage was proceeding slowly along it was met by a woman who remarked pleasantly to the great invalid, "Ah, my lord, I am glad to see you able to drive out."

"I am not driving out, madam," answered Chesterfield. "I am simply rehearsing my funeral."—St. Louis Republic.

Love Me, Love My Dog.

A curious incident, involving a young and good looking Frenchwoman and her dog, occurred recently on a continental railway. For several hours the young woman bestowed more attention and tender care upon the pretty little creature than the majority of women do upon their firstborn, and at every station it was taken out for exercise, and between stations it was fed with dainty nibbles taken from its special basket, which also contained extra wraps, fresh shoes and a gay collar with a huge bow. What attracted most attention was, however, the purchasing of a bottle of mineral water, the taking out of a tiny folding traveling cup, into which some of the water was poured, and the lapping of it up by the pet.

'PHONE COMPANIES GAINED.

Reports at Canadian Association Convention at Toronto.

The Canadian Independent Telephone Association assembled recently in its second annual at Toronto, with more than sixty delegates present. Mr. Alphens Hoover of Green River is the president, and Mr. A. F. Wilson, Toronto and Markham, secretary. There was a very full attendance of the executive committee, and nearly a hundred municipalities were represented, both operating and manufacturing interests being included.

The progress of the independent telephone movement in Canada, during the past ten years was indicated in the report of the secretary.

The report of the secretary showed a great increase in the number of subscribers to the various companies, and in the number of new organizations perfected and operating, and a large number in process of formation. The president and Dr. Demers had assisted Mr. Dagger in the Manitoba campaign last winter, contributing largely to the victory over the monopoly.

In Quebec the Bellechasse Co. obtained favorable legislation from the Government, and also obtained a satisfactory franchise from the City of Quebec, the first city of over 50,000 in Canada to try a live competitive system. The other Quebec companies had made rapid progress.

In Ontario most satisfactory progress was reported, in considerable areas the independents having left the "Bell" far behind. The greatest difficulty met with had been in towns and cities where the councils had, against the wish of the citizens, generally granted a five-years' monopoly to the "Bell." Attention was drawn to the permission given under the laws of Ontario to municipal councils to grant a monopoly to a telephone company. A monopoly could not be given to any company other than the "Bell," and no municipality could give a monopoly in any other matter over which it has jurisdiction. Not only that, but in no other province of the Dominion and in no state of the American Union could this monopoly be granted.

The development so far, the secretary reported, had been greatest in the counties adjacent to Lakes Erie and Ontario and in New Ontario, but the movement was spreading generally. Nearly every company's report showed rapid growth in subscribers, many doubling in the year. Most of the systems had been brought up to standard in both equipment and outside construction, so that there were only a few single-wire systems remaining.

From the west, where Manitoba and Alberta had decided on Government systems, and Saskatchewan, where the matter is under investigation, reports were very satisfactory; local companies and municipalities were preparing to go ahead as quickly as conditions would permit.

From reports just to hand and the latest previous reports there was reason to believe that there are now from 18,000 to 20,000 non-Bell, or independent, telephone subscribers in Canada, nearly all the result of less than three years, against about 90,000 of the Bell, the result of 25 years.

WELL-BALANCED TREATY.

France and Canada Both Make Concessions—Want Steamers Direct.

The frequently well-informed Paris correspondent of The Pall Mall Gazette states that the concessions are nearly balanced in the new Franco-Canadian treaty. Canada grants concessions on the intermediate tariff; but they are framed to include articles not competing to any extent with British manufactures. France has consented to rank wood pulp as raw produce. It is believed that considerable concessions have been made in the rate whereat Canadian cattle and sheep may enter French markets.

Marseilles is anxious to have a line of steamers direct to Canada, and a subvention awaits the firm enterprising enough to establish it. Messrs. Fielding and Brodeur and the French consul at Montreal, who has been an active agent in the negotiations, have sailed for Canada.

The Times, referring to the Franco-Canadian negotiations, states that France has successfully sought to obtain from Canada not only the benefit of the minimum tariff, but in the case of certain articles an important reduction in duties, notably on wine. France has extended the application of her minimum tariff to a number of exclusively Canadian products. The formal adhesion of the British Government will be required before the convention can be published. Mr. Fielding is now in London in order to arrange the form. Lively satisfaction is felt in French business circles at the conclusion of the agreement. As Le Journal points out, French diplomacy has given a most practical reply to the initiative of Canadians in establishing a regular steamship line from the St. Lawrence to the Seine.

The Place For the Repentant.

They had eloped and returned for the parental blessing.

"Father," the beautiful young woman said, "we are sorry for what we have done. Will you"—

"Then," the stern old man interrupted, "why don't you go to the lawyer around the corner? I'm no divorce court."

Synopsis Of Canadian North-West

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba or the North-west Provinces, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded upon by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry may be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:—

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year during the term of three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of any person who is eligible to make a homestead entry upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for by such person as a homestead, the requirements of this Act, as to residence prior to obtaining patent may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Application for patent should be made at the end of three years, before the Local Agent, Sub-Agent or the Homestead Inspector.

Before making application for patent the settler must give six months' notice in writing to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of his intention to do so.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST

HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

Any even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situate. Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

PLUNGED IN DARKNESS.

Terrible Midnight Fall of 40 Feet by Montreal Machinist.

Brockville, Oct. 4—Crossing a bridge near the G. T. R. Depot in the darkness shortly after midnight, James Rowan, a Montreal machinist, walked off the side and fell headlong into the creek, about 40 feet below.

With only a few inches of water and a rocky bottom, Rowan came to grief and when removed to the hospital it was found his back was broken, paralyzing the entire lower portion of his body.

He is alive, but cannot recover. Rowan had ridden on the blind baggage of an express from Montreal with a chum, who rescued him from the water.

Half-Million Contract.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—Peter Lyall, Montreal contractor, has been awarded the contract for the construction of the new Montreal postoffice, to cost $500,000.

Mr. Lyall was defeated last election by H. B. Ames. He already has a number of Government contracts.

Revolution In Argentine.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 4.—A revolution has broken out in the Province of Corrientes, in the Argentine Republic. The insurgents already have seized several positions, and in the fighting with the Government troops many men on both sides were either killed or wounded.

Under Secretary May Go.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—It is probable that the official who will accompany Hon. Mr. Lemieux to Japan for the Canadian Government will be Joseph Pope, Under Secretary of State, who is favorably regarded by the Japanese Government.

Barn Burned; Crop Gone.

Flesherton, Oct. 4.—A bad fire occurred here yesterday afternoon, when W. Talbot's barn was destroyed.

They were threshing there at the time and the fire is supposed to have originated from the engine. The separator was burned and the barn, as well as the crop and 300 bushels of last year's.

There is some insurance, but the amount is not known.

French Immigration.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—Arthur Geoffrion, advocate of this city, has been appointed by the Department of the Interior as the Government immigration representative in France.

Mr. Geoffrion will make a trip through the West, in order to get in touch with conditions there.

It is understood that this presages a lively immigration propaganda in France.

Kingston, Oct. 4.—Magistrate Farrel heard two truancy cases in private session yesterday. The two lads, both 13 years of age, appeared with their mothers, who explained that they had been unable to get the boys to attend school, and the court decided that the cat-o'-nine-tails would furnish the best punishment. The two were taken to the police corridor and paid the penalty.

Opposed to Labor Man.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Yesterday morning a delegation of manufacturers awaited upon Hon. Mr. Monteith, the Minister of Agriculture, and formally submitted the resolution which was recently adopted at the annual meeting of the C. M. A., in opposition to the appointment as factory inspectors of men who may in any way be connected with labor organizations.

Dies at Supper.

Orwell, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Charles Stringer of this place died very suddenly on Wednesday night about 5.30 o'clock. She was eating supper with her husband, when, without a word of warning, she fell back in her chair and expired.

TO BREAK COMBINE.

Manitoba Government Will Take Legal Proceedings Against Lumbermen.

Winnipeg, Man. Oct. 4.—It was learned semi-officially yesterday morning that the Manitoba Government will take proceedings against the Lumbermen's Association charging them with combine in restraint of trade.

Information will be sworn before Magistrate McMicken in the Provincial Police Court. Action is said to have arisen over alleged refusal of the Rainy River Lumber Co., having offices here, to sell lumber to a merchant, James Overend, Ninette, Man., on the ground that he was not a member of the Lumbermen's Association.

Action will be officially taken by the Attorney-General's Department in about two days.

Action has been entered in civil court by Overend against the Rainy River Lumber Co. for damages placed at $500, for breach of agreement and refusing to sell lumber to plaintiff. This case is set down for hearing on Oct. 8.

KING GETS BUSY.

Wires Manager Cowans That He Wants Him at Springhill.

Springhill, N. S., Oct. 4.—W. L. Mackenzie King, Deputy Minister of Labor, arrived at Springhill on Wednesday evening.

Mr. King informed The Herald that he came to see General Manager Cowans in regard to business in connection with the Government, but learned on arrival that Mr. Cowans was in Halifax. He at once wired Mr. Cowans to meet him at Springhill.

A reply was received requesting the Deputy Minister to meet Cowans at Halifax. To this another message was sent to Cowans repeating the request to come to Springhill. A reply was promised by 11 o'clock yesterday, but at that hour no reply had been received.

The Deputy Minister is wiring Cowans at some length. The company's officials are in charge of the works. Grand Secretary Moffat also arrived Wednesday night.

TO CURE INSANITY.

Ontario Proposes to Introduce Successful British Methods.

Toronto, Oct. 4—Hon. Dr. Willoughby, who recently returned from Europe, yesterday attended the Cabinet council at the Parliament Buildings.

In company with Dr. Clarke of the Toronto and Dr. Ryan of the Kingston Asylum for the Insane, he visited and carefully examined into the systems in vogue for the treatment of the insane at London, Dublin, Edinburgh, Paris, Berlin, Munich, Tubingen and Giessen. They will present to the Government a report which will strongly advocate the adoption in the asylums of this province of the methods of treatment pursued in the tsychiatric clinic. This new form of treatment is rapidly emptying the asylums in Germany.

Flesherton Fire.

Flesherton, Oct. 4.—The worst fire Flesherton has had in two years occurred yesterday afternoon, when a house owned by W. A. Armstrong was destroyed. It was worth about $600 and insured.

But its tenant, a Jew pedlar named Poevenik, lost about $4,000 in household goods and stock, besides an account book, in which was $1,600 of accounts due him by people throughout the county, was burned. Poevenik was badly scorched about face and hands. Only a few months ago he was burned out in Toronto and his wife and child burned to death.

C. P. R. Directors Tour.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—Messrs. E. B. Osler, M. P., and W. D. Matthews will be the Toronto directors of the Canadian Pacific who will accompany President Sir Thomas Shaughnessy of the Canadian Pacific next week on the annual tour of inspection of the road.

So far the only Montreal director who has decided to accompany the party is Mr. B. B. Angus. The president and Mr Angus will leave on Saturday morning by special train, being joined by Messrs. Osler and Matthews at Toronto. The tour will probably occupy a month or two.

Clothes Catch Fire.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—Mrs. Sarah Ogden, 67 years, was severely burned about the head and breast last night. She is in St. Michael's Hospital in a serious condition.

While carrying a candle upstairs at her home, at 7.20 o'clock last night, a draft blew her waist about the blaze.

The cloth caught and she was enveloped. The flames were extinguished by other members of the household, who were attracted by her screams.

Child Burned to Death.

Belleville, Oct. 4.—At Allisonville, near this city, Robert Russell, a farmer, was away one morning and his wife was in the yard milking when one of the children told her the house was on fire.

She found the flames had enveloped her two-year-old boy, who was tied in a chair and could not escape. The little fellow was so badly burned that he died the next day. The home and contents were destroyed. Neighbors collected $150 for the unfortunate family.

Noted Methodist Dead.

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—The Rev. James M. King, LL.D., executive head of the mission and church extension of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and known throughout the world of Methodism, died at his home here yesterday of acute peritonitis.

Floor Collapsed.

Guelph, Oct. 4.—Yesterday afternoon, while an auction sale was being held at the residence of Mrs. Lee, Queen street, the floor on which the people were standing, collapsed and several people were slightly injured.

Killed in Fall From Wagon.

Port Hope, Oct. 4.—Stanley Gainer, a Barnardo boy, 10 years of age, fell from a wagon Wednesday evening when returning from the fair, sustaining a fracture of the skull, which resulted in instant death.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Steady—Hogs 10c to 20c Lower at Buffalo.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—London cables are firmer, at 10c to 12½c per lb., dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9½c to 10½c per lb.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—Receipts of live stock since Tuesday, at the City Cattle Market, as reported by the railways, were 145 carloads, composed of 2342 cattle, 1338 hogs, 3376 sheep and lambs, and about 200 calves.

Exporters.

None on sale, excepting a few bulls, which sold at lower prices than at any time this year, at $3.25 to $4 per cwt.

Butchers.

The highest price quoted for selected lots was $4.65, which is a big drop, and there were few bought at that price. Best loads sold from $4 to $4.50; common and medium cattle sold between $3 and $3.85; inferior, $2.50 to $3.75; canners, $2 to $3; cows, $2.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report larger receipts of stockers and feeders this week, with about the same demand, which is chiefly for the heavy class. The light stockers are slow sellers and sold off a little in price from last week. Country buyers want to use some caution in the buying of this class, especially the common and medium kind, which class cannot help but get cheaper. Messrs. Murby bought about 250 this week at the following quotations:

Good feeders, 1050 to 1100 lbs. each, at $3.35 to $3.65; good feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.35; good stockers, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.10 to $3.35; good stockers, 600 to 800 lbs. each at $2.85 to $3.05; common stockers, 500 to 700 lbs. each, at $1.75 to $3.

Messrs. Murby are open to buy several carloads of heavy feeders, and will take them f.o.b., shipping points. Farmers having any for sale would do well to communicate. Address Western Cattle Market.

Milch Cows.

Trade in milkers and springers was dull, prices being off fully $10 per head since Wednesday morning. The quality of the bulk of those offered was of medium to common, and these are always hard to sell, even when there is a good demand. Prices on Wednesday ranged from $25 to $55, and one at $60, but to-day prices were [illegible] several cows left unsold.

Veal Calves.

Prices ranged from $3 to $6 per cwt., and one new milch calf out of 200 calves, so-called, was reported at $7 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run was one of the largest of the season, and, like all other classes, there was a large percentage of poor quality, which sold at the lowest prices of the season. Export ewes sold at $4.25 to $4.40; rams at $3 to $3.50 per cwt.; lambs sold from $4 to $5.70 per cwt., but the latter price was for selected lots. Those sold at $4 per cwt. were culls, one drover taking a double deck of these back to the country to feed. As usual, 10 per cent. of all the lambs were bucks.

Hogs.

Like everything else, the quality of many of the hogs was not good. Since peas have gone to 80c and over per bushel, and barley 70c, the farmers are neglecting their best friend, the hog, and many of them do not see peas or barley. Mr. Harris quotes selects at $6.12½, and culls at $5.50 per cwt.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 3.—Cattle—Quiet; prime steers, $5 to $5.60.

Veals—Receipts, 100 head; active and steady; $5.25 to $9.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2600 head; fairly active and 10c to 20c lower; mixed, $6.90 to $7.20; Yorkers, $7 to $7.10; pigs, $6.60 to $6.75; dairies, $6.75 to $6.90.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 4400 head; active and steady; lambs, $5 to $6.25; Canada lambs, $7.75 to $7.90.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Beeves — Receipts, 431. No trading; feeling steady. Dressed beef in moderate demand at 9½c to 10½c for native sides. Exports, 1150 quarters of beef to Liverpool.

Calves—Receipts, 239; veals, slow to 25c lower; grassers and western calves, dull and barely steady. Veals sold at $5 to $8.50; culls at $4 to $4.50; grassers at $3.75 to $3.25; western calves at $3.25 to $3.75; city-dressed veals, lower at 9½c to 14½c; country-dressed at 7c to 12½c.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 1273; market steady for both sheep and lambs; prime grades, firm; sheep sold at $3.50 to $5.25; culls at $3; lambs at $7 to $8.75; culls at $6.

Hogs—Receipts, 2255; market 10c to 15c lower; Pennsylvania and state hogs, $7 to $7.15.

Rowley Still In Prison.

St. Thomas, Oct. 4.—The report that George W. Rowley, ex-manager of the Elgin Loan Co., had been released from Kingston Penitentiary is untrue. Chief of Police Armstrong, while in Kingston Wednesday, had a conversation with Mr. Rowley, who said that whoever commenced the circulation of the report that he was released was no friend of his.

Conditions

Any Boy can enter this contest, and the sooner they begin the better.

Boys who have never sold Examiners before have an equal chance with those who have.

All of our 40 regular Newsboys who have been selling in the past, as well as new beginners who enter this contest, will start scoring together on Monday Evening, Oct. 7, and their records will be kept from that date to the end of the year.

Boys must pay for their papers every evening, in advance, at the rate of one cent per copy.

Now Boys! Get Busy!

The Examiner is easy to sell, as it gives all the news in a newsy manner.

Besides the chance of winning any of the seventeen prizes, Newsboys can make lots of pocket money from the profits of their evening sales.

Boys attending school can be supplied with Examiners every evening after 4 o'clock, and with a little hustling can soon start a nice little savings bank account for the Xmas holidays.

Girls who desire can take part in this contest, as well as boys.

You can win a Prize

And your pocket money besides if you try. Don't wait for success to come to you, go after it!

There are a number of bright Examiner newsboys who buy all their own clothing, shoes, etc., can spend a nickel occasionally, and own a bank account as well, from the proceeds of their sales of the Daily Examiner. You can, too!

Any information regarding this competition will be given at the office of the Examiner.

Clever Rogue Swindles Managers of Orangeville Banks.

GOT BOGUS NOTES CASHED

Smooth Stranger Passed Himself Off For Wealthy Caledon Farmer—No Trace Yet Found of Him Though the Bank Officials and Police Are Patrolling the Country—Two Banks Were Touched.

Orangeville, Oct. 4.—Two local bank managers were swindled yesterday by a smooth stranger who succeeded in passing himself off as Patrick Garnty, a prosperous and well-known farmer of Caledon Township.

The unknown approached E. Templin, manager of the Bank of Commerce branch and secured $200 on a bogus note. At the Sterling Bank, the manager of which is A. C. Kirkwood, the man got $100. Manager Dewar of the Bank of Hamilton balked at delivering the $200 that was requested there and demanded that the alleged Garnty identify himself. He never came back.

Dewar 'phoned the other banks, and then the police were appealed to, but no trace of the fellow could be found. The bank officials have been driving around the country in search. It is thought he went north on the steamboat express at 3.30.

He is described as about 45 years of age, tall, dark, with moustache, and dressed in a blue suit with black fedora hat.

It is only recently that several bankers in this section fell before two men who are now sentenced to the Central Prison.

NEED THE NAVY.

President Roosevelt Says Republic Requires It to Hit Out In War.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 4.—In a speech here yesterday President Roosevelt called for the upbuilding and maintaining of the highest point of efficiency of the American navy. "To repel hostile attacks the fortifications, and not the navy, must be used; but the best way to parry is to hit—no fight can ever be won except by hitting—and we can only hit by means of the navy. It is utterly impossible to improvise even a makeshift navy under the conditions of modern warfare. The navy must be built and all its training given in time of peace. Early in December the fleet will begin its voyage to the Pacific. A long ocean voyage is mighty good training, and not the least good it will do will be to show just the points where our naval progress needs strengthening."

HOT SHOT FOR THE MOTOR CARS

Ontario's Rural Residents Protest Against Motor Cars.

WANT USE OF THEIR ROADS

Rural Members of Legislature Will Submit Stringent Bill at the Coming Session — Secretary of Farmers' Institutes Deluged With Protests — Farmer's Wife Pens Strongly Written Letter.

Toronto, Oct. 4.—"From the time that the roads are fit for travel in the spring until winter the women are naturally afraid to go anywhere if they have to drive owing to the prevalence of these reckless automobilists."

"Our roads are systematically abused by motorists who drive their cars with an absolute disregard of speed and all other regulations."

"We have many instances where horses have been frightened and women thrown out of their rigs, and the automobiles have raced right on by."

Mr. G. A. Putnam, provincial superintendent of Farmers' Institutes, has a desk literally stacked with letters from the rural districts protesting against the use of their roads by automobiles, the foregoing being a few extracts.

"There is no question that it has materially affected the attendance at Women's Institute meetings," he said, "and feeling throughout rural Ontario seems to be running high against the automobile using the country roads at all."

One woman writes to Mr. Putnam: "It seems bitterly unfair that the people who cleared the country and built the roads should have to give up the opportunity of driving upon them because a few rich people with money buy automobiles, and think they own the roads."

As previously intimated the rural members of the Legislature plan concerted action in introducing legislation next session. "We'll wait no longer than next session," said one farmer. "Then, if the nuisance continues, we're liable to get out and pump shot into a few of their machines."

CHASING A TITLE.

Daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt to Marry a Budapest Count.

New York, Oct. 4.—Formal announcement of the engagement of Miss Gladys Vanderbilt to Count Laszlo Szechenyi of Budapest, is made in The Herald yesterday.

The count is 28 years old, rich and good-looking, has an hereditary seat in the Hungarian Parliament and is one of the chamberlains of the Austrian Emperor.

Miss Vanderbilt, who is the youngest child of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. Vanderbilt, inherited from her father a fortune of more than $10,000,000. She came into possession of this inheritance on attaining her majority last August.

ROSS WAS LOCATED AT DOVER

Missing Canadian Found in Railway Station.

DUGALD ROSS WAS ROBBED

Says He Was Swindled Out of £20,000—Followed the Thief as Far as Folkestone and Found He Had Left by Vessel—Was Resident of Streetsville — Says He Sought Quietude at Dover.

London, Oct. 4.—(C. A. P.)—Dugald Ross of Streetsville, Canada, who has been missing since Sept. 24, was found in the waiting-room of the railway station at Dover at an early hour yesterday. A small hand-bag and the clothing he stood up in were his only available assets.

The story wired from Dover says that, as a result of a communication from the manager of the Burlington Hotel at Dover, the inspector of the local police went to the waiting-room of the Southeastern Railway shortly after midnight and there found Ross waiting to catch the train for London. Ross had been staying at the hotel under the name of Robinson, and on being challenged by the inspector, "Robinson" promptly admitted that he was Ross. After some conversation with the manager, Ross agreed to return to the hotel. Ross stated that the intention in leaving for London was "to get some money." He said he was not, as reported, a millionaire, nor had he ever made that statement. He had come down to Dover and assumed the name of Robinson in order that he might have quietude. All the questions put to Ross were answered quite freely. He stated that he had gone into the city to cash a check, but found that he could not get the money. He alleged that he had been swindled by a man whom he had followed as far as Folkestone, but, on finding that the latter had left by boat, he decided to stay there. After remaining at the Metropole Hotel he came on to Dover, where he arrived last Thursday.

A Dover wire says nothing can be ascertained regarding the recent movements of Ross, who, it is alleged, now states that he has been robbed of £20,000.

Was In Big Speculation.

Mr. Ross is a young gentleman, 22 years of age, who in the past two or three years has made a good deal of money. He has a fine stock farm near Streetsville and has been dealing largely in horses, one of his recent big transactions having been with the Government of Japan. In July he bought a big block of Kimberley diamond stock on information that it would prove a profitable investment. A short time thereafter, or early in August, he sent his private secretary, a man who has not been in Canada, and about whom nothing is known here, to South Africa to secure certain confidential information as to conditions at the mines. The secretary cabled Mr. Ross to sell, but so far as is known here has not yet returned to London from Cape Town. Mr. Dugald Ross on receipt of his report consulted a prominent Toronto banker, who also advised him to sell. In a letter received by his brother, Mr. J. B. Ross, dated at the Berkeley Hotel on Friday, Sept. 20, Mr. Dugald Ross says he proposed on the next day to sell his stock in the Kimberley Diamond Mines to the amount of $250,000, and to sail for Canada on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, leaving Plymouth on Sept. 25. A Canadian Associated Press despatch of Wednesday night indicated that he disappeared after visiting the Bank of England in connection with a check for £20,000, and was seen next day at a hotel in Folkestone, from which he departed, after a 24 hours' stay, in a mysterious fashion.

No Entanglements.

Rev. Malcolm McGregor of The Westminster, uncle of Dugald Ross, says: "I am quite sure that there is nothing in the nature of a spree behind the disappearance of my nephew He is a quiet, sober, steady young fellow of 22, a bachelor, but not at all the sort of man to become entangled in any way with either gamblers or adventuresses. His chief amusement is motoring. He had two motors while in London, one a small one that he had bought for himself, the other a big, fast 200-horsepower car he had bought for a New York man."

Tolstoi No Beggar.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 4.—A letter was published here yesterday from Count Tolstoi, asking that the stream of requests for financial assistance addressed to him be discontinued, explaining that twenty years ago he surrendered his property to his heirs as if already dead, and that the sole sums at his disposal now "are occasional foreign contributions which I distribute in the neighborhood."

Quadruple Hanging.

Lancaster, Pa., Oct. 4.—Anthony Delero, Stephen Cariu, Sivero Rodelli and Joseph Calione were hanged here yesterday. All died from strangulation. The crime for which they paid the penalty was the murder of Plato Albamase and was the culmination of a daring robbery.

Speedy Settlement Looked For.

Tokio, Oct. 4.—It is believed here that in presenting the claims for damages which Japanese subjects sustained as a result of the Vancouver riots, the Tokio Government will not include any amount for indirect damage. A speedy settlement of the matter is anticipated.

Lemieux to Go to Japan.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Minister of Labor, will in all probability be the Minister of the Crown who will go to Tokio on the 20th inst. to represent the Government and endeavor to settle the question of the Japanese invasion of the Pacific coast. It is likely that the Minister will be accompanied by a high official of the Government, who will supplement Mr. Lemieux's diplomatic efforts.

SCORED SEAGRAM.

North Waterloo Liberals Allege He Has Been Neglecting His Duties.

Elmira, Oct. 4.—Owing to the change of representation of the delegates at the convention of the Reform Association of North Waterloo in the revised constituencies, adopted here yesterday, it was decided to defer the selection of the candidates for Federal and Local Parliaments until next January.

A large number of delegates attended the convention and splendid addresses were delivered by President R. Y. Fish, E. P. Clement, K. C., Dr. J. F. Honsberger, J. B. Hughes, L. Stauffer, J. L. Umbach, H. J. Sims, George Moore and others.

The attention of the convention was called to the manner in which the representative of North Waterloo, J. E. Seagram, had failed to attend the session of Parliament, and it was predicted that the electors of this important riding would not tolerate the representation of this negligent candidate.

A resolution of confidence in Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his administration, congratulating Hon. G. P. Graham upon his appointment as Minister of Railways and Canals and G. G. Mackay as leader of the Liberal party in Ontario, were passed amid enthusiasm.

ALL STAMPS GOOD.

Speical Delivery Letters Will Now Need Only to Be So Marked.

Ottawa, Oct. 4. A new arrangement has gone into force with reference to special delivery letters. Henceforth letters will be specially delivered if they bear a special delivery stamp or extra postage of ordinary denominations to the value of 10 cents marked "special delivery."

Heretofore a special delivery stamp has been necessary, and as they are not kept by all stamp vendors they have frequently occasioned inconvenience.

Circulars advising this change have been sent to postmasters.

It applies in the following cities: Halifax, St. John, Fredericton, Quebec, Sherbrooke, St. Hyacinthe, Trois Rivieres, Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston, Peterboro, Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph, Brantford, Berlin, Stratford, London, Windsor, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria.

The hours of delivery will be within 7 a. m. and 10 p. m. daily, except Sunday.

SAVED MAN'S LIFE.

Plucky Canadian Girl Cheered in New York For Attending Injured Man.

New York, Oct. 4.—A pretty young woman, well-dressed, kneeling in the dust of Fourth avenue on Wednesday night, administered restoratives to Henry Heine of 41 St. Mark's place, who had been knocked down and dragged for 60 feet by a trolley car.

Then she tore her handkerchief into strips and bound up the cut in the man's head while thousands looked on and cheered. The young woman, whose action Ambulance Surgeon Sears of Bellevue Hospital declared saved the victim's life, was Miss Eugenia P. Pepin, supervising nurse of St. Luke's Hospital in Ottawa, Can.

She is here visiting friends, and is a guest of the Grand Union Hotel. She was a passenger on a Fourth avenue car when it struck Heine.

THE HORSE WAS KILLED BY TRAIN BUT THE DRIVER MIRACULOUSLY ESCAPED

Examiner Special.

Havelock, October 4th.—To have a horse one is driving attached to a buggy struck and killed by a train ,and to escape oneself without injury, is an experience not often met with. It is one, however, which Mr. Shoofelt, of this town, passed through a few days ago. He had hired a horse from Mr. J. W. Holcombe, and was returning from Norwood with it, when the accident occurred. He was crossing the C. P. R. tracks at a point where it was impossible to see the rails for any distance from the west, and not hearing the engine whistle, he was unaware of the approach of the train until it had struck the horse. The animal was thrown several yards, and was so badly injured that it had to be shot. Fortunately, however, the driver escaped without injury. The horse was valued at $125.00.

PETERBOROUGH WALKER TO MAKE ATTEMPT ON OCTOBER 25TH TO ESTABLISH A CANADIAN RECORD

David Hartley Will Walk From Bowmanville to Toronto and Return to Peterborough, in 34 Hours

A DISTANCE OF 137 MILES

Will Make Effort to do Practically Same Distance as Reynolds Attempted in Four Hours Less Time

On Friday, October 25th, David Hartley will make an effort to demonstrate that he has the right to the title of long distance walker of Ontario, when he will walk from Bowmanville to Toronto and return to Peterborough, a distance of in the neighbourhood of 137 miles, practically the same as that attempted by Jimmie Reynolds in June. Mr. Hartley will, however, agree to do the distance in four hours less time than that of Reynolds, or thirty-four hours for the 137 miles.

He resents the insinuations cast against him by the Port Hope press and the Port Hope people, and will now prove his contention that he is able to beat not only Reynolds actual performance, but what he set out to do and failed.

If Mr. Hartley is in good health he will leave Bowmanville on the morning of Friday October 25th at seven o'clock. He will go to Toronto, and will return, finishing at Peterborough, which he expects to reach about five o'clock in the evening, of Saturday 26th.

This will be practically the same dostance as the return trip from Port Hope to Toronto. From Bowmanville to Toronto the distance is 43 miles, from Toronto to the Guide Board, near Port Hope, 66 miles, and from that point to Peterborough, 28 miles, making a total of 137 miles. In walking from Toronto to this city it would be out of his way to go into Port Hope. He will come direct to Peterborough from the Guide Board.

Mr Hartley claims that by starting in the morning he has a decided advantage over Reynolds who did not start until ten o'clock at night. He will take a good night's rest and be fresh when he starts out, whereas the Port Hope man had taken no rest since the morning.

No bet has been made that Mr. Hartley will do the distance in the time mentioned, but he expects that his expenses will be paid, and that should he succeed in accomplishing what many believe is impossible, the citizens of Peterborough will see that he is paid for the time he loses in training and in the race itself.

If he is able to carry out his intentions, of which he himself has no doubt he will have succeeded in bringing a signal honour to Peterborough and no doubt the patriotism inherent in its citizens will inspire some form of recognition of his feat.

Since the famous walk twenty-seven years ago when he did 155 1-2 miles in thirty-six hours, Mr. Hartley has done no walking to speak of until last Civic Holiday when he walked from Peterborough to Bailieboro and return in six hours, a distance of thirty-four miles. Many who did not know him doubted his ability to go the distance in the time specified, and his success was a surprise to a great many. He is slightly over 50 years of age, and states that he is in better physical condition to-day than he was twenty-seven years ago, when he did his first long walk.

He is in good training, and anticipates no difficulty in covering the 137 miles in the time indicated.

ARM LACERATED BY A BELT

Employee of Shovel Company's Works Injured This Afternoon

This afternoon Dr. Young was called to the Shovel Company's works to attend the injuries of a young man named Dwyer, who had his arm badly lacerated by being caught in a belt. It was at first feared that the arm had been broken, but an examination revealed the fact that the injuries consisted of a laceration and bruises. He will be laid up for some weeks.

He Wanted Help In His Battles

A certain preacher in the city has two boys. One of the boys, according to his father, is religiously inclined, while the other pays more attention to other considerations. They both believe in the efficacy of prayer, however. A few days ago one of the boys —it will not be necessary to specify which one, the story tells that—had a difference with a school-mate which he tried to settle by a resort to the manly art of self-defence. The young off-shoot of the ministry, however, while he was willing, was worsted in the fight. He remembered his mother's advice, though, to make his troubles a subjeott of prayer, and that night, at his mother's knee, as concluding petition in his prayer he said "Oh Lords send some big fellow to punch ——— in the jaw."

BIG PROFITS FOR STANDARD

Trust Last Year According To Reports

SURPLUS OF $261,000,000

New York, Oct. 3.—For the first time there has just been made public the income amount and balance sheet of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which is the parent of all the Standard Oil companies of the world. The report shows that the wealth of the company has at no time been over estimated.

The income account shows that while the company paid $40,000,000 in dividends in the year ending December 31, last, it earned more than $33,000,000, and left as a surplus for the year something more than $43,750,000. Added to the previous surplus the total surplus in profit and loss accounts amounts to $261,000,000, or more than nine times the amount of the great fine.

The balance sheet of the company shows total assets of $371,664,532, as compared with a capitalization of $10,000,000. Apart from the capital stock outstanding and the profit and loss surplus, the only liabilities are accounts payable to the amount of $12,284,000.

P. C. M'GINNITY BLOWS IN ON A BUGLE

Surprised A Number of Boys "Making Funny Noises"

P. C. McGinty surprised a number of boys on Union street last night, while they are making a nuisance of themselves with a bugle. A lady complained that they interfered with the practice of music, and asked that something be done. Accordingly the officer visited the street and stole a march on the boys and secured the bugle. The result is that it is now in safe hands, and is guaranteed to make little noise for some time. The boy who had it in his possession is named Hill; it is learned that he does not own the instrument.

THREE TRAMPS IN EAST CITY BARN

P. C. McGinnity Called This Afternoon To Rout Them Out

This afternoon the police received a call from East City stating that there were three tramps in McAllister's barn, and could not be dislodged by the old gentleman who lives in the house adjoining the property. They were said to be strangers and rather suspicious looking. P. C. McGinty received the message and started out immediately to find out the exact nature of the affair.

AN EPIDEMIC AVERTED

Typhoid Fever In Smith

DR. YOUNG INVESTIGATES

As a Result of One Case And The Condition of The Water Supply He Orders Wells Cleaned Near Young's Point

An epidemic of typhoid fever is threatened in Smith township. Yesterday, Dr. Young, who is Medical Health Officer for that township, went to Young's Point at the direction of the Health Board and instituted an investigation into the conditions there. One patient, Annie Mellmoyle, is suffering from fever, and at the direction of the Health Officer she was removed yesterday to Nicholls Hospital by D. Bellegtem's private ambulance. Dr. Young believes that the trouble is caused by impure water supply, and he has ordered a number of wells and pumps cleaned as a means of preventing a spread of the disease, which, if the precautions are not taken, threatens to become serious.

As yet only one case has developed, but the condition of the wells examined by Dr. Young is such that if stringent measures are not carried out there will be further cases in the near future.

PROHIBIT BURNING OF RUBBISH

Practice of Burning It in Centre of City Will be Made Contrary to Law By Council

THE COMMITTEES MET

The Legal Committee of the City Council decided last night to put a stop to the burning of waste paper and other rubbish in yards and premises in the central part of the city. It will be remembered that the Underwriters wrote the council some time ago objecting to the practice, which they characterized as extremely dangerous. The matter was left in the hands of the Legal Committee to deal with.

At last night's meeting the question was discussed, after which it was decided to instruct the City Solicitor to prepare a bylaw prohibiting the burning of rubbish in the central part of the city.

The claim of Mrs. Solmes for damages for injuries received by falling through a sidewalk on Reid street, was discussed and referred to the City Engineer to report.

Mr. E. H. Mann's claim for damages for the burning of a pile of wood in the recent fire on the river bank, was also brought up. The Chief of the Fire Brigade will be asked to make a report on the matter.

Tenders were opened for the street lettering decided upon by the committee but no action was taken, it being decided to leave the matter over until the next meeting.

There were present: Ald. Phelan, chairman, the Mayor, and Ald. Wilson and Stevenson.

Finance Committee

The Finance Committee also met last night and transacted some routine business, passing accounts, etc. A number of matters were talked over but no action was taken. There were present Ald. Tovey, chairman; the Mayor, Ald. Phelan and Bradburn.

HOMEWOOD AVENUE THE PRETTIEST

Resident of That Thoroughfare Upholds Beauty of the Street

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Notwithstanding the dissent from the correspondent of Gilmour street and East City, large numbers believe that Homewood avenue is the most desirable residential street in Peterborough to-day, barring none. We would cordially invite dissenters from Gilmour street and East City to visit Homewood avenue and see for themselves. It appears that the city authorities took note of their denunciations of the condition of Homewood avenue for public traffic, and improvements in this respect are now in progress, we are pleased to be able to report. With reference to the objects contemplated by the proposed association, the travelled portion of the street is under the jurisdiction of the city officials, and they are responsible for the due care thereof. Anything from the association in this regard would be purely suggestive. The true object would be to stimulate each resident and property owner to improve and beautify the whole line of the street, and thereby make it a still more desirable residential street.

A suggestion: Let the city aldermen set apart, say, $50, to be divided into three purses, for a street contest in the autumn of 1908.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in advance.

A HOMEWOOD RESIDENT.

IS THE GRANDSTAND UNSAFE?

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Perhaps it was well that the last day of the Exhibition prevented many from going, for if there had been a crowd on the grand stand there would have been a serious accident. What are the Directors doing for the future?

Yours truly,
W. A. BAILEY.

Peterborough, Oct. 4th, 1907.

Jumps From Train And Crosses Ice in His Stockings

The Exciting Experiences of a Barrie Man in His Efforts to Escape From the Limbs of The Law—Was Re-captured

HE WAS A NERVY PRISONER

Orillia, Oct. 4.—After making a desperate escape from officers of the law by leaping from an express train while on the way to Barrie last winter, Thomas Turan again fell into the hands of the law last Saturday night, when he was found by Detectives Kennedy and Archibald at 317 Rusholme road, Toronto.

When arrested, he told the officers that, after jumping from the lavatory window of the train, he turned four somersaults before he landed in the ditch. He then picked himself up and ran all night, not stopping till next morning. Across the ice in his stockin feet he went. He found on crossing the lake at Barrie, that his feet slipped with his boots on, so he took them off. Being too well known in Barrie and Newmarket, he went to Toronto and rented a little cottage on Rusholme road.

He was all ready to make off again on Saturday and had shaved himself to hide his identity, as he heard that the officers had discovered him. There is a charge against him of burglary at Newmarket, as well as escaping from custody.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

The Examiner Will Do Things

The Examiner to-morrow will be just a little better than the ordinary Saturday paper. The series of letters of John Sneed will be continued, with one of the most interesting letters of the whole series.

A feature of more than usual interest, too, will be an illustrated article on the Peary Expedition to the far north. The illustrations are made especially for this article, which is copyrighted.

Some local questions of more than passing importance will claim the attention of the news and other departments of the paper.

The Examiner is essentially a local paper, it is printed for the people of Peterborough primarily, and that they appreciate the efforts that are being made to give them a newspaper is evident.

Havelock Enthralled in Cupid's Irresistible Charms

Four Weddings in Which Young Men of That Town are Principals —Many More Are in Prospect

IS A WEDDING EPIDEMIC

Examiner Special.

Havelock, October 4th.—The young men residents of this town, and former residents, have the matrimonial fever. In fact, Havelock seems to be in the throes of a matrimonial epidemic. During the last few days, four weddings in which young Havelock men are principals, have been recorded, and it is understood that in the near future a number of others will take place. Cupid is becoming exceedingly active during the fall months. The following are some of the more recent victims of the charms of cupid:

DUGAN-KANE

In Montreal on Tuesday, Sept. 23rd, Mr. Thomas Dugan of town, was married to Miss Hazel Kane of that city. The groom is very popular in Havelock, running as a brakeman from here to Smith's Falls for a number of years past. His friends will join in wishing him and his bride a long life of happiness and prosperity.

WING-MEYERS

Mr. Harrison Wing, travelling agent for the McCready Shoe Co., of Edmonton, Alta., formerly a resident of Havelock, was married in Westport, on the 18th of Sept, to Nellie Meyers, of that place. His old friends here extend congratulations.

NICKERSON-IVY

Mr Harry Nickerson of Toronto Junction, formerly of town, was married on Wednesday to Miss Ethel Ivy of Campbellford. The young couple took the afternoon train at Havelock, amid a shower of rice, for a short wedding tour to Michigan, the home of the groom. Returning they will reside at Toronto Junction.

BUCHANAN-ACKINSON

Mr. Harry Buchanan of town, was married on Wednesday to Miss May Ackinson of Seymour.

Many Politicians Hurt in Riot Last Night—Bengal Papers Are Up In Arms

Examiner Special.

Calcutta, October 4. — Seditious agitation here led to serious rioting on Thursday night, in which no less than forty policemen were wounded.

London, October 4. — English newspapers to-day manifest the gravest concern over the riots in Calcutta. The seriousness of the situation is admitted, and fears are expressed that further troubles may occur. There is a general demand from the papers that Kier Hardie, whose inflammatory speeches are largely blamed for the trouble, shall be recalled to England. The Bengal newspapers this morning throw the whole blame on the police.

THE WEATHER.

Variety is said to be the spice of life, and the weather of the last 24 hours has been of a variable character. We have had fine weather, followed by lowering skies, and light rain, succeeded by a heavy downpour, to be followed by strong westerly gales and clearing weather. The conditions are now much more settled. Highest temperature yesterday, 72 degrees, lowest, 42. Barometer, at noon, 28.—, and rising again.

SHOWER OF LEGACIES OF C.P.R. STOCK FOR PETERBOROUGH MEN

JOHN SNEED'S LETTER ON "KEEPING UP SOCIETY"

The series of letters being published in the Examiner on "The Making of a Successful Wife," is creating deep interest among the readers of this paper, one gentleman stating yesterday that he had never read anything in which he was so thoroughly interested. John Sneed's philosophies are homely, but they are sound. To-day he writes on "Keeping up Socially," and some interesting phases of married life are recounted by John for the benefit of his daughter, who has but recently married Willie. Read the letter to-day on page four.

SOME DIRE THREATS WERE MADE

Against Member of Lindsay School Board If He Does Not Vote Right—Would Lose a Whitney Job

MR. ANDERSON'S DILEMNA

Threats were made use of, through anonymous means, to induce a member of the Lindsay School Board, and an official in the employ of the Ontario Government, to vote against accepting the resignation of the head master. A despatch to the Toronto Globe, referring to the incident, says:—

At the meeting of the Lindsay Board of Education, Mr. J. C. Harstone, B.A., tendered his resignation as head master of the Collegiate Institute, to take effect at the close of the present term in December. After considerable discussion and a statement from Mr. Harstone that he had no desire to withdraw it, the resignation was accepted.

During the discussion Mr. D. Anderson, who is County Court Clerk, claimed a hearing as a point of privilege, and read the board an anonymous threatening letter he had received, which intimated that if he voted for the acceptance of the resignation of Mr. Harstone his own official life in the employ of the Whitney Government might be brought to a conclusion. Mr. Anderson seemed to take the letter seriously, but he is not the sort of man to be influenced by a letter of the sort outlined above.

Mr. Harstone has been in the employ of the Board for over 21 years, and during his tenure of office has been mainly instrumental in bringing the Collegiate Institute to a high state of efficiency.

Alleged New York Lawyer Offers Promiscuously $800 Worth of Stock for Paltry Fee of $5.00

AN INGENUOUS SCHEME

Several Local Men Were Recipients of Alluring Letters—They, However, Were Too Wise for The Schemer

Mr. B. Laster:

Dear Sir,—In accordance with the commands of te late Mr. J. Laster, I beg to announce that I have in my care five shares of Canadian Pacific Railway stocks, value $800.00.

These share were left to you by the late Mr. J. Laster, of this city, at his decease.

The forementioned shares of C.P.R. are to be forwarded to you on receipt of my fee of $5.00 as counsel on this matter.

Hoping that I may be of assistance to you at some future time, I am,

Respectfully yours,
L. B. DRUMMOND.

New York, Sept. 28, 1907.

The above letter, received yesterday morning by Mr. B. Laster, of this city reveals one of the most barefaced frauds ever attempted on these people. Mr. Laster detected the fraud at once, and needless to say did not forward the $5.00 fee mentioned in the letter. He has since discovered that he was not the only one in this city who received similar letters yesterday, Messrs. D. Beleghem, John Nugent and A. W. Cressman also being favoured ones.

The letters are couched in practically identical terms, Mr. D. Beleghem's letter stating that the same worth of stock had been left by his father, Mr. J. Beleghem, and as a matter of fact Mr. Beleghem's father's name was James, but Mr. Drummond fell down when he stated that he lived in New York. He died, too, before C.P.R. stock was listed on the market, so that the improbability of the allegations of the letter was apparent.

It is probable that similar letters have been received by a number of persons in the city, and it is to be hoped that none of the recipients will be caught by the alluring promise made by the versatile Mr. Drummond.

An interesting fact in connection with these letters, too, is that while they are dated from New York, the dwelling place of the mysterious L. B. Drummond, who has so much C.P.R. stock to give away, the envelope bear a Canadian two cent stamp, and a Montreal post mark, indicating that there is a Canadian confederate of the New York man. This is a fact which may have an important bearing on the case, and it has apparently been overlooked by everyone except Mr. Beleghem, who called the attention of the Examiner to it to-day.

Traffic on Trent Canal Shows Satisfactory Increase

Report of Traffic Issued From Department Gives Increase in Every Branch Except Two

GENERAL CANAL FIGURES

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—To-day a report covering the operations of the Canadian Canals for the season of 1906 was issuedf rom the Department of Railways and Canals, and in it some interesting statements concerning the traffic on the Trent Canal during that period are given. A total tonnage of 80,800 is reported as having passed through that canal, all of it, of course between Canadian ports. The amount of tolls collected during that season was $523.23. The number of craft reported is 1,987. A comparative statement is included, showing the increase in traffic on this canal in the season of 1906 over that of 1905, and it shows that in every branch of traffic with the exception of coals and lumber, in which there was decrease they show a satisfactory increase. A statement of the total freight passed through the Canals of the Dominion for the years from 1887 to the present shows a gratifying increase in the traffic. It says in this connection:

With regard to total tonnage, it will be observed that the traffic moving up and down has increased by 200 per cent. during the past twenty years. The business westward showed a gain of 368 per cent., while the eastward grew to the extent of per cent. It is instructive to take note of the facet that this expansion of business on the canals of Canada is relatively larger than that shown by Canadian railways during the same period. While 57,966,713 tons freight were carried by Canadian railways in 1906, as compared with 16,356,237 in 1887, the betterment was but 254 per cent. as against 257 per cent. on the canals. Of course, this includes the use made by [illegible] States vessels of the Canadian Sault Ste. Marie and Welland canals.

CHIEF OF POLICE WARNS BANKS TO BE ON GUARD

The success of a swindler who "worked" the banks in Orangeville for $300 on a bogus cheque, furnishes a text for the Chief of Police to-day to preach a little sermon to the banks in this city. He stated that the banks in Peterborough in the past had been considered easy by those gentry, and there was no assurance that the man who had succeeded in flinching the Orangeville banks out of the three hundred would not take a jaunt to Peterborough and repeat his performance here unless the banks were on their guard.

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear

What one or two applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use. By its healing, soothing and antiseptic influence, Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly cures chafing and skin diseases, and eruptions and leaves the skin, clear, soft and velvety.

REDUCED RATES

The Toronto World, in an article purporting to show the success of the railway passenger rate of two cents per mile, quotes an authority to show how it works in Missouri. At the Kansas City Union Station, it is asserted that not only has the passenger business been greatly augmented, but the cash receipts from such business during July and August of this year are actually two thousand dollars per month in excess of the receipts for July and August of last year. A similar condition can, it is said, be found in the records of other railway centres in the State. Whether or not Canada is ripe for a two-cent railway passenger rate, there is no doubt that, as a principle, reduction of rates is an effective measure for the increase of business. It has proven to be so, conspicuously in the matter of postal rates. Years ago it was found to have this effect in England, and similar results were attained in Canada. In 1898, Sir William Mulock, Postmaster General in the Laurier Government, procured a reduction from five cents to two cents on inter-Imperial letter rates, and at the same time the rate in Canada was reduced from three cents to two cents per ounce. In spite of these reductions—representing 60 per cents in inter-Imperial letter rates, per cent. in the Canadian rate, accompanied by increased expenditure in the extension of postal facilities—the revenue, under the reduced rates, owing, of course, to increase of letter-writing, rapidly increased. The increase of revenue, resulting, paradoxical it may seem, from decreased revenue rates, was so great that in 1902 the Post Office Department, which had not shown a surplus since 1851, achieved a surplus of revenue over expenditure. So great was the increase in business and revenue, that a deficit in the Post Office Department of more than $700,000 in 1898 was replaced by a surplus, four years after the introduction of the lowered rates. And the surplus has been continually increasing, in spite of large and expensive improvements of the postal service. In the matter of the post office, reduction of rates has been a great success. Whether it would have a similar outcome in the matter of reduced railway rates is something yet to be shown. There does not seem to be any good reason why the same principle applied in the matter of railways should not have corresponding results. When the Canadian Pacific Railway can show such large earnings from a three-cent rate, it seems possible, reasoning from analogy, that a reduction in passenger rates, from three cents to two cents per mile, in the interests of the travelling public, would, through increased travel, result favourably. The theory seems to be all right. How it would work out in practice remains to be seen. Canadian railways do not, evidently, believe that reduction of passenger rates would yield an increase of business and revenue, or they would need no urging to adopt it.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A professor now says that Solomon did not write the Songs of Solomon. He may not have done so, at least not many of them—a man with 700 wives would "sang small" anyway.

The Australians declare that Canadians are slow. It must be that the practice of our antepodean cousins going about and standing on their heads must develop brain activity.

The advocates of a high duty claim that the duty does not increase the price to the consumer. Mr. D. H. Ross, trade agent of Australia, now at Ottawa, says that the introduction of the new high tariff in Australia has had the effect of an immediate rise in price on all lines of merchandise affected by the higher duties.

The bye-election contest in Brockville, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of his seat in the Legislature by Hon. Geo. P. Graham, is going merrily on. The case is being presented to the popular jury, and on Monday next the verdict will be given. Apparently the contest is being waged in a moderate manner. The party newspapers are behaving themselves with dignity and moderation. Neither of them has yet discovered that the opposing candidate is a horse thief and should be in the penitentiary.

The returns for the past month show that the Intercolonial Railway is in a healthy condition. The earnings for August total, $886,000, the largest in the history of the Railway. This must be regarded as extremely satisfactory in view of the fact that the wage increase for the current year will amount to $200,000. Hon. George P. Graham will enter upon his administration of the people's railway under promising auspices and if Hon. Mr. Pugsley's proposal to extend the railway to Georgian Bay is carried out, the railway stands to improve in usefulness.

The G. N. W. telegraph in Toronto, who have been on strike, held a meeting on Sunday and decided to again seek employment. They have been, says the Hamilton Times, most unfortunate in being made the victims of fealty to their organization and called out on strike without any grievance of their own. There is a moral hidden away in this matter, which probably some of them will discover, but it is a hard way of gaining knowledge. The one thing to be said for these operators is that they conducted themselves commendably while off work.

The Canadian manufacturers object to a single dollar of goods being imported from abroad, that is such goods as can be produced in Canada, but there must be no competition with domestic products, if a duty is high as Haman's gallows will kill it. But the Association is in favour of having as many skilled workmen imported as suit their convenience. The goods of the manufacturer must be under the shelter of protection, but there must be free trade and full competition in the labour market. Their position is logical. The manufacturers must have all the help an exclusive tariff will give, but the labour market must be "beared" in order that goods may be produced as cheaply as possible—double profit.

It is stated that the license holders of the province are combining to resist the wave of local option sweeping over the country. It may be rather late in the day to make effective resistance. Though the Whitney Government in the three-fifths clause has put a powerful weapon into the hands of license holders, yet, from the point of interest of the latter, the mischief has long been done. If, in the past, the license holders had, as a body, conformed to our excellent license law, had obeyed its provisions, the demand for prohibitory measures, with all their limitations of effectiveness, would not have been so vigourously pressed. The violation of the law by a considerable proportion of the license holders has given the local optionists an excuse for energetic activity.

UNDERGROUND WIRES

Hamilton Times.

The ever-present danger of overhead live wires is brought forcibly home to us by the frequent reports of death and injury caused by them. The Dundas fatality is a case near home, and that such are not more common in other communities, seems to be almost providential when we consider the frequent breakages of wires carrying a heavy current, and the dangers they entail to the population. Not only does danger ensue from the breaking of wires which may fall on, or be touched by, people using the streets but the crossing of heavily charged wires may lead to disaster, or a deadly current may be conveyed far from the scene of a fallen or crossed wire to do mischief, or, perhaps, cause death.

The day of the overhead electric wire in cities should be nearing a close. It is a peril to life. It involves a disfiguring pole system. It is an obstacle to fire fighting. And it is growing more costly every year to the companies which maintain such systems. By and by all these dangerous live wires will be buried in the cities. Already, in some places the Bell Telephone Company is using the underground system; and, as the years pass, it will be more and more a matter of economy to do so, the safety factor not being considered.

From time to time we have raised the question of the wisdom of the city's adopting a policy of providing conduits for underground services beneath its streets and leasing privileges therein. We are more and more impressed with the advantages such a plan offers. The usual way is to lay a fine pavement, and then next year dig it up to put down a water main, following that up the succeeding year with a sewer or a gas main, or something of the sort, and then each year afterwards dig into it here and there to make connections with properties abutting the street. Why should not the city in improving a street suitable for the purpose, provide for all underground work before a stone is laid on it? Why could the suggested conduits not be provided, with convenient means of access, before the paving is done, and thus render the breaking up of the streets unnecessary? They would cost money, but they would also be a source of revenue, as well as a protection to the streets. The city could then reasonably proceed to make the wire and pole owning concerns use the underground conduits, and could levy a fair charge for the use of the same. It is not assuming too much to suppose that the advantages of these conduits would strongly appeal to the electric companies, and that enough to cover interest on the capital cost, and a small sinking fund would be realized. Cedar poles and their handling and erection have become costly, and they are not getting cheaper; besides which they involve much labour and danger.

If such an arrangement could be made, the result would be good for all. The hideous poles would largely, if not altogether disappear from conduit-laid streets; the dangerous over head wires with their constant menace to life and property, and their obstacle to fire fighting, would be taken down and placed below ground; the companies owning them would enjoy immunity from many of the annoyances and expenses incident to the overhead system, and their customers would have greater safety. The city would own its own streets, and lease privileges under certain conditions, which would protect the public interests. It is well worth thinking about.

GET WHAT YOU WANT

The "Just As Good Kind" Never Pays

If there is one thing more than another that should aggravate a self-respecting person, it is to be told that the article they ask for at their druggist's is not to be had, but that they can have something "just as good, or better." The principal reason for such attempts at substitution is either the desire of the storekeeper to sell something on which he can make more money, or he hasn't the goods asked for, and wants to make a sale of something in its place.

Every reader of this paper should bear in mind when asking for Vinol, the modern cod liver oil preparation, that it is for sale in Peterborough at our store only, and that it can always be had when asked for.

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, and body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for Chronic Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unexcelled.

No one wants an old-fashioned cod liver oil preparation or emulsion after once tasting delicious Vinol. Try it. If it fails to benefit we will return your money. McDermid & Jary, Druggists, Peterborough. Also The Market Drug Store.

TO EXTEND CANAL TO MUSKOKA

An Enterprising Orillia Man Proposes An Important Enlargement of The Scope Of The Trent Valley Canal

WOULD IT BE FEASIBLE?

The Orillia Packet says: A shrewd townsman makes a suggestion which is worth consideration. It is that a survey should be made to ascertain whether it would be practicable to connect the Muskoka Lakes with the Trent Valley Canal System, by way of Morrison and Leg Lakes. There is a portage route across from the Severn River at this point, well known to the canoeists of the district. The beds of two creeks and the two lakes would reduce the actual cutting required to a comparatively small distance. A canal would give water communication with the outside world to the whole Muskoka region, with its hundreds of miles of shore line and very considerable population. The towns of Gravenhurst and Bracebridge would be particularly benefited. On its face, this project seems to offer prospect of being of more real value than the work now under construction between Lake Simcoe and Newmarket. The possibility of extending the usefulness of the Trent Valley waterway into the Muskoka Lakes system forms an added argument in favour of the adoption of the Severn River route.

Schedule Was Revised; Victoria's Here October 26

Cameron and Gillespie Refused Permission to Play With Dundas---Argos and Tigers Thrown Out of The Senior Last Night

At the meeting of the O.R.F.U., executive held last night in Toronto, the schedule for the senior series was drawn up. There will be four clubs in the series divided into two districts. The schedule for the westerns, which is composed of Victoria and Peterborough is as follows:

Victorias at Peterborough, Oct. 12.
Peterboroughs at Victorias, Oct. 26.

Games are to count, and in the event of the series resulting in a tie, a third game will be played at Lindsay on Thanksgiving Day. The winner will then play off with the winners of the eastern district, either Kingston or Westmount.

The Argos. II., and Tigers II., were refused admittance to the senior series. The Argos will drop back to the intermediate and the Tigers will probably drop out.

Dundas applied for permits for Bert Cameron and Alex. Gillespie of Peterborough, but were refused, neither being eligible under the residence rule.

WORLD'S RECORD GONE? NOT YET

Waddell Credited With Running 2 Miles in 8 Minutes and 33 Seconds

Two miles in 8 minutes and 33 seconds!

Such was the announcement of the timers at the two mile race at the Keene Fair yesterday, which was run by Waddell, the Westwood runner. Of course some mistake must have been made, either in the distance or in the time. Shrubb's world's record for the distance is 9.35, and it is an utter impossibility that this should have been beaten, on a heavy uneven track by a green runner. Waddell, however, ran a good as it was reported to be.

KNIGHTS WON THE 45'S GAME

Defeated The T. A. S. By Six Games Last Evening

The Knights of Columbus and the T.A.S., played the first of a series of "forty-five" games in the T.A.S. rooms, and the Knights were successful in defeating their opponents by 6 games. Thirty players took part in the game which was decidedly interesting. The return game will be played in a few days in the rooms of the Knights of Columbus, and the total Abstainers promise to turn the tables on their opponents. The games promise to be even more enjoyable than those held last season.

Larger Crowds Than Ever At Annual Keene Exhtbition

The Village Thronged With Visitors During the Day to Attend The Fair—Entry List About Same as Last Year—Receipts Were in Excess

WAS AN IDEAL AUTUMN DAY

With 2,500 people at the Agricultural Grounds the Otonabee Exhibition held at Keene yesterday was, in almost every particular, the most successful that the village has ever witnessed. The directors are surely the favoured darlings of the gods who have all power over the weather, for more ideal day could scarcely have been chosen, and to this fact the success of the fair is in a great measure due. The village was thronged with people from the surrounding countryside almost everyone of whom passed through the entrance gates to the Exhibition Grounds. The attendance was much larger than that of last year and a conservative estimate was placed at 2,500. At any rate the total receipts were in excess, by a little over fifty dollars. Last year $301.40 was received and this year the amount was $352.49.

The steamer Rainbow left Birdsall's wharf and called at the various points on the lake bringing over 300 passengers who remained until evening. The Monarch had also a large number form Gore's Landing. Peterborough visitors were frequently seen among the crowd and Hastings and Norwood were also fairly well represented. The Victoria House had an unusually busy day with the great number of guests for dinner and supper, and Mine Host Kennedy was there with a friendly greeting and his glad smile. A restaurant under the management of Mr. MacFarlane had a heavy run of people for their meals and most of the private dwellings had a few extra chairs. On the whole, the crowd was a merry one, the people taking advantage of the splendid weather for a day's outing.

Entries Were Good

In the Exhibition hall there was an excellent showing of Canadian farm products the pride of this season's harvest. The fair lands of Otonabee are second to none in this country in fertility and the yield is equal to any in the country. The Keene fair has a standing reputation for the quality and quantity of its exhibits and this year was no exception. However, there was no appreciable increase in the number of the exhibits on account of several exhibitors not sending in their goods. The secretary, Mr. A. Shearer had a big bunch of entry tickets which for some reason were not utilized by the intended exhibitors. As it was the people may well feel proud of the creditable display that attracted general attention on the Exhibition hall.

Midway Was Euchred

Strange to say the directors of the fair do not sanction the people's favourite and a drawing card that never fails, namely the midway. They refused six or seven men who intended to have stands on the grounds and thus robbed themselves of the extra profit. The "banksors" undaunted plied their wares on the streets where they attracted the young people in groups. General opinion was passed on the grounds that there would be more interest in the fair if side attractions were encouraged and several of the directors expressing their views said that they favoured some of the stands that are usually seen at a country fair and hoped that there would be no objections in the future. There were several refreshment booths which enjoyed a heavy demand for their tempting dainties.

Messrs. Lang & Maher had the following representatives of their Peterborough store present: Messrs. Jas. Lang, Geo. Wesley and S. Hosley. Mr. Conway, of Grafton & Co., with a staff o fmen looked after the interests of his firm. Mr. Chas MaDonnell, of Downard's Corners, was also present with fanning mills on exhibit.

The officers who had the management of the fair this year in their hands are as follows:—

The Various Entries

The exhibit of horses this year was really first class, and some fine specimens of farm horses for light and heavy purposes were shown. In this connection it was suggested by a number of the exhibitors that another class be formed for horses that come between the heavy and light classes. The mares that do not qualify for weight in the heavy class but fail by only a narrow margin, are placed in the light class, which is not fair to the general light class horses. The following were the entries in some of the lines.

Wm. Kemp, Keene; Adam Humphries, Hastings; Wm. Forsythe, Westwood; Roland Weir, Keene; Jos. Steele, Villiers; Gilbert Howson, Keene; J Hope, Lang; Louis Roach, John Taylor, Keene; Jas. Scriver, Keene.

Trials of Speed

The race track was the centre of interest while several races were being pulled off. The entries for these events were good but owing to the proximity of the Keene and Millbrook fairs, the most of the local horses were not present, having gone to Millbrook for to-day.

In providing for a general interesting day the directors should see that the two exhibitions do not come close together in the future if possible for the entries to the races would be much larger and even faster time made than yesterday.

The summary is as follows:—

Free for all:

Black Cloud, Kelly, Peterborough	1	1	1
Peggy, G. Lapsett, Peterborough	2	2	2
City Girl, Shearer, Peterborough	3	3	3

Green race:

Jessie Banks, A Elmhirst, Keene	1	1	1
Charlie Mac., J. Elmhirst, Keene	2	2	2
Minnie S., Mr. Squire, Lang.	3	3	3

The judges did their work well and kept the crowd entertained while the races were being run.

Foot Race

A foot race around the track for two miles brought out a new man in Thomas Waddell, of Westwood, who made a splendid showing in practically his first race. There were entered, John Bennett, Peterborough; Thos. Waddell, Westwood; Peter Newton and Danny Muskrat. Waddell finished first with Bennett in second place, and Newton third. Muskrat was an "also ran." The time was 8 min. 33 sec. Waddell beat Bennett who made good time in the five mile race which he won at the Lindsay Fair. He ran in ordinary clothes and lacrosse shoes and finished fresh and strong. Bennett said the race was not long enough but Waddell is a good one, and may be heard from again. His prize was a Panama hat valued at $2.00, and Bennett's was a bottle of perfume, valued at $1.00, both presented by Mr. C. B. Routley.

AN ONTARIO TREE THAT IS UNEXCELLED

Citizen Sells That Over 150 Bushels of Apples is it's Production

Frequenters of the market have usually a fresh subject for discussion or conversation each morning in the clerk's office. This morning the talk was centred upon the productions of extraordinary apple trees, and, if the statements are correct, Ontario has some novelties in this respect.

Mr. W. A. Stabler remarked that some years ago a farmer on the Chemong road picked nine barrels of apples from a tree, after many had already fallen off.

Mr. Jas. Brown knew of a tree from which 30 bushels were pulled once upon a time, but Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle told of a tree that had all records broken. Recently he was on a visit with some friends up west, at Tecumseh, and noticing an extra large apple tree in the orchard, inquired about its production. He was informed that this year there was no fruit of any account on it, but that last year the production was exceptionally large.

"How many apples do you think were on that tree last year?" he was asked.

Mr. McIlmoyle guessed about 30 bushels, but was told that a 60-bushel wagon box was twice filled and drawn away, and that there must have been thirty or more bushels left on the ground. This was conceded to be the best tree in Ontario by the market frequenters, and here the conversation dropped.

BLUE DEVILS

Get Rid of Indigestion and Things Will Look Bright and Joyous

Everything looks gloomy and dark to the person suffering with indigestion.

Until the prescription known as Mi-o-na stomach tablets was put up in popular form as a safe and effective cure for sick headache, indigestion and stomach troubles, the "blue devils" made everything look dark, gloomy and depressing.

After a few days use of Mi-o-na the sick headache, dizzy feeling, nausea, bad taste in the mouth, distress after eating—all these are symptoms of a weak stomach — will disappear, and with perfect digestion there will be a joyous and beautiful outlook.

Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets are sold only in a neat metal box convenient for the vest pocket and cost 50 cts. Mr. Madill has seen so may cures made by Mi-o-na Stomach Tablets, that he gives a guarantee with every box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

HAS MADE IT'S PEACE WITH THE LAW

Ontario Coal Sign Will Now be Good After Running The Inspection Gauntlet

The case against the Ontario Coal Company re its up-town sign was finally disposed of this morning. The company had men make all the restrictions demanded by law, and now the sign is within the proper height from the sidewalk, and does not extend over the pavement more than 18 inches, besides which the approval of the City Engineer has been favourable, and now the sign complies in every respect with the law. The case was dismissed, and a few of the other offending signs will be inspected.

PROTESTANT HOME'S MEETING

The Annual Gathering for Reception of Reports and Election of Officers Will Be Held on Tuesday

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Protestant Home will be held next Tuesday, October 8, at 3.30 p.m., in the Home, Stewart street. The members of the Board earnestly invite all who feel any interest in this charitable work for the aged to attend this meeting, at which reports of the work of the past year, the present condition of the Home and plans for the work will be discussed. This is the only institution the city has for the care of the aged poor of the Protestant religion, and the work is one which should enlist the sympathy of a much larger number of ladies than the few who have in the past taken an interest in the work. The membership of the Board is not in any way restricted, and the present members would be glad to have the co-operation of members of all the Protestant churches.

REVIEW HAPPENINGS IN ASTRONOMY

Opening Meeting of Royal Astronomical Society to be Held at Residence of Rev. Dr. Ward

The opening meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Royal Astronomical Society will be held on Thursday, October 17th, at the manse, Springville, when the president of the Society, Rev. Dr. Marsh, will entertain the members. The telescopes will be available for the use of the members, and a review of the astronomical happenings of the past year will be given, illustrated, wherever possible, by limelight views. All the members of the society here are invited to this meeting which gives promise of being of more than usual interest.

Early this morning Henry John, the six months old son of Mr. Jas. Foster, 585 Aylmer street, passed away after an illness of three weeks, from acute indigestion. The family is but recently from England, where the deceased was born. The funeral was held this afternoon from the family residence to the Little Lake cemetery.

TONGUE TORN OUT BY ASSASSIN

Brings in Italy Wreck—Vengeance on Sicilian Lad

Examiner Special.

Rome, Oct. 5.—A special Sicilian secret service detective is on the track of the perpetrators of a series of diabolical murders, which fairly outdo those of the Mafia, whose workings Prof. Lombroso recently exposed in The World. They have caught five Mafiaists who had just executed a blood-curdling vendetta on a boy, Antonia Loparda, at Radicena.

The lad of seventeen, whose father is working in the United States, was suspected of betraying to the police their whereabouts of a notorious secret society assassin. Antonio was waylaid, hurried to the forest and his tongue torn from his mouth and carved in four pieces, which were pinned to his breast. Before the avengers abandoned their youthful victim they drove a stiletto through his heart. They pierced the body with sixty-seven dagger wounds.

AMERICANS' COMPLAINT AT CUSTOMS

Claim That Chicago Papers Are Held in Customs Office Until They Are Too Old

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Would you please give us a small space in your valuable paper to say a few words. We are Americans from Chicago and there are several of us here employed in the C. G. E. Works. As is only natural we like to hear the news from home and we requested a local newsdealer here to try and get us a Chicago daily paper. Through his kindness we have been receiving the Chicago Daily Examiner, but for the last few days we have been unable to get them, as the newsdealer has informed us they have been held up by the customs officer here, who has refused to allow the expressman to deliver them. If you call this a free country, where a person cannot get a paper to read from his own home on account of a lot of red tape. We would like to know. We are

The First Night Reports Indicate Good Progress In Six Days' Campaign

An Enthusiastic Gathering Held Last Night in Y.M.C.A. When Work of Raising $1800 Was Discussed

MR. ROGER TO ENTERTAIN

The Six Day Campaign in connection with the Y. M. C. A. is now in full swing, and the thermometer of enthusiasm rises hour by hour. The Citizen's Committee and Young Men's and Boys' Committees are getting down to the good solid hard work that will surely bring victory. Nothing can, however, be taken for granted and everybody will have to push hard if the $1,800 in subscriptions, and the $500 in memberships are to be secured by 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening next, when the campaign must close.

The directors were never more active and they are infusing this spirit abroad throughout the city.

The young men are going to give a good account of themselves to-night and before the finish of the campaign.

The young men met last evening and outlined their plans for to-day and to-night. They will occupy one table at the tea to-night so as to get down to business after the bill of fare has been disposed of.

If business will permit Mayor McWilliams will be a guest at the committee tea this evening and meet with the young men. The citizens' committee will also meet at the same time—six-thirty sharp.

Prominent captains of industry of the city have received special invitations for to-night.

Chairman Shook said last night: "Everywhere we go we find the most friendly feeling manifested towards the work." He has faith in the liberality of the citizens to meet the present emergency.

The score reported last night does not fully represent the work done yesterday, but we give it.

The Citizens' Committee report pledges and cash, $131.00; Young Men and Boys' Committee, pledges and cash, $75.00; total, $206.00.

Every member of the committees should be present to-night at 6.30 o'clock sharp.

Echoes of the Campaign

Only three days to complete the campaign.

Only subscriptions payable now or before Dec. 31st, 1907, will count in this campaign.

This campaign will be a fitting farewell to the retiring general secretary.

Other cities have had their campaigns but Peterborough will surely break all records.

The Peterborough Y. M. C. A. building fund work has been a model for the smaller city and town associations throughout Canada.

Building movements in other cities have been traced to this.

Let us show them how we can conduct a short date campaign without any outside organizer.

READ A PAPER ON HOME NURSING

Was Prepared by Dr. Greer for Young Ladies Connected With Y.W.C.A.

The class in home nursing in connection with the Y.W.C.A., which met last night was well attended. Unfortunately Dr. Greer, who was to have given a lecture on nursing to the young ladies, was called away just prior to the time of the meeting and his paper was read by Miss Manyeord, the General Secretary. The paper was most intructive and was thoroughly enjoyed. Next Thursday night the subject of bandaging will bet aken up.

SHOWS VIEWS 28 NIGHTS IN SUCCESSION

Mr. Jas. Stubbs Returns From Tour Through Neighboring Counties

Mr. Jas. Stubbs ha just returned from a tour through the counties of Victoria and Haliburton, where for 28 nights in succesion he showed his [illegible] views. He reports having had a successful journey and is more convinced than ever that it pays to give high moral moving pictures to the public. In Bobcaygeon he showed to a very large audience although only a short notice was given.

Next week Mr. Stubbs leaves the city again for Woodville, Orillia and other towns of the Midland district where he will continue the presentation of his view.

THEY WILL STUDY THE LESSON

First Fall Meeting of the Sunday School Association Will be Held To-night

To-night in the Y.M.C.A. Hall the Sabbath School Teachers' Association will meet for the study of the lesson. To-night Rev. H. J. Keith will be in the chair and the lesson will be taught by Sheriff Hall. A full attendance of teachers and others interested in the Sunday School lessons is invited.

REGIMENTAL BAND GOES TO MILLBROOK

Many From Peterborough in Attendance —Fair Promises to be Success

To is Millbrook Fair Day, and one that is very apt to make it successful, contrary to the outlook at 8 o'clock this morning. Many from Peterborough and the surrounding townships left to attend it, including fifteen members of the 57th Band. Every indication pointed to a good Fair, as Millbrook's usually is, and the directors are expecting a good surplus.

LAKEHURST FAIR BEING HELD TO-DAY

A Number From Peterborough Are in Attendance—Fair a Success

The Lakehurst Fair, which attracts all the Harvey township residents, is being held to-day, and is reported to again be a good success. Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, who acts as a judge on live stock, accompanied by Messrs. W. Hazzlns and G. Hardell, drove out from the city to attend it.

EQUIPMENT IS IN GOOD SHAPE

Capt. Kirtland Inspected Equipment of 24th Battery This Morning

To-day Captain Kirtland, attached to B Battery, Stanley Barracks, Toronto, is in the city inspecting the equipment of the 24th Field Battery. He was accompanied by the gun-master, and this morning a thorough inspection was made, and everything was found to be in first-class condition. The uniforms were not inspected by Capt. Kirtland, his duties being to attend to the equipment, and Col. Young, the D.O.C. will be here in a short time for the purpose of inspecting the uniforms. In view of this fact, members of the battery are reminded that they are required to turn in any uniforms held by them before next week.

WAS PRESENTED WITH A PURSE

Mr. J. C. Hamilton Honoured by Members of Queen Alexandra Court A.O.F.

About twenty-five members of Queen Alexandra Circle, A. O. F., gathered at the residence of Companions Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hamilton last evening, where several hours were spent in games, etc. During the evening light refreshments were served and Bro. Hamilton was presented with a purse as a slight token of his services as District Chief Companion for the past two years.

The address was as follows:

To Bro. J. C. Hamilton.

We, the officers and members of Court Queen Alexandra Circle, A. O. F., desire to express our good feelers and respect to you on your return from the office of District Chief Companion, which you have held for the past two years. During that time you have displayed considerable energy and done some faithful work for the good of the Circle. Although you retire from active service as an officer, we hope you will still contrive to take as deep an interest in the Circle as in the past. We wish to present you with this small token of esteem, hoping that it will always remind you of the good feeling that exists between yourself and the Circle.

Signed on betalf of the Circle,
MRS. WM. STEVENS.
MRS. W. HEAD.
MRS. S. ADLAM.
MRS. J. SCOTT.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton for their hospitality and kindness in inviting the members of the Circle to their home. At a late hour all returned to their respective homes, after spending a very enjoyable evening.

LEAVE TO-DAY FOR LAKE KETCHECUM

Remainder of Club Go Next Week in Search of the Black Bass

To-day Mr. G. W. Ferguson and a companion left for the fishing waters of the north of Peterborough county. They are the first section of the Lake Ketchecum Fishing Club and will navigate Ketecheum Lake in search of the finny tribe. The remainder will go next week, some to Ketecheum and others to Jack's Lake.

Some Results of Torpid Liver

Headache bad taste in the mouth, idigestion, feelings of fulness and discomfort, constipation, backache, kidney derangements and bodily pains, are some results of a torpid liver. By their extraordinary influence on the liver, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively remove the cause of these ailments and disorders.

Music and Drama

GUY BROS. MINSTRELS

The old favourite entertainers, the Guy Brothers, were the attraction at the Grand last night, and were greeted by a large audience, which apparently enjoyed every moment of the performance. The entertainment was fully up to the standard established by the minstrels in the past, the first part being especially good. Harry Prince's singing of "Some Day When Dreams Come True," Mr. Morris' bass solo, "Davy Jones' Locker," and the comic song, "Up in the Lemon Tree," by Edwin Guy, were the hits. The olio contained a number of clever features, the buck and wing dancing bringing down the house.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE CROWN HOTEL

New Door Cut Leading Out To Water Street—More Room Behind Bar

A number of improvements are being made at the Crown Hotel chiefly in connection with the bar. The door leading to Water street has been bricked in and a smaller one cut to the north of it. The bar itself has been moved out making more room behind it. Mr. Clarke has other alterations in view which will be concluded in a week or two.

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint and consequent biliousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 8th, 1907.

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I shewed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 235 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

Fields of Grain Prostrate With Premature Fall of Snow

Mr. Wm. Cooney Returns From Edmonton Where He Was Visiting For Two Months—Pleased With The Country

CROPS PARTLY INJURED

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cooney, Stewart street, have just returned from a two months' visit in the Northwest, where they saw most of the larger towns and cities and spent a pleasant holiday with their sons in Edmonton. They left Peterborough on August 13 and went direct to the capital city of Alberta. On their return they made frequent stops in order to see the new country and obtain a clear idea of the conditions there. Mr. Cooney speaks very highly of Edmonton and thinks that it is perhaps the finest city of those to visited. He saw many Peterborough friends, among them Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fife, of the Edmonton High School staff, and formerly of Peterborough. Mr. Fife is doing very well in the new country. He has just moved into a large house which he has lately completed building, and it is one of the finest in the city.

Severe Frost

On Monday, August 19, Mr. Cooney and his wife arrived at Edmonton, and on that day a severe frost was experienced throughout the surrounding country, and he himself saw ice formed on water as a result. Potato stalks were blackened and the standing crops were nipped. In the city on September 16 a light fall of snow was noticed for the first time this year, but it turned to rain and did not affect the crops in the least. It was reported that in the previous week six inches of snow had fallen near Calgary and the crops greatly damaged. However, on the return trip from Edmonton to Calgary Mr. Cooney saw from the windows of the coach fields of grain prostrate under the snow. The crops were flat on the ground for miles and most of them were ruined.

An Unusual Summer

Old settlers state that the past summer has been altogether out of the ordinary, being cold and wet in spells, while before, such conditions were not experienced until late in the year. The autumn season has been one of the worst so far that they have experienced. The crops were excellent and promised a heavy yield, but the untimely frosts have done much harm. As it is some of the fields will never be cut, being worthless. The grain that was first injured by the frost, is known as "frozen wheat," so Mr. Cooney states, and is selling at 59 3-4 cents per bushel, while last year the best grain sold for 65 cents a bushel. Many of the farmers still have a good supply of last year's grain in their granaries, and are keeping it, expecting the price to soar still higher. Between Edmonton and Brandon Mr. Cooney saw only one threshing outfit, while in the Manitoba district the grain has been good, and has been harvested and stored away.

Prices are High

The prices in general are high, although in some lines they are lower than here. Butter sells at 22 cents, but eggs retail at 30 cents a dozen. The vegetable yield has been heavy, and some of the best products of the soil, Mr. Cooney believes, are cultivated around Edmonton. A six-roomed house rents for $45 a month and are very scarce at that. Corporation labourers receive $2.50 a day and other mechanics receive a proportionately high wage.

The Immigrants

Mr. Cooney states that there are many immigrants arriving in Edmonton. When they arrive they go to the Immigration Hall, where they are given tents, and these form their homes until they can obtain better. It is said that there are six thousand people under tents around Edmonton, but the number can scarcely be that large. Mr. Cooney saw acres of land, thinly wooded with poplar and willows and here were hundreds of tents pitched and the people living in them. Many immigrants were noticed on the streets, the people either having no work, or being unwilling to take up the western toil.

Large Packing House

A new packing house is being built by the Swift Packing Company, some three miles from Edmonton. When finished it will be one of the largest in the Dominion, and will be modernly equipped throughout. Water works and sewers will be laid a distance of three miles from the city to the new packing house. Mr. Cooney was greatly impressed with the country, and although he did not express himself on the conditions this winter, he says that next spring and summer there should be another great boom.

Explorer Peary And His Long Journey to The Far North

Some of The Results of the Persistent Work of American Arctic Explorer Who Penetrated Frozen Regions

THE "ROOSEVELTS" TRIP

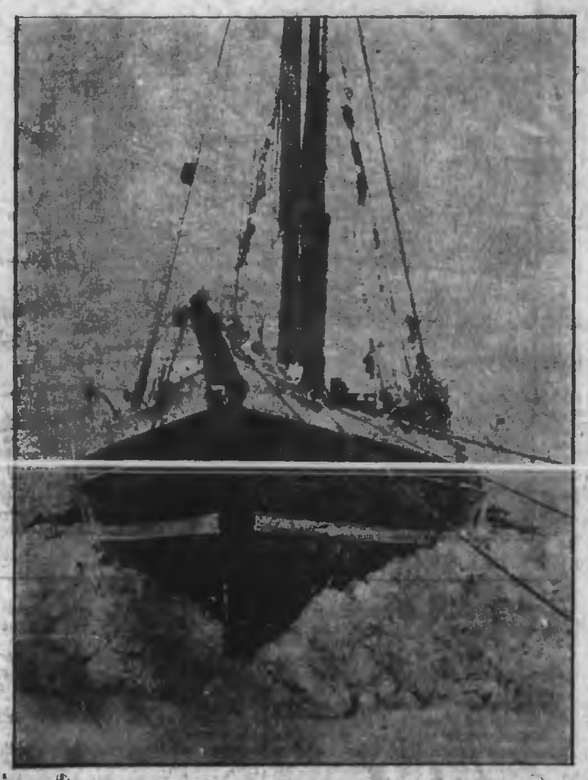
Lieut. Peary Gives Some of The Details of His Trip in Search Of The Elusive North Pole, For The United States

As all the world knows, Commander R E Peary, U.S. N., is engaged in the preparation of still another Arctic expedition, to be commanded by him, and which will start early next spring. His latest work on this fascinating subject, entitled, "Nearest the Pole," which was published some months back, by Doubleday, Page & Company, New York, will, consequently be read with renewed interest. It is a bulky volume of close on 40 0pages, profusely illustrated with unique photographs. The book is a narrative of the polar expedition of the Peary Arctic Club in the Ss. Roosevelt, 1905-1906. In his address at the annual banquet of the National Geographic Society, in December, of last year, the intrepid explorer expressed the opinion that had the winter been a normal season he would have won the prize on his last expedition. The whole world, putting aside small national jealousies, will wish Peary the best of luck on his coming expedition.

Dipping haphazard into "Nearest the Pole," the following extracts will be perused with interest :—

Of the Man: This is what President Roosevelt said of him when the Hubbard Medal of the National Geographical Society was presented at a memorable banquet :

You, the man whom we join to honour to-night, you, who for month in and month out, year in and year out, had to face perils and overcome the greatest risks and difficulties with resting on your shoulders the undivided responsibility which meant life or death to you and your followers—you had to show in addition what the modern commander with his great responsibility does not have to show. You had to show all the moral qualities in war, together with other qualities. You did a great deed, a deed that counted for all mankind, a deed which reflected credit upon you and upon your country; and on behalf of those present, and speaking also for the millions of your countrymen, I take pleasure in handing you this Hubbard medal, and in welcoming you home from the great feat which you have performed, Commander Peary.



The Bow of the "Roosevelt" in Winter Quarters.

Concering the "Roosevelt"

Of the boat itself Commander Peary writes as follows:

The size fixed upon was 184 feet over all by 35 feet beam by 16 feet draft, loaded. (Load water-line 168 feet.) This gives a ship of nearly the same length, but a little greater beam than the English Antarctic ship, Discovery. Her length ratio would be 1:5.26, not quite as fine as the Scotch average, but much finer than the Norwegian or American models.

The model selected for the Roosevelt was intended to meet the requirements of lifting under pressure, of being short enough to handle easily, and of being able to ram a passage through heavy ice effectively and continuously.

Detailed features of these requirements are as follows:

For lifting under pressure, steel-sheathed sides, sloping bilges, flat floor to prevent heeling when lifted, flush stem and keel, aking stern (this is a new feature.) For forcing a way though loose ice, sharp wedge bow, and full counter to keep ice from propeller. For ramming ice; a sharp raking stem, steel-sheathed.

The Roosevelt had engines capable of developing one thousand horse-power. They were of the inverted, compound tupe, driving a single eleven-foot propeller, and steam was supplied by two water-tube boilers and one Scotch boiler. Her sail plan is a light, American, three-masted schooner rig, possessing the advantage of light weight (it is to be remembered that every pound of weight saved in igging or fitting means a pound of coal in the hold,) and small surface to be forced through a head wind; yet sufficient to materially help the engines in a favouring wind, and to enable the ship to make her way home should her coal be exhausted.

To Resist Pressure

As to construction: The strength of the hull must be such that it will resist the terrific pressure of the ice-floes, and keep its shape intact until the lifting of the ship bodily releases the pressure; such that if supported at each end only, or in the middle only, or thrown up on the ice and resting upon her bilge, during the paroxysms of the floes, she will not be strained or injured, and such that she can ram the ice by the hour when necessary, without injury to seams or fastenings.

A chapter which gives a picturesque insight into life in the Arctic Circle is one under the caption, "Through the 'Great Night,' on the Shores of the Central Polar Seas."

The winter, which for convenience, I assume to comprise the time from November 1st to February 7th, the date of the return of the last of the field parties, was marked by practically the same ice and atmospheric conditions as the fall, accompanied of course, by a greater degree of cold and almost entire absence of light.

Ship's Salient Feature

Through all the vicissitudes and against continued stress of wind and ice ,the Roosevelt clung to her moorings against the ice-foot, presenting a marked contrast to the usual pictures of Arctic ships in winter quarters. Having no topmasts to house the ship's slender masts and light but effective rigging rose aloft just as they did in the summer time. With decks uncovered and only the houses banked in with snow at a little distance in the dim light ,the ship's general appearance was much as when afloat. One very distinctive and very salient feature, was the galley lamp, the eye of the "Roosevelt," as it was called, which night and day from early October, when the sun left us, until early March when it returned, shone through the main deck, and piercing the darkness, the falling snow, the ice for a considerable distance on either side. This beam of yellow light showed clearly from the top of the lookout hill which some of us climbed every practicable day, and was visible to every returning party from Heela, or the hunting fields of the interior as soon as it rounded Cape Sheridan.

To anyone given to a belief in such things there were several encouraging omens about the ship's position. The Roosevelt's nose pointed persistently almost true north, the bright, yellow eye looked incessantly to the northward, and the beaten sledge road from the ship to all points of communication led north along the ice-foot.

Ice Ever Moving

The southerly gales continued to occur with frequency, and increased in violence as we neared the depth of winter. The movement of the ice was nearly continuous, becoming very pronounced on each spring tide, and the roaring of the pack on these occasions grew louder and more vicious as the newly forming ice grew in thickness and hardness.

This movement of the ice culminated on Christmas night in the breaking away of the ice from the ice-foot and the starboard side of the Roosevelt, and, so far as could be determined in the darkness, the complete disruption of the pack adjacent to the shore and in the mouth of Robeson Channel. This disruption probably covered the entire segment of Lincoln Sea, from Cape Joseph Henry to Cape Bryant, and probably beyond.

Open water in the shape sometimes of leads, sometimes of lakes, was almost of almost continuous occurrence.

Repeated pressures were experienced by the Roosevelt, none of them very serious, but sufficient to keep us on the qui vive all the time. The snow upon the land and upon the ice-foot, which at first necessitated the use of snow shoes, eventually became packed by the recurring wind until it could support the weight of a man. Nearly all conditions were almost entirely the reverse of those experienced by the British expedition in the same region thirty years previously. The winter moons in this high latitude, were of long duration and of great brilliancy, unless obscured by bad weather.

Absence of Monotony

The usual monotony of an Arctic winter was entirely destroyed for us (outside of the continuous excitement which the movement of te ice afforded us) by the extensive widening of our horizon as a result of my settlements in the interior. The largest of these was located upon the southern slopes of the United States Range, north of Lake Hazen; another near the head of Lake Hazen; a third at the Ruggles River, with inter-

From these settlements at the beginning of each moon sledges came in, bringing loads of musk-ox meat and news of the hunt during the preceding weeks. These sledges remained a few days at the ship, then outfitted again and went back with new instalments of Eskimo families to spend the interval until the next moon in the interior. As a result of this there was constantly something to talk of and something to look forward to.

Preparations for the spring sledge journey were carried on continuously, more sledges were built, and tents, harnesses, traces and fur clothing made; and Eskimo women in all work demanding sewing proving themselves invaluable. Pemmican was taken from the cases, canvassed in packages convenient for handling and stowing upon the sledges, and numbered under the supervision of Mr. Bartlett, the mate. My own time was fully occupied in planning and supervision and in devising some new methods and items of equipment.

Personally, I have never spent a winter in the Arctic regions so free from petty annoyances and discomforts, both physical and mental. The members of the party were congenial, cheerful, energetic, and interested in the work. The ship's people were interested and willing, and the atmosphere of the ship lacked entirely the element of friction which is so often an extremely disagreeable feature of Arctic winter life.

Captain Bartlett relieved me of all detailed care of the ship, receiving and carrying out my general suggestions with great energy and intelligence. I felt that the physical well-being of the party was safe in the hands of Dr. Wolf, and Marvin re-

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, attributes a great deal of his success to the following simple vegetable prescription:—

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Salatone;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, shake well, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Your druggist can supply the ingredients, and the mixture can be prepared at home at very little expense.

This, the doctor says, acts directly on the kidneys, assisting them to filter the poisons from the blood and expel same in the urine, at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy, normal action.

We feel that a great many readers will be pleased to learn of this simple prescription, and knowing the ability of the physician whose formula it is, we do not hesitate to recommend it to any sufferer.

DO NOT TREAT SYMPTOMS, GET AT THE CAUSE.

Indigestion, dyspepsia, and biliousness surely indicate that there is something wrong with the liver, kidneys and bowels. So-called cures for indigestion do not go to the root of the matter. Remove the cause and the symptoms will disappear. King Palmetto Compound succeeds where everything else fails, because it acts directly on the kidneys, liver and nerves. You are not asked to take these statements on faith. Look at the formula, we print it on the wrapper, and explain it fully in our printed matter, which goes with every bottle. If you are not acquainted with the action of the drugs of which it is composed, ask your physician. He will tell you that Saw Palmetto has wonderful efficacy in regulating the kidneys and that Cascara Sagrada is the best tonic and stimulant for the bowels known to medical science. These are only two of the constituents of King Palmetto Compound, the rest have equal merit. It is not a cure-all, but it will prevent the development of incurable diseases. It will not only relieve, but permanently remove the cause of constipation, that foe of health which is responsible for more than half the diseases that afflict the human race. Is your digestion imperfect? Are your bowels irregular? Are you bilious? If so, now is the time to act. Send for a free sample bottle of King Palmetto Compound to-day. Address King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ontario. This medicine is made upon honor and sold upon merit. One dose a day will meet your needs.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

"It is a little early to swear over the matter," Mayenne said, "since mademoiselle is not your wife nor ever likely to become so."

"You refuse her to me?" Lucas cried, livid. I thought he would leap over the table at one bound on Mayenne. It occurred to the duke to take up his dagger.

"I promise her to you when you kill me St. Quentin. And you have not killed me St. Quentin, but instead come airily to tell me the scheme—my scheme—is wrecked. Pardieu! it was never my scheme. I never advocated stolen pistoles and suborned witnesses and angered nephews and deceived sons and the rest of your cumbrous machinery. I would have had you stab him as he bent over his papers and walk out of the house before they discovered him. But you had not the pluck for that; you must needs plot and replot to make some one else do your work. Now, after months of intriguing and waiting, you come to me to tell me you have failed. Morbleu! is there any reason why I should not have you kicked into the gutter as no true son of the valorous Le Balafre?"

Lucas's hand went to his belt again; he made one step as if to come around the table. Mayenne's angry eye was on him, but he did not move; and Lucas made no more steps. Controlling himself with an effort he said:

"It was not my fault, monsieur. No man could have labored harder or planned better than I. I have been diligent, I have been clever. I have made my worst enemy my willing tool—I have made monsieur's own son my cat's-paw. I have left no end loose, no contingency unprovided for—and I am ruined by a freak of fate."

"I never knew a failure yet but what the fault was fate's, Mayenne returned.

"Call it accident, then, call it the devil, call it what you like!" Lucas cried. "I still maintain it was not my fault. Listen, monsieur."

He sat down again and began his story, striving as he talked to reconquer something of his old coolness.

"The thing was ruined by the advent of this boy, Mar's lackey I spoke of. You said he had not been here?"

"You may go to Lorance with that question," Mayenne answered; "I have something else to attend to than the intrigues of my wife's maids."

"He started hither; I thought some one would have the sense to keep him. Mordieu! I will find from Lorance whether she saw him."

He fell silent, gnawing his lip; I could see that his thought had traveled away from the plot to the sore subject of mademoiselle's affections.

"Well," said Mayenne sharply, "what about your boy?"

It was a moment before Lucas answered. When he did he spoke low and hurriedly, so that I could scarce catch the words. I know it was no fear of listeners that kept his voice down—they had shouted at each other as if there was no one within a mile. I guessed that Lucas, for all his bravado, took little pride in his tale, nor felt happy about its reception. I could catch names now and then, monsieur's, M. Etienne's, Grammont's, but the hero of the tale was myself.

"You let him to the duke?" Mayenne cried presently.

At the harsh censure of his voice Lucas's rang out with the old defiance:

"With Vigo at his back, I did. Sangdieu! you have yet to make the acquaintance of St. Quentin's equerry. A regiment of your lansquenets couldn't keep him out."

"Does he never take wine?" Mayenne asked, lifting his hand with shut fingers over the table and then opening them.

"That is easy to say, monsieur, sitting here in your own hotel stuffed with your soldiers. But it was not so easy to do, alone in my enemy's house, when at the least suspicion of me they had broken me on the wheel."

"That is the rub!" Mayenne cried violently. "That is the trouble with all of you. You think more of the safety of your own skins than of accomplishing your work. Mordieu! where should I be to-day—where would the Cause be—if my first care was my own peril?"

"Then that is where we differ, uncle," Lucas answered with a cold sneer. "You are, it is well known, a patriot, toiling for the Church and the King of Spain, with never a thought for the welfare of Charles of Lorraine, Lord of Mayenne. But I, Paul of Lorraine, your humble nephew, lord of my brain and hands, freely admit that I am toiling for no one but the aforesaid Paul of Lorraine. I should find it most inconvenient to get on without a head on my shoulders, and I shall do my best to keep it there."

"You need not tell me that; I know it well enough," Mayenne answered. "You are each for himself, none for me. At the same time Paul, you will do well to remember that your interest is to forward my interest."

"To the full, monsieur. And I shall kill you St. Quentin yet. You need not call me coward; I am working for a dearer stake than any man in your ranks."

"Well," Mayenne rejoined, "get on with your tale."

Lucas went on, Mayenne listening quiety, with no further word of blame. He moved not so much as an eyelid till Lucas told of M. le Duc's departure, when he flung himself forward in his chair with a sharp oath.

"What! by daylight?"

"Aye. He was afraid, after this discovery, of being set on at night."

"He went out in broad day?"

"So Vigo said. I saw him not," Lucas answered with something of his old nonchalance.

"Mille tonnerres du diable!" Mayenne shouted. "If this is true, if he got out in broad day, I'll have the head of the traitor that let him. I'll nail it over his own gate."

"It is not worth your fret, monsieur," Lucas said lightly. "If you did how long would it avail? Souvent homme pense that is the only fixed fact about him. If they pass St. Quentin to-day they will pass some one else to-morrow, and some one else still the day after."

Mayenne looked at him, half angry, half startled into some deeper emotion at this deft twisting of his own words.

"Souvent homme trahie.
Mal habile qui s'y fie,"

he repeated musingly. He might been saying over the motto of the house of Lorraine. For the Guises believed in no man's good faith, as no man believed in theirs.

"Souvent homme trahie," Mayenne said again, as if in the words he recognized a bitter verity. "And that is as true as King Francis's version. I suppose you will be the next, Paul."

"When I give up hope of Lorance," Lucas said bluntly.

I caught myself suddenly pitying the two of them: Mayenne, because, for all his power and splendor and rank next to a king's and ability second to none, he dared trust no man—not the son of his body, not his brother. He had made his own hell and dwelt in it, and there was no need to wish him any ill. And Lucas, perjured traitor, was further from the goal of his desire than if we had slain him in the Rue Coupejarrets.

"Diable! Listening?" Cried Lucas.

"What next? It appears you escaped the redoubted Vigo." Mayenne went on in his everyday tone; and the vision faded, and I saw him once more as the greatest noble and greatest scoundrel in France, and feared and hated him, and Lucas too, as the betrayer of my dear lord Etienne.

"Trust me for that."

"Then came you here?"

"Not at once. I tracked Mar and this Broux to Mar's old lodgings at the Three Lanterns. When I had dogged them to the door I came here and worked upon Lorance to write Mar a letter commanding his presence. For I thought that the night was yet young and to-morrow he might be out of my reach. Well, it appears he had not the courage to come, but he sent the boy. I was not sorry. I thought I could settle him more quietly at the inn. The boy went back once and almost ran into me in the court, but he did not see me. I entered and asked for lodgings, but the fat old fool of a host put me through the catechism like an inquisitor, and finally declared the inn was full. I said I would take a garret; but it was no use. Out I must trudge. I did, and paid two men to get into a brawl in front of the house, that the inn people might run out to look. But instead they locked the gate and put up the shutters in the cabaret."

Mayenne burst out laughing.

"It was not your night, Paul."

"No," said Lucas shortly.

"And what then? It did not take you till 3 o'clock to be put out of the inn."

"No," Lucas answered; "I spoke to you of the varlet Pontou with whom Grammont had quarrelled. He had shut him up in a closet of the house in the Rue Coupejarrets. After the fight in the court we all went our ways, forgetting him. So I paid the house a visit; I was afraid some one else might tell tales."

"And will he tell tales?"

"No," said Lucas, "he will tell no tales."

"How about your spy in the Hotel St. Quentin?"

"Martin, the clerk? Oh, I warned him off before I left," Lucas said easily. "He will lie perdu till we want him again. And Grammont, you see, is dead too. There is no direct witness to the thing but the boy Broux."

"That's as good as to say there is none," Mayenne answered, "for I have the boy."

CHAPTER XVI.

Lucas sprang up.

"You have him? Where?"

"Yes, I have him," Mayenne answered with his tantalizing slowness.

"Alive?"

"I suppose so. He had his flogging, but I told them I was not done with him. I thought we might have a use for him. He is in the oratory there."

"Diable! Listening?" cried Lucas, as if a quick doubt of Mayenne's good faith to him struck his mind.

"Certainly not," Mayenne answered. "The door is bolted; he might be in the street for all he can hear. The wall was built for that."

"What will you do with him, monsieur?"

"We'll have him out," said Mayenne. Lucas, needing no second bidding, hastened down the room.

All this while mademoiselle on the floor at my feet, had neither stirred nor whispered, as rigid as the statued Virgin herself. But now she rose and for one moment laid her hand on my shoulder with an encouraging pat; the next she flung the door wide just as Lucas reached the threshold.

He recoiled as from a ghost.

"Lorance!" he gasped, "Lorance'"

"Nom de dieu!" came Mayenne's shout from the back of the room. "What! Lorance!"

He caught up the candelabrum and strode over to us.

Mademoiselle stepped out into the council-room, I banging back on the other side of the sill. She was as white as linen, but she lifted her head proudly. She had not the courage that knows no fear, but she had the courage that rises to the need. Crouching on the oratory floor she had been in a panic lest they find her. But in the moment of discovery she found them unlocked.

"You spying here, Lorance!" Mayenne stormed at her.

"I did not come here to spy, monsieur," she answered. "I was here first, as you see, your presence was as unlooked for by me as mine by you."

His next accusation brought the blood in scarlet flags to her pale cheeks; she made him no answer, but burned him with her indignant eyes.

"Mordieu, monsieur!" Lucas cried. "This is Mlle. de Montluc."

"Then why did you come?" demanded Mayenne.

"Because I had done harm to the lad and was sorry," she said. "You defend me now, Paul, but you did not hesitate to make a tool of me in your cowardly schemes."

"It was kindly meant, mademoiselle," Lucas retorted. "Since I shall kill M. le Comte de Mar in any case I thought it would please you to have a word with him first."

I think it did not need the look she gave him to make him regret the speech. This Lucas was an extraordinary compound of shrewdness and recklessness, one separating from the other like oil and vinegar in a slovenly salad. He could plan and toil and wait, to an end, with skill and fortitude and patience, but he could not govern his own gusty tempers.

"You have been crying, Lorance," Mayenne said in a softer tone.

"For my sins, monsieur," she answered quickly. "I am grieved most bitterly to have been the means of bridging this lad into danger. Since Paul cozened me into doing what I did not understand, and since this is not the man you wanted, but only his servant, will you not let him go free?"

"Why, my pretty Lorance, I did not mean to harm him," Mayenne protested, smiling. "I had him flogged for his insolence to you; I thought you would thank me for it."

"I am never glad over a flogging, monsieur."

"Then why not speak? A word from you and it had stopped."

She flushed red for very shame.

"I was afraid—I knew you vexed with me," she faltered. "Oh, I have done ill!" She turned to me, silently imploring forgiveness. There was no need to ask.

"Then you will let him go, monsieur? Alack that I did not speak before! Thank you, my cousin!"

"Of what did you suspect me? The boy was whipped for a bit of impertinence to you; I had no cause against him."

My heart leaped up; at the same time I scorned myself for a craven that I had been overcome by groundless terror.

"Then I have been a goose so to disturb myself," mademoiselle laughed out in relief. "You do well to rebuke me, cousin. I shall never meddle in your affairs again."

"That will be wise of you," Mayenne returned. "For I did mean to let the boy go. But since you have opened his door and let him hear what he should not, I have no choice but to silence him."

"Monsieur!" she gasped.

"Aye," he said quietly. "I would have let him go. But you have made it impossible."

Never have I seen so piteous a sight as her face of misery. Had my hands been free Mayenne had been startled to find a knife in his heart.

"Never mind, mademoiselle," I cried to her. "You came and wept over me and that is worth dying for."

"Monsieur," she cried, recovering herself after the first instant of consternation, "you are degrading the greatest noble in the land! You, the head of the house of Lorraine, the chief of the League, the commander of the allied armies, debase yourself in stooping to take vengeance on a stable boy."

"It is no question of vengeance; it it a question of safety," he answered impatiently. Yet I marvelled that he answered at all, since absolute power is not obliged to give an account of itself.

"Is your estate, then, so tottering that a stable boy can overturn it? In that case be advised. Go hang yourself, monsieur, while there is yet time."

He flushed with anger, and this time he offered no justification. He advanced on the girl with outstretched hand.

"Mademoiselle, it is not my habit to take advice from the damsels of my household. Nor do I admit them to my council-room. Permit me then to conduct you to the staircase."

She retreated toward the threshold where he stood, still covering me as with a shield.

"Monsieur, you are very cruel to me."

"Your hand, mademoiselle."

She did not yield it to him, but held out both hands, clasped in appeal.

"Monsieur, you have always been my loving kinsman. I have always tried to do your pleasure. I thought you meant harm to the boy because he was a servant to M. de Mar, and I knew that M. de St. Quentin at least had gone over to the other side. I did not know what you would do with him and I could not rest in my bed because it was through me he came here. Monsieur, if I was foolish and frightened and indiscreet do not punish the lad for my wrong-doing."

Mayenne was still holding out his hand for her.

"I wish you sweet dreams, my cousin Lorance."

"Monsieur," she cried, shrinking back till she stood against the door-jamb, "will you not let the boy go?"

"How will you look to-morrow," he said with his unchanged smile. "If you lose all your sleep to-night, my pretty Lorance?"

"A reproach to me," she answered quickly. "You will mark my white cheeks and my red eyes, and you will say. 'Now, there is my little cousin Lorance, my good ally Montluc's daughter, and I have made her cry her eyes blind over my cruelty. Her father, dying, gave her to me to guard and cherish, and I have made her miserable. I am sorry. I wish I had not done it.'"

"Mademoiselle, the duke repeated, "will you get to your bed?"

She did not stir, but, fixing him with her brilliant eyes, went on as if thinking aloud.

"I remember when I was a tiny maid of five or six, and you and your brother Guise (whom God rest!) would come to our house. You would ask my father to send for me as you sat over your wine, and I would run in to kiss you and be fed comfits from your pockets. I thought you the handsomest and gallantest gentleman in France, as indeed you were."

"You were the prettiest little creature ever was," Mayenne said abruptly.

"And my little heart was bursting with love and admiration of you," she returned. "When I first could lisp I learned to pray for my cousin Henri and my cousin Charles. I have never forgotten them one night in all these years. 'God receive and bless the soul of Henri de Guise; God guard and prosper Charles de Mayenne.' But you make it hard for me to ask it for my cousin Charles."

"This is a great coil over a horse boy," Mayenne said curtly.

"Life is as dear to a horse boy as to M. le Duc de Mayenne."

"I tell you I did not mean to kill the boy," Mayenne said. "With the door shut he could hear nothing. I meant to question him and let him go. But you have seen fit to meddle in what is no maid's business, mademoiselle. You have unlocked the door and let him listen to my concerns. Dead men, mademoiselle, tell no tales."

"M. de Mayenne," she said, "I cannot see that you need trouble for the tales of boys—you, the lord of half France. But if you must needs fear his tongue, why, even then you should set him free. He is but a serving boy sent here with a message. It is wanton murder to take his life; it is like killing a child."

"He is not so harmless as you would lead one to suppose, mademoiselle," the duke retorted. "Since you have been eavesdropping you have heard how he upset your cousin Paul's arrangements.

"For that you should be thankful to him, monsieur. He has saved you the stain of a cowardly crime."

"Mordieu!" Mayenne exclaimed, "who foully murdered my brother?"

"The Valois."

"And his henchman, St. Quentin."

"Not so," she cried. "He was here in Paris when it happened. He was revolted at the deed."

"Did they teach you that at the convent?"

"No, but it is true. M. de St. Quentin warned my cousin Henri not to go to Blois."

"Pardieu, you think them angels, these St. Quentins."

"I think them brave and honest gentlemen, as I think you, cousin Charles."

"That sounds ill on the lips that have but now called me villain and murderer," Mayenne returned.

"I have not called you that, monsieur: I said you had been saved from the guilt of murder, and I knew one day you would be glad."

He kept silence, eyeing her in a puzzled way. After a moment she went on:

THE PAN TOP RAISES FOR BROILING

The pan top is one of the features of the GREAT IDEA steel range. For broiling or toasting, it is an ideal attachment.

The flues throughout are lined with asbestos, around which there are two thicknesses of steel. Even the flues under the oven are thus lined, practically insuring the GREAT IDEA steel range against dampness, the enemy of all steel ranges.

The Making of a Successful Wife

By CASPER S. YOST.

THE WIFE'S MOTHER-IN-LAW.—A Mighty Important Factor In Making Your Domestic Happiness—If You Play Your Cards Right She'll Prove a Blessing You'll Be Thankful For.

(Copyright, 1907, by Casper S. Yost.)

MY DEAR LITTLE GIRL—I don't wonder that the coming visit of William's mother makes you a little bit nervous. It is an ordeal that nearly every young wife looks forward to with a certain degree of apprehension, if not dread. She feels that she is going to be held up for inspection; that herself and her methods are about to be subjected to a critical analysis by a stern and prejudiced household martinet, a perfect paragon of domestic virtues. His ma has probably been extolled as the originator and chief exponent of the fine art of running a home, the one woman who knows exactly how to do things. Of course she's nervous. But, bless your dear little heart, there's no real reason for it. Bill's mother, like every other man's mother, is about one-fourth woman and three-fourths imagination. Did you ever notice how big a man looks when he's coming toward you through a fog? You think it's the boss giant at the circus until he gets up close, and then you find it's little Smithkins, who weighs 110 pounds with his winter overcoat on. A man, no matter what his age, sees his mother through the mists of childhood and youth, and the suns of his life shining through the haze envelop her in a radiance that to him is pretty near divine. There's nothing wrong about that, my dear. On the contrary, it's one of the most beautiful facts in creation. But when other people look at his mother they see just a common, ordinary little woman, no better and no worse than the average. You'll find that to be the case when Bill's ma steps in. You won't be able to see any halo around her head. You won't be able to discover her wonderful superiority to the rest of womankind. Bill sees them, but you will find that she has her faults and her failings like other people, and her failings are more likely to give you trouble than her virtues.

Bill's mother.

The Wife's Mother-in-law.

And that brings up a question that I have pondered over pretty considerable and never found but one answer to it. Why is it you never hear anything about the wife's mother-in-law? That's the question. The mother-in-law has been a subject for jokes and satire and derision for goodness only knows how many thousands of years, but it's always the man's mother-in-law. One would think there was only one kind of them. They poke fun at this one kind in the funny papers and the almanacs and on the stage, and they don't seem to have ever heard that there's another brand of mother-in-law, just as numerous, just as busy and once in awhile just as tactless and meddling. The wife's mother-in-law is absolutely unknown in literature, while reams and volumes and whole libraries have been written about the husband's mother-in-law. Why is it? There's just one answer. It is because men have been doing all the writing and the only mother-in-law they know anything about is their own. That their own mothers are also mothers-in-law seem never to have occurred to them. If it had there probably would be one subject less for the joke writer and one of the greatest institutions in the world would have had a better reputation. For it is a fact, my dear, that mothers-in-law, taking them in a bunch, are one of the most beneficent gifts of a mysterious but all wise Providence. There are exceptions that seem to justify the attacks made upon the class, but they are exceptions, and even with them in nine cases out of ten it's the smart Alexander sons-in-law who are most to blame. So, while I have wondered why we have but one variety of mother-in-law in literature, I have always been mighty glad the other kind remained undiscovered. Maybe Providence has something to do with that too. At any rate, little girl, getting back to your own case, your mother-in-law is nothing to be afraid of or to stand in awe of. Her idiosyncrasies or pecadillos or, getting down to plain American, her crankiness may give you some trouble, but all the same she's a mighty important factor in the making of your domestic happiness, and if you play your cards right she'll prove a blessing that you'll be thankful for all your days. I don't know Bill's ma, but I'm willing to bet dollars against cold muffins on this proposition.

Get next to her system.

"She is Bill's Mother."

In the first place, you want to recognize the fact that she is Bill's mother, just the same to him as your mother is to you, and you must respect his feelings in regard to her. In the second place, you mustn't forget that, being his mother, she naturally thinks a heap of him and may be just a little bit inclined to the idea that no girl is quite good enough for him. Also you should bear in mind that, like Bill Smith's chum, she's "older and had more sperience" than you. So all you've got to do, little girl, is to remember these three points and act accordingly. It lacks a whole lot of being as easy to do it as to say it. I'll admit that. But it's worth the price. The love and good will and help of his mother are mighty precious possessions, and you can't go to too much trouble to get them and keep them. She can be a friend to you like unto no other friend except your own mother, and the time will often come when you will thank heaven that Bill's ma is by your side, holding your hand and helping you over the rough places.

Bill has bragged about her.

I don't doubt that he has bragged about her a good deal. He'd be a funny son if he didn't. He's told you what a wonderful manager she is and how she can cook—laws-a-massy, how she can cook! There never was anybody could make biscuits and mince pies and doughnuts like Bill's ma. But don't you let that worry you. There's just as much imagination about ma's pies as there is about ma from his viewpoint. There's a halo about her biscuit, too, but nobody can see it but Bill. I'm pretty sure you can make just as good ones, and I know your mother can beat her hands down. But don't you let on. It won't do to tamper recklessly with his ideals. Wait till she comes and ask her to show you how. That will please Bill and tickle the old lady half to death. If she isn't any great shakes as a cook, William will find it out for himself then, and coming in that way it won't hurt him. He'll just think his mother is losing her grip, and he'll be all the prouder of you.

Housekeeping is a Science.

On the other hand, if she is really way up in G in the kitchen drop your cooking school methods like a hot flatiron and get next to her system. I know that you learned a good deal from your mother that the culinary professor wasn't able to get away from you, though the Lord knows she tried hard enough, and to my notion there isn't any woman on earth who can come under the wire alongside your mother when it comes to cooking. But that isn't the point. The main business of a wife is to please her husband, just as it should be the main business of a husband to please his wife, and if his mother knows a trick or two that he thinks great you can't do anything better to please him than to make them yours. As a matter of fact she probably has a whole bunch of housekeeping tricks up her sleeve that it will be worth your while to get acquainted with. Housekeeping is a science, but it lacks more of being a fixed science than any I know of, and no woman can have bossed a home as long as Bill's ma has without accumulating a lot of facts not down in the textbooks, besides making some original discoveries of her own. So I'd earnestly advise you, little girl, to let her know at once that you want to take a postgraduate course under her. Somewhere in your copy book or your grammar you've seen the saying that imitation is the sincerest flattery, and I ain't letting out any state secrets when I tell you that sincere flattery makes more friends than a stuffed club. Go to school to the old lady, and you'll get closer to her heart in three days than you could in six months sitting up in the parlor and running a gabfest. At the same time William will be climbing the golden ladder to the seventh heaven of delight, and, if he isn't already certain about it, he'll be convinced that his little wife is the greatest that ever happened.

Sitting up in the parlor and running a gabfest.

Make Her Feel at Home.

But that isn't all. When his ma comes, take her right in out of the wet, figuratively speaking. Don't drop her down on a spindle legged chair in the drawing room. That also is figuratively speaking, for I'm pretty certain you haven't got a drawing room, and I hope to conscience you haven't got any spindle legged chairs. I remember once— But that's getting off the main road. What I mean to say is, draw her into your arms, just as you would your own mother. Make her feel at home. Make her feel, in fact, that William's wife is her daughter and worthy in every way to be so considered. Show her the respect at all times that is due to her age, and if she has any cranky notions humor them. She'll have them, all right. She'll be a wonder for sure if she doesn't. Mighty few people can come down the home-stretch of life without developing a few kinks that try the patience of others. Even your old daddy has them. Yes, I have. Why, I bet if you could get one of these here radium photographs of my mental process it would look like one of those wiggledy hairpins you use to keep your sunshine from getting loose. That's right, my dear, so don't let her kinks bother you. You can't straighten them, and they won't do you any harm if you let them alone. Let her see, too, that her boy is in good hands. That's an important point, for it's something she'll be most anxious about, but it will be an easy job for you. Rather it will be no job at all, for I'm mighty certain he couldn't be in better hands. He'll say so himself. If he didn't I'd be after him with something large and heavy to throw.

Just a minute now for the other side. A man's love for his mother begins at his birth and lasts until his death. It is not the great consuming passion of his life. That is reserved for the other woman, who becomes his wife. But, no matter how much greater his love may be for his mate, it never eclipses that earlier affection for his mother. Side by side they should move, the sun and moon of his worship, to the end of his days. They should, but sometimes they don't. Sometimes, the greater love wanes and vanishes. The lesser love is imperishable. Let friction develop between the wife and the mother, and, though the man may be true to his allegiance to his wife, though he may stand by her side and take her part, that other love will always be tugging at his heart. No man can be happy under such circumstances. No wife who loves her husband can be happy when he is unhappy. Don't take any such risks, little girl. Billy's ma should be your friend. Make her your friend. Keep her your friend. That's all now. Goodby, honey. Your affectionate father, JOHN SNEED.

Take her in out of the wet.

P. S.—For heaven's sake, don't let Bill see this letter. J. S.

The Simple Life.

Abe, a light mulatto, called upon a minister for whom he had formerly worked.

"Yo' know, boss, I'a gwine be married nex' week," he admitted haltingly. "I'a gwine to marry Miss May Felicity Johnson, an' May she say she wants ter be married jus' like white folks."

"All right, Abe; I'll marry you if you want," the minister replied.

"How much you gwine charge?"

"It will cost you $5 to be married like white folks."

Abe scratched his head. "Guess we'll hab ter be married like niggers, then," he said. "Yo' see, boss, we's goin' to housekeepin', an' I ain't got but $3."—Lippincott's.

A Boon to the Bilious

Are you compelled to deny yourself many wholesome foods because you think they make you bilious? Do you know that your condition is more to blame than the foods? Your liver and stomach need attention more than the diet. When you find yourself suffering with a bilious attack, take and all annoying symptoms will soon disappear. They settle the stomach, regulate the liver and exercise the bowels. Their good effects are felt immediately.

Beecham's Pills mingle with the contents of the stomach and make easy work of digestion. The nourishing properties of the food are then readily assimilated and the residue carried off without irritating the intestines or clogging the bowels.

Beecham's Pills should be taken whenever there is sick headache, furred tongue, constipation, sallow skin or any symptoms that indicate an inactive liver.

THE ROBERT GREIG CO., LIMITED

We are spending $5,000.00 this month to explain what the word "Constipation" means.

Constipation means NON-ACTION OF THE BOWELS.

If the liver is healthy, it pours enough bile into the intestines to make the bowels move. Then, too, the bowels discharge waste matter from the body by a peculiar snake-like movement. This requires strong muscles.

When the bowel muscles are weak—when there is not sufficient bile—the bowels do not move for two, three, sometimes four and five days.

This non-action of the bowels is Constipation. Waste matter, which should leave the body, is taken up by the blood, and carried to the kidneys and skin. These organs—in a vain endeavor to throw off the poisons—are overworked. The poisoned blood, in turn, irritates the nerves, causing Headaches—Backaches—Neuralgia.

The weakened kidneys cannot rid the system of urea, which changes into uric acid, causing Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago.

It is useless to try to cure Constipation with calomel, cascara, senna, strong purgative pills and vile-tasting mineral waters. They simply force the bowels to act by irritating the delicate membranes. Their action weakens the muscles and really does more harm than good.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" ACT ON THE LIVER—stimulate the glands—and so regulate the action of the liver that it will excrete sufficient bile to move the bowels in the normal, natural way every day.

Nothing else in the world will so surely and permanently cure Constipation.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" are made of fruit juices, intensified, with the most valuable tonics and antiseptics added. Cure yourself of Constipation by taking these wonderful liver tablets. 50c. a box. Sent by mail if your druggist has none.

The English Orphans

Author of "Lena Rivers," "The Homestead on the Hill," "Tempest and Sunshine," Etc.

And then he redoubled his efforts at flattery, until Mary, quite disgusted, begged leave to change her seat, saying by way of apology that she was getting too warm. In the course of the evening George Moreland was mentioned. Involuntarily Mary blushed, and Henry, who was watching her, proposed that she resume her former seat, "for," said he, "you look quite as warm and red where you are."

"The nearest I ever knew him to come to anything witty," whispered Ida from behind a fire screen. "I do believe you've rubbed up his ideas, and I predict that you win him instead of Ella."

Mary did not even smile, for her there was something revolting in the idea of being even teased about Henry, who was conceited enough to attribute her reserve to the awe which he fancied his "elegant presence" inspired! If Ella with all her wealth and beauty placed an invaluable estimate upon his attentions, why should not her unpretending sister be equally in love with him? And the young dandy stroked his mustache with his white fingers, and wondered what Ella Campbell would say if she knew how much her sister admired him, and how very nearly her admiration was returned!

At length William arose to go, and advancing toward Mary, he took her hand, saying in a low tone, with marked emphasis on the word sister, "I find my sister greatly changed and improved since I last saw her."

"And you too are changed," returned Mary, her eyes filling with tears, for William's manner was not as of old.

"Yes, in more respects than one," said he; "but I shall see you again. Do you attend Mrs. Russell's party?"

Mary replied in the affirmative, and the next moment he was gone. Half an hour after, Henry, too, departed, saying to Mary as he went, "You mustn't fail to be at Mrs. Russell's, for I shall only go for the sake of seeing you. Truth, upon my honor!—what little I have," he continued, as Mary's eyes flashed forth her entire disbelief of what he said. "I am in earnest now, if I never was before."

Ida laughed aloud at the mystified picture which Mary's face presented as the door closed upon Henry. "You are too much of a novice to see through everything, but you'll learn in time that opinions frequently change with circumstances," said she.

That night in his chamber, with his heels upon the marble mantel, and his box of cigars and bottle of brandy at his side, the man of fashion soliloquized as follows: "Zounds! How that girl has improved. Never saw the like in my life. Talk about family and rank, and all that stuff—[illegible] begins to have the air distingue which Mary Howard has. Of course she'll be all the go. Everything the Seldens take up is. Ain't I glad Moreland is in New Orleans; for with his notions he wouldn't hesitate to marry her if he liked her, poor as she is. Now, if she only had the chink, I'd walk up to her quick. I don't see why the deuce the old man need to have got so involved just now as to make it necessary for me either to work or have a rich wife. Such eyes, too, as Mary's got—black and fiery one minute, blue and soft the next! Well, anyway, I'll have a good time flirting with her, just for the sake of seeing Ella wince and whimper, if nothing more. Bah! What a simpleton she is, compared with Mary. I wonder how much Mrs. Campbell is worth, and if Ella will have it all."

And the young man retired to dream of debts liquidated by the gold which a marriage with Ella Campbell would bring him.

CHAPTER XXV.

"Bring me my new dress, Jenny; I want to see if the Honiton lace on the cape is as wide as Ida Selden's."

"What do you mean?" asked Jenny, turning quickly toward her sister, whose white, wasted face looked fitter for a shroud than a gay party dress.

"I mean what I say," returned Rose; "I'm not going to be cooped up here any longer. I'm going to the party to-morrow night, if I never go again!"

"Why, Rose Lincoln, are you crazy?" asked Jenny. "You haven't been in the street yet, and how do you expect to go to-morrow night? Mother wouldn't let you, if she were here."

"Well, thank fortune! she and father both are in Southbridge; and besides that I'm a great deal better; so hand me my dress."

Jenny complied, and reclining on pillows scarcely whiter than herself, Rose Lincoln examined and found fault with a thin gossamer fabric, little suited for any one to wear on a cold wintry night, and much less for her.

"There, I knew it wasn't as wide as Ida's into an eight of an inch," said she, measuring with her finger the expensive lace. "I'll have some new. Come, Jenny, suppose you go down street and get it, for I'm bent upon going;" and the thoughtless girl sprang lightly upon the floor, and chased halfway across the room to show how well and strong she was.

Jenny knew that further expostulation from her was useless, but she refused to go for the lace, and Sarah, the servant girl, was sent with a note from Rose saying she wanted a nice article, eight or ten dollars per yard.

"I don't believe father would like to have you make such a bill," said Jenny, when Sarah was gone. "Mother didn't dare to tell him about your new dress, for he told her she mustn't get any thing charged, and he said, too, something about hard times. Perhaps he's going to fail. Wouldn't it be dreadful?"

If Rose heard the last part of this sentence she did not heed it, for to her the idea of her father's failing was preposterous. When the dinner bell rang she threw on a heavy shawl, and descending to the dining-parlor, remained below stairs all the afternoon, forcing back her cough, and chatting merrily with a group of young girls who had called to see her, and congratulated her upon her improved health, for excitement lent a deep glow to her cheek, which would easily deceive the inexperienced. The next day, owing to overexertion, Rose's temples were throbbing with pain, and more than once, she half-determined not to go; but her passion for society was strong, and Mrs. Russell's party had so long been anticipated and talked about that she felt she would not miss it for the world, and, as she had confessed to Jenny, there was also a mean curiosity to see how Mary Howard would appear at a fashionable party.

"Saturate my handkerchief with cologne, and put the vinaigrette where I can reach it while you arrange my hair," she said to Sarah, who at the usual hour came up to dress her young mistress for the evening. "There, be careful and not brush so hard, for that ugly pain isn't quite gone—now bring me the glass and let me see if I do look like a ghost."

"Pale, delicate folks is always more interesting than red, hearty ones," said the flattering servant, as she obeyed.

"Mercy, how white I am!" exclaimed Rose, glancing at the ashen face reflected by the mirror. "Rub my cheeks with cologne, Sarah, and see if that won't bring some color into them. There, that'll do. Now hand me my dress. Oh, isn't it beautiful?" she continued, as she threw aside the thickly-wadded double gown and assumed a light, thin dress, which fell in fleecy folds around her slight figure.

"Faith, an' ye looks sweet, God bless you!" said Sarah as she clasped the diamond bracelets around the snowy arms, and fastened the costly ornaments in the delicate ears.

When her toilet was completed Rose stood up before the long mirror, and a glow of pride came to her cheeks as she saw how lovely she really was.

"You's enough sight handsomer than Miss Jenny," whispered Sarah as the door opened and Jenny appeared more simply arrayed than her sister, but looking as fresh and blooming as a rosebud.

"How beautiful you are, Rose," said she, "only it makes me shiver to look at your neck and arms. You'll wear your woolen sack, besides your shawl and cloak, won't you?"

"Nonsense, I'm not going to be bundled up this way, for don't you see it musses the lace," said Rose, refusing the warm sack which Jenny brought her.

A rap at the door and a call from Henry that the carriage was waiting ended the conversation, and throwing on their cloaks and hoods the girls descended to the hall, where with unusual tenderness Henry caught up his invalid sister, and drawing her veil closely over her face carried her to the covered sleigh, so that her feet might not touch the icy walk.

"What? Rose Lincoln here?" exclaimed half a dozen voices as Rose bounded into the dressing-room.

"Yes, Rose Lincoln is here," she replied gayly, divesting herself of her wrapping. "I'm not going to die just yet, I guess, neither am I going to be housed up all winter. The fresh air has done me good already—see," and she pointed to a bright round spot which burned upon her cheek.

A young girl, whose family had one by one fallen victims to the great New England plague, consumption, shuddered and turned away, for to her eye the glow which Rose called health was but the hectic bloom of death.

"How beautiful she is!" said more than one, as with her accustomed grace Rose entered the brilliant drawing-room. And truly Rose was beautiful that night, but like the gorgeous foliage of the fading autumn, 'twas the beauty of decay, for death was written on her blue-veined brow, and lurked amid the roses on her cheek. But little thought she of that, as with smiling lip and beaming eye she received the homage of the admiring throng.

"Upon my word, you do look very well," said Henry, coming for a moment to his sister's side. "Why, you'd be the star of the evening, were it not for ma belle Ella. See, there she comes," and he pointed to a group just entering the room.

An expression of contempt curled Rose's lip as she glanced at Ella, and thought of being outshone by her dollish figure and face. "I'm in no danger, unless a more formidable rival than that silly thing appears," thought she; and she drew up her slender form with a more queenly grace, and bowed somewhat haughtily to Ella, who came up to greet her. There was a world of affection in Ella's soft hazel eyes as they looked eagerly up to Henry, who for the sake of torturing the young girl feigned not to see her until she had stood near him some minutes. Then offering her his hand he said, with the utmost nonchalance, "Why, Ella, are you here? I was watching so anxiously for your sister that I did not notice your entrance."

Ella had dressed herself for the party with more than usual care, and as she smoothed down the folds of her delicate pink silk, and shook back her long glossy curls she thought, "He cannot think Mary handsomer than I am to-night;" and now when the first remark he addressed to her was concerning her sister, she replied rather pettishly, "I believe you are always thinking about Mary."

"Now, don't be jealous," returned Henry; "I only wish to see the contrast between you."

Ella fancied that the preference would of course be in her favor, and casting aside all unpleasant feelings she exerted herself to the utmost to keep Henry at her side, asking him numberless questions, and suddenly recollecting something which she wished to tell him, if he made a movement toward leaving her.

"Confound it! How tight she sticks to a fellow," thought he; "but I'll get away from her yet."

Just then Ida and Mary were announced. Both Aunt Martha and Ida had taken great pains to have their young friend becomingly dressed, and she looked unusually well in the embroidered muslin skirt, satin waist, and blonde bertha which Aunt Martha had insisted upon her accepting as a present. The rich silken braids of her luxuriant hair were confined at the back of her finely formed head with a golden arrow, which, with the exception of a plain band of gold on each wrist, was the only ornament she wore. This was her first introduction to the gay world, but so keen was her perception of what was polite and proper that none would ever have suspected it; and yet there was about her something so fresh and unstudied, that she had hardly entered the room, ere many were struck with her easy, unaffected manners, so different from the practiced airs of the city belles.

Ella watched her narrowly, whispering aside to Henry how sorry she felt for poor Mary, she was so verdant and really hoped she wouldn't do anything very awkward, for 'twould mortify her to death! "But look," she added, "and see how many people Ida is introducing her to."

"Of course, why shouldn't she?" asked Henry; and Ella replied:

"I don't know—it seems so funny to see Mary here, don't it?"

Before Henry could answer, a young man of his acquaintance touched his shoulder, saying, "Lincoln, who is that splendid-looking girl with Miss Selden? I haven't seen a finer face in Boston for many a day."

"That? Oh, that's Miss Howard, from Chicopee. An intimate friend of our family. Allow me the pleasure of introducing you," and Henry walked away, leaving Ella to the tender mercies of Rose, who, as one after another quitted her side and went over to the "enemy," grew very angry, wondering if folks were bewitched, and hoping Ida Selden "felt better, now that she'd made so many notice her protege."

Later in the evening, William Bender came, and immediately Jenny began to talk to him of Mary, and the impression she was making. Placing her hand familiarly upon his arm, as though that were its natural resting place, she led him toward a group, of which Mary seemed the centre of attraction. Near her stood Henry Lincoln, bending so low as to threaten serious injury to his fashionable pants, and redoubling his flattering compliments in proportion as Mary grew colder and more reserved in her manner toward him. Silly and conceited as he was, he could not help noticing how differently she received William Bender from what she had himself. "But all in good time," thought he, glancing at Ella, to see how she was affected by his desertion of her, and flirtation with her sister. She was standing a little apart from any one, and with her elbow resting upon a marble stand, her cheeks flushed, and her eyelashes moist with the tears she dare not shed, she was watching him with feelings in which more of real pain than jealousy was mingled, for Ella was weak and simple-hearted, and loved Henry Lincoln far better than such as he deserved to be loved.

"Of what are you thinking, Ella?" asked Rose, who, finding herself nearly alone, felt willing to converse with almost anyone.

At the sound of her voice Ella looked up, and coming quickly to her side said, "It's so dull and lonesome here, I wish I'd stayed at home."

In her heart Rose wished so too, but she was too proud to acknowledge it, and feeling unusually kind toward Ella, whose uneasiness she readily understood, she replied, "Oh, I see you are jealous of Henry, but he's only trying to tease you, for he can't be interested in that awkward thing."

"But he is, I almost know he is," returned Ella, with a trembling of the voice she tried in vain to subdue; and then, fearing she could not longer restrain her emotion, she suddenly broke away from Rose, and ran hastily up to the dressing-room.

Nothing of all this escaped Henry's quick eye, and as sundry unpaid bills for wine, brandy, oyster suppers, and livery came looming up before his mind, he thought proper to make some amends for his neglect. Accordingly when Ella returned to the drawing-room he offered her his arm asking, "What made her eyes so red," and slying pressing her hand, when she averted her face, saying:

"Nothing—they weren't red."

Meantime, William Bender, having managed to drop Jenny from his arm, had asked Mary to accompany him to a small conservatory, which was separated from the reception-rooms by a long and brilliantly-lighted gallery. As they stood together, admiring a rare exotic, William's manner suddenly changed, and drawing Mary closer to his side, he said distinctly, though hurriedly, "I notice, Mary, that you seem embarrassed in my presence, and I have, therefore, sought this opportunity to assure you that I shall not again distress you by a declaration of love, which, if returned, would now give me more pain than pleasure, for as I told you at Mr. Selden's I am changed in more respects than one. It cost me a bitter struggle to give you up, but reason and judgment finally conquered, and now I can calmly think of you as sometime belonging to another, and with all a brother's confidence can tell you that I too, love another—not as once I loved you, for that would be impossible, but with a calmer, more rational love."

All this time Mary had not spoken though the hand which William had taken in his trembled like an imprisoned bird; but when he came to speak of loving another, she involuntarily raised his hand to her lips, exclaiming, "It's Jenny, it's Jenny."

"You have guessed rightly," returned William, smiling at the earnestness of her manner. "It is Jenny, though how such a state of things ever came about is more than I can tell."

Mary thought of the old saying, "Love begets love," but she said nothing, for just then Jenny herself joined them. Looking first at William, then at Mary, and finally passing her arm around the latter, she whispered, "I know he's told you, and I'm glad, for somehow I couldn't tell you myself."

Wisely thinking that his company could be dispensed with, William walked away, leaving the two girls alone. In her usual frank way Jenny rattled on, telling Mary how happy she was, and how funny it seemed to be engaged, and how frightened she was when William asked her to marry him.

Fearing that they might be missed they at last returned to the parlor, where they found Ella seated at the piano, and playing a very spirited polka. Henry, who boasted that he "could wind her around his little finger," had succeeded in coaxing her into good humor, but not at all desiring her company for the rest of the evening, he asked her to play the easiest way to be rid of her. She played unusually well, but when, at the close of the piece, she looked around for commendation from the one for whose ear alone she had played, she saw him across the room so wholly engrossed with her sister, that he probably did not even know when the sound of the piano ceased.

Poor Ella! it was with the saddest heartache she had ever known that she returned from a party which had promised her so much pleasure, and which had given her so much pain. Rose, too, was utterly disappointed. One by one her old admirers had left her for the society of the "pauper," as she secretly styled Mary, and more than once during the evening had she heard the "beauty" and "grace" of her rival extolled by those for whose opinion she cared the most; and when at one o'clock in the morning she threw herself exhausted upon the sofa she declared "'twas the last party she'd ever attend."

Alas, for thee Rosa! that declaration proved too true!

CHAPTER XXVI.

For more than an hour there had been unbroken silence in the dingy old law office of Mr. Worthington where Henry Lincoln and William Bender still remained, the one as a practicing lawyer and junior partner of the firm, and the other as a student still, for he had not yet dared to offer himself for examination. Study was something which Henry particularly disliked; and as his mother had trained him with the idea that labor for him was wholly unnecessary, he had never bestowed a thought on the future, or made an exertion of any kind. Now, however, a different phase of affairs was ap-

MRS. ADDIE HARDING. MRS. MARY MEYER. MRS. FRANCES WILSON.

MRS. ADDIE HARDING, 810 Court street, Syracuse, N. Y., writes:

"I have been a user of Peruna for the last twelve years and can truthfully say that there is no better medicine on earth.

"With me it is a sure preventive for colds and many other ills. In my home can always be found a bottle of Peruna. Two or three times a year I am troubled with my throat.

"A SURE PREVENTIVE."

"I always had to have the services of my physician two or three times in each case.

"Although a user of Peruna, I never thought of taking it for my throat until about two years ago.

"I tried Peruna to check it, and to my great delight I was not troubled with the smothered and choked feeling and never have since.

"I can check it every time with Peruna.

"I certainly would not be without Peruna one minute."

The fight against consumption is becoming a national problem.

Everywhere we hear of sanitariums established at the expense of the state for the treatment of the vast army of consumptives.

The open air treatment, fresh air and sunlight, are recognized by the medical profession generally as being the greatest necessities in the treatment of consumption in all of its stages.

Dr. Hartman has for many years advocated the fresh air treatment for consumption. At the same time he has recognized Peruna as a useful palliative for the many distressing symptoms which accompany the white plague.

Mrs. Mary Meyer, Thomson avenue, near Shell Road, Winfield, L. Y., N. Y., writes:

"I have been annoyed with a cough for years.

"Often it was so bad that I could not sleep half the night. Many people thought I had consumption.

CONSUMPTION WAS FEARED.

"A woman recommended Peruna to me two years ago. I began to take Peruna and now I am perfectly free from a cough.

"I am glad to say that Peruna cured me entirely. I take Peruna occasionally when I do not feel well and I also give it to my children.

"Peruna is the best medicine for coughs and colds. I have told many people how much Peruna has helped me."

Peruna tends to lessen the cough, decreases the expectoration, strengthens the patient, increases the appetite and in many cases procures sound, refreshing sleep.

But the value of Peruna in the treatment of a case of consumption is not so great as it is in the prevention of consumption.

Since it is well known that consumption begins with a common cold or catarrh, any medicine that can be relied upon to relieve these must be regarded as a preventive of consumption.

Thousands of cases of incipient consumption, or chronic coughs, or settled colds, have reported Peruna as being a safe and reliable remedy for these ailments.

Mrs. Frances Wilson, 32 Nelson street, Clinton, Mass., writes:

"Had you seen me at the time of my illness and now, you would not wonder that I take delight in sounding the praises of Peruna.

"My ailment was a severe cold which attacked the bronchial tubes and lungs.

"I followed your special directions and after using six bottles of Peruna I was on my feet again.

"I think Peruna a wonderful medicine."

The promptness with which Peruna relieves a fresh cold, and even removes chronic colds, that have become thoroughly established, is well-known throughout the entire country. This ranks Peruna as a reliable prophylactic against consumption.

CONSUMPTION PREVENTED.

Mr. Wm. Swain, 4245 Stiles street, W. Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"Before I commenced taking Peruna I had used almost everything I could think of for catarrh.

"I felt so tired when getting up in the morning and my lungs felt dry and sore. No one who has not experienced it can imagine how I suffered.

"I tried nearly everything recommended, but nothing did me any permanent good.

"The first bottle of Peruna did me so much good that I continued taking it until completely cured.

"I cannot praise Peruna high enough. I wish every one could know of it."

Those suffering from colds can do nothing better than to procure a bottle of Peruna and give it a fair trial.

pearing. His father's fortune was threatened with ruin; and as, on a morning several weeks subsequent to Mrs. Russell's party, he sat in the office with his heels upon the window sill, and his arms folded over his head, he debated the all-important question, whether it were better to marry Ella Campbell, for the money which would save him from poverty, or to rouse himself to action for the sake of Mary Howard, whom he really fancied he loved.

Frequently since the party had he met her, each time becoming more and more convinced of her superiority over the other young ladies of her acquaintance. He was undoubtedly greatly assisted in this decision by the manner with which she was received by the fashionables of Boston, but aside from that, as far as he was capable of doing so, he liked her, and was now making up his mind whether to tell her so or not.

At last, breaking the silence, he exclaimed, "Hang me, if I don't believe she's bewitched me, or else I'm in love. Bender, how does a chap feel when he's in love?"

"Very foolish, judging from yourself," returned William, and Henry replied:

"I hope you mean nothing personal, for I'm bound to avenge my honor, and 'twould be a deuced scrape for you and me to fight about 'your sister,' as you call her, for 'tis she who has inspired me, or made a fool of me, one or the other."

"You've changed your mind, haven't you?" asked William a little sarcastically.

"Hanged if I have!" said Henry. "I was interested in her years ago, when she was the ugliest little vixen a man ever looked upon, and that's why I teased her so—I don't believe she's handsome now, but she's something, and that something has raised the mischief with me. Come, Bender, you are better acquainted with her than I am, so tell me honestly if you think I'd better marry her."

The expression of William's face was a sufficient answer, and with something of his old insolence Henry continued, "You needn't feel jealous, for I tell you Mary Howard looks higher than you. Why, she'd wear the crown of England, as a matter of fact, any day."

With a haughty frown William replied: "You have my permission, sir, to propose as soon as you please. I rather wish you would"; then taking his hat he left the office, while Henry continued his soliloquy as follows:

"I wonder what the old folks would say to a penniless bride. Wouldn't mother and Rose raise a row? I'd soon quiet the old woman though, by threatening to tell that she was once a factory girl—yes, a factory girl. But if dad smashes up I'll have to work, for I haven't brains enough to earn my living by my wit. I guess on the whole I'll go and call on Ella, she's handsome, and besides that has the rhino too, but Lord, how shallow!" and the young man broke the blada of his knife as he stuck it into the hardwood table, by way of emphasizing his last words.

Ella chanced to be out, and as Henry was returning, he overtook Ida Selden and Mary Howard, who were taking their accustomed walk. Since her conversation with William a [illegible] Mary's spirits, and she now was happier far than she ever remembered of having been before. She was a general favorite in Boston, where all of her acquaintances vied with each other in making her stay among them as agreeable as possible. Her facilities for improvement, too, were great, and, what was better than all the rest, George Moreland was to return much sooner than he at first intended. While she was so happy herself, Mary could not find it in her heart to be uncourteous to Henry, and her manner toward him that morning was so kind and affable that it completely upset him; and when he parted with her at Mr. Selden's gate his mind was quite made up to offer her his heart and hand.

"I shall have to work," thought he, as he entered his room to decide upon the best means by which to make his intentions known. "I shall have to work, I know, but for her sake I'd do anything."

There was a bottle of Madeira standing upon the table, and as he announced his determination of "doing anything for the sake of Mary Howard," his eye fell upon his favorite beverage. A deep blush mounted to his brow, and a fierce struggle between his love for Mary and his love for the wine-cup ensued. The former conquered, and seizing the bottle he hurled it against the marble fire jam, exclaiming, "I'll be a man, a sober man, and never shall the light of Mary's eyes grow dim with tears wept for a drunken husband."

Henry was growing eloquent, and lest the inspiration should leave him, he sat down and wrote to Mary on paper what he could not tell her face to face. Had there been a lingering doubt of her acceptance, he would undoubtedly have wasted at least a dozen sheets of the tiny gilt-edged paper but as it was one would suffice, for she would not scrutinize his handwriting — she would not count the blots, or mark the omission of punctuating pauses. She would almost say yes before she read it. So the letter, which contained a sincere apology for his uncivil treatment of her in former years, and an ardent declaration of love for her now, was written, sealed, and directed, and then there was a gentle rap upon the door. Jenny wished to come in for a book which was lying upon the table.

Henry had resolved to keep his family ignorant of his intentions, but at the sight of Jenny he changed his mind—Jenny loved Mary, too. Jenny would be delighted at the prospect of having her for a sister, and would help him brave the storm of his mother's displeasure.

"Jenny," said he, grasping at her dress, as she passed him on her way from the room, "Jenny, sit down here. I want to tell you something." Jenny glanced at the fragments of the wine bottle, then at her brother's flushed face, and instantly conjecturing that he had been drinking, said reproachfully, as she laid her soft, white hand on his brow:

"Oh brother, brother!"

He understood her meaning, and drawing her so closely to him that his warm breath floated over her cheek, replied, "I'm not drunk, for see, there is no scent of alcohol in my breath, for I have sworn to reform—sworn that no drop of ardent spirits shall ever again pass my lips."

The sudden exclamation of joy, the arms thrown so affectionately around his neck, the hot tears upon his cheek, and the kisses that warm-hearted sister imprinted upon his lips, should have helped him to ratify that vow. But not for her sake had it been made, and shaking her off he said, "Don't make a fool of yourself, Jenny; I wasn't in any danger of disgracing you, for I was only a moderate drinker. But really I do want to talk with you on a very important subject. I want to ask who of all your acquaintances you would prefer to have for a sister, for I am going to be married."

"To Ella?" asked Jenny, and Henry replied scornfully:

"No, ma'am! my wife must have a soul, a heart, and a mind, to make up for my deficiency on those points. To be plain, how would you like to have me marry Mary Howard?"

"Not at all—not at all," was Jenny's quick reply,

"And why not? Are you, too, proud as Lucifer, like the rest of us? I could tell you something, miss, that would bring your pride down a peg or two. But answer me, why are you unwilling for me to marry Mary?"

Jenny's spirit was roused too, and looking her brother fully in his face, she unhesitatingly replied, "You are not worthy of her; neither would she have you."

"And this from my own sister?" said Henry, hardly able to control his wrath. "Leave the room instantly. But stay," he added, "and let me hear the reasons for what you have asserted."

"You know as well as I," answered Jenny, "that one so pure and gentle as Mary Howard, should never be associated with you, who would trample upon a woman's better nature and feelings for the sake of gratifying your own wishes. Whenever it suits your purpose you flatter and caress Ella Campbell, to whom your slightest wish is a law, and then when your mood changes you treat her with neglect; and, think you, that knowing all this, Mary Howard would look favorably upon you, even if there was no stronger reason why she should refuse you?"

"If you mean the brandy bottle," said Henry, growing more and more excited, "have I not sworn to quit it, and is it for you to goad me on to madness, until I break that vow?"

"Forgive me if I have been too harsh," said Jenny, taking Henry's hand. "You are my brother, and Mary my dearest friend, and when I say I would not see her wedded to you, 'tis not because I love you less, but her the more. You are wholly unlike, and would not be happy together. But oh! if her love would win you back to virtue, I would almost beg her, on my bended knees, not to turn away from you."

"And I tell you her love can win me back when nothing else in the world will," said Henry, snatching up the note and hurrying away.

For a time after he left the room Jenny sat in a kind of stupefied maze. That Mary would refuse her brother she was certain, and she trembled for the effect that refusal would produce upon him. Other thoughts, too, crowded upon the young girl's mind, and made her tears flow fast. Henry had hinted of something which he could tell her if he would, and her heart too well foreboded what that something was. The heavy sound of her father's footsteps, which sometimes kept her awake the livelong night, his pale, haggard face in the morning, and her mother's nervous, anxious manner, told her that ruin was hanging over them.

In the midst of her reverie Henry returned. He had delivered the letter, and now, restless and unquiet, he sat down to await its answer. It came at last—his rejection, yet couched in language so kind and conciliatory that he could not feel angry. Twice—three times he read it over, hoping to find some intimation that possibly she might relent; but no, it was firm and decided, and while she thanked him for the honor he conferred upon her she respectfully declined accepting it, assuring him that his secret should be kept inviolate.

"There's some comfort in that," thought he, "for I wouldn't like to have it known that I have been refused by a poor unknown girl," and then, as the conviction came over him that she would never be his, he laid his head upon the table, and wept such tears as a spoilt child might weep when refused a toy too costly and delicate to be trusted in its rude grasp.

Ere long there was another knock at the door, and hastily wiping away all traces of his emotion Henry admitted his father, who had come to talk of their future prospects, which were even worse than he had feared. But he did not reproach his wayward son, nor hint that his reckless extravagance had hastened the calamity which otherwise might possibly have been avoided. Calmly he stated the extent to which they were involved, adding that though an entire failure might be prevented a short time, it would come at last; and that an honorable payment of his debts would leave them beggars.

"For myself I do not care," said the wretched man, pressing hard his aching temples, where the gray hairs had thickened within a few short weeks. "For myself I do not care, but for my wife and children — for Rose, and that she must miss her accustomed comforts, is the keenest pang of all."

All this time Henry had not spoken, but thought was busily at work. He could not bestir himself; he had no energy for that now; but he could marry Ella Campbell, whose wealth would keep him in the position he now occupied, besides supplying many of Rose's wants.

Highland Mary

Is meeting with great favor with Investors—More than 250,000 shares sold first eight days of sale, and applications increasing daily.

A GOOD INVESTMENT, NOT A GAMBLE.

Forty-nine men out of every fifty who make a practice of buying and selling speculative stocks lose their money. The man who watches the stock market quotations from day to day, and buys when he thinks they are going to advance, and sells when he thinks they are about to go down, is simply gambling with his money. He may win once in a while, but will oftener lose, and eventually become penniless, with no established or settled income.

Don't gamble. Don't try to get rich in a day. If you would create an income that would be permanent, so that some day you may take life easier, be an investor. Invest your money, do not gamble it away. Place your money in something good, that is sure to bring you an income. The shares of the Highland Mary Gold Mines of Larder Lake are this kind of an investment. It is an investment that will bring you an income. Buy the shares now at 10c per share, before the big advance that is sure to take place. Buy the shares now, and keep them, and don't think of parting with them. Some day they will be worth many times what you can buy them for now, and that day is not so very far away. Its worth value will not be fictitious either, but will be based upon actual earning and dividends therefrom. We firmly believe that the dividends on each and every share of the Highland Mary will within one year equal or exceed the price it can be bought for to-day. We firmly believe that within five years the yearly dividends on Highland Mary will equal or exceed $1.00 per share.

This is the kind of an investment we feel justified in advising our friends and clients to invest their money in. The Highland Mary properties have been thoroughly examined and tested by our engineers and assayers. We feel that through our extreme caution in this respect the element of chance, that usually enters into mining propositions, has been practically eliminated. The Larder Lake gold fields are proving the greatest the world has ever known. This is being demonstrated from day to day to a certainty.

We want to induce our friends and clients to make a good, profitable investment, one that will bring them an income for the balance of their lives; an income that will amount to something, that will do some good; an income that will each year exceed the total amount of the investment; an income that will be your good friend in time of need; an income that will stand by you through sickness and adversity. An investment of this kind are the shares of the Highland Mary Gold Mines, now selling at 10c per share. We feel certain that an investment in these shares can be relied upon to do all this, and it will do it just as soon as the stamp mills can be established and the mine placed in proper working order. Some may be impressed with the idea that the shares of Highland Mary are a gamble or a speculation, but we say to all who think this, in all seriousness, that it is not. We say that it is a legitimate, honest and safe investment. A better, safer or more profitable one was never offered. It is no more of a gamble or speculation than the new dry goods store or shoe store to be established by a good business man, or the new bank to be established by tried financiers. You probably will ask, How is this? We say to you, a business man or financier will look the ground over, make calculations and figure out almost to a certainty whether the new business or bank to be established will pay. We say, further, that Law & Co., Limited, use this same caution in their business. We have looked over the ground. We know the mining business thoroughly, and we can see no possible chance of loss in the shares of the Higland Mary.

We are in a position to look ahead with some degree of certainty and figure it out. We are not making miscalculations. There is no more element of chance in purchasing the shares of the Highland Mary than there is in any legitimate business undertaking.

From our reports and examinations we figure out that there are thousands and thousands of tons of ore available for the stamp mills, and that when these thousands of tons have been milled there will have been developed many thousands of tons more. We figure that no stockholder of the Highland Mary will live long enough to see the ore exhausted.

There has never been a gold mine that did not have to make a start. It had to have a beginning. The greatest gold mines of the world had to take out the first shovel of dirt, or fire the first blast, and those who made the largest percentage of money and obtained the largest incomes were those who went in at the beginning, bought shares at the first issue price, put them away and kept them. Highland Mary is just starting; it is going to be a great mine; investors are going to get rich from shares of this Company.

The property consists of thirty gold claims of forty acres each, amounting to 1,200 acres. There are many veins and thousands of tons of ore available for treatment. Those who buy Highland Mary shares now at 10 cents and keep them will never regret it. They will secure

A NEVER-FAILING INCOME

The ore veins at Larder Lake assay all the way from $5.00 to $20,000 to the ton of ore—the most marvelous results known of any mining camp in the world. We figure out that the ore will run $50.00 to the ton right through, but, for an example as to future earnings, and to figure safely, we will say that the ore will average $25.00 to the ton. Now, the capacity of a five-stamp mill is about fifteen tons of ore per day, but for safe figuring we will place it at ten tons per day. Ten tons of ore at $25.00 per ton per day will amount to $250.00 per day. It will cost to operate a five-stamp mill, including cost of mining the ore, about $25.00 per day, which will leave at least $225.00 per day profit for each five-stamp mill installed. One mill alone for one month, 26 working days, will make a profit of $5,840, or a trifle over $70,000 for one year. Ten of these mills of the capacity of five stamps will be installed at the earliest possible moment. Ten mills of this capacity when in operation will produce a profit for the company of from $750,000 to $1,000,000 per annum, but the number of mills will eventually be more than ten.

The great Treadwell mines at Juneau, Alaska, now have more than 3,000 stamps in operation. Their ore averages only $2.60 per ton, yet it is one of the most profitable gold mines in the world. They started at one time just as the Highland Mary is starting now. They have grown, and the stockholders have grown rich. Ore can be mined and milled at Larder Lake as cheaply as at Juneau. The ore at Larder Lake averages twenty times the value per ton, and there is more of it to mine than at Juneau. These are facts that should be remembered. Highland Mary will make stockolders rich. Buy now before the big advance that will soon take place. Buy to keep; buy for investment.

Capitalization of Highland Mary, $3,000,000. Par value of shares, $1.00, 1,000,000 shares in the treasury for development purposes.

Among some aliens who reached Grimsby recently, was a Jew, Ilzek Breistein, aged 26, who with his mother, had come from Warsaw, and who was going to Manchester, where the mother lives. The man, who had his throat bandaged, told a terrible story. He said that three months ago, hooligans broke into his house and murdered his wife and three young children. The wife had her throat cut while the children were torn limb from limb. Another Jewess living with them, who had had only been married five months, His feeble attempts to save his family resulted in his throat being cut, but he escaped and was taken to the hospital. His mother was sent for, and had journeyed to Russia to fetch him home. Both presented a pitiable appearance, suffering from general debility. And when his brothers, who had travelled from Manchester, vied with each other in offering their homes, and guarantees to maintain him as long as he lived, the committee without hesitation granted his appeal. The unfortunate man was admitted to the hospitality of these shores, and the reunited family fave way to their joy and embraced with many ejaculations of thanksgiving.

A scare had been created in one of the poorer parts of Cambridge by a supposed supernatural visitation. Night after night mysterious muffled knockings have been heard in a house, apparently at a certain spot in the ceiling of the living room. All efforts to account for the noises have failed. Neighbours, who were almost as frightened as the occupants of the house, were called in a vain endeavour to elucidate the mystery, and boards of the floor in the bedroom were raised above the spot from whence the noise proceeded, but nothing has been found. Three or four evenings in succession the muffled knockings were heard at regular intervals, and the family left the house for several nights. On their return the noises were again heard, and they once more left the house, declaring that nothing would induce them to return until the mystery was solved.

Presenting himself to the sentry at Henry VIII.'s Gateway, Windsor Castle, one day recently, Patrick Donovan, just released from prison, under the Home Secretary's new order, said that he had come for the keys of the castle. He assured the sentry that the king's residence belonged to him, and that he was to dine with his majesty, but when the sentry remained unconvinced he turned away and subsequently told his story to a policeman at Eton who arrested him. On being placed in a cell at the Slough police station, it is stated that he made two attempts to hang himself. An order was made for his removal to a lunatic asylum.

Among the recent arrivals at the London Zoological Gardens is a python, which shipped itself on board the S. S. Hyson of the Ocean Steamship Company, and was only discovered among the cargo of white logs, when the vessel was being unloaded at the Albert Dock. The stowaway was promptly secured by means of a sack, which was thrown over it, and the authorities at the Zoo were communicated with. When Mr. Tyrrell, who looks after the reptiles at Regent's Park, arrived at the dock, he found that the snake was a young reticulated python, some three feet long, and although suffering from the effects of its captivity in the sack, it was otherwise uninjured.

A young man, named John Connolly, met with a terrible death recently, falling a distance of 80 feet over a cliff into the sea at Marsden. Connolly, with his father had been engaged in field work near the cliffs, and during the day was missed. Later, a searcher, looking over the cliffs, saw Connolly lying in Marsden Cove, with the tide gradually covering him. The rescurers had to wade out in about three feet of water to reach the man, who was alive, although unconscious. He was carried to the top of the cliff, where a doctor said that he was suffering from a fracture of the skull. He died subsequently at the South Shields Infirmary.

There was found in Manchester the other day a pistol which is believed to have been used in the murder of Police Constable Cook in 1878, to which Charles Pease confessed when awaiting execution for another crime in 1879. At the time of the murder, when William Habron was tried and sentenced to death, a vigorous search was made for the weapon. The other day in draining a ditch some labourers came across a pistol, covered with rust and choked with clay. It has a single barrel with a fairly heavy stock, and it has plainly been a most serviceable weapon, and of some value, as all the metal work was orilinally silver plated.

How Johan Tornse, the Norwegian Vice-Consul at Cardiff, had his wish fulfilled to the letter, was related at an inquest a few days ago. Miss Hart, a nurse, while walking along the Penarth Cliffs, saw him sitting on a seat apparently in a sort of faint. Having laid him on the seat, and propped his head on her lap, she sent for a doctor. Before the latter's arrival, however, death had occurred. A day or two previously, the doctor said, Tornse told him he would die, and when the time came for him to die, to take a walk, sit down on a seat and quietly pass away. A verdict of "Death from heart failure," was returned.

How a girl named Emily Allen, of Somers town, had a remarkable escape from death at Barnsbury station, was related at Clerkenwell, London, recently. She was seen by Frederick Gosling to throw herself in front of a train. The train rushed over her and when he stopped to pick her up he found that all her injuries were slight bruises on the head and throat. Accused of attempting to commit suicide she said she had no recollection of the affair, and a medical man explained that she was subject to fits of loss of memory. The girl was placed under the care of the police court missionary.

Mr. Philip Baylis, M. A., of Whitemead Park, Dean Forest, Glos. and of Ledbury, Hereford, barrister-at-law, whose estate is valued at 11,179 pounds, left some curious provisions in his will. He directs that his horses shall never be sold, "but that after my sisters shall have no further use for them they shall be well fed, and then painlessly shot and decently buried and that my dogs be kindly treated and kept so long as they enjoy life, especially my little friend, Satan, who is to be allowed to live as long as he can." He also left instructions for the principal veins of his body to be opened after his death.

A unique exhibition of mine rescue work took place near Newcastle, recently for the benefit of the North of England Institute of Mining and Mechanical Engineers. A gallery of considerable length was erected in a field and produced very faithfully the condition of a mine roadway after an explosion. A number of men equipped with various types of rescue apparatus demonstrated the utility of the appliances, and they were afterwards put to the test of entering a gas-filled chamber. The most interesting apparatus shown supplied air to the rescurers by the evaporation of liquid air.

SCOTLAND

One night recently an incident of a highly exciting nature occurred at Fraserburgh Harbour. Owing to the heavy herring fishing which was being landed at the time, hundreds of people were engaged in the vicinity of the harbour, when a horse and cart belonging to a carting contractor fell over the edge of the North Pier into the water below. With commendable presence of mind, the driver of the cart, a young man named Simpson, jumped from the quay down into the cart and released the horse from the harness. The cart sank almost immediately, and Simpson was quickly rescued from his perilous position, while a host of willing workers sought to save the horse. Boats were launched from almost every pier, but the spirited young animal was evidently bent on effecting its own rescue, for it started to swim right up the North harbour, which was lined with herring boats at the time. After swimming to the upper end of the harbour and failing to find a landing place, the horse turned and proceeded right round the point of the North Pier and out into the open water at the harbour entrance. Hesitating there for a visible period, it continued its watery way in a southerly direction and swam at a rapid rate to the south basin of the harbour. Making a bee line for the farthest corner of the basin, it did not halt until the sandy beach adjoining the curing yards at the Reclaimed ground had been reached. There the plucky horse walked ashore and shook itself vigourously. It was secured by a group of eager spectators and led homewards, apparently little the worse for the lengthy swim.

Kilwinning, Ayrshire, has been the scene of a religious riot, the Provost's house being practically wrecked by the mob, while the police have been badly maltreated. The cause of the disturbances, which began a couple of weeks ago, is friction between Roman Catholics and the Orangemen, following the trial and sentence of an anti-Popery lecturer named Marchmont, who is in his 70th year. A crowd of 300 men marched to the Roman Catholic quarter in Corsehill and the police followed. They met the crowd returning, and one of the constables was struck on the back with a stone and badly injured. This invasion into the Catholic territory was evidently a ruse on the part of the mob in order to draw the police after them, for meanwhile a crowd of 1,000 attacked Provost Hamilton's house. They wrecked his shop in the main street, and smashed the windows of the public house of John McGlade, a Catholic. When the police got to the Provost's house they discovered that two of their comrades were seeking shelter in an adjoining house, the windows of which were completely smashed. The officers, who were afraid to come out of the house, had raised the anger of the crowd by apprehending a man whom they caught throwing stones at the windows of the Provost's house. One of them was injured on the head with a stone, and also on the leg. There was a renewal on the following night of the disturbances. An Orange mob filled the streets, but a force of 50 police had a restraining effect, for no organized demonstration was attempted.

In a small Clydesdale village they posses a vigourous and strong-minded "beadle," who guards with jealous eye the sacred edifice and performs the duties of his office with a robustness and style peculiarly his own. Recently a "gentleman of the cloth" had an encounter with this autocrat. He was filling up a gap occasioned by the absence of the incumbent, and as was his custom, dispensed with the town. Noticing that the usual ministerial habili ments had been discarded, the worthy beadle asked for an explanation. It was soon forthcoming, and was to the effect that ministers of the particular denomination to which the officiating parson belonged did not wear the gown. But the explanation was not sufficiently convincing; and, turning upon the clergyman with flashing eye, the beadle exclaimed, "Custom or no' custom, no' wan step will ye pit on the poopit stair until ye pit on the goon." Persuasion and argument were unavailing, as, with his back to the vestry door, the beadle proved adamant. Finally the "gentleman of the cloth" capitulated, and the service was proceeded with in the orthodox way.

Mr. A. Donald of Glasgow had an exciting struggle with a burglar one night recently. Returning home with his wife about 9 o'clock, he was in the act of unlocking the door, when it was opened suddenly from the inside, and two men darted out and attempted to rush past. Mr. Donald seized both, but one managed to shake himself clear, and ran off. The other struggled violently, but his captor held fast. At length the thief produced a jimmy and struck Mr. Donald a blow on the head, which stunned him and caused him to relax his grip. The man bolted, but several neighbours, who had been attracted by the noise of the scuffle, started in pursuit, and after a hot chase they secured him and handed him over to the police.

The days of Gretna Green's glory are departed, and the office of the present "priest," Mr. Peter Dickson, is a sinecure; but a couple of weeks ago its romantic traditions were revived when it became known that a stock broker's clerk from Belfast had got wed in the manner of runaways of half a century ago. The bride belongs to the Border burgh of Annan, distant eight miles from Gretna, and the wooing only occupied four days. The bridegroom came to the town on a visit to friends, and the first time [illegible] wife he fell head over ears in love. He pursued his suit with assiduity, and hiring a carriage bore off his sweetheart to the scene of rapid unions. The fee was 7s. 6d. The parties intend going through a more regular marriage later on.

A sad drowning tragedy occurred recently on Loch Linnhe, Perthshire, when a Mr. Whitelaw of Callander, and his nephew were drowned. Mr. Whitelaw's son and nephew went out in a small boat on the loch, and the boat capsied. Mr. Whitelaw, who witnessed the accident from the shore, dashed into the water and swam towards the struggling boys. He succeeded in bringing his son to land and immediately re-entered the water to attempt the rescue of his neptew. Becoming exhausted, however, he sank and was drowned. His nephew was also drowned.

A tramp, named Chas. Carr, met with a terrible death one afternoon recently on a slag fill connected with Calder blast furnaces, Coatbridge. Carr had taken shelter near some slag crevices, when a tram of hot slag boulder was tipped over him. The molten slag appeared in all directions, and huge pieces pinned the unfortunate man to the spot. When extricated he was dead.

IRELAND

An extraordinary story of a moonlight raid which was made late one night, recently, near Athenry, county Galway, has come to hand. According to this account, at about seven p.m. a party of moonlighters made a determined attack on Monatique House, firing shots into the mansion and shattering a number of windows. The house had been under constant police protection for months past, and a pitched battle took place, upwards of fifty shots being fired. Royal Irish Constabulary were lying in ambush quite close to the residence, and when the first shots had been fired they confronted the party of ten marauders, and at a distance of thirty yards or so poured a volley into them. Immediately after the band of ruffians had delivered their first volley they were on the point of retiring, but when the constabulary fired they again loaded their guns and delivered an attack on the police. The latter vigourously responded with their magazine rifles. A desultory fire continued for some time between the combatants, but the shooting of the moonlighters was not by any means good. Some of the police, however, had narrow escapes after the second volley of the attacking party. The cause of the outrage is said to be due to the fact that Mr. Martin M'Donagh, merchant Galway, holds a large farm from which a number of tenants were evicted some years ago, and there is difficulty as to effecting a sale. There were ten occupants in the house at the time the shooting took place.

Father Convery is the hero of the hour in Belfast. Father Convery has as surely saved the lives of many people walking about the streets of Belfast as if he had interposed his body between them and the bullets. Armed with nothing more formidable than an umbrella, Father Convery has for hours been engaged preventing rioting. His umbrella grasped in the middle, his eyes shining through his glasses, he looks like Pickwick turned militant. "What are you standing there for?" he would ask a group. "Walk about. I won't have you standing at corners." The men moved on. His worst trouble was with the "hooligans," many of whom also did not belong to the district. One man who tried deliberately to start a row had only been a day out of prison, where he had been sent for theft. The priests and magistrates took a short way with him. Householders were appealed to, and one was found who couldn'ock the miscreant up, and locked up he was till morning. Father Convery had ten or a dozen prisoners in this way.

The town of Tralee in County Kerry was thrown into a state of great excitement, one morning recently, by the antics of a man who was discovereda running along the housetops in Lower Bridge street, shouting like a maniac and hurling bricks, slates, and tiles at all who came within range. Alarmed by the noise a large number of the townspeople rushed from their beds and gathered in the street below. The police and the fire brigade arrived on the scene, and an exciting chase ensued. For three hours the maniac remained on the roofs, running from house-top to house-top with extraordinary nimbleness, and throwing missiles at his pursuers. Finally, while taking aim at a head thrust through a skylight, he overbalanced and slid down the roof. A constable seized hold of him just in time to save him from being dashed to the pavement of a back-yard 70 feetb elow. He was secured and taken to the police barracks, where he gave his name as Thomas Goffin, Ballinskelligs, Cahirciveen. It is stated that the man recently failed in his examination for the police, and his mind became unhinged.

News has been received to the effect that, the other day, the counties of Clare, Galway, King's Leitrim, Longford, and Roscommon were proclaimed to be in a state of disturbance, requiring an additional establishment of police. Mr. J. P. Farrell, M.P., for North Longford, and fifteen others were arrested and charged before a special court later in the day with unlawful assembly. Evidence was given by the police that they had seen the accused driving cattle, and that they had assaulted the police, Mr. Farrell directing the operations with his umbrella. All the defendants were returned for trial at the Assizes. Meanwhile, Longford is in a great state of excitement, and hundreds of police are pouring into the town, which is practically in a state of seige.

The wife of a Lurgan carpenter, named Cook, who gave birth to triplets—two boys and a girl—has been presented by the Lord Lieutenant and the Countess of Aberdeen, with a handsome and costly perambulator, specially built to hold three children. On a brass plate attached to the carriage is the following inscription: "Presented to Mrs. Cook by the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Countess of Aberdeen, with hearty congratulations on the occasion of the first birthday of her triplet of babies. With all best wishes for their future welfare." Accompanying the gift was a letter of congratulation from Lady Aberdeen.

According to the annual report of the registrar-General of Ireland the number of births in 1906 was 103,536 and the number of deaths 74,427. Against this natural increase of 29,109 in population must be placed a decrease of 35,344 by emigration, showing a diminution in population of 6,230. During the year there was, however, a setoff in immigration, of the number of which there is no official record. The estimated population of Ireland in the middle of 1906 was 4,388,006. The number of marriages registered in 1906 was 22,622. The birth rate was 23.6 per thousand.

A party of two hundred persons a few daysago drove the cattle off the Pearse and Perceival holdings, near Longford. The police charged the "drivers" with their batons, but they themselves were injured, and had to retire and allow the "drivers" to proceed. An attempt to drive cattle from the McCann holding was successfully resisted by the police.

PANDORA RANGE

A Strikingly Handsome Range

The owner of a Pandora is always proud of the impression this strikingly handsome range makes upon her neighbors.

The solid, compact appearance of the smoothly finished body, the bold, large pattern of the carving, and the brilliance of the heavy nickel coating, combine to produce an effect that is distinctly pleasing to the eye of the most critical observer.

The Pandora Castings undergo a "special process" to make them easily and quickly take a lustrous shine.

The Nickeling is done with extraordinary care—will not chip and crack like the nickeling on ordinary stoves, but will retain its smoothness and brightness for years.

Because of the absence of any fine, fancy carving, which catches and holds the dust, the Pandora is much more easy to polish and will remain clean longer.

Altogether, the Pandora is a very superior range.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct for free booklet.

ALL RUN DOWN

Weak---Nervous---Unstrung.

Thousands get run down and become invalids before they realize anything is wrong. By permitting low vitality to develop, the way is paved for fevers, pneumonia and diphtheria. To put off makes it all the harder to get well. The time to repair the system is right now, before the damage gets any worse. The remedy is Ferrozone; it revitalizes, renews, builds up vitality that outlasts old age.

FERROZONE is a genuine invigorator that banishes weakness, and instils surplus force and vigor into every organ of the body. Ferrozone sharpens the appetite, produces rich nutritious blood, and thereby contributes that sense of buoyancy that adds so enormously to one's pleasure and usefulness in life.

For all forms of debility, weakness, lack of blood or nerve tone, sleeplessness, tiredness and exhaustion, there is no medicine so vitalizing and potent as Ferrozone. Even one trial demonstrates its rapidly and certainty of action.

To restore the energy of youth, to get back your vital stamina and reserve force, there is positively no treatment so certain as Ferrozone. You have only to try Ferrozone to know the enormous benefit it invariably brings to all in poor health.

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy B. Ledue of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a saleslady. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I seemed to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says:—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

Gave New Strength

FERROZONE

It makes the weak strong, the sick well, and assures lasting good health.

WARNING—Beware of any substitute for Ferrozone; it alone can cure you. Sold by all druggists and dealers in medicine, only in 50c boxes containing 50 chocolate-coated tablets. By mail to any address if price is forwarded to N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

Explorer Peary And His Long Journey to The Far North

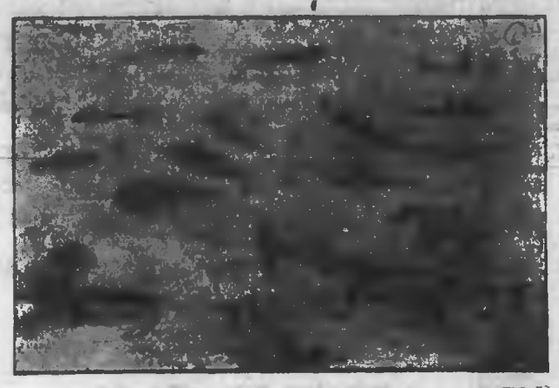
lieved me of the routine drudgery of observations, in addition to assisting in other ways. Added to this, Percy, the steward, was unremitting in looking out for physical comfort.

There are, however, so many trump cards which can be played against him who attempts to do serious work in the highest latitudes, that there is always some vital point which, in spite of every care and provision and forethought, threatens to go wrong.

Anxiety as to Dogs

The present occasion was no exception to the rule. Besides my anxiety in regard to the Roosevelt, which in comparison was of minor importance, I was in a constant state of apprehension in regard to the dogs.



Eskimo Drawings Made at Storm Camp.

Each party coming from the interior brought reports of additional deaths among these animals, until their number was reduced to the danger limit, below which it would be impossible for me to carry out essential features of the spring campaign.

In spite of these anxieties, however, my freedom from minor annoyances afforded me time and suitable frame of mind to devise new methods and items of equipment, which assisted materially later on. Among the latter was a quick-acting alcohol camp stove build upon a new principle; and among the former a plan of campaign and method of advance which possesses valuable possibilities, and which, had it not been for the unusual ice conditions marking the year, and particularly the disruption of the pack by the April storm, would have enabled us to grasp the prize which was the object of the expedition.

Exultation and Depression

Mingled with this work and these plans and anxieties, were times for thoughts and impressions, some of which will be given here, even though they may interest no one but myself, because to every normal mind they are as much a part of the Arctic winter night as the ice, the darkness and the cold. Moments of exultation and moments of depression. Moments of eager impatience, when I wished that the day for the departure north might be to-morrow. Moments of foreboding, when I dreaded its arrival. Moments of sanguine hopes, others of darkest misgivings. Thoughts and memories of the home land, dreams and plans for the future. At times the days seemed to rush by with the velocity of the flood-tide past Sheridan, at others they were as tardy as if moored to a rock. At all these times the pianola, Mr. Benedict's splendid gift, was invaluable, soothing and lightening many an hour, and sending me back to my work refreshed and with new energy. For rest and recreation from the monotony of incessant planning about the spring campaign, I began upon plans for another ship of the same general size and model of the Roosevelt for Arctic or Antarctic work, but with improvements and details modified in the light of experience gained with the Roosevelt.

Soul-stirring Contrast

On November 1st, I placed a minimum self-registering thermometer on the top of a hill 410 feet high, about a mile distant from the Roosevelt. On the 2nd, among other work some baled hay was opened for use in connection with the snow houses ashore, and the perfume of it brought back a rush of associations. What a contrast—this frozen, night-canopied land and sea-scape, and warm summer hayfields in God's country. It does not seem as if both could be upon the same planet.

On the 8th, four families of Eskimos came in from the Ruggles river. They have been in the field twenty-seven days and have secured some seventy-five musk-oxen, thirty to forty hare and twenty to twenty-five foxes. Besides musk-ox meat, they brought in some hundred pounds of the peerless salmon trout from Lake Hazen.

On the 15th, an aurora, one of several successive displays of no great brilliancy was in several respects different from any that I had even noticed. Occurring in the east, directly over some pools of open water, it was so slow as apparently to emanate from the water, and at irregular intervals the faint patches of auroral light would disappear completely to be replaced a moment later by a single spot like a pale parhelion close to the water. Occasionally, in place of the parhelion, a bright, narrow, vertical bar of light appeared. The 16th was marked by pronounced barometric and thermometric fluctuations, the former downward, the latter upwards, these abrupt changes, followed by violent wind from the south, and this in turn by a mile-wide belt of water reaching from behind Hawson past the ship and Cape Sheridan, and so northward toward Henry, as far as could be seen in the obscure moonlight.

THE STOMACH ON STRIKE

The Tonic Treatment for Indigestion is the Most Successful

Loss of appetite, coated tongue bad taste in the mouth, heavy, dull headache and a dull sluggish feeling—these are the symptoms of stomach trouble. They indicate that the stomach is on strike, that it is no longer furnishing to the blood the full quota of nourishment that the body demands, hence every organ suffers. There are two methods of treatment humoured by the use of pre-digested humored by the use of pre-digested foods and artificial ferments, and the new one—The Dr Williams' Pink Pills method—by which the stomach is toned up to do the work nature intended of it. A recent cure by the tonic treatment is that of Mrs. Jas. W Haskell, Port Maitland, N.S. She says:—"For years I enjoyed perfect health, but suddenly headaches seized me. I had a bad taste in my mouth; my tongue was coated; I grew tired and oppressed; my appetite left me and such food as I did eat only caused distress. I had severe pains in my chest. I lost all strength and was often seized with vomiting. At different times I was treated by some of our best doctors, but although I followed their treatment carefully I did not get any better. One day while reading a paper I came across a case similar to mine which had been cured by Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I immediately purchased a supply and it was not long before they began to help me. I grew stronger day by day till now I am as healthy as I ever was. I have a good appetite, am strong and active and can attend to my household duties without fatigue. I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. Williams Pink Pills to all sufferers from indigestion."

Rheumatism, kidney trouble, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, headache and backache, palpitation, general weakness, and a host of other troubles, find their root in bad blood just as in the case of stomach trouble. That is why the Dr. Williams' Pink Pills treatment is always a success — they are a powerful blood builder and nerve tonic. Sold by all druggists or direct from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50.

THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE PREDOMINATES

650,000,000 People Speak It—French Comes Second

Examiner Special.

London, Oct. 5.—Prof. Ridgeway has found that the English language is spoken by 650,000,000 people, Russian by 125,000,000, German by 115,000,000, and French by only 90,000,000.

Then follow Italian, spoken by 70,000,000 and Spanish by 65,000,000.

The statistics were collected for the purpose of advancing the cause of the English language as the diplomatic tongue, instead of the French.

YANKED OVER-BOARD BY FISH

Thought It Was a Whale That Pulled Jones From Boat

New York, Oct. 5.—Fred Jones, of Montclair, N. J., sailed from Perth Amboy yesterday with several fellow-members of the Neptune Fishing Club for deep-sea fishing. At the banks he tied his line around his waist and cast the hook into the sea.

Suddenly, with a yell, he shot over the side of the boat, yanked overboard by a mighty pull at the line.

Christopher Glynn, who was nearest, grabbed his legs as he was going under and had to use all his strength to hold him up until John Lennon and Guy Ungemah came to help him. The three had all they could do to get Jones back into the boat again and pulling at the other end of the line.

"It's a whale," spluttered Jones; "I saw it!"

Seizing the line with both hands and bracing himself against the gunwale, Jones, with the aid of his companions, played the "whale" an hour and then hauled in a bigfish weighing forty-four pounds. He took the catch home and placed it on exhibition.

COULD NOT PAY SMALL HOTEL BILL

Newport Police Drag Woman Off To Gaol

Newport, Oct. 5.—Acting on gossip that led them to designate her as "a mysterious woman," the police here seized Mrs. Ella Finnigan, of New York, at the instance of the Perry House, where she owed a trifling sum on a large bill.

Mrs. Finnegan, as she gave her name, is evidently a woman of good connections and some means. She came here Sept. 4, and registered at the Perry House.

When her bill was presented last night, and she settled all but $3, the hotel manager called in the police. Chief James Crowley asked the woman to ride to the jail in a carriage. She refused and he, with Inspector Griffith, conveyed her to the lock-up, where they served a warrant on her, charging her with "being an idle woman without visible means of support."

The woman fought for liberty all the way to the police station and refused to answer any questions, saying that her private affairs were no concern of the police. When arraigned she pleaded guilty to being unable to pay the small balance due the hotel, and then to the amazement of persons at the police court, some of whom had offered to aid her, she was discharged and told to leave town. She is said to have wealthy and influential friends in Washington.

THE ALDERMEN WERE MOBBED

Were Giving Away Valuable Franchises When People Stepped In

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The people of Whiting, Ind., know how to "influence" the city fathers when they persist in givin gaway valuable franchises. Five hundred citizens marched to the city council chamber to-day as a franchise was about to be granted to a street railway.

One man mounted the president's platform, usurping the chair and gavel. Two prominent business men, in fiery speeches, denounced the franchise. Then the franchise was put to a vote of the citizens' assembly and defeated unanimously. Alderman Long and Alderman Schultz attempted to speak, but were hissed to silence. An inkwell hurtled through the air and broke on Alderman Long's head.

He and Aldermen Schultz and Kozacik were then dragged to the front of the chamber, arraigned like prisoners and asked how they stood on the franchise. Kozacik weakened and declared he would vote against it. Long and Schultz said they would vote for it. Thereupon the citizens crowded close about the two aldermen and grew threatening. A general attack followed. Long edged away through the throng and escaped. Schultz was unmercifully pummelled. The police came but the aldermen had taken to the sand dunes.

TWO STORIES OF THE STREET

A doctor who has his fortune made and who has passed the stage when he sits waiting in his office for the patients who are slow in coming and who are not yet ready to trust themselves to his sometimes questionable treatment, can afford to be regardless of appearances. Few, however, would disregard public opinion to the extent of walking through the main streets in a pair of shoes of widely different hues. This was what a local doctor did yesterday, though, and did not notice, until his attention was called to it, by a friend whom he met on George street that he had one tan and one black shoe on. The revelation of this fact, however, did not disturb his equilibrium in the slightest, and it is probable that upon his return to his office he was able to administer with as little compunction as before the sugar-coated dough pills which, aided by the patient's imagination cures some of the ills to which flesh is heir.

The value—possibly it should be said, the necessity—of keeping oneself well informed on current happenings through the medium of the press was exemplified this week in rather a forcible manner to two young ladies connected with the operating staff of the Bell Telephone Company. They planned to attend the Keene Fair—as many other Peterborough persons did—and on Wednesday afternoon early started out to drive to the beautiful village on the shores of the Indian River. They arrived there too, but were somewhat surprised to find the town much quieter than they would naturally expect on a fair day. They inquired of some of the residents as to the reason for the unexpected calm, and were informed that they were a day too early—the fair was not until Thursday. The young ladies are recounting their experiences on this occasion to only their most intimate friends, but even they sometime tell things.

REYNOLDS' NOVEL REQUEST; WOULD RACE IF HE COULD BE ALLOWED TO PUSH CART

Port Hope, Oct., 5.—Jimmie Reynolds will, according to a statement made on his behalf to-day, agree to walk David Hartley from Port Hope to Toronto and return, on even terms, but he stipulates that a condition of the race shall be that he shall have the privilege of pushing a cart before him during the entire distance. It is assumed that the journey will be made easier if he is allowed to run the cart, as proposed. The Port Hope walker believes that, in spite of the fact that he is an older man than Hartley, that he can win in a walk if one of the conditions is that suggested.

Wife Leaves Husband Who Objects To Her Claim For Alimony

Mr. Wm. Haines Whose Wife Has Departed From the Family Roof Explains His Position

WIFE IS IN THIS CITY

He Sold Farm After She Left Him And Gave Her One Third of The Proceeds From Sale

A story of domestic infelicity is told the Examiner by William Haines, a young man, who, until a short time ago, and for the past four years has been farming in Cavendish township. It appears that, after having been married four years and bearing to him two children his wife, who is at the present time staying in the city, left him about the last of July. Mr. Haines states that he does not know any good reason why she should have left him, and that he is willing now to take her back and live peacably if possible, but she is not willing to do that, neither is she willing to give up the custody of the two children, who are bright youngsters, and whose loss he feels keenly.

Instead of returning to live with him, however, she wants him to provide for her, which he claims he has no right to do, in view of the fact that she left him voluntarily, and also that since she left his home Mr. Haines has sold his farm, and she has received, he states, one-third of the amount of the purchase price.

He is willing, he states, to forget the past and again receive her into her former relationship, but if she refuses to return he does not feel inclined to pay for her sustenance.

REV. H. J. KEITH PRESIDED AT SUCCESSFUL OPENING OF TEACHERS' GATHERING

O.R.F.U. Justified In The Course It Has Taken

Hamilton and Argos Have Shown No Consideration For That Body —Seconds Would Not be Fast Enough For Senior

ARGOS ARE VERY WEAK

The O.R.F.U. Executive, by placing the Tigers II. and Argos II. in the intermediate series has done a good thing for rugby, despite the howl from the Hamilton club. Neither the Argos nor Tigers have shown any consideration for the O.R.F.U., and have forsaken it for the new union. To let them substitute their second teams for their seniors in the O.R.F.U. senior series would be decidedly detrimental to the prestige of that body. The Argos II. would make a sorry showing against Vics and Peterboroughs, and their senior team would not be any too fast for the O.R.F.U. As for the Tigers II., they might be fast enough for the senior series, but it is doubtful. The seniors will require the services of some of their best men, and without them the subs will be weak, and it would not cause much surprise if Dundas crushed their championship aspirations right off the reel.

COUNCIL MEETING ON MONDAY

Large Amount of Routine Business Will Come Up For Discussion

The regular monthly meeting of the City Council will be held on Monday night, when a large amount of business will come up. There is nothing of special importance to be discussed, but there will be considerable routine business to go through, and reports will be received from nearly all the Council committees. It is likely that the Council meeting will be preceded by a meeting of the Committee of the Whole.

A CHANCE FOR THE BOYS—$75 IN PRIZES

An opportunity to win one of the eighteen cash prizes offered by the Examiner and amounting in the aggregate to $75.00, the highest $25.00, is offered to any boy in Peterborough. Details of this Newsboys' Competition are given on another page of this issue and it will pay the boys who are ambitious and who want to earn some additional money between now and the end of the year to read it.

Eighteen boys all stand an equal chance to win these prizes. The competition opens on Monday next, and will continue until the end of the year, when the division of the $75.00 will be made. Every boy, whether he is at present selling the Examiner or not, may enter this competition, and the one who is just commencing stands as good a chance to win the $25.00 for the first prize as one who has been working previously.

TWO MEMBERS OF FAMILY KILLED ON SAME BRIDGE AT DIFFERENT TIMES

Examiner Special.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—This morning, when W. Clifford Shelton, aged 21 years, was caught on the C. P. R. bridge, crossing the Rideau, and had his leg cut off, and his head so badly injured that he died, it marked the second tragedy, under similar circumstances, in the family. On June 26 last, his brother, Harry, aged 18 years, was also caught by a train and killed within a quarter of a mile of the spot where the accident occurred to-day. It is thought that in to-day's case, Clifford had been walking on the track and did not notice the train approaching until it was too late. His body was frightfully mangled, and death must have been instantaneous. The deceased leaves a father and mother and two brothers. He was unmarried. Coroner Baptie has ordered an inquest.

Youth Sells A Stolen Letter For Ten Cents

Takes It From Under a Gilmour Street Door and Says He Found It on Donegal Street

EXPLANATION NEXT DOOR

For making money, a youth in the west end of the city has a good many of his "pals" beaten, if his system were only legitimate. To carry out his scheme he needs a postman, and it is also necessary that the occupants of the residence be away when the postman calls.

Yesterday afternoon one of the west end youths called at a residence on Gilmour street with a letter belonging to the mistress of the house, which, he stated, he found on Donegal street. She thanked him and gave him ten cents for his trouble.

The woman, naturally, blamed the postman for losing it and considered that he was not yet quite familiar with his work. But, on going next door, she discovered from the occupants there that the postman had called and left the letter under the door. The boy had watched him and had taken the envelope from the threshold. He practically sold the letter, which he had stolen, to the woman for ten cents while the occupants were away, and pocketed the proceeds.

A DRUNK FORGOT HIS NAME

At Any Rate He Did Not Give it to Police This Morning

A drunk, whose surname is John, and may be John John, as far as could be found out, was remanded at the police court this morning until 4 o'clock this afternoon. The charge was of having been drunk and disorderly last night. John was making a nuisance of himself at the Royal Hotel and incidentally put his fist through a $2 pane of glass. His jollification is likely to have a few after expenses when the court hears the case.

The illustrations and material comprising the excellent article in to-day's issue of the Examiner on the Peary expedition in the effort to reach the North Pole, were made available for publication in this paper through an arrangement with the Winnipeg Free Press, from which splendid did journal it is re-produced by a special agreement, one which works to the advantage of this paper and to the benefit of its readers.

FORT WILLIAM LIBERAL TO Y.M.C.A.

Mr. Williamson's New Association Promises to Excell in Liberality—A Good Start

Mr. G. H. Williamson, who is leaving Peterborough in a short time for Fort William, where he will take charge of a new Y.M.C.A., is evidently going to a liberal-hearted people. The following despatch to the Toronto Globe to-day referat o the Association of which he will have charge:—

Fort William, Oct. 4.—Local enthusiasts, who a week ago met about the formation of a Y.M.C.A., held meeting with the greatest success. Having set as their goal $2,000, they have already secured $2,200, and money is still coming in.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

To Discuss Proposal For Methodist Church

Meeting of the Officials of Three Local Churches to be Held to Consider Building New Church

TO TAKE DEFINITE ACTION

The question of the proposal to erect a new Methodist church in the south end of the city will be discussed on Thursday night next, when a meeting of the officials of the three Methodist churches in the city will be held in the Charlotte street Methodist church for the purpose. This meeting is being called by the chairman of the district at the request of the Trustee Board of the George street Methodist church which passed a resolution to this effect last week. At this meeting the proposal of the George street church to erect a new new church and conduct it in connection with that established church, securing an assistant for Mr Pearson, will be submitted, and a discussion held on it. This will bring the matter directly before the churches of that denomination in the city, and it is probable that definite action will then be taken.

MR. TOOLEY LOST THE RACE

Was Defeated by a Toronto Friend in a Roller Skating Match

The last event of the season at the roller rink took place on Thursday night, when a matched race was held between Mr. M. C. Tooley, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, and a friend from Toronto, who was visiting him. The distance was one around the rink, and Mr. Tooley was defeated after a hard race. Neither contestant was in good shape, and the time made was very slow. Mr. Tooley had the best average, only falling 117 times, while his opponent went down 121 times. However, the latter was faster when he was on his feet, and won out. The rink management say that such events are too dangerous to the safety of the building.

IF EMPLOYEES WERE Y.M.C.A. MEMBERS COMPANY WOULD BE GIVEN BETTER SERVICE BY MEN

A Gratifying Endorsation Given Work of The Association by Head of City's Largest Industrial Concern at Last Night's Tea

MR. PATTERSON'S TRIBUTE

Mr. W. H. Denham Also Endorses Work-Campaign For $1800, is Given an Impetus—Mr. Roger Host at a Tea

A high endorsation of the value of the Y.M.C.A. to the young men, and incidentally to the inquatrial concerns of the city, was given last night at the tea held in the Association Hall, when a number of members of the Association, as well as some of the business men and heads of the local manufacturing institutions gathered as guests of Mr. G. M. Roger, in connection with the Six Days' Campaign to raise $1,800 to place the Association on a sound financial basis to close the present year with.

Mr. E. G. Patterson, general superintendent of the Canadian General Electric Company, in the course of his practical address, said that he would prefer every one of the many men employed in the works to be members of the Young Men's Christian Association. If they were, he was certain that the company would be given better service for the money paid the men. There was, he said, no question as to the benefits which membership in a Y. M. C. A. confers upon the young men.

In a friendly way, he suggested to the directors of the Association that if they took the public into their confidence to a greater extent, as to the work that was actually being done, and as to the disposition of the funds collected, they would find a more sympathetic interest being taken in it. He assured the officers of the Association of his personal interest in the work being accomplished, and wished the present movement every success.

Mr. W. H. Denham, superintendent of the Quaker Oats Company, stated that he found in his work that it was a difficult matter to secure men who were fitted by educational qualifications and otherwise to fill executive positions. This lack of available men, however, he thought, was being supplied by the Y.M.C.A., an institution in which young men who [illegible] or unwilling to obtain a greater degree of education, may, to a certain extent, repair the results of their early inability. He believed that an excellent work was being accomplished, and hoped that the Association would continue to prosper.

Mr. J. W. Bennet, who occupied the chair, explained briefly the efforts of the present campaign, and spoke of the workings of the Association. He was followed by Mr. G. M. Roger, who, as one of the members of the Board of Directors, expressed the appreciation of the interest shown by the business men, as indicated by their presence.

Some figures, showing the financial condition of the Association, the amount of money raised, and the means by which it was secured, were presented by the General Secretary, who stated that the work carried on in Peterborough was done so at a much lower cost than that in the majority of Associations of a corresponding size and membership to that of Peterborough.

The gathering last night was an interesting one, and will probably result in a deeper and more practical concern being taken in the work of the association.

It was announced last night that about $500 was already in sight, and it was anticipated that, with the energetic work which would be carried on during the remaining days of the campaign the effort would be successful.

Campaign Echoes

Let there be no mistake. The campaign will close on Tuesday evening.

It means work on the part of every man concerned.

"Let the young men excel in good works."

The Citizens Committee will have to hustle to beat the young men.

A steady pull will do the work.

What the Y.M.C.A. work means?

The Young Man.—Home comforts, companionships, recreation, intellectual culture, physical fitness, spiritual growth.

The Employer — Increased efficiency, honesty, sobriety, loyalty.

The Young Men's Committee are getting after the members.

Membership in the Y.M.C.A. was never so popular as just now.

The tea on Monday night will be largely attended.

The Fellowship Club will entertain the ministers of the city to-night.

Only subscriptions payable before December 31st can count in the six days' campaign.

Work! work! work! and win! win! win!

MOTHER-IN-LAW PROBLEM; JOHN SNEED'S VIEWPOINT

In Letter No. 8, in the series on "The Making of a Successful Wife," published in the Examiner to-day John Sneed plunges into the question of the Wife's Mother-in-law. John had a mother-in-law himself, and he knows all about it. His advice to his daughter is good, and she, and all other young wives will do well to follow it. This is, possibly, one of the most perplexing problems of married life, and requires delicate handling. John shows in his letter that he has given it some thought. Read his contribution on the matter on page three to-day.

DRILL SCOW AT DREDGE BEGAN TO SINK

Pump Kept Going All Night And Danger Is Now Past

Some trouble was experienced yesterday at the dredge Trent, above the Hunter street bridge, when the drill scow, without notice, began to sink. This scow is only used on few occasions, and the water had gradually worked its wayt hrough until it became heavy enough to sink. The dredge was pulled back to the sinking scow, and the pump kept going all night. The barge is to-day on top of the water and out of danger.

SHOULD NOT PAY FOR SEPTEMBER

North End Resident Complains That The Board of Education Should Not Collect Fees

A north end resident to-day called the attention of the Examiner to what he considers a mistake on the part of the Board of Education in connection with the Queen Alexandria School. He pointed out that while the pupils had only been able to attend the school for about six days last month the fees for the month were being collected as if there had been school during the whole month. He did not think that the parents should be asked to pay for something their children did not receive and was of the opinion that no charge should be made for September.

FOR PURE FOOD

In a letter, reproduced from the Toronto World, in another column of this issue, the subject of meat inspection is dealt with in a manner which emphasizes Alderman Elliott's proposal for the establishment of a public abattoir for Peterborough, where animals would be slaughtered subject to inspection. The letter points out that the Dominion inspectors stationed at the packing houses, have already rejected a large number of cattle and hogs, as unfit for human use. In the course of business, without inspection, the meat resulting from the slaughter of these unfit animals, would, most probably, have been placed on the market, and have passed into consumption. The otherwise purchasers of such condemned meats are protected. Who are they? Principally foreigners, for a large proportion of the meats prepared in packing houses is sent abroad. What safeguard or protection against tainted or diseased meat have local consumers? The animals are slaughtered without inspection, and, there is reason to fear, that, without inspection such as would be provided at a public abattoir, many animals, which are condemned by Government inspectors as unfit for foreigners, might, and do, find their way upon the local market. The matter of the inspection of animals, to be slaughtered for export abroad, or to other provinces, comes under Dominion authority, and is being adequately attended to. The inspection of meats and foods, for local consumption, is under provincial jurisdiction. The letter referred to, very pertinently inquires: "If the Dominion looks after the foreigner, and sees that he gets good meat, what are the provincial authorities doing for our food?" Is it possible or probable that we are incurring the danger of eating meat which may be condemned by the Government inspector as not being considered good enough for foreigners? Without insisting upon the economic reasons, which would otherwise justify the establishment of a public abattoir, is not the one reason that the risk of buying meat from diseased animals, killed for food, without the individual slaughtered being aware of it, reason enough? Are any reasonable trouble and expense too great a price to pay for the assurance that we are eating good, healthy, wholesome meats? It is absurd to expect sound, healthy bodies to be built up and nourished by meats from diseased animals and unwholesome foods.

RAILWAYS PAY

The fact that the revenue of Canada has reached the one hundred million mark is in itself very gratifying. This revenue, to which past revenues have been formidable runners-up, has an important bearing upon the development of Canada. The buoyant revenue which came in with the Liberal Government has permitted and justified a large expenditure in the direction of a general improvement of our transportation facilities, the keystone of national progress and development. Our canal system has been enlarged, our navigation facilities improved and general conditions of progress created. The part which railways have played in the growth of the country and the increase of revenue has been a great one, and has, from the point of view of dollars and cents, justified the national assistance they have received. If one were to ignore what is behind the statement, that Canada has given the Canadian Pacific Railway a hundred millions of dollars, it would be regarded as evidence of magnificent extravagance. What is this hundred million? It represents $3,000,000 a year at 3 per cent. And what is behind that? Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, at the annual meeting of the railway company, of which he is president, showed that the Canadian Pacific pays out—injects into the commercial arteries of the country—in salaries and wages, $3,700,000 a year, and maintains in comfortable living, 350,000 persons—the entire population of the city of Montreal. When to this is added the multitudinous industries and commercial activities dependent for their existence and success upon the means of transportation provided by the railway, it means that about a twelfth part of the population of Canada derives its daily bread from the Canadian Pacific Railway. Without any detailed attempt to prove this practically self-demonstrated theorem, the fact remains that the debt which Canadian development, growth, progress and prosperity owe to our railways is of simply incalculable magnitude. Whatever assistance the country, within the limits of its capability, extends to railways, is repaid a hundred-fold in a hundred different ways. Any public money thus spent is a profitable investment; not by any means, when analyzed to the last, a gift. What we have gained by liberally assisting the Canadian Pacific Railway forms a splendid precedent for the aid Canada is giving towards the building of another great transcontinental railway.

IN BOTH INTERESTS

Whether influenced or not by the recent epidemic of railway accidents, the Grand Trunk has done a wise thing in limiting the hours during which train crews shall work continuously. A circular has been issued to all trainmen of the Grand Trunk Railway, which requires that all train crews shall take eight hours' rest after sixteen hours upon the road. This may be, and doubtless is, a great improvement over old conditions; but one would think that 16 hours—beginning at, say, seven o'clock in the morning and lasting till eleven at night would constitute a pretty strenuous day, especially for an engineer. The latter is subjected, while on duty, to a perpetual and trying strain. He requires to be on the alert every second. His machine must be looked after to see that [illegible] is working properly; every rood of track must be scanned every moment. In addition to the actual physical and mental strain, there is the overwhelming sense of responsibility. Under the hand that grips the lever, rest the life and safety of scores of passengers or thousands of dollars of property. He must, besides run to schedule and in a hundred ways, unknown to the untiated, for two-thirds of a day keep his mind, his eye, his ear and all his physical powers on the alert. After sixteen hours of such stress, it is not surprising that the limit of human endurance and, therefore, the limit of responsibility should be reached. The average engineer and trainman in whatever capacity, play the common place role of uncommon heroism every day, and in nine hundred and ninety-nine cases out of a thousand prove themselves worthy of the trust they inspire in the average passenger. The latter rests in his seat or sleeps as soundly in his berth, whirled along at sixty miles an hour, and with as much unreasoning sense of safety as he would feel in his drawing room or his bed at home. It is true this equanimity is disturbed occasionally by some appalling accident, due perhaps to a moment's surcease of vigilance on the part of a physically exhausted trainman who has been on the rack of duty for fifteen or twenty hours. But habit soon conquers again and the old feeling of security returns. This return will be all the more speedy under the new condition of shortened hours of trainmen. Travellers by Grand Trunk trains will have an added feeling of assurance that the danger of accident due to overworked train crews has been reduced to a minimum. The new order is in the interests of both the railways and the travelling public.

MONTHS OF AGONY

A Severe Case of Rheumatism Cure by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

'For many weary months I suffered untold agony. I could not walk. I could scarcely raise myself to a sitting posture. I was under medical care, but in vain. Finally I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and they have restored me to my former healthy condition."

This strong statement was made to a reporter recently by Mr. Charles S Koddey, formerly of Kingston, N.S., but now living at Port Maitland. Mr. Keddy is a carpenter by trade, and is now able to work every day. He adds. "I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as [illegible] cured me after other medicine failed. While I was living at Kingston, N. S, I was seized with rheumatism in its most violent form. I was compelled to take to my bed and for months was an invalid. I was so weak that it was difficult for me to raise myself to a sitting posture. It is impossible to tell how much I suffered day and night, week in and week out. The pains were like piercing swords. I had medical attendance, but it failed. Then I tried medicines advertised to cure rheumatism, but with the same result—money wasted. One day when hope had almost gone a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I told him my experience with other medicines, but he assured me that these pills would cure rheumatism, so I sent for a supply. After using a few boxes I was able to leave my bed, and from that on my restoration to health was rapid. I am now as well as ever I was, and have not had the slightest touch of rheumatism since. The change they have wrought in my case is simply miraculous, and I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from any form of rheumatism."

Rheumatism is rooted in the blood. Rubbing the aching limbs with liniments and outward remedies cannot possibly cure it. You must get the rheumatic acid out of the blood and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the one sure medicine to do this, because they actually make new blood. That is why these pills cure anaemia, headaches and backaches, neuralgia indigestion and the secret ailments that make miserable the lives of so many women and growing girls. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BEARS NOT ALLOWED TO PERFORM

Are Chased by Chief Off The Market And Out of The City

Two Italians and two bears made their appearance on the market this morning but received an unwelcome from the Chief of Police. The bears were of the funny variety and might have taken away a good many of the spare coppers of the boys, had they and their owners not been ordered to vacate the city.

The last time they were seen was on the line of march in the direction of Jackson Park.

DO CHURCH PEOPLE STEAL?

A "Sufferer" Says Hymn Book and Prayer Book With His Name Engraved Were Taken From The Church

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir—There is a commandment among the ten which reads, "Thou shalt not [illegible]." I think probably there are a few in this city who attend church, that may not have heard of it or may not have a Bible that it may enlighten them. It does not seem to matter whether you have your name printed in gilt on the outside or engrossed on the inside. Books disappear mysteriously out of the pews of a certain church, whose sweet-toned bell may be heard every Sunday morning calling the citizens of this fair city to worship.

The writer, in the past few months has lost two books from his pew—one, a Book of Common Prayer, with the name printed in gold on front of cover, and a presentation plate, beautifully engraved, on inside of front cover; giving name and source of receipt, some twenty-six years ago. The other book disappeared a week ago—was a copy of Hymns, Ancient and Modern, music and words. Owner's name and pew number plainly written on inside of front cover, and pew number printed on ends of book. These books do not belong to the persons who have them in their possession at the present time, and I [illegible] be thankful for their return to [illegible] proper place in my pew in church.

Yours thankfully,

"THE SUFFERER."

Ill Temper From a Bad Liver

Carlyle justly attributes the ill-temper which made him a monster in the eyes of the world, to a bad liver. Nothing makes one feel more gloomy and discouraged, than liver complaint and consequent billiousness and dyspepsia and nothing so promptly and thoroughly sets the liver right and overcomes these ailments as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, the great family medicine.

Nimrods Preparing Stories And Supplies For The Hunt

Opens on November 1st—A Hunter of Last Year Tells Something About Training in Hounds

CATCHING BIGGEST BUCK

Although the hunting season for the antlered monarch of the forest will not be ushered in for more than three weeks, the nimrods are already preparing to hie them back to the tall timbers in quest of the fleet-footed game. The hunters have already become enthused over the expectations of November 1, and many are the stories of the deer and hound told by the enthusiastic nimrods.

"Talking about dogs," said one of these last night, who is counting the days until November 1, "let me tell you of an experience we had last year with a hound belonging to Bob. Bob bought the dog in the hotel yard the night we left Peterborough, and paid $7 for it, although the unknown salesman asked $10 in the first place. It appeared to be a likely looking hound, so Bob went up street and bought a new collar and chain. He was told that the dog would follow deer, so he thought that he had struck a bargain."

The relator of the tale went on to tell how Charlie—that was the man who set the dogs out each morning across Stony Creek, in Cavendish township—managed to get the hound to run.

A Poor Hunter

"The first morning Charlie took charge of the half dozen we had but the new one refused to take his eyes off him. Charlie was determined that he would yet make a hunter out of him, and next morning he took him out again. He was started off on a fresh deer track, but only went 25 yards before he stopped to see if Charlie wasn't coming, too. I was watching the proceedings, and presently the dog got away for a couple of hundred yards, giving tongue nicely, and Charlie was in his glory.

"'I knew I could train him,' remarked our confident Charles, but the words had not died away before the d—d hound turned, and refused to go farther, whereupon Charlie levelled his gun and shot the dog dead."

"What did Bob have to say about it?"

"Oh; Bob never knew what happened his pet; he thought it was lost and couldn't find the camp."

Lucky Jim

Next he told of how the biggest buck was shot on one of the darkest nights of the hunting season. One of the dogs had been lost on the afternoon of the hunt, but just after supper, when the weary hunters had begun to fill their pipes, they heard him giving tongue, about a mile distant, and coming towards Stony Creek. He, and one of the other members of the party quickly jumped into a canoe and paddled up the creek.

But scarcely had two hundred yards been covered when they heard a loud splash in the creek. Realizing what was up, they made for the spot from where issued the splash, just in time to see a deer's head making for the opposite shore.

According to the story, of course, the animal was shot, and proved to be the largest buck which that party secured last season.

"That dog was a green one, too," said the hunter, "and had never before chased a deer. He was mine," he added mournfully, "but I lost him last summer, and I will give any man $10 who returns him to me."

These are but a few of the hunting tales of the past that are floating about. They are now on every nimrod's tongue, and to any person who listens they will tell of how they shot "that big buck."

Eczema's Itch Is Never Ending
EXCEPT BY ACTIVE AND PERSISTENT TREATMENT WITH THE GREAT ECZEMA CURE.

When left to itself, eczema runs on indefinitely, causing keen distress from itching and covering the body with sores that refuse to heal.

Even with careful treatment, eczema is obstinate in yielding to curative measures, but the regular and persistant use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is the most certain means known of overcoming this torturing disease.

Internal treatments for eczema have long since been discarded, except the use of medicines to regulate the bowels and enrich the blood, while local applications are used to relieve the itching and heal the sores.

It is the remarkable success of Dr. Chase's Ointment in the cure of eczema which has given it world-wide recognition as the standard ointment for itching skin diseases.

Mrs. Robert Glendenning, Welland Station, Ont., writes:—

"For three years my daughter, Fanny, was afflicted with eczema in an intense and persistent form, and for nine days she was totally blind. The burning, itching and disfigurement were horrible, her entire face being completely raw for months, and the distress so great that she could not sleep.

"The best efforts of two eminent physicians failed to even mitigate her awful suffering. One day when I was low-spirited over my daughter's condition Dr. Chase's Ointment was recommended to me and to our surprise Fanny was helped with the first box and she has since been entirely cured by this treatment.

"Her face is now as smooth as a baby's and she is in splendid health. The credit for this cure is entirely due to Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I cheerfully give you permission to state my daughter's case, hoping that it will lead many others to secure the same good results."

There are a score of ways in which Dr. Chase's Ointment, with its extraordinary soothing, healing properties, is useful in every home; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

NEW RETAIL STORE FOR SOUTH END

The Geo. Matthews Company Opens New Store To-day at Corner Park and Sherbrooke Streets

MODERN IMPROVEMENTS

This morning the Geo. Matthews Company opened to the residents of the south and west wards of the city a new retail store at the corner of Park and Sherbrooke streets. The company, with characteristic progressiveness, has built a handsome new building, equipped with all modern improvements, and, like their other retail stores, the casual observer will notice that all the interior fittings are antiseptic in every respect, thus guaranteeing against any contamination of the meats. Of course, the people in the central and southwest parts of the city will benefit most by the new store, it being located on a most desirable corner, and a prompt delivery of provisions will be given to customers.

Interior Work

The visitor to the store is at once struck by the bright and clean appearance of the whole store. Large front windows facing Park street provide for a flood of light, and at night the store is lit up by an enclosed arc lamp. The walls are inlaid with white tile, relieved by a pretty stripe of blue an inch wide around the walls, and about four or five feet from the floor. The ceiling is finished with pressed metal, painted white; the counters have white marble tops and large marble slabs have been placed in the windows. The woodwork is in keeping with the rest of the interior, being of ash, with natural finish. The floor is of hardwood and completes all the fittings which provide for a clean, sanitary store. The building, which is of two stories, is heated by hot water, the radiators being conveniently placed in the store.

The office, or money exchange, faces the door, and is placed at the rear of the store. It is built of natural finish ash, and is after the ideas which the company has gained by a long experience. On the counter are found the most improved computing scales and there is also a Berkell meat slicing machine, manufactured in Holland, and is acknowledged one of the most modern of its kind.

The store is also provided with a large refrigerator, built on lines which the company has found to be the best for their purpose. Its fittings are also sanitary, and the people are assured that everything they buy is absolutely pure and wholesome.

The Contractors

The walls are fitted with iron meat racks made by Kennedy, the local blacksmith. The marble work is by Moore; the painting by Duncan & Doupe, the heating and plumbing by MacGregor & Reid; the electric wiring and fittings by Alexander & Miller, while Mr. Jas. Graham had the contract for the erection of the building.

Meats & Provisions

The company will retail the same line of goods as in their other stores, pork products, butter, cheese eggs, canned goods, pickles and a general line of provisions. Every article delivered from the packing house is Government inspected, and marked "Canada Approved," and the canned goods will be purchased from only reliable firms.

The South-End branch is in charge of Mr. A. Message, who will have two assistants, to look after the demands of the customers, and every effort will be made to please the public.

Over the store there are apartments for one family. The rooms are lighted by electricity; a bath is provided, and every household improvement. The company intends to do its best to cater to the wants of the people in the south and west, and the latter will in a short time make their purchases at the new store, instead of going up town, as in the past.

PHONOGRAPH KNOWS ALL THEY DID

Victim of Jealous Woman Appeals to The Court

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—H. Fischer, of 510 North Channing avenue, has complained to Assistant Circuit Attorney Don Sommers that a jealous woman had secretly concealed in the walls of his flat picture machine lenses and phonographic sensitized plates, which were making a complete record of everything said and done by himself and his wife.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Sommers, accompanied by detectives, to-day made a search of the walls with a powerful magnifying glass. The result of the investigated the noise a man and a Last Monday night Fischer told Sommers that someone tried to pry the blind off the front window. When he investigated th enoise a man and a woman outside told him that unless he "gave up $100" they would make public exposures of the records that they had taken.

Fischer says that he and his wife became suspicious when they continued to hear uncanny buzzings in the walls, both night and day until the sounds made them frantic. Later, he said, he investigated and found a picture machine outfit and a phonograph installed there with an operator, who said he had been employed by a former sweetheart of his. Fischer says that the woman is trying to separate him and his wife.

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE

Readily Relieved by Mixture Which Any-One Can Prepare at Home

SIMPLE RECEIPE GIVEN

Here is a prescription that anyone can mix at home. Any good prescription pharmacy can supply the ingredients named at little cost; being composed of vegetable extracts. It is harmless and inexpensive. Best of all it does its work well, relieving even the worst forms of bladder trouble, frequent urination, backache, kidney complaint, and by its direct action upon the eliminative tissue of the kidneys, makes these most vital organs rid the blood and system of waste matter and uric acid which causes rheumatism.

Here it is; try it if you suffer. Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kurgon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well known local druggist is authority for the statement that one weeks use shows good results in nearly every instance, and such symptoms as lame back, frequent desire to urinate, pain in bladder and even chronic rheumatism are generally relieved within a few days, the pain and swelling diminishing, with each dose.

POST CARD CORRESPONDENCE.

In this column will be published communications upon post cards only. It will remain open for the use of readers, who are invited to contribute suggestions, inquiries or replies. Anything of a scurrilous personal nature will be prohibited.

Editor Post Card Column:

Dear Sir,—I notice in the Examiner frequently references to the meeting of a Sabbath School Association. Is this a Christian or a Jewish country? Sabbath school should be conducted, it seems to me on Saturday and Sunday schools on Sunday. A Jew would be eligible to teach in a Sabbath school but wouldn't he be barred from a Sunday school?

Yours truly,
CHRISTIAN.

The Fight Against Disease Unless They Strike at the Underlying Cause

To treat Dandruff and Falling Hair with irritants or oils, upon which a parasitic germ will prosper is like scooping water from the ocean to prevent the tide from rising.

You cannot accomplish a satisfactory cure without having a right understanding of the fundamental causes of the trouble.

You must kill the Dandruff Germ. Newbro's Herpicide does this because it is specially made to do that very thing.

When the germ is removed the hair has no choice but to resume healthy growth and beauty.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes—50c and $1.00. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

Guelph Would Like The Automatic Phone Factory

The question of the location of a factory for manufacturing the Canadian Machine Telephone Company's machines and equipment is engaging the attention of some of the western cities. A recent issue of the Guelph Mercury recorded a visit to that city of Mr. N. D. Neill, and suggested that it was probable that the Royal City might be selected as the home of the factory. It says:—

Mr. N D Neill, the well known telephone magnate, paid a visit to the city, for the purpose of looking over Guelph for a factory location. The Automatic Telephone Company, of which he is the head, intend to erect a large factory for the manufacture of telephone supplies. They have visited a large number of cities with that purpose in view, but have not yet reached any decision. It is understood that Welland, Brantford and other places are still to be visited. The factory projected will be an immense affair, employing quite a few hundred hands. At present, the company have a plant in Toronto, but they have outgrown it.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt has been invited by the Montreal Star to contribute to the sermon column of that newspaper and will probably accept the invitation to become a contributor.

The dance given in the new Higgins Block on Friday evening last by the Bachelor-Maids of Parry Sound in honour of the Misses Gladman, who have gone to reside in Peterborough, was very largely attended. The rooms were prettily and effectively decorated with festoons and Virginia creeper and autumn leaves very appropriate to the season of the year. After a delicious supper the dance continued for an hour or two, concluding with "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. It was a very pleasant and successful affair in every way.—Parry Sound North Star.

FALLS INTO CULVERT AND EMERGES WITH BROKEN RIB

Falling into a culvert in an attempt to catch the train at Millbrook for Peterborough, last night, Gerald Haywood of Lakefield sustained some serious injuries. In company with a couple of Lakefield friends, he tried to catch the train as it was just pulling into the station, and as darkness had fallen he did not notice a culvert lying in his path. He fell into it, striking his breast against the opposite side, with bad results.

He lay in the ditch, were, fortunately, there was no water, for some moments in a semi-conscious state. His friends assisted him on the train, but he spent the night at the Munro Houuse, unable to go home.

Medical assistance was summoned, and the young man was found to rib broken, and others badly injured. To-day he was feeling some better, and was able to come down stairs.

A LITTLE "LIMERICK" FOR THE ALDERMANIC MIND

"Good morning," said a gentleman to one of a group he was passing on George street, yesterday. "I believe you were at the great Keene Fair yesterday.

"Yes I was and the outing was a great treat. The weather was splendid and every part of the road between here and Keene was splendid, too—as level as a floor—and—"

"Almost as good as the streets of Peterborough."

"Yes, better; there aren't two hundred yards of streets in the city as good as the Keene road."

"Better than George street?"

"Yes, ten times better."

"Last night," broke in another member of the group, "I drove in from Chemong and the road was beautiful—all right till I struck the city, then the trouble came."

"Isn't it queer," said another, "that almost any country road should be better than—"

Here is a little "Limerick" for the aldermanic mind to wrestle with. A prize of a last year's dog tag will be given to the first alderman to satisfactorily complete the sentence; satisfactorily to the city's self respect and to the good name of Peterborough.

FLINT WEDGE UNEARTHED ; CARVED BY A REDMAN

More evidence of the predominance of the once mighty Indian race was unearthed yesterday afternoon in a trench at the corner of Charlotte and George streets, in front of the Dustine House. It was a wedge-shaped piece of flint some five or six inches in width, and no doubt was the handiwork of some member of the prehistoric Redmen when they once were the monarchs of the forests, where now stands the city of Peterborough.

It may be that the stone was the instrument used by the Indians to skin the deer that once roamed the forests here and that were the victims of the Redman's arrow.

The flint was picked up by one of the workmen in Mr. Dick Martin's gang, about four feet from the surface. It was, perhaps, inspected by fifty or more persons yesterday, until finally corralled by a young relic-fancier, who claims to be an authority on the customs of the Redmen, but who, in reality, knows more about speeding events at a village fair or some other similar simple pastime.

"BLACK CLOUD" EXCLUDED AT WARKWORTH

The Warkworth Fair was held yesterday, and those from Peterborough who attended, speak very highly of the quality of the horses exhibited. The speeding events proved to be exciting, but "Black Cloud," the only Peterborough horse entered, was excluded on the ground that it was not an association track. Evidently those who had entered were afraid of the consequences should Black Cloud participate, and all the drivers informed the judges that they would not compete against her.

The result was that Bert McCollum, who was driving her, was forced to come home without getting into any of the events, even though he was invited to go to the Fair the previous day.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR A FINE NEW BAKERY BUILDING

The contract for erecting the new building for Mann's bakery has been let to Mr. T. M. McFadden. It will be a substantial structure, forty by one hundred and two feet, and two stories high. It is understood that work will be commenced in the near future on the building and that it will be completed as soon as possible.

When in a completed state this building will be one of the finest devoted to this class of business in this part of the province. The trade of this establishment has grown to such an extent that the premises in which the business has been housed have become too small, and it become necessary to provide larger. With the enlarged building ample facilities will be afforded.

WARDEN McNULTY OPENS FAIR

In Lakehurst Yesterday—Fair is Better Than Ever—All Harvey Attends

EXHIBITS OF BEST QUALITY

The thirteenth annual Harvey Fair, yesterday, was bigger and better than ever. The little hamlet of Lakehurst, where the Fair was held, was filled to overflowing with about 500 people, who came from all parts of Harvey, and from the other northern townships.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., was to have opened the exhibition, but, arriving late, Warden McNulty, who was present, was called upon by the president to open it. The warden congratulated the people of the township on the splendid showing of agricultural products and of stock, giving expression to his pleasure at being present, and for the honour conferred upon him to open a fair in one of the municipalities that comprised the county he represented as Warden. After a few further remarks along the lines of progressive agriculture in general, he declared the 13th annual Harvey Fair open.

The classes in horses were well filled and the animals were all good. The cattle showed up well, giving evidence of marked improvement from year to year in the breeding of cattle in Harvey. The roots and vegetables were something exceptional, and were not surpassed in quality in any of the larger fairs of the county.

The ladies' work, was splendid, and also compared favourably with any of the larger fairs, as least as far as quality was concerned.

Every accommodation was provided for the crowd of visitors, the Knox Presbyterian church furnishing dinner and tea. Every person left the grounds giving expression to their feelings of satisfaction with the Lakehurst Fair.

Among the judges there yesterday were Messrs. Ed. M. Elliott, county treasurer, Robert Scott, reeve of Smith, and George Fife of Otonabee.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907.

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

LECTURE TO BE GIVEN BY MR. DUNFORD

Survivor of Victoria Wreck Will Speak at Royal Templars Entertainment

Mr. Harry Dunford, one of the few survivors of the wreck of the "Victoria" in her collision with the "Camperdown," fourteen years ago, will give, in connection with Dan Spence Council, Royal Templars of Temperance, a lecture on his experiences, on Tuesday night next in their hall, George street. This gathering will be in the nature of a re-union for the autumn and winter, and in addition to Mr. Dunford's contribution, there will be a good programme of music and recitations, and refreshments will be served. The members of the Royal Templars will hold a short meeting to plan for the winter's work. The public is invited to attend the meeting, which will be free.

PAINLESS TEETHING

There is no period in baby's life that mothers dread more than teething time. The little gums are tender and inflamed; the child suffers and is sleepless and cross, and the mother is usually worn out caring for the child. The use of Baby's Own Tablets allays the inflammation, softens the tender, swollen gums and brings the teeth through painlessly. Mrs. N. Sauve, St. Rose de Lima, Que., says: "When my baby was cutting his teeth he was feverish and cross, and did not take nourishment. After giving him Baby's Own Tablets he got six teeth without any trouble. I have never used any medicine for children I prize so highly as the Tablets." Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts. a box, from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

FINGER NEARLY SEVERED IN A FALL

Henry Martin Was Loading Fuel And Cartage Co's Wood at Wolfe Street Wharf

Henry Martin, an employee of the Peterborough Fuel and Cartage Company, met with an accident on Tuesday, while loading wood on a wagon at the Wolfe street wharf, and may lose the index finger of his right hand. He was standing on the wagon, and another man was handing up the sticks. Without warning the horses started to run, and Martin was thrown to the ground. His hand was jammed by a stick of wood which he was holding and the index finger severely bruised. His physician is trying to save it although it may yet have to be amputated.

MILITARY CLASS OPENS FOR SEASON

Is Organized by Sergt. Major Brittain Last Night Under Favourable Circumstances

Last night a very promising military class was opened in the drill hall under the supervision of Sergt. Major Brittain. There were altogether eighteen in attendance, including one officer and seventeen non-coms. and privates, but the class will have a few more additions next week. The organization took place last night, when Sergt. Major Brittain gave an explanation of the work to be covered. The classes are to be held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening at 8 o'clock, for the next two months, and any others who desire admittance are requested to consult the sergt. major.

A PROPOSAL TO THE COUNCIL ON MARKET TOLL QUESTION

Dear Sir,—At the last municipal elections we heard a great deal about municipal ownership. The gas and electric light plant was to be purchased by the city outright and at once. To show how much wind was in the outcry not a move has ben made since. If, however, the aldermanic body want to go into municipal operation of public utilities, why don't they take the market tolls into their own hands, appoint a man to collect them and let the city pocket the profits. This should be done because the present style of farming out the market tolls is unsatisfactory to the public and not very profitable to the lessee, who, continually complains of very bad treatment at the hands of the aldermen. I hade been informed that the weighing is very imperfect and incorrectly done. A coal man told me of what he said were frequent incidents, in which a mistake of half a ton was made in subtraction, in estimating the weight of a load of coal. He says the dealers and the customers demand absolutely correct weight. With coal at $7.50 a ton a dealer can't afford to give half a ton extra, or the customer pay for half a ton he doesn't get, through a market clerk's mistake. Then, often the weighment is not to be found and a team and two men are kept under expense doing nothing. This condition, he says, applies to much of the weighing.

If the city wants to embark in municipal ownership let it begin with a proposition which is ready made. We should have to issue no debentures of $200,000 or $300,000 to buy the market tolls and the city might run them not only at a profit, but possibly more satisfactorily than is done at present. Will the mayor and aldermen take this up and act on it or will they work off more gas at next election about buying the gas plant, etc.

Yours truly,
PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Wm. H. Shaw Injured in The Mann Lumber Company's Factory

Mr. Wm. H. Shaw, an employee of the Mann Lumber Company, who lives at 275 Sherbrooke street, was the victim of a painful although not serious, accident, while at work in the plant of the company on Dublin street this morning. In some manner his hand came into contact with a circular saw and several fingers were badly cut. He was at once taken to his home and had his hand dressed. No serious results are anticipated.

LESSON STUDY WELL ATTENDED

Large Gathering Under Auspices of The Sunday School Teachers' Association Held Last Night

The opening meeting of the series arranged for the season by the Sunday School Teachers' Association was held last night in the Y. M. C. A., and it was in every respect a most successful and profitable gathering. The chair was occupied by Rev. H. J. Keith, while the study of the lesson was conducted by Sheriff Hall, who dealt with it in a manner which proved illuminating to the large number of teachers who gathered. Next Friday night Dr. M. A. Morrison will have charge of the study.

THE BIBLE CLASS WAS ENTERTAINED

A Pleasant Evening Spent at Residence Of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Lane Last Night by Young Men

ast night the members of the Young Men's Bible Class in the Charlotte street Methodist church Sunday school, taught by Mr. W. H. Collier, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Lane at their home, 327 Simcoe street. A delightful evening was spent in games and social intercourse, refreshments being served at its conclusion. Miss Edna Jobbitt and Miss Myra Moore assisted in the serving.

Newly Organized A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's Church Gets a Good Start

If a large attendance and enthusiasm mean anything, then the success of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Luke's church is secured, for there were a great many present last night, and a very happy evening was spent. Mr. H C M Potter, the President, was in the chair. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt opened with prayers. After business was transacted a puzzle contest took place in which Miss Elsie Dawson and Miss Electa Strong, obtained 1st and 2nd prizes. The ladies entertained and served refreshments.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, Oct. 18, when it will take the nature of a literary evening. Mr. R. A. Sutcliffe is in charge of the musical part of the programme, while Miss Ciara Adams will give a paper on "Tennyson," and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt will give an address on "Travelling." A number of new members were enrolled.

A SERIOUS SEDITION IN INDIA

Serious Rioting in the Streets of Calcutta.

EUROPEANS WERE PELTED

Hoodlums Line Housetops and Attack Passers-by With Bricks—Many Receive Contusions and Scalp Wounds—Native Press Blames Police—Accuse Them of Brutality—Denied by Authorities.

Calcutta, Oct. 5.—The rioting here, caused by seditious agitation during which about 40 policemen were wounded Tuesday night, was renewed Thursday evening in a number of streets of Northern Calcutta.

Students and hoodlums collected on the roofs of houses and in the roadways and pelted passers-by with bricks, Europeans being especially singled out for attack.

The Bengalie newspapers yesterday morning throw the whole blame for the riots on the police and print statements alleging police brutality, all of which is denied by the authorities and eyewitnesses. There was no loss of life, but many persons sustained severe contusions and scalp wounds, and many street cars were damaged.

DEPENDS ON BANK ACT.

Appeal Court Reserves Judgment In Ryan v. Montreal Bank Case.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—The Court of Appeal yesterday reserved judgment in the case of Bank of Montreal v. Peter Ryan, to set aside $1,000 for wrongful use of defendant's account.

In the afternoon George H. Watson, K. C., who appeared for Peter Ryan, discussed at length the various clauses of the Banking Act, and pointed out that the position the bank held was entirely different to that of the ordinary creditor and debtor. He contended, in support of Justice Clute's judgment, that under the act a bank had no right to sell a customer's account.

BURGLAR GETS INTO BED.

Refuses to Quit House He Had Robbed Until Daylight.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 5.—When Thomas Crossley, 80 years old, of Frosty Valley, near here, awoke early Thursday morning, he found a man in bed with him, swearing at him for pulling off the bedclothes.

Crossley shouted for help, but was silenced with a threat to kill him. The man then cooly told him he was a burglar, that he had ransacked the house, and that he meant to remain until daylight. He did so.

New Route to the Pole.

New York, Oct. 5.—The following message was received here yesterday by Herbert L. Bridgman from Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the scientist and explorer of New York:

"Etah, Aug. 6, 1907.

"My Dear Bridgman,—I have hit upon a new route to the North Pole and will stay to try it. By way of Buchanan Bay and Ellesmere Land and northward through Nelson Strait over the Polar Sea seems to be a very good route. There will be game to the 82nd degree, and here are natives and dogs for the task. So, here is for the pole. Mr. Bradley will tell you the rest."

Dr. Cook and party left North Sydney, N. S., in July on the American auxiliary schooner yacht John R. Bradley, which landed the party at Smith's Sound. Mr. Bradley returned to North Sydney on the yacht Oct. 1.

Salt Goes Up In Price.

New York, Oct. 5.—A tacit understanding has been reached between the International Salt Co., known as the salt trust, and certain independent manufacturers in regard to regulating the future course of the market for evaporated salt.

As a result of the understanding, prices have recently been advanced 50 cents to $1 per ton from the low figures prevailing a month ago, when sharp price cutting was in progress.

Incidentally a policy of retrenchment has been inaugurated and various firms have reduced their working forces.

Canadian Kidnapped.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—There is a sensational story in the recounted adventures of Fred C. Dorway, a Canadian telegraph operator.

He claims he was bequeathed $180,000 by a New York woman two years ago, was kidnapped at Montreal by a relative of the woman, and taken to Vera Cruz, Mexico, where he was thrown in jail.

He secured his release and is here on his way to New York.

Jealousy Causes Murder.

New York, Oct. 5.—Insanely jealous of his handsome young wife, John Bohnmueller, a Brooklyn saloonkeeper, yesterday shot her to death and then killed himself.

YOUNG ROSS IS NOW COMING HOME

Young Canadian Still Asserts He Was Robbed

TO PURCHASE RACE HORSES

Gives Erratic Answers to the Press—Will Return to Canada at Once—Hotel Bill Has Been Paid—Declares He Has Money to Burn—Says He Has Done With the Old Country—Will Go West.

London, Oct. 5.—(C. A. P.)—Dugald Ross, interviewed by the Canadian Associated Press, declared his finances were in an excellent condition, and that if no money came yesterday he would to-day have money to burn, he stated.

He repeated his story of being done by two Americans whom he met at the Waldorf-Astoria, but cut the story short on the Canadian Associated Press telling him that the story was old. He spoke of purchasing a Daracq car, but only a half share, and from the Daracq car tale he jumped to the farm in Streetsville, saying he had horses there worth $5,000 each.

He then stated his intention to bring home racehorses to this country, but in the next breath declared he had done with this country and would never come back, but would go to Western Canada and buy up a few thousand acres of land.

"I had some intention of selling some shares in a bank in this country, but I guess I'm done for here." Asked if Mr. Ross, manager of the Metropolitan Bank Streetsville, was any relation of his, he replied, "None," and then added, "he might be a distant relation."

He declared his intention of returning to Canada immediately. Ross was astonished to learn his doings had been cabled to Canada. "Oh," he said, "I told my story to a Toronto newspaper friend this morning, and he cabled it out.

The manager of the Burlington Hotel, Dover, informed the representative of the Canadian Associated Press that Ross left the hotel Thursday night, leaving as his address St. Enoch's Station Hotel, Glasgow. The Canadian Associated Press learns, however, that Ross is in London. The manager of the Berkeley Hotel, Piccadilly, yesterday received from Ross a check for $100, drawn on the Metropolitan Bank, Streetsville, in payment of his bill.

To a representative of The Evening Telegram Dugald Ross says he does not want money. A friend in Scotland, he says, is sending him £200.

Few More Japs Coming.

Tokio, Oct. 5.—(C. A. P.)—With reference to telegrams reporting that a Canadian commission is coming to Japan to negotiate for restriction of Japanese immigration to Canada it was reiterated here on trustworthy authority that the Japanese Government will not consent to any restriction, inasmuch as immigration may be restricted when the Government considers it necessary without any formal agreement, which is regarded here as a contravention of the Anglo-Japanese commercial treaty. Moreover the Japanese consul-general at Honolulu reports that the bulk of Japanese immigrants, who desired to transmigrate to Canada, has already left Hawaii and that not many more are expected to invade Canada.

To Attract France.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—A deputation composed of Messrs. L. J. Labrosse, O. Aubin, A. A. Mahaffy, D. J. McDougall, M. P. P.'s, A. C. Macdonell, and J. E. E. Leonard, M. P.'s, Rev. Father Forget, and H. B. Vallieres, of Ottawa, waited on Premier Whitney and Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday morning, and urged the Ontario Government to invite French, German and Belgian newspaper men to visit Ontario.

The Ministers said that the province had derived benefit from the visits from English journalists, but pointed out that it was too late to do anything this year. It would be well to hold the question open till next spring. If there were results then, not only Northern Ontario, but agricultural and industrist Ontario should be inspected by the visitors.

Caruso In Tears.

London, Oct. 5.—Despatches from Vienna report that Caruso, the tenor, was engaged to appear in "Aida." Before the performance he learned that the seats had not been booked, presumably because of the high prices demanded.

This indifference piqued him, and he asked that the performance be postponed. This was impossible, and he sang indifferently. The applause was naturally limited. In his dressing room after the performance he burst into tears, declaring that he had never experienced such treatment in his life.

Shipload of Spinsters.

New York, Oct. 5.—Six hundred unmarried women, nearly all of whom propose to seek situations as domestic servants, arrived here yesterday on the Cedric from Liverpool and Queenstown. Three hundred of the young women came from Ireland.

FATAL SHOOTING ON A FERRY BOAT

Engineer Mortally Wounded by Revengeful Bootblack.

ASSAILANT WAS ARRESTED

Man Trod on His Toes by Accident—Fired at Him With Revolver—Prisoner Nearly Lynched by Passengers — Detectives Had Hard Fight to Secure Him From Being Thrown Into River.

New York, Oct. 5.—Shot and mortally wounded after he had accidentally trodden on the toes of a fellow-passenger on the Long Island ferryboat Hudson City, Thursday night, Robert Blair, 49, chief engineer of the Far Rockaway waterworks, is in Bellevue Hospital. His assailant, John Barberi, 19, a bootblack, is locked up in police headquarters.

The shooting caused the wildest excitement among the ferryboat's passengers. Barberi's arrest was not accomplished until after two detectives, mistaken for his friends, had had a lively fight with several men who tried to overpower them.

After the arrest it took all the efforts of the detectives to save Barberi from the fury of the crowd, which was bent on throwing him off the boat and into the river. A husky young express wagon driver struck the prisoner on the jaw, felling him and grabbed the revolver from his hand. Then the detectives appealed to the calmer passengers to come to their aid.

WOMAN'S BODY EXHUMED.

Coroner to Investigate Mysterious Death In Osgoode Township.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—County Crown Attorney Ritchie and Coroner Baptie are investigating the death of Mrs. Thomas Burns, aged 21, of Osgoode Township, near here.

She died on Sept. 11, was buried on Sept. 12, and her husband left for the woods next day. His whereabouts now are unknown.

Complaints were made and there were rumors of possible foul play, so yesterday the body was exhumed and a jury was empannelled at Gloucester Township, the jury viewing the body in an empty rectory building near the cemetery. The evidence will be heard next Friday.

Among the many complications connected with the very unusual case is the fact that no neighbors were at the house and no one knows how the woman died.

Though a burial certificate was issued, it does not state the cause of death and the undertaker was never handed the formal certificate, but was told by the husband that he had given it to the priest, Rev. Mr. Belanger.

SWALLOWED PARIS GREEN.

Mrs. William Ball Suicides While Suffering From Melancholia.

Chatham, Oct. 5.—Mrs. William Ball, who died at 9 o'clock Wednesday night, committed suicide by taking a dose of paris green, according to an investigation instituted by Coroner George T. McKeogh, who visited the [illegible]

It appears that the woman suffered from melancholia and recently took a month's treatment in a local hospital. She returned home improved, but during the past week symptoms of the ailment reappeared, prominent among which was an impression that she could not do her duty towards her family of three children.

She had expressed this idea to several neighbors, and on Wednesday afternoon took the poison.

Her husband returned home at 8 o'clock, and finding his wife unconscious a physician was summoned, but too late to stave off death.

Inspected Cold Storage.

London, Oct. 5.—New cold storage buildings erected by the C. P. R. at Liverpool were inaugurated on Thursday. A number of Liverpool importers paid a visit of inspection.

At the Baptist Union Assembly at Liverpool Rev. J. B. Warnicker, introduced by the president, briefly expressed the greetings he brought from "9,000 struggling" Baptists out west in Canada. He thanked the union for all it had done for colonists in the past; he had rejoiced to feel the warmth of the union assembly. If the heart of the Empire was weak its extremities would also be weak.

Killed by Live Wire.

New York, Oct. 5.—In full view of a throng in the street one man was instantly killed and another mortally wounded Thursday night by an electric light current in Brooklyn. The victims were Jacob S. Slinbach, 21 years old, and Joseph Weick, 28 years of age.

The accident was the result of the entanglement of a banner announcing a pleasure club outing, in a number of electric wires, which the victims volunteered to free.

Loophole In Sunday Law.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—An interesting point has arisen in connection with the prosecutions of railways for failure to observe the Lord's Day Act.

It appears that under the Railway Act, prosecutions cannot be instituted without the consent of the Board of Railway Commission. Prosecutions have been inaugurated in a number of cases without the board's consent being secured.

Nelson Blair Dead.

Brockville, Oct. 5.—Nelson Blair, who went to sleep on the G. T. R. tracks while intoxicated and was run over by an engine, which severed both legs, succumbed yesterday to lockjaw. He seemed to be recovering nicely until this malady unexpectedly developed.

A Lord's Day Case.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—Application has been made to the Railway Commission for its consent to the institution of proceedings on behalf of the Attorney-General of Ontario against the Grand Valley Railway Co. for alleged breach of the Lord's Day Act.

TALKS OF TREATY.

Canada's Commercial Emancipation Said Ministers at Quebec.

Quebec, Oct. 5.—Messrs. Fielding and Brodeur, who has just arrived from Europe, spoke at considerable length last night on the French treaty, the occasion being the presentation of an address by the Quebec Board of Trade, congratulating them upon the success of their mission to Paris.

Mr. Fielding made the principal reply. He said it was not quite exact that the present treaty was the first negotiated by Canadians directly with a foreign power. One was so negotiated with France 14 years ago, and while he did not condemn it, seeing it was a step in the right direction, yet it was not altogether equitable. It was true they might have asked for its renunciation. This might have prejudiced the entente cordiale between England and France, however, and they preferred to meet the French Government and reason the matter out with them.

He did not pretend that they had scored any great point against the French Government, and told his auditors not to expect anything sensational when the details of the treaty were laid before Parliament, where they must first become public, but he believed that no interest in Canada had been prejudiced by anything they had done, while much had been accomplished towards proving that Britain has given us complete freedom in the negotiation of commercial treaties, and towards the maintenance of the entente between England and France, and so of the peace of the world.

AWAITS FATE IN JAIL.

Millionaire Brewer Sent to Welland—Judgment Is Reserved.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Herman Bartels, the Syracuse brewer, who was released from Toronto Jail yesterday, after serving three months for his sensational escape from Osgoode Hall, while on trial for extradition, appeared before Justice Riddell yesterday.

His honor decided that there should be another writ of habeas corpus, and that the whole trial for Bartels' extradition must be fought over again, on the grounds that Bartels had forfeited his former writ by running away. Bartels was taken back to Welland Jail to await trial.

A son of Bartels said that his father was willing to go back to Auburn for trial, as the charges against him were slight and that he had realized that he was a foolish man to try and evade trial.

RUN OVER BY TRAIN.

Man Loses Life In Trying to Save His Coat.

Chatham, Oct. 5.—George Smith, aged 18, employed by the M. C. R. as sectionman, died in St. Joseph's Hospital here at 9.30 Thursday evening, following an amputation necessitated by injuries received on the M. C. R. Thursday afternoon near Fargo. Smith, who was formerly a farmer in Chatham Township, had been working for the road but a short time. During Thursday's heavy rain his coat was wet and he put it across the tracks to dry. Later he saw a train approaching and the coat in danger of being cut up. He attempted to save the garment, stumbled and fell across the tracks, so that his leg and arm were frightfully injured. He was brought to Chatham, where amputation was performed, and he died.

Government Contracts Awarded.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—The Department of Public Works has just awarded a number of important contracts, some of which are of local and some of national interest.

Mr. Maurice J. Whelan of Besserer street, Ottawa, has been awarded the contract for the standardization building at the observatory, at a price of $14,000.

The contract for the Dominion building at Lachute, Que., has been given to O. B. Lafleur & Sons, Limited, of that town, at $15,000.

Other contracts recently awarded include one for a ferry wharf at Dalhousie, N. B., at $10,000, to J. and A. Culligan of Jacquet River; breakwater at Trancook Island, Lunenburg, N.S., to A. W. Girroir and Sweet of Antigonish at $20,000; wharf at Agnes, Beauce County, Quebec, to A. L. Lapoite of Agnes at $4,000, and wharf at Sandpoint, Renfrew County, to J. J. Fallon of Cornwall at $6,000.

To Deport White Slaves.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Secretary Straus of the Department of Commerce and Labor and Frank P. Sargent, Commissioner-General of Immigration, have determined to eliminate the "white slave" traffic from the United States, if possible. They have determined to round up all alien immoral women in large cities, and those who have not been in the United States three years and were brought here illegally will be deported, and, if possible, those responsible for their presence punished.

Call Another Conference.

The Hague, Oct. 5.—In the final act of the Peace Conference it was decided yesterday President Roosevelt shall be mentioned, first in the introduction of the act, as the summoner of the conference; the names of Emperor Nicholas, as its convoker, and Queen Wilhelmina as its hostess, following. In addition, President Nelidoff, in his speech at the last plenary sitting of the conference, will refer to President Roosevelt's efforts in behalf of peace.

Hamilton Woman Hurt.

Hamilton, Oct. 5.—Mrs. Henry, wife of John Henry, carpenter, North West avenue, was very seriously injured last night at the corner of King street and West avenue. She got off a car that was traveling at a good rate of speed, and was thrown to the pavement, getting a severe scalp wound. She had not recovered consciousness up till a late hour, and doubts about her recovery are entertained.

Strike at New Orleans.

New Orleans, Oct. 5.—The dock and cotton council of New Orleans, whose membership is made up of all classes of laborers employed in connection with the shipping of the port, numbering about 13,000 men, voted yesterday afternoon for a general strike. They demand an increase in wages.

AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

New Tariff Will Be Higher Than Last Year.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—A report received at the Trade and Commerce Department from Mr. J. S. Larke, the Canadian agent at Sydney, gives details as to Australia's trade returns for 1906. The total imports for 1906 amounted to £44,729,500 and the total exports were £69,737,761. The remarkable feature of the year's trade, says Mr. Larke, is the increase in exports, which have nearly doubled in ten years. The increases have been mostly in exports to the United Kingdom and to the British colonies. The new tariff, he notes, will be higher than that in force last year, and will affect some lines of industries, but not greatly Canada's trade with Australia as a whole. The Commonwealth, he adds, will be compelled to import the chief lines it now receives.

WIFE'S STRANGE CLAIM.

Left Her Husband Because He Refused to Pay Salary.

Ottawa, Oct. 5.—One of the most peculiar cases which have ever been dealt with by the Hull Superior Court has just been disposed of by Judge Robidoux. Joseph Dubois of Aylmer, Que., was brought before the court charged with the non-support of his wife.

In the evidence it was shown that Mrs. Dubois had refused to live with her husband or keep house for him unless he paid her $3 per day for her services. He therefore refused, and his wife left him.

The judge held that the wife's claims were absurd, and dismissed the case.

MARCONI IS PLEASED.

Wireless System Working Well—Messages Passing Every Day.

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 5.—"Wireless telegraphy will be a commercial success within the time I have mentioned," said Signor Marconi yesterday. "Every day I am talking with Clifden, and receiving replies."

"Everything is working most satisfactory, and I have no complaint to make," were the words of the inventor.

He expressed himself as being much pleased over the recent rise in Marconi stock, which is now quoted at £1 8s. 3d., an increase of 30 per cent. within the last three weeks.

SMASH-UP NEAR GALT.

Passenger Train Collides With Coal Cars—No Lives Lost.

Galt, Oct. 5.—The northbound passenger train, due here at 11.15 a. m., ran into a train of coal cars standing on a siding in the yards and the engine of the passenger train was badly smashed.

Fortunately none of the passengers were injured. Conductor Cameron, in jumping, hurt his hip.

A gang of trackmen making repairs neglected to obey the foreman's orders to close the switch.

Warning Was Fatal.

Toronto, Oct. 5.—Looking out from under his engine-room at the new wing of the Confederation Life Building, William S. McNellis, engineer for the Dominion Co., was struck by a falling scantling yesterday afternoon and had his head split open. He died at midnight.

On the ironwork, 30 feet above, an employe of the company was putting in an end. Two scantlings of four feet each were used to hold the corners astragle [illegible] gave the signal to loosen the chain, undoing the planks, which he attempted to hold from falling with his knees. One slipped and he called: "Look out below!"

McNellis evidently heard the warning, for he peered out from under his cabin, placed there for any such emergency, and received the stick on his head.

After a Perfect Rail.

New York, Oct. 5.—There is said to be a hitch in the negotiations now in progress looking to the manufacture of a perfect steel rail, because the steel rail manufacturers assert they cannot make the rail demanded by the committee of the American Railway Association.

It is on the chemical composition of the steel that the railway men and the steel makers cannot agree. The railway committee wants a rail low in phosphorus and high in carbon, with a quarter of the molten mass at the top of the ingot cut off as a "discard."

Sidetracked Explosives.

Cobalt, Oct. 5.—Orders have been issued by the T. and N. O. Railway to stop the loading and unloading of dynamite at the Town of Cobalt, as a special spur line is being built for the purpose of side-tracking all explosives to a place of storage that is being prepared.

The railway will refuse to carry high explosives in small quantities, though these may be carried in car lots.

President at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 5—With bands playing, children singing and enthusiastic men shouting for deep waterways, Memphis threw wide her gates yesterday afternoon to President Roosevelt, a score of governors and many other personages prominent in the Mississippi Valley.

Speaking of a deep water channel from the gulf to the lakes, the President said he favored rapid improvement of the Mississippi River.

Set Sentence Aside.

Winnipeg, Oct. 5.—In the court of appeal a unanimous order was made setting aside the sentence of ten years imprisonment passed by Police Magistrate Daly on Sept. 27 upon F. D. Edwards, the Toronto broker, who got into trouble here for selling shares of a stock which did not exist.

Meteor Starts Fire.

Verkhnednieprovsk, Russia, Oct. 5.—A large meteorite fell on the village of Daniivalovka Thursday night and set the place on fire.

Death Was Accidental.

Port Elgin, Oct. 5.—At the coroner's inquest in connection with the death of John Donald at Port Elgin Fair here yesterday, and it was decided that the fatality was accidental.

Over 4000 People Saw The Millbrook Central Fair

Record Crowd, Splendid Exhibits, Perfect Weather and Fine Horse Racing Were Some of The Features of The Event – Directors Are Satisfied

PRINCIPAL STOCK ENTRIES

The Millbrook people have been boasting for years, that they are warm friends of the weather man, at Fair time, and yesterday showed that the boast was not an empty one, although on Thursday night the prospects looked anything but bright. The rain poured down for the greater part of the night, but yesterday's conditions were different, and the weather was almost perfect, bright, and not too cold.

Of course the Millbrook Central Exhibition, under these conditions, was a success from all points of view. The attendance was even larger than last year, and 1906 was looked upon as a record. Over four thousand people were on the grounds during the afternoon, and many of them came a long distance to attend the Fair, which has an excellent reputation in the district.

About three hundred Peterborough people were on hand, the majority of them going down on the noon G.T.R. train, the accommodation on which was of the worst. The train was comparatively crowed when it left Lindsay, many Scugog citizens coming down to attend the Fair. No extra coaches were put on here, and the majority of the local people had to stand all the way down. The band travelled in the baggage car, and part of the crowd had to ride on the platforms.

In addition to the crowd from Lindsay and Peterborough, Port Hope sent a large delegation and the country side for many miles around was practically deserted during the afternoon. Horses were tied up all along the streets of the pretty little village, the hotel yards not being large enough to accommodate them all.

The exhibits were better than ever before, exceeding in number those of last year, while the quality was fully as good, if not better. In horses, there was a slight falling off for some reason or other in numbers, but some very fine animals were shown. In the other live stock classes there was an excellent showing. The poultry exhibit was away above the average, some splendid birds being displayed.

In the main building, which is situated at the entrance to the grounds, was a splendid display of fine arts and ladies' work, some decidedly clever water colours, oil paintings and crayon drawings being on exhibition. Downstairs there was a creditable display of roots, vegetables and grains, while the southern part of the building [illegible] was occupied by a conservatory, with a grand exhibit of flowers—the best display in this line that has been shown at any of the fairs in this district.

The Fair, of course, had its Midway, and the section of ground between the entrance and the grand stand, was well filled with amusement places, all of which appeared to be doing a great afternoon's business. Prominent in this line was the big steer owned by Mr. T. J. Hetherington, which occupied a tent near the grand stand, and which was viewed by hundreds of people during the afternoon. A gipsy palmist was kept busy reading hands, while a photo button machine and several knife racks, had their share of patronage.

The speeding contests afforded considerable amusement, although the calling off of the free-for-all disappointed some people. Burns' and Shepherd's fast trotter, Riley B., was on hand to enter, but the other horsemen declined to race with the fast Toronto horse, and the race was called off, a 2.18 class being substituted. This was won by J. J. Cottingham's Harry Direct, after a good race. The other entries were Dr. Johnston's Hazel Bell and Martin Connor's Queen's Baron. The first heat in this class was the best of the day, the finish being decidedly sensational. Queen's Baron took the lead from the start and kept it all the way, although the other two pressed the leader the whole distance. Queen's Baron won in a driving finish by a head from Harry Direct, who beat Hazel Bell for second by the same distance. In the second heat, Harry Direct won without much difficulty, and also captured the next two, although Hazel Bell was always a factor.

The summary follows:

Harry Direct, J. J. Cottingham, Peterborough... 2111
Queen's Baron, Martin Connors, Peterborough... 1333
Hazel Bell, Dr. Johnston, Peterborough..... 3222

Billy Leith of Millbrook, captured the 2.30 class in straight heats with Billy C., from Lou Bennett of Port Hope, with City Queen. The other entry was Lou La Chimes, owned by Dr. McIvor, which was never in the going. Billy C and City Queen had a hard battle all the way, but the Millbrook horse won all three heats.

The summary:

2.30 Trot or pace—
Billy C., W. Leith, Millbrook 111
City Queen, L. Bennett, Pt. Hope222
Lou La Chimes, Dr. McIvor ... .333

Jas. O'Neil of Port Hope, made a very efficient starter, while the judges, Messrs. R. J. Munro and O. R. Nixon of Peterborough, gave every satisfaction.

Twenty members of the 57th Band under the direction of Mr. Rupert Gliddon added considerably to the gayety of the occasion by rendering a choice programme of popular music from the grand stand. The band was in good form and their playing made a great hit with the people of Millbrook.

Riley B., the Toronto horse, which frightened all the others out of the field for all race, trotted an exhibition mile in splendid time and without a skip from start to finish. He has a decidedly handsome action and moves very fast, having a mark around 2.08.

The directors and officers of the Millbrook Central are to be congratulated upon the success of their effort. The fair was a credit to them and to the people of Millbrook and the surrounding country.

The offices and directors of the Millbrook Central are as follows:

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

The Millbrook Fair can always boast of a number of first-class individual exhibits. Those displayed this year attracted general attention. Several of these exhibits were made by Peterborough business men, who were enterprising enough to take advantage of the Fair to advertise their respective wares.

Peterborough's "Daylight" Clothiers

The first exhibit that attracted the crowds of visitors as they entered the show grounds was the unique clothing display made by Lang & Maher, of the "Daylight" Clothing Store, Peterborough. This effective exhibit was made in their own modal annex, and the tasteful and attractive trim made of the samples of their new fall and winter suits and overcoats for men and boys, in "Sovereign" brand and other splendid makes caught the attention of all. The exhibit was gaily decorated with well-executed fashion engravings and ornamental cards, and the handsome nickel fixtures for showing the clothing. All around the show grounds, wherever the eye could reach, the firm's large coloured signs showed up conspicuously in every position of advantage, the judges' stand and the grand stand being almost covered with them. They also gave away about one thousand handy yard sticks, with their name and address printed thereon. Mr. Lang, the senio rmember of the firm, was "At Home" during the afternoon to all who called. Being so well-known by the residents of Cavan, Millbrook and other neighbourhoods, he was kept busy exchanging greetings with hundreds of ladies and gentlemen who thronged round the exhibit. It was learned that numerous good prospects for winter outfits were secured during the day, which will be purchased at the "Daylight" Store, Nos. 409-411 George street.

Grafton & Company

This was another of the Peterborough clothing firms who put up an exhibit that made an excellent impression on the well-dressed men anxious to know all about the best new styles of garments for fall and winter wear. It was purely Grafton's clothing, of the high grade character and was tastefully displayed in a pretty striped tent close to the main building. No one who entered the Fair grounds could fail to see it. It was in charge of Messrs Herb Conway and A. W. Goodes, two of the principal Peterborough salesmen, while Mr. Robert Howland looked after the advertising, etc.

Chatham Fanning Mills

An out-door display, which was constantly inspected by both farmers and farmers' wives, was made by Mr. Chas. C. McDonald of Downers' Corners, Otonabee. He showed a combined fanning mill and bag holder, a portable farm scales, and a handy labour-saving kitchen cabinet. These are manufactured by the Manson Campbell Company of Chatham. Mr. McDonald has many friends throughout the country, and wherever his exhibits are made their superior claims are sure to be recognized. His post office address is Box 890, Peterborough.

"Simplex" Cream Separator on Deck

The Millbrook Fair included among its interested visitors, Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, of the well-known Peterborough grocery and dairy supply firm of White & Gillespie. As the district representative of the dairyman's favourite, the "Simplex" Link-Blade Cream Separator, Mr. Gillespie's visit was principally in behalf of that machine. The Millbrook agent, Mr. Edward Howson, was in the country closing up several important sales, so that he was unable to make a "Simplex" exhibit at the Fair, but its local interest was looked after by Mr. Gillespie.

The Mammoth Steer

One of the sights that caught the farmers at this Fair was the big steer shown alongside of a small Jersey cow, both owned and bred by Mr. T. J. Hetherington, of Smith township, Peterborough county. It was on exhibition in a large tent, near the grand stand. It proved as strong an attraction at Millbrook as it did at the Peterborough Industrial last week. Hundreds paid the extra admission to size up "Laddie," who stands 17 hands high, girths over 13 feet, and weighs 3,500 lbs. The little Jersey cow alongside weighed only 300 lbs., and furnished a strong contrast to the mammoth red steer.

The Empire Cream Separator

Mr. W. E. Patton of Garden Hill showed two samples of the easy-running "Empire" Cream Separator. He was kept busy demonstrating the excellent features of these machines, assisted by the general agent, Mr. Fred Doughty, of Peterborough. Many farmers studied its construction, which was shown to be very simple, has fewer parts, and is built on a modern, common-sense plan.

G. Walter Green

The familiar figure of Mr. G. Walter Green, proprietor of Green's Ontario Foundry and Machine Works, Peterborough, [illegible] elbowing its way through among the crowds and renewing old acquaintances. Speaking of Mr. Green's excellent exhibit of machinery at the Peterborough Industrial Fair, the Millbrook Reporter says: "It was pleasing to all Millbrook and Cavan visitors to Peterborough Fair to see the excellent exhibit of Mr. G. Walter Green, our former townsman, at the Fair there. Mr. Green has grasped the opportunity by the hand and joined with it energy and brains, that have brought the inevitable successful issue. May he go on and prosper is the wish of all his friends here."

Records Are Broken At The Annual Field Day of Sports

Collegiate Institute Pupils Become More Proficient in Athletics---Allan Bravender Again Senior Champion---Fred Wilson of Regina Springs Surprise in Junior Events and Wins The Trophy

The annual field day of sports held in connection with the Collegiate Institute yesterday afternoon at the Nicholls Oval, was a success in every respect and was marked by many changes in the records for the various events. In this respect Fred Wilson's performance in the junior sports was most creditable, and was, perhaps, the best showing made in this class since the field day was revived in 1904. He was first in seven events, scoring 35 points out of a possible 50, and making four records. They were in the 100 yards dash, 220 yards run, one-quarter mile run, and the running broad jump. His showing was indeed a splendid one and he seemed to be a favourite winner with his fellow students.

This is his first term at the Collegiate Institute, having commenced his studies at the re-opening of school in September. He was formerly of Regina, where he attended school but did not participate in any big athletic meet. He has become very popular at the local institute, making a good beginning by landing the junior championship and he MacDonald cup, presented by H. S. MacDonald, Esq. He will also receive a medal from Mr. A. Gibson.

A. Bravender Senior

Allan Bravender is once more senior champion and added new laurels to his already brilliant athletic career. At the field day in 1906 he succeeded in securing the largest number of points and this year he had no difficulty in maintaining his position, besides lowering two of the records in the senior championship events. In the open events he broke the record in throwing the baseball, and was one of the three runners representing Form II, who won the inter-form relay race, bringing the honour to their form and lowering the record by 2 2-5 seconds.

Good Attendance

There was a large attendance at the Oval to witness the sports, which have been steadily gaining in favour as a result of the deep interest that the members of the staff have always shown. Principal Fessenden and the most of his assistant teachers were present with the pupils in full force. Many friends of the Collegiate were seen among the throng, and two of the Peterborough clergy were interested spectators. They were Rev. H. A. Pearson and Rev. Father Kelly, the latter of whom in past years gained many honours when the students were older, and as they now claim, were better athletes.

Senior Events

The senior cross country run was held on Friday afternoon, Sept. 27th, and was won by Jimmy O'Brien, with Melville Turner and Jack Brighman in second and third places respectively. On Wednesday evening the jumping events were held and resulted as follows:

Standing Broad Jump—1, A. McGarlaty; 2, A. Bravender; 3, H. Hall. Distance, 8 ft. 3 1-4 in; record, 8 ft. 1 in.

Running Broad Jump—1, A. Bravender; 2, H. Hall; 3, Jimmy O'Brien. Distance, 14 ft. 4 1-4 in; record, 16 ft.

Standing Hop, Step and Jump—1, A. Bravender; 2, H. Hall; 3, A. McGarity. Distance, 24 ft. 3 in; record, 26 ft. 3 1-4 in.

Yesterday afternoon the remainder of the senior championship events resulted as given:

100 Yards Dash—1, A. Bravender; 2, H. Hall; 3, Fred Conroy. Time, 11 1-5 sec. Record, 13 sec.

One Quarter Mile Run—1, F. Conroy; 2, Jas. O'Brien; 3, Roy Dixon.

220 Yards Run—1, F. Conroy; 2, Jas. O'Brien; 3, C. Elcome. Time, 28 1-5 sec. Record, 28 sec.

Pole Vaulting—1, A. McGarrity; 2, A. Bravender; 3, H. Hall. Height of jump, 6 ft. 9 in. Record, 6 ft. 4 1-2 in.

High Jump—1, A. Bravender; 2, A. McGarlaty; 3, H. Hall. Height, 4 ft. 10 in. Record, 4 ft. 6 in.

Bravender is therefore champion with 31 points out of a possible 50. McGarlaty was second with 17 and Harry Hall third with 13. Perhaps the most interesting event of the day was the pole vault, in which McGarlaty, whose home is in Douro, succeeded in surpassing Bravender, who was securing first in most of the events. The latter had five firsts and two seconds.

Junior Events

The winner of the junior cross country run was Garnet Tovey, the time being 23.20.

The jumping events went to the following boys:

Standing Broad Jump—1, F. Wilson; 2, V. Hayes; 3, W. Perks. Distance, 7 ft. 3 3-4 in; record, 7 ft 4 in.

Running Broad Jump—1, F. Wilson; 2, V. Hayes; 3, W. Perks. Distance, 12 ft. 4 3-4 in.; record, 12 ft. 3 in.

Standing Hop, Step and Jump—1, F. Wilson; 2, S. Sheehy; 3, V. Hayes. Distance, 31 ft. 2 in.; record, 32 ft 8 1-2 in.

Running Hop, Step and Jump—1, F. Wilson; 2, V. Hayes; 3, F. Feeny. Distance, 29 ft. 2 3-4 in.; record, 30 ft. 7 3-4 in.

Yesterday's events resulted as follows:

100 Yards Dash—1, F. Wilson; 2, W. Perks; 3, S. Sheehy. Time 12 sec.; record, 12 1-2 sec.

220 Yards Run—1, Fred Wilson; 2, S. Sheehy; 3, W. Perks. Time, 28 1-5 sec.; record, 30 1-5 sec.

One-Quarter Mile Run—1, Fred Wilson; 2, S. Sheehy; 3, R. Laing. Time, 1 min. 6 2-5 sec.; record, 1.07 3-5.

Pole Vaulting—1, Vernon Hayes; 2, C. Bartleyd; 3, S. Sheehy. Height, 6 ft. 1 in.

High Jump—1, W. Perks; 2, S. Sheehy; 3, C. Bartlett and H. Giroux, equal. Height, 4 ft. 4 in.; record, 4 ft. 3 3-4 in.

The following are the winners of the open events:

Obstacle Race—1, Jimmy O'Brien; 2, H. Giroux.

Throwing Baseball—1, A. Bravender; 2, F. Conroy; 3, H. Hall. Distance, 96 yds. 2 ft. 6 in.; record, 94 yds. 2 ft. 2 in.

Inter-form Relay Race, (three boys in each team)—1, Form II, (F. Wilson, H. Hall and A. Bravender); 2, Form IV; 3, Form I. Time for once around the track, 1 min. 6 sec; record, 1 min. 8 2-5 sec.

Ex-Pupils Race, 100 Yards—1, Fred McGrath; 2, A. Bravender. Time, 10 2-5 sec.

Mr. McGrath had no competitors and Mr. Bravender ran just for the competition.

The junior championship goes to Fred Wilson with 35 out of 50 points; Vernon Hayes second with 15 points, and Sanfield Sheehy third with 14 points.

Mr. Bravender retains the Staff Challenge Cup and will be presented with a medal by Mr. A. Gibson.

Jimmy O'Brien will receive a medal for the cross country run (senior), presented by Mr. T. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Former Champions (Senior)

1895—Harry Orde.
1896—Robt. Kearns.
1897—Garnet Bell.

MEMORIAL AT SALISBURY.

Marble Tablet to Americans Killed In Train Wreck.

In the ancient and beautiful Salisbury cathedral, Ambassador Whitelaw Reid recently unveiled a handsome marble tablet in memory of those killed in the terrible accident a year ago, when by the derailing of the American line boat train 28 persons, mostly Americans, lost their lives. The ceremony, the impressiveness of which was emphasized by the presence of the widows and children of the trainmen killed in the disaster, all in the deepest mourning, was attended by many dignitaries of the church, the mayor and members of the corporation in their robes of office, the American consul at Southampton, Mr. Slam; the United States consul at Portsmouth, Mr. Maim; numerous visitors and a large congregation of citizens of Salisbury, through whose generosity the memorial was made possible. At the conclusion of the formal ceremony of the unveiling, for which the tablet was draped with American and British flags, the bishop of Salisbury, Dr. Wordsworth, dedicated the tablet in a short address, concluding with the words:

"May God accept this gift at our hands and bless it as a token of love that binds our kindred nations one to another."

In his address to the congregation in behalf of the American nation, Mr. Reid recalled the incidents of the calamity by which "of 47 passengers to London half were stopped here to await the final trumpet," making special reference to the 'hapless young bride" (Mrs. Frederick Henry Cossitt, daughter of ex-Judge Dugro of New York), whose bereavement was specially mentioned in the Queen's message of sympathy. After a reference to the "sympathy shown on every hand" and "the multitudes of manifestations from all classes and conditions," the ambassador concluded:

"They reach a fitting climax to-day in the memorial you are setting up in this cathedral to be a testimony while these walls endue to that quick community of feeling which, in spite of distance and circumstance in our deepest sorrow as in our highest joys, binds us together as almost one great family still. We do not understand in the least the terrible event we record, yet I am persuaded that not even its mystery or awful severity will keep a people of one blood from clinging still to a single faith. The American poet (John G. Whittier) says:

"'I know not where his islands lift
"'Their fronded palms in air;
"'I only know I cannot drift,
"'Beyond his love and care.'"

MONEY IN RUBBISH.

City of Glasgow Gets Good Income From Its Sale.

How money may be made from the offal and rubbish of a city is shown in the annual report to the cleansing committee of Glasgow corporation, of Superintendent McColl, of that city's garbage department.

At the outset, Mr. McColl states that the estimated expenditure of $710,725 was exceeded by $10,310, an increase really due to three items, the chief of which was created by the exceptionally heavy snowfalls. The extra work in this connection cost the department $6,365.

On the other hand, the estimated revenue was $191,600, while the income received was $6,290 above that sum, which was really due to the extra revenue derived from the sale of dust, scrap iron, and other material.

Although showing a decrease from those of last year, the sales of both city and stable manure were slightly in excess of the estimate.

The refuse, manure, rubbish, and street sweepings collected amounted to 255,040 tons, or an average daily quantity of 1,299.52 tons. Food unfit for consumption was destroyed, amounting to 55 tons 3 cwts., comprising fruit, vegetables, beef, tinned meat, biscuits and eggs. The eggs alone weighed 30 tons 14 1-2 cwts., which roughly means that fully half-a-million eggs were disposed of as unfit for human food.

From the sale of clinker, waste paper, bottles, scrap iron, galvanised iron, and tins, no less than $30,920 was added to the revenue of the department.

On their estates the crops of produce sold yielded $6,930, the remainder, valued at $23,305, being used in the stables of the cleansing and other departments in town or on the farms. The value of the heritable property of the department is $1,473,385, and of the movable $353,825.

The King's Privileges.

King Edward VII, possesses many extraordinary powers and privileges which few persons are aware of, and which even His Majesty himself probably does not realise. He is the sole proprietor of the beds of all British tidal rivers, such as the Thames, the Mersey, the Dee, the Tyne and many others. That part of the shore all around the coast which lies between high water and low water mark also belongs to His Majesty, and he may put it to any kind of use which he thinks fit, while theoretically every inch of ground in the kingdom belongs to him and not to the landlords. The King has the sole right to print the Bible, the Book of Common Prayer, and all acts of Parliament in the United Kingdom; and if he liked he could [illegible] all of them anywhere within the British dominions.

Death Rate Among Infants.

Dr. McCarry, chief food inspector of Montreal, states that as a result of the careful inspection of milk cans which has been made this year by the inspectors of his department the death rate among children this summer has been materially decreased. This improvement is especially due to the placing of men at railway stations for the purpose of watching the return of cans. The appointment of more inspectors would still farther facilitate the work, but the improvement already achieved is a very satisfactory one.

THE STORMY PETREL.

A Naturalist's Efforts to Discover the Secret of Its Flight.

A naturalist visiting Algeria bought from a sailor four captive stormy petrels. They weighed about 1.65 pounds apiece. Their wings were five inches wide and had a spread of four feet. The ability of the petrel to breast the most furious storms has been universally admired. Its name is derived from its power of walking on the waves, like the apostle Peter, and its courage and strength in planting its footsteps on the crests of the most tempestuous sea have given a text to many writers. The naturalist, wishing to release his captive petrels, threw one of them into the air. It tried to fly, but fell headlong, went crashing against a stone wall and battered out its brains. He took the second petrel to an upper story and launched it [illegible] but having no initial velocity, it, too, fell like a stone. The third bird he took to the top of an observatory and pushed it out into space. It flapped its wings desperately, but nevertheless lunged downward and broke its wings against a post.

The naturalist was now convinced that the stormy petrel's feats at sea are made possible because it first gets up momentum by running along the top of the water. Wishing to give the remaining bird a chance to demonstrate his theory, he took it out into a desert-like plain bare of grass, smooth as the surface of a calm sea. "Here," the naturalist reports, "I set my fourth petrel down. It squatted at first and then turned with its beak to the wind and its wings outstretched and started running, beating its wings, not hampered by any herbage. It ran a hundred yards, carrying its weight less and less on its feet and finally all on its wings, but all the time skimming the ground. At last with a single bound, catching the wind, the petrel rose sixty feet, careened around and flew past me overhead and glanced at me on its way, as if to say, 'Success in flight is all based upon momentum.'"—Harold Beloe in Everybody's.

Couldn't Take a Joke.

I met a poor old negro one day pushing a wheelbarrow loaded with cooking utensils and household effects. Seeing me looking at him curiously, he shook his head and said:

"I can't stand her no longer, boss—I jes' natch'ully can't stand her no longer."

"What's the matter, uncle?" I inquired.

"Well, you see, boss, she ain't got no sense of humor. She won't take a joke nohow. The other night I went home, an' I been takin' a little jes' to wa'm ma heart, an' I got to de fence an' tried to climb it. I got on de top, an' I couldn't get one way or t'other. Then a gem'en comes along, an' I says, 'Would you mind givin' me a push?' He says, 'Which way do you want to go?' I says, 'Either way—don't make no difference, jes' so I git off de fence, fo' it's powerful uncom'fable up yere!' So he give me a push an' sent me over to'a'd my side.

"Then I went home, an' I wanted sumpin' to eat, an' my ole woman, she wouldn't git it, an' so, jes' fo' a joke—da's all, jes' a joke—I hit 'er on de haid. But, would you believe it, she couldn't take a joke! She tu'n aroun', an' she sail inter me, sir, sumpin' scan'lous. I couldn't do nothin', 'cause I was feelin' kind o' weak jes' then, an' so I made up ma min' I wasn't goin' to stay with 'er no mo'. Dis mawnin' she gone out washin', an' I jes' move right out. It's no use tryin' to live with a woman who can't take a joke."—Sunday York Tribune.

CLUNG TO LIFE.

An Old Time Natchez Indian Who Refused to Be Sacrificed.

One of the repulsive features of the laws under which the Natchez Indians were governed was that when a member of the royal family of the nation died it was necessary that several others of the people should accompany him to the tomb by suffering death at the hands of executioners. When the "great sun," the hereditary chief of the whole nation, died, all his wives, in case he were provided with more than one, and also several of his subjects were obliged to follow him into the vale of shadows. The "little suns," secondary chiefs, and also members of the royal family likewise claimed when dying their tribute of death from the living. In addition to this, the inexorable law also condemned to death any man of the Natchez race who had married a girl of the royal line of the "suns." On the occasion of her death he was called upon to accompany her.

"I will narrate to you upon this subject," writes an old French chronicler of Louisiana, "the story of an Indian who was not in a humor to submit to this law. His name was Etteacteal. He had contracted an alliance with the 'suns.' The honor came near having a fatal result for him. His wife fell sick, and as soon as he perceived that she was approaching her end he took to flight, embarking in a pirogue on the Mississippi, and sought a refuge in New Orleans. He placed himself under the protection of the governor, who was at that time M. de Bienville, offering himself to be the governor's hunter. The governor accepted his services and interested himself in his behalf with the Natchez, who declared in answer that he had nothing to fear, inasmuch as [illegible] was over, and as he had not been present when it took place he was no longer available as a candidate for execution."

SNUBBED BY KING EDWARD.

His Majesty Disapproves Leopold's Policy in the Congo.

King Edward and his Government, as well as the Royal Geographical Society and the Royal Society have just administered a very severe snub to King Leopold by declining to take any part whatsoever in the International Polar Congress, which the Belgian monarch has endeavored to organize at Brussels, and for which he had addressed invitation to the various foreign Governments and geographical societies. This being the case, the project will come to grief, the more so as several other foreign Governments are certain to follow the lead of King Edward in the matter.

King Edward and his subjects are prompted in this affair not only by their strong disapproval of the policy of King Leopold, with regard to the Congo problem, which is becoming more and more acute, but also because they do not see why he should have any voice in an international polar congress.

Belgium is not, strictly speaking, a maritime power. But if the congress were held in his capital, and necessarily under his presidency, it would be difficult to exclude him from participating in the deliberations or from the advantages accruing to the nations represented at the convention.

What these advantages are may be gathered from the fact that the object of the congress is nominally for the [illegible] of a system of international expeditions or discovery to the Arctic and Antarctic regions, but in reality to determine the ownership of Spitzbergen and other no man's lands in the polar regions, participating them among the powers most chiefly concerned—such as Great Britain, the United States, Norway, Denmark and Russia.

King Leopold with his insatiate greed for land, would, if the polar congress were held at Brussels, find some means, through intrigue, of establishing a foothold in the Arctic and Antarctic, and after the experiences of Great Britain and the other signatories of the Berlin treaty of 1884 with Leopold in regard to the Congo there is none of them that would be willing to entrust him with the administration of land, even in the frozen wilds of the Arctic and Antarctic circles.

Judicial Flogging in India.

Let me draw the attention of the public to a shocking state of affairs which exists under the criminal law of India.

In 1902, the last year for which figures are available, no fewer than 25,180 judicial floggings were inflicted upon adult male and female offenders for petty theft and the like. According to Sir Henry Cotton, M. P., K. C. S. I., who has published a pamphlet on this subject, these degrading floggings are administered publicly over the bare body.

The triangles are an unpleasant feature outside every criminal court in India. Sir Henry says: "I have known of floggings so severe that the victims have died on the triangles to which they were tied."

And this horrible torture is inflicted for the slightest offences.—Humanitarian in Reynolds' Newspaper.

A Fight Impossible.

"I don't know whether my janitor is a plain idiot or just too smart for anything," declared the flat dweller. "This morning when I said to him, 'Did you hear those people above me fighting last night?' he turned and looked hard at me and said: 'You must be mistaken. Those people above you! Why, there are only two of them, and they are husband and wife.'"

Lively Mourning.

A noted English artist once was standing at the edge of the road waiting for his horse and he was dressed in his usual peculiar style—mustard-colored riding suit, vivid waistcoat and bright red tie. A man who had evidently been reveling happened to lurch round the corner of the street. He stared at the famous artist for a minute in silence, then he touched his cap and asked in a tone of deep commiseration, "Beg pardon, guv'nor, was you in mourning for anybody?"

Any Boy can enter this contest, and the sooner they begin the better.

Boys who have never sold Examiners before have an equal chance with those who have.

All of our 40 regular Newsboys who have been selling in the past, as well as new beginners who enter this contest, will start selling together on Monday Evening, Oct. 7, and their records will be kept from that date to the end of the year.

Boys must pay for their papers every evening, in advance, at the rate of one cent per copy.

Now Boys! Get Busy!

The Examiner is easy to sell, as it gives all the news in a newsy manner.

Besides the chance of winning any of the eighteen prizes, Newsboys can make lots of pocket money from the profits of their evening sales.

Boys attending school can be supplied with Examiners every evening after 4 o'clock, and with a little hustling can soon start a nice little savings bank account for the Xmas holidays.

Girls who desire can take part in this contest, as well as boys.

You can win a Prize

And your pocket money besides if you try. Don't wait for success to come to you, go after it!

There are a number of bright Examiner newsboys who buy all their own clothing, shoes, etc., can spend a nickel occasionally, and own a bank account as well, from the proceeds of their sales of the Daily Examiner. You can, too!

Any information regarding this competition will be given at the office of the Examiner.

Roy Thornton Lost In The Woods For Two Weeks

Former Peterborough Boy Now Living in Winnipeg May Have Met With Disaster on Hunting Trip

A CLAIRVOYANT CALLED

Upset Canoe and Clothing Found on Shore—Was Accompanied by His Cousin

A remarkable story concerning the disappearance of a former Peterborough boy, Roy Thornton, a son of Mr. Robt. Thornton, a former employee of Adam Hall's establishment, but for some years now resident in Winnipeg, is told in a recent issue of the Winnipeg Tribune, which says:—

The relatives and friends of Carl Graham and Roy Thornton of Norwood, are greatly distressed and grieved over the complete disappearance of these two young men from Oak Point, where they have been for the past two weeks on a hunting trip, and grave fears are now held out for their safety.

On inquiry at the home of Carl Graham this morning it was learned that the two young men, cousins, aged 17 and 18 respectively, both of them skilled hunters and of great pluck and determination, left their homes on September 16 last, over two weeks ago, to shoot ducks in the vicinity of Oak Point, promising to return in four days or on the following Friday, September 20. The uncle of Carl Graham, Mr. Thomas Graham, is a homesteader at Oak Point, and it was the intention of the boys to proceed to this farm and occupy a small shack on the premises, which was partially furnished and contained among other things a small stove for cooking and heating purposes. Besides the other accoutrement of a hunting trip, a canoe was taken along, with which to go to and from the marshes at the north end of the lake.

Sufficient food was taken to the camp to last about a week and the boys were in high spirits when they left Winnipeg.

Two weeks have gone by since and they have not been heard from since.

When, on Friday, the young men did not appear as expected, but little anxiety was felt as it was thought they were enjoying themselves thoroughly, and would return on the morrow, but when Saturday and Sunday went by and there was still no word of them, their relatives became very anxious, and on the following Tuesday Friday, and it was greatly feared that the young men were caught out in this with disastrous results.

When the news was brought to Winnipeg of the finding of the articles along the shore, Oswald Graham, and Gordon Thornton, the two elder brothers of the boys, immediately set out for Oak Point to prosecute a search, and they are at present scouring the surrounding country in the hope that their brothers reached land after what was undoubtedly a mishap to their craft.

Indians Searching

They are receiving assistance from the Royal North-west Mounted Police and four Indians who have also been engaged to help in the search.

Reading in the Tribune on Thursday last of the wonderful demonstration made by John Lacey, a clairvoyant of Regina, in describing the whereabouts of a small child, lost near Davidson, Saskatchewan, Mrs. Graham, the mother of one of the missing boys, who is distracted with grief, requested Walter A. Leslie, a druggist, of Norwood, to call up the clairvoyant on the 'phone, and endeavour to have him locate her son. Mr. Leslie was unable to get into communication with Lacey, but called up Rev. Mr. Hill of Regina, and explained the circumstances, asking him to have the clairvoyant 'phone to Winnipeg.

At 11.30 Sunday evening John Lacey 'phoned to the Graham residence and informed Mr. C. Wood, who took the message that he was unable to do anything unless he came on to Winnipeg. That he is working on the case, however, is borne out by the following despatch received this morning from Regina:

Clairvoyant Says They Are Alive

Yesterday afternoon a local clairvoyant, named Lacey, had a long distance telephone message from Walter A. Leslie, druggist, of Norwood, Winnipeg, in connection with Carl Graham and Roy Thornton, who were reported to be lost on Lake Manitoba, near Oak Point. Lacey was not long ago called upon by the parents of a lost child at Davidson, Saskatchewan, and through mysterious powers of second sight which it is alleged this man possesses, the child was found. Lacey says that by means of his gift he has been able to trace the missing boys to a point 35 miles northeast from the lake in a very barren country, and that at that point they have separated. He also says that he can see certain landmarks of the country, in which they are lost, but at present he is unable to describe them accurately, but he is in communication with Winnipeg by 'phone, and is confident he can give the clue to their discovery. Lacey is only 25 years of age, and is of a very quiet nature, avoiding as much as possible the publicity which is the result of his remarkable powers.

Shown this despatch this morning, C. Wood, who returned from Oak Point on Friday last, where he aided in the search, stated that the conclusions of the clairvoyant as to the men being 35 miles northeast from the lake was most improbable, if not impossible, for the portion of the lake in that direction was for miles covered with long reeds, and the country beyond was of such a swampy nature, as to being almost impossible of bearing a man.

He also states that the food supply would have run out several days ago; and as the country is very sparsely settled, there would be but a small chance of their receiving an additional supply.

Roy Thornton is aged 17 and works with his father in the plumping business at Norwood; Carl Graham is his cousin and is a year older. He is employed in the city post office. He lost his father about a year ago.

The parents and friends of the young men are waiting in suspense and fear for the tidings that will either bring great joy to their hearts or plunge their homes into the darkness of despair.

HAS FAITH IN THE ABILITY OF THE CLAIRVOYANT TO FIND THE BOYS

(Winnipeg Free Press Special)

Regina, Sask., Oct. 5.—John M. Lacey has little to say in reply to the insinuations of the Regina Leader that he possesses no mysterious power. He says, however, that he has received a message from the agent of Mrs. Graham, the mother of Carl Graham, who was lost in the district of Lake Manitoba, with his companion, Roy Thornton, expressing explicit confidence in his predictions and instructions, and tendering him sincere thanks.

Ministers Will Urge The Building Of An Hospital

Association Think An Isolation Building a Necessity---Regret That Mr. Williamson is Leaving City---Rev. Mr. Webb Is The New President For The Year

The first meeting of the Ministerial Association since the summer vacation was held this morning in the Y.M.C.A., and proved a most interesting and profitable session. There was a very good attendance with Rev. Canon Davidson, the President, in the chair.

Several new members were welcomed and admitted into the Association. They were Rev. E A Pearson, of George street; Rev. C H Coons, of Mark street; Rev. Mr. O'Hara, and Rev. Dr. Marsh, of Springville.

Rev. Canon Davidson, the retiring president, gave a very interesting review of the year's work and the different problems and discussions that had engaged the attention of the Association. He also suggested an outline of the policy for the future.

The election of officers for the ensuing year was then held and resulted as follows:

President—Rev. J. R. Webb.
Vice-President—Rev. Dr. Langfeldt.
Secretary-Treasurer—Rev. H. J. Keith.

Rev. Mr. Webb has held the office of president of the Montreal Ministerial Association so that the members may look forward to a busy winter's work.

The departure of Mr. Geo. H. Williamson, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. from the city was discussed and the following resolution was unanimously carried by the meeting, Mr. Williamson being called in while the resolution was being read:—

"That this Association desires to place on record its high appreciation of the great help to the churches of this city, of Mr. Geo. H. Williamson, the General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and profoundly regret his departure from the work in Peterborough, but with pleasure, hopes for the continued success of his work among young men in his new field of labour."

Mr. Williamson made a fitting reply, thanking the Association for their kind words.

After his retirement the meeting discussed the Y.M.C.A. campaign, and decided to strongly recommend the effort of the Y.M.C.A. to the liberality of the citizens.

The meeting also talked over other matters among them the isolation hospital question and in this connection the Association will recommend to the authorities that the hospital be built.

Remarks were heard from a number of the members on their vacation trips this summer.

The appointments for the visitation of the Hospital and Protestant Home were made for the month.

Before adjourning Rev. J G Potter made a reference to the work done by Rev. Canon Davidson as president and a vote of thanks was passed to that gentleman.

HANGS TO SHAFT WHILE COAT IS TORN OFF

Presence of Mind of Factory Employee Averted An Accident

A serious accident was narrowly averted on Saturday at the Quaker Oats Company's factory when John Gateson, an employee, got tangled up in some machinery. His coat became caught in the machine and as the sleeves were tied with strings at the wrists he was unable to discard it. With unusual presence of mind he hung onto the shaft until the coat was torn off.

SHOT HIS SON FOR A WILD CAT

A Disastrous Mistake Made by a Bracebridge Man—Boy Was Hiding in Grain

F. Bodnar, who lives near Bracebridge, shot and killed his three-year-old son on Tuesday of last week. The child was asleep in the grain, and both Bodnar and the hired man mistook him for a wild cat. Men with three-year-old sons should be more careful about shooting wild animals that appear on their premises. The average man is too fond of killing things, anyway.—Fenelon Falls Gazette.

THE WEATHER.

We have had some very changeable weather during the last few days, and the end is apparently not yet. On Sunday morning we had it down to the freezing point—in fact one degree below—and in the afternoon a rain-area blew up, which continued during most of the night. Rain fell to a depth of .87 of an inch. The highest temperature was 58 degrees; lowest, 31. The barometer is at 29.97. It has been slowly falling for several days, and is still going down, so there are likely unsettled conditions ahead, probably rain or high winds, or both combined.

A SENTIMENT THAT MUST BE RECOGNIZED

In their discussion of the problem of Oriental immigration into British Columbia, the leading British journals, with few exceptions, are giving emphatic expression to the idea that neither in Great Britain, nor in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa or in this country will it serve any useful purpose merely to rail against local intolerance of the Asiatic, and the determination of the communities, where hostility to such immigration is manifest, to regard it as threatening the maintenance of their standard of life.

"If London were to be visited this winter by an influx of a million Japanese and Chinese," says the London Tribune, "we should not need to be told that the aim of self-protection against a revolutionary collapse of wages is one that will always arise spontaneously and irresistibly in the minds of a white self-governing community. It is not enough to quote against it the exigencies of Imperial politics or the Podsnapian sophisms of those who jest at scars because they have never felt a wound. The difficulty is one which will probably increase as time goes on, and East and West meet more intimately at a greater number of points. It cannot be solved by any policy of sweeping exclusion, but neither can it be left to the hazard of laissez-faire."

Says the Westminster Gazette of the "deep-seated feeling on the Pacific coast against the Asiatic": "It is idle for us in this country to be censorious as to this resentment, and, to be quite frank, there would almost certainly be resentment here if there were any similar immigration of Orientals. Whatever we may think of the feeling, we have only to see what steps have been taken in securing a white Australia to realize that the Oriental is looked upon as belonging to a civilization which cannot exist side by side with ours. We may think, as we do, that Australia has gone too far in carrying out this idea, but it would be folly not to realize and recognise that this 'white' policy is an absolutely settled conviction, and that not merely in Australia."

The London Spectator, in setting forth the necessity of treating openly and frankly with the Governments of China and Japan, and of inducing them by persistent diplomacy in the interests of peace and of preventing any racial conflict to prohibit the emigration of labourers, except under strict restrictions as to number, character and, if possible, of return, says: "It may be quite true that the popular white objections to Chinese and Japanese may be the result of ignorant prejudice; but the answer to that plea is perfectly clear. We must in that case wait till the prejudice has disappeared. The prejudice at all events exists, and as it is incurable except by time and increased intelligence, the Governments of the English-speaking peoples cannot be expected, in the interests either of a few capitalists or a few thousand dark labourers, to keep up a dangerous quarrel with the masses to whom in the long run they must remain responsible.

The difficulty of the problem and the need of the most prudent statesmanship in dealing with it are sufficiently obvious to every thinking man, as has already been said on both sides of the Atlantic, times beyond number; the difficulty is, if anything, made more evident by the fact that none of the London journals has any ready-made solution to offer. The one encouraging feature of the whole situation is that the Japanese Government had thus far distinguished itself throughout the difficult period of its entry into the ranks of the Great Powers by wise moderation and foresight, which give ground for counting upon its aid in a settlement in which recognition on its part of the just rights and interests of the white communities to which the problem comes directly home, will be a main factor.—Winnipeg Free Press.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The last son of the Crown Prince of Germany was born on July 4th. According to the idea of a Yankee cousin, he will be a "chicken-jack."

Of 257 samples of maple sugar examined this year by the Department of Inland Revenue, only 185 were genuine. Five were found to be a mixture, 57 were adulterated, and 10 were doubtful. The analyst notes that, with the methods in use, makers might dilute the maple product with pure cane sugar to some slight extent without more than awakening doubts as to the purity of the article, as the analyst must give them the benefit of the doubt. Glucose, however, is more easily detected.—Hamilton Times.

MODERN METHODS

How They Have Improved a Standard Remedy

In the seventeenth century a wave of excitement swept over England and France when the medical profession discovered such wonderful curative elements in cod's liver.

In the 18th century cod liver oil was imported and used extensively by physicians in this country but it was found to be adulterated to a great extent and the useless heavy oil which enveloped the medicinal elements, was a great hindrance to its medicinal value.

In 1855 a famous physician from the Hague went to Norway and after two years of experiment and research produced a light brown oil from the cods livers which was said to be more valuable than the pale yellow oil, but the taste and colour was so repulsive that it frequently caused such nausea that it made it unpopular.

The most valuable discovery, however, was later made by two eminent French cehmists, who after years of research discovered an extractive and concentrating process by which all of the medicinal, healing and body building elements of the cods' liver are separated from the useless and nauseating oil, these recovered medicinal elements combined with peptonate-of-iron make Vinol the most scientific and valuable cod liver preparation the world has ever known.

Vinol is so rich in the elements of life that it imparts vigour to all debilitated and feeble conditions, and is unexcelled as a remedy for all pulmonary troubles.

Try Vinol on our guarantee to return your money if it fails to give satisfaction. McDermid & Jury, druggists, George street, Peterborough; also the Market Drug Store.

LAST SUNDAY FOR ADJT. WIGGINS

His Farewell Services Held Yesterday at The Barracks

Yesterday was the last Sunday of Adjutant Wiggins' stay in Peterborough, and the services took the form of a farwell to him and Mrs. Wiggins. On Thursday they will leave for Toronto to attend the conference there, and will afterwards go to Windsor, Adjutant Wiggins' new field of labour.

In the morning the last special open-air meeting for this season was held at the corner of Lafayette avenue and Albert street, and was largely attended. These meetings have been a great boon to the Army and by this means people have been reached who otherwise would attend no Sunday devotions whatever.

In the evening the rain kept a large number away from the Barracks, but there was a good attendance. Speeches were given by Messrs. Robt. Elliott, Mark Spencely, and John Boorman, referring to the splendid success with which the Army has met during the past year under the administration of Adjutant Wiggins.

The adjutant and his wife made farewell replies, touching upon the assistance that the members of the corps have always willingly rendered. The citizens in general have also materially assisted the local corps, and Adjutant Wiggins expressed his gratitude for past favours. Special hymns were sung, and the whole service had a sympathetic note.

Nervous Women

Their Sufferings Are Usually Due to Female Disorders Perhaps Unsuspected.

A MEDICINE THAT CURES

Miss L Stowell

Can we dispute the well-known fact that Canadian women are nervous?

How often do we hear the expression, "I am so nervous, it seems as if I should fly;" or, "Don't speak to me." Little things annoy you and make you irritable; you can't sleep, you are unable to quietly and calmly perform your daily tasks or care for your children.

The relation of the nerves and generative organs in women is so close that nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous debility, the blues, sleeplessness and nervous irritability arise from some derangement of the organism which makes her a woman. Fits of depression or restlessness and irritability. Spirits easily affected, so that one minute she laughs, the next minute weeps. Pain in the abdominal region and between the shoulders; loss of voice; nervous dyspepsia; a tendency to cry at the least provocation —all this points to nervous prostration.

Nothing will relieve this distressing condition and prevent months of prostration and suffering so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Miss Leah Stowell, of 177 Wellington St., Kingston, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Your Medicine is indeed a Godsend to suffering women, and I only wish that they all knew what it can do for them and there would be no need of their dragging out miserable lives in agony. I suffered for years with bearing-down pains, extreme nervousness and excruciating headaches, but a few bottles of your vegetable Compound made life look new and promising to me. I am light and happy and I do not know what sickness is, and I have enjoyed the best of health now for over four years. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has sent sunshine into thousands of homes and hearts."

Will not the volumes of letters from women made strong by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound convince all women of its virtues? Surely you cannot wish to remain sick and weak and discouraged, exhausted each day, when you can be as easily cured as other women.

THE SERENADERS WERE PERSISTENT

And Gave Mr. H. E. Cowie, a Former Peterborough Boy, a Hearty Reception on Return From His Bridal Tour

The Portersville, Cal., Enterprise, in a recent issue has the following report of a pleasant reception tendered to a former Peterborough boy and his bride, on their return from their honeymoon:

Showers of rice and shouts of laughter greeted Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Cowie, on their return on Sunday night from their wedding journey. Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Cowie had gathered at the depot, prepared to give them a reception, but Harry, who had officiated as chief fun-maker at similar receptions to some of his friends, had anticipated what was coming, and he and his bride left the train at Lindsay, stepped into a waiting carriage and chuckling in great glee at his counter move, drove the balance of the distance into town.

The reception committee was momentarily disappointed. However, the secret leaked out, and the members of the depot crowd hied themselves to the home of George D. Avery, where the bride and bridegroom were to spend the night. As the carriage drove up to the Avery home Mr. and Mrs. Cowie suddenly found themselves surrounded by a couple of dozen of shouting friends, and for the next half hour had to stand for all the rice and noise and "joshing" that the crowd could give them. Everybody was invited into the house and Mrs. Avery served a fine supper in honour of the bride and groom, who were freely toasted, and congratulated. Mr. and Mrs. Cowie have gone to housekeeping at 803 Main street. Numerous handsome gifts have been pouring in throughout the week, consisting of silverware, cut glass, cutlery and articles of furniture.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

FOUR HUNDRED MORE IMMIGRANTS

Among Them a Young Electrician Who Is of The Number Who Came To Peterborough

The steamer "Southwark" landed in Quebec on Saturday morning with four hundred Salvation Army people on board. It sailed from Liverpool on the 26th of September with the party, conducted by Major Jones, who is now in Montreal. On Sunday several of the latest arrival arrived in Peterborough, among them being Francis Henry Clarke, from Chelmsford. He stated that the passage had been fairly pleasant, although several storms had been encountered. He was in the employ of the Crompton Company, electricians, in Chelmsford, Eng., and is an experienced electrician himself, having completed his apprenticeship a number of years ago. Mr. Clarke is a young man and has been a member of the Army during the past seven years. He is anxious to continue at his work in Canada, and believes that he will succeed in the new country.

BUSINESS MAN JUST ARRIVED HERE

Mr. Herb Smith From Leeds, England, Prepared To Go Into Business

Mr. Herbert Smith with his wife is a late arrival from the Old Country coming from Leeds, England, where he has been engaged in business with great success. He has come to Canada because of the reports that his brother, Mr. Fred Smith, 13 Jackson avenue, Peterborough, has sent home. Mr. H. Smith intends to go into some business having the necessary capital to carry him. He likes the city and believes it to be one of the best he has seen since his late arrival. Mr. Smith is 32 years of age. He has another brother in the West who has a whole section of land. If all the people coming from the Old Country were like Mr. Smith, Canada would soon be a rich country and there would at least be no public charities needed during the winter months.

The Hidden Parts

The charm of originality and true artistic merit attaches to every production of the Semi-ready tailor shops.

The hidden parts of the Semi-ready Coat are made as carefully and honestly as as the parts that show, and that's why Semi-ready quality is backed by a broad, full guarantee.

Semi-ready Tailoring was not achieved in a moment. The idea was born, and its present perfection graduated from years of experiment and experience. First pronounced as good as custom tailoring it is to-day a better product than any custom tailor can produce.

A small thing to look for, but a big thing to find.

AN INTERESTING ESSAY BY YOUTH

J. Ewart O'Shea, 11 Years of Age, Writes Composition on the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition

The Examiner has been placed in possession of an exceedingly interesting piece of literature, the product of a pupil of one of the schools of the city. It is an essay written by J. Ewart O'Shea, a boy 11 years of age and it deals with the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. It is as follows:

On September 26th, 27th and 28th, the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition was held. The last day was spoiled by a rainstorm, which continued all day, but the preceding days were beautiful.

All the schools in the city had a half holiday, and the majority of the children attended the Fair. There were a lot of outsiders in town, which helped make a very large crowd. When I got off the car there were crowds around the wicket, but my father had a ticket which admitted the family, so we got in without any delay.

When I got in the first thing that caught my eye was the poultry tent, which interested me very much. The different species of fowl were very nice to look at. The swine were very fine, too; one sow had a litter of seventeen little pigs. The horses were very nice. A gardener that liven next to ouf cottage got first prize for a foal, and second prize for a foal and mother. The cattle were beautiful; there were a great many consisting of many kinds. The vegetables were numerous. The fancy work was most beautiful, and there were many other things which I could not tell you about.

The fortune-tellers were very interesting to look at. They came from Egypt, and were very cross to the children. The dog show and races were very amusing; they made everyone laugh. Speeding in the ring was the men's favourite, and the carters' race was very comical.

The Fair was the best that has ever been held in Peterborough for many years. Much credit is due to Ald. Geary for the great pains he took in making our Exhibition such a success.

You have read the Sailor Boy a Plea buy to-day for your dinner tomorrow, Sailor Boy Canned Goods Tomatoes, Corn, Peas and Salmon Your money does to buy better Goods. Do you get Sailor Boy or Substitute?

WERE A BAD BUNCH OF CHILDREN

Started Scraps on George Street and Stole Grapes

There are some decidedly bad youngsters in Peterborough, and the fact was demonstrated on George street Saturday by a bunch of four or five "kids," of both sexes, ranging in age from five years to ten. They started a free-for-all scrap that was lively while it lasted, but was broken up before any damage was done. Friendship was restored in the party again, and they united in making an attack on another small boy, who got away without being hurt. Then the aggregation halted in front of a grocery store and, breaking the cover on a basket of grapes, had a picnic with the luscious fruit before they were chased away.

Put New Blood into the Arteries
AND THE FEELING OF WEAKNESS AND FATIGUE WILL GIVE WAY TO HEALTH AND VIGOR
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

At this time of year nothing is of such great value to the human system as new rich red blood. Feelings of languor and depression, headaches, sleeplessness, irritability, impaired digestion, nervousness — these all tell of thin, watery blood and a run down system.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is above all else a blood building restorative which puts new blood into the arteries and by so doing lays the foundation for health and vigour.

It sharpens up the appetite, and strengthens the nerves, which control the flow of digestive fluids, forms new firm flesh and tissues, and gives vigour to thee vital organs of the body.

Mr. Fred H. Gould, Purdy, Hastings Co., Ont., writes: "I was troubled with nervous headaches, which at times were very painful and caused much suffering. It has been thoroughly cured by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I can recommend this treatment most highly and believe that as a general system builder it has no equal.

Mrs. W. Chappel, Barrie, Ont., writes, "I have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a means of building up the nervous system and of improving the health generally and I have also found it a good remedy for female troubles.

"We have used Dr. Chase's Ointment as a household remedy for all kinds of sores and cuts and think it is a splendid ointment."

You can be sure that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing you good because each dose goes to the formation of a certain amount of pure, rich, red, blood. It cures by the building up process, and its cures are, therefore, thorough and lasting; 50 cents a box; 6 for $2.50, at all dealers; or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

A HOG BOARD IS PROPOSED

An Adjunct to the Peterborough Cheese Board At Which Farmers May Sell Hogs as They Now Dispose Of Cheese

A member of the Peterborough Cheese Board has proposed that, as an adjunct to that body, a hog board be formed, similar to that at present in existence at Picton, a despatch from which town says:

A hog board has been established in connection with the Picton cheese board. To the board farmers will come to sell their own hogs, and also those they are empowered to sell by neighbours. The local buyers will attend. The selling of hogs will be divided into four classes; selects, fat, light and sows. It is anticipated that this new idea will be beneficial alike to buyer and seller for the former will be able to fill quick orders in lots and the farmer seller will gain the advantage in the competition, as does the cheese seller.

NEW RESIDENTS ARE RESPECTED

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Soward are Removing From Kinmount to This City

The Minden Echo says: We are about to lose from our midst one of the oldest residents of the town, Rev. E. Soward, who intends living in Peterborough in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Soward will be much missed in the village having made many friends and being so well known and respected throughout the country. Their friends, and they are many, will wish them a long and happy life in their new home.

Senator Cox's Views On The Asiatic Labour Question

He Points Out in Address in Calgary That Labour is Needed in Order to Develop The Country

EUROPEAN CAPITAL COMES

A despatch in the Toronto News, from Calgary gives a summary of an important speech delivered by Hon. Senator Cox in that city, where he remained a few days on his way home from the coast, where he was accompanied by Ald. W G Morrow of this city. The despatch is as follows:—

Senator Cox, who is in town, made a significant contribution to the discussion of Oriental labour at a luncheon in his honour. He said that if the Grand Trunk Pacific could get more labour it would be pushed ahead much more rapidly. $17,000,000 or $18,000,000 was lying on deposit in the banks of the Old Country waiting to be spent on the Grand Trunk Pacific, but they could not get enough men. Contractors working between Edmonton and Winnipeg did not want the work to begin in the mountain section because it would draw their men away. If more labour were available a larger amount of capital would be distributed and the general condition of the country would be improved.

He was convinced, looking at the general welfare of the whole country, that the true policy at this particular time was to open our doors and encourage labour from every country. He believed it to be a mistake to try to keep out labour when the country was suffering and being held back for want of it. He was told in Vancouver that if he lived on the Coast he would not say this, but he looked at the question from a broader point of view and believed he was right. The Senator appealed to both political parties to keep the Asiatic question from being made a political one; politics should be kept out of it entirely.

He added that the rand Trunk Pacific would enter Calgary.

A HOLIDAY JAUNT TO SUNNY SOUTH

Mr. G. M. Roger Will Give Address On This Subject Before Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's

H. J. Keith will give an address on mission work in India. On Monday night of next week the Faithful Workers' Band will hold an interesting gathering, at which an illustrated address will be given by Rev. Mr. Keith, whose subject will be "India." The Session will also hold its monthly meeting on Monday. The Young Men's Guild will meet on Tuesday night of next week, and at that meeting Mr. G. M. Roger will give an address on "A Holiday Jaunt Through the Sunny South."

BLACK GROUNDHOG WAS SHOT

A Newtonville Man Makes an Interesting Find—Why Was Coat Changed?

A ground hog, or woodchuck, in mourning; coat jet black, except the tip of the nose, which is lighter in colour; there must be a reason for adopting this sombre coat. Perhaps it is because the ground tax has soared so in value that he cannot afford as large a hole to live in as formerly. It was shot by S. R. Jones of Newtonville, and is being mounted by E. Elcome, taxidermist, where it can be seen.

Christian Workers Should Have The Desire To Help

An Eloquent Sermon by Rev. J. C. Robertson, B. D. in St. Paul's Church Last Night—Is The Secretary of Sunday School Work

A HELPFUL DISCOURSE

That a desire to help is the essential feature of a Christian life was the key-note of an earnest and eloquent sermon delivered at St. Paul's church last evening by the Rev. J. C. Robertson, B.D., of Toronto, General Secretary of the Sunday School work of the Presbyterian church in Canada. Owing to the inclemency of the weather the congregation present was not as large as would, under ordinary circumstances have greeted such a well known church worker, but those present could not fail to be benefitted by the discourse.

In the course of his sermon Rev. Mr. Robertson referred to the growth of the interest of the young men in church work, which, he said, was greater than at any other time in the history of the church.

The text chosen was I. Peter, 4; 8: "And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves; for charity shall cover the multitude of sins." This the speaker referred to as a very unusual promise and the fact that it was made by the Apostle Peter made it even more remarkable. Peter was not the kind of a man that one would expect to make such a statement. From the Apostle John it would not have been surprising but Peter's chief characteristic was not love; he was rather of a stern rugged type. He was forced to make the statement because he had been convinced of its truth through the experience of his own life.

The speaker passed on to consider the statement itself. It was scarcely necessary, he said, to remind his hearers that the word charity has changed in meaning since it was used by Peter. Now it means the outward act; then it meant the inward spirit leading to the act. It might be thought as the desire to help was the essential thing for a Christian worker to possess. There had been a time when the desire to hurt had had its place in the minds of those connected with the church. The pages of history showed that there were times when the church had desired to hurt and in doing so she had invariably hurt herself. Now he thanked God, this desire to hurt had almost entirely disappeared.

The Christian worker should have desire to help rather than a desire to be helped. In the early history of the church worldly minded men had come in in the hope of being helped, but that danger was now passed. People, however, had need to remind themselves that the church stands for service and that they were members because of the opportunities to help others rather than on account of the opportunity to help themselves. It was a fact, moreover, that when people came into the church with a desire to help others, they were helped themselves more than they could have been under other conditions.

It should be a desire to help rather than be indifferent to those about us. "It was only in the time of our fathers," remarked the speaker, "that the church was awakened to a sense of its responsibility to the heathen world."

Passing on to discuss how charity could cover a multitude of sins, Rev. Mr. Robertson said that it could do this in one way by looking deeper into one's heart and bringing to light the good that was there to cover up the bad. As an example he told the story of Peter's denial of the Saviour and of His question afterwards "Lovest thou Me?" followed by the injunction to look after His lambs.

"We should look on our work in the same way," said the speaker. "The fact that we have so many possibilities should be an assurance that we are forgiven and are considered worthy of service. We should look upon it as a great honour and as a great cause for rejoicing." He believed that all Sunday School workers should regard it as the greatest honour God could put upon them, that He was willing to use them to accept their service and to permit them to lead others nearer to Him.

In conclusion, Rev. Mr. Robertson spoke of the young men's connection with the church. The most important opening he said, was the widespread movement among young men. The best possible way to save a young man was with a young man. Church workers should be devoutly thankful that the desire to help was so frequently being manifested among the young men and there was an era of promise ahead because the young men were taking hold as never before in the history of the church.

Music and Drama

"A ROMANCE IN IRELAND"

Allen Doone, the well-known Irish comedian, who made himself a general favourite here last season by his realistic acting in the title role of the "Kerry Gow," appeared at the Grand on Saturday in two performances of the new comedy-drama, "A Romance in Ireland," written by Mr. Doone himself. Two good houses welcomed him back to Peterborough, and the audience was thoroughly satisfied with the bill. Mr. Doone has surrounded himself with the majority of the members of the "Kerry Gow" company in his new venture, which, it must be admitted, bears a great resemblance to Joseph Murphy's play.

There are several strong climaxes, including a most realistic fight, in which the excitement of the audience was worked up to fever heat.

Mr. Doone, by his voice and smile, won the audience from his first appearance, and his acting was greatly enjoyed, while his songs were a decided treat. He has a clear, high tenor and sings with a great deal of expression, his rendition of Joseph Murphy's famous song, "A Handful of Earth," being received with great favour.

The supporting company was an excellent one. Miss Edna Kelly as Norah Doyle, made a very favourable colleen. Miss Kittie O'Brien as Biddy Dolan, a "dacent widdy woman," and Mr. Chas. Daly as Micher Brady, supplied considerable comedy, their eccentric dance bringing down the house.

Ministers Hear of The Details of Y.M.C.A. Work

General Secretary Addressed Meeting of City Clergymen on Saturday Night at the Association Building

TOLD THEM OF THE WORK

The strongest kind of evidence of the interest of the clergymen of the city in the Y.M.C.A. was shown at the annual gathering in honour of the ministers given on Saturday evening by the members of the Strangers Fellowship Club.

The following ministers were present: Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, Rev. Messrs Potter, Webb Pearson, Keith, Coon and Manning. Regrets were sent by Revs. Canon Davidson, Major and Brace.

Mr. R. E. Harding, president, occupied the chair, and extended a cordial welcome to the ministers, and at the same time voiced the appreciation of the officers of the interest taken in the work by the ministers of the city.

Mr. G. H. Williamson then gave a short address on the "Relationship of the Y.M.C.A., to the Church," pointing out that it was the child of the Church, and that it should never occupy any other relationship than that of an auxiliary. He emphasized the fact that the management was in the hands of members of evangelical churches.

Short addresses were given by all the ministers who were present, each expressing the value of the work to the church and the work of the retiring secretary, Mr. Williamson.

Rev. H. J. Keith spoke especially of the call of the Church in foreign lands for Y.M.C.A. work.

Rev. J. G. Potter gave strong testimony of how the Club and the Association had helped him in his church work.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt emphasized the value of personal effort, and said that among many others, one of the most active young men in his church had been sent to him by the Association. He said that the association should always stand on the platform that had made it such a power in the world, namely, Loyalty to Jesus Christ.

Rev. H. M. Manning said that young men could best get young men, and, therefore, the Y.M.C.A. was indispensable.

Notes

The Six Days' Campaign closes on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

There is much work to do yet — every man on the committee will have to hustle.

It will be for the citizens to decide whether the campaign will end successfully or not.

The Peterborough Y.M.C.A. has no endowment of any kind; it has to depend every year for half its budget from subscriptions from citizens, who are interested in young men.

The Y.M.C.A. work in Peterborough is run with less expense than any other town of the same size in Canada.

To-night many prominent citizens are expected at the tea at 6.30 p.m.

Let there be a good rally of the Citizens' and Young Men's Committees.

Everybody give the work a push!

FORMER PETERBOROUGH LADY ONE OF THE BENEFICIARIES

The will of the late Thos. Gilbard of Cobourg, has been probated. The estate is valued at $84,000, and the bequests are as follows:

Mrs. Gillbard, his wife, $12,000 absolutely, and his dwelling house during her lifetime, furniture, household effects. At her death the house to be given to one of his late brother John's children, John Gillbard, Edward Gillbard and Polly Salisbury, $3,000 each; the trustees of the Methodist church, $1000; the Methodist Sunday school, $500; Methodist Missionary Society of Canada, $500; Cobourg branch Upper Canada Bible Society, $200; the Cobourg Collegiate Institute, $100, for purchasing pictures or other works of art; $200 to the Cobourg Cemetery Company to care for the cemetery lot; to his executors, Wm. Black and William Hopper, $500 each; $10,000 for the public school, which has already been paid; all the residue of his estate to be kept and invested for the benefit of his wife during her lifetime, and at her death to be divided among the children of his late brother, John Gillbard, share and share alike. He directs that it is his desire to have the schools of the town centralized; that there be a private room for the principal, and accommodation for a public school library.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly, the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries,

Don't Accept Bad Money; Bogus Quarters Circulated

Some Business Places Said to Have Been Caught Unawares—They Will be Careful in Future

HOW TO SPOT THEM

If you want to arouse the suspicions of some particular business men in the city to-day, offer them a new 25-cent piece. They will at once become uneasy and ask you where you got the money. The reason is that some of them, during the last few days, have been "stuck" with bogus quarters, and the public is warned to be on the lookout for this spurious coin, which is being circulated throughout the city with persistence.

The bogus quarters are dated 1902, have King Edward's head on them, and are a fair imitation of the real thing.

However, once a person has become acquainted with them they are not hard to detect for the reason that the edges are rough and have the appearance of having been finished in a hurry.

In weight, the bad money is so close to the scale as to almost defy detection, and the workmanship on them, barring the rough edges, is excellent.

Tully's Hair Tonic

and DANDRUFF CURE makes the hair grow July 24th, 1907.

About the month of September, 1906, my hair began to come out in large spots, leaving the scalp perfectly bare on the right side of the head, also my beard on the left side. About the 15th of December I showed it to J. D. Tully, Druggist; he said that he had a preparation that would restore the hair. I could scarcely credit his statement, but decided to try it, and in three weeks using the hair commenced to grow. Since that time I have lost nearly all my old hair which has been entirely replaced with new hair, and the beard also. I consider this by all means the best hair grower on the market, as I had previously tried other preparations without any effect. Any one wishing to ask me about it will find me at my home, 265 McDonnel Street, Peterborough, or at R. R. Crossing, G.T.R., Charlotte St.

CUPID CONQUERS; AND LINDSAY COUPLE OUTWIT IRATE PARENTS

Examiner Special.

Lindsay, Oct. 4.—Many and varied are the ways of Cupid to bind two fond hearts together, and the little god does not endure defeat. Because her parents were averse to her marriage, a Lindsay young lady eloped with her fiance yesterday. The members of her family were all away, thus giving the desired opportunity, and the pair made haste to the nearest minister and there were "made one." They left later ostensibly for Newmarket. The groom was a well-known railway man.

A CONFIRMATION AT ST. LUKE'S

A meeting of the Candidates Will be Held This Week—Rector Commends Y.M.C.A

The following meetings will be held at St. Luke's this week:

Monday, 7.30, Girls' Auxiliary.

Tuesday, 8, Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

Wednesday, 3, Mothers' Guild.

Thursday—8.30, Woman's Auxiliary; 8, choir practice.

Friday—4.15, Mission Band.

The rector will hold a meeting for candidates for Confirmation on Friday evening at 8 o'clock, and for those who cannot attend at night, on Saturday morning at 10.30, to make arrangements for a class of instructions.

Dr. Langfeldt recommended to the generosity of his people the six-day appeal for funds for the Y.M.C.A.

Is There Laxity in Training By Protestant Teachers?

Mr. Barton Earle Writes of Differences in Courteousness in The Catholic and Other Schools

LOVE OR SEVERITY, WHICH?

To the Editor of the Examiner.—

Dear Sir, — On Friday last I had occasion to visit a school not far from Peterborough. I rapped at the door of what was told me by a pupil was the principal's room. The gentleman who came to the door was a young man, whom I at first took to be a senior pupil, but found he was the principal. I introduced myself to him as an old teacher; but there was no response. He did not even invite me into the room. As I was asked to see him by several prominent residents of the place, I stepped in, uninvited. I found the room, to say the least, not very clean. The pupils, most of whom were in a lounging position, barely looked up on my entrance, though most of them were not by any means engaged in work, and the teacher's manner throughout was by no means courteous.

This morning I visited the Lake street school, Peterborough, conducted by the Sisters of St. Joseph. I was, of course, most courteously received. The room was a model of cleanliness as, indeed, were all the other rooms in the building. The pupils all arose on my entrance, I was introduced to them by the Sister in charge, and all, with one voice, said: "Good morning, Mr. Earle." The pupils were models of cleanliness and neatness. The order was perfect, and it was quite evident that it was due rather to the influence of love than severity.

Now, Mr. Editor, which is the more desirable condition of affairs? I believe with Goldsmith, who, in speaking of the French, says:

They please, are pleased, they give to get esteem,
Till seeming blest they grow to what they seem.

The practice of the outward forms of civility cannot fail to have an influence on the heart.

I visit many schools, both Public and Separate, and though the difference is not always, or even generally, so marked, still there is a difference, and that difference is always in favour of the Separate schools.

Some years ago I was at Penetanguishene, and asked to be directed to the Public school. I was received most courteously by the teacher, the pupils arose on my entrance, and greeted me when I was introduced to them. To say the least I was astonished, and on my return to the hotel, I expressed my astonishment, when I was informed by a gentleman present that I had visited the Catholic school. Contrary to former experience, I found the Catholic school was the Public school, and the other school was a Separate school.

I write this, not to injure anyone, but in hopes that at least some Protestant teachers may be induced to follow, in this respect, their Catholic neighbours. I am, Mr. Editor,

Yours respectively,

BARTON EARLE.

Provincial Authorities Are Asked To Protect Public

Inspector of Meat For Local Consumption Should be Appointed, According to Correspondent

SOME QUESTIONS ASKED

The question of meat inspection in Peterborough—inspection of the meat sold by the local butchers to the citizens—is one which is claiming attention of thinking people, and a number of suggestions have been made relative to it. In view of the fact that it is a matter in which deep interest is being shown the following letter, which appeared in the Toronto World recently will be read with interest:

Editor World: I notice with much interest your article on meat inspection in to-day's World. I see the Dominion laws require all meat sent out of the county or from one province to another, to be inspected both before and after killing, and that the slaughter house must be kept clean and up to the inspector's standard; also that the inspector remain on the premises every day and all day to see that all this is carried out.

You say that there are four Dominion inspectors in one of the packing houses. If so how can Mr. Awde, the only inspector under the provisions of the Ontario inspection law and the local board of health, be expected to inspect all the rest of the city meat food, including the fish and fruit markets? Is it not possible that the city are asking him to cover too much ground?

You also say that these Dominion inspectors have already condemned a large number of cattle and hogs, and that the inspection for local consumption is under the supervision of the provincial health authorities.

Now please tell me who would have eaten this meat if there had been no inspection.

Why should the meat we send to Montreal require inspection while what is served to the people of Toronto goes uninspected? Are citizens of Toronto more immune from infection than the citizens of Montreal?

If the Dominion Government looks after the foreigner and sees that he gets good meat, what are the provincial authorities doing for our food?

We have been eating our beef steak and roasts right along without asking questions on the principle that "where ignorance is bliss it is folly to be wise," but the moment that the Dominion inspector comes on the scene we find a large amount of our cattle and hogs condemned for disease. If the inspector had not arrived I presume we would have eaten this meat. These condemned cattle did not come along just because the inspector came. I take it that we have been getting a fair proportion of the same class of food all along and possibly contracted diseases we little dream of. Who is protecting us? Please set our minds at rest on this point or we will have to give up eating our steak.

I note you say the packers will not give out any information: How is this? Would the truth about our meat do any harm? If there is a nigger in the fence he should be located.

Now when you have turned our stomachs against meat, it is up to you to make good and show that our meat is free from disease, and if not, why not? When Upton Sinclair made his revelations in Chicago he made good, and the Americans are grateful to him for it to-day.

I think this is too serious a matter to neglect, and I hope that I, for one, have not been eating the meat which would have been condemned if a Dominion inspector had seen it.

Can you tell me what is to prevent a butcher in Lambton from killing cattle suffering from tuberculosis or lump jaw and trimming the meat up so that it would not be noticeable to the purchaser and selling it in the city for us to eat?

I trust in the interests of public health, you will not let this matter drop until the citizens can feel that they are eating healthy food. I look upon the question as one of vital importance and worthy of the fullest consideration.

MARKET CLERK CHALLENGES COAL MEN TO PROVE MISTAKE

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The anonymous letter in the Examiner on Saturday night referring to the proposal to attempt municipal ownership with the city market and also referring to an alleged mistake made by me in an arithmetical problem, is, in the latter case, very misleading. No name was attached to the letter, and for all I, or the public in general, know, the author may be an irresponsible person. Statements are made for which there is no foundation, and therefore very misleading. I challenge the author of the statements or any coal man of the city to prove that a mistake was made in subtraction, which is alleged. You will notice, Mr. Editor, that throughout the letter your anonymous contributor writes, "I am told" or "a coal man told me," or "I have been informed," that such and such is the case. I consider that any man is in fairness bound to sign his name and make his charges direct in such a case as accusing a man of making such a mistake as was "merely alleged" in his letter on Saturday. I have been away for a few days, but I went over my books this morning and there is no such mistake in subtraction as was told to "Public Ownership," and I am ready to prove this any time your "coal man" or [illegible] "Public Ownership" is prepared to come forward and investigate the case, I am, Mr. Editor,

Yours respectfully,

W. A. MILMOYLE,
Market Clerk.

WEDDING BELLS.

HILL-WARNER.

On Thursday afternoon a quiet but pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Peter Warner, Brock street, when his daughter, Miss Susie, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Charles Stewart Hill of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. A. Pearson in the presence of a number of the most intimate friends of the contracting parties. The wedding march was played by Miss Clara Hill, sister of the groom. The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father. The bride's wedding gown was of white silk colienne, with trimming of pearls, medallions and point d'esprit, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. Her bridal veil was caught up with lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss May Hill, sister of the groom, was dressed in pale blue silk mull and carried a shower bouquet of pink carnations. The groom was assisted by Mr. Herbert McMillan, cousin of the bride.

The groom's present to the bride and bridesmaid was a sapphire ring, and to the groomsman a garnet ring. The number of beautiful and costly presents showed the high esteem in which the couple is held. Among her many presents was a purse given by her father. The bride's travelling suit was of wine coloured venea cloth with a pretty hat to match.

Mr. Hill was presented with a beautiful rocker by his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill left on the 4.48 tram for Toronto, where they will reside in the future. Their numerous friends join in wishing them a happy and prosperous life.

PAPER CHASE FURNISHES AMUSEMENT

Knox Church Boys Go For a Run On Saturday Afternoon

The novel sport of a "paper chase" engaged the attention of some thirty boys of the Knox Church Club under the leadership of Mr. H. Wilkie on Saturday afternoon. Three of the boys left Knox Church with the paper, which was distributed all along the road leading to North Monaghan, and were followed up by the remainder. The sport was new to many and furnished a delightful afternoon for the boys, who are preparing for the field day with the boys of All Saints' on October 19.

BOY NEARLY BLINDED BY MISSLE

Jas. Eyres May Lose Sight of Right Eye By Being Struck by Horsechestnut

POLICE COURT TO-DAY

The police court opened to-day with an unusually large docket to which Magistrate Dumble had to attend. Alfred Jones once more appeared on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. "Guilty," was his reply to the charge, and he was fined two dollars to be paid forthwith. He pulled a crumble five spot from his vest pocket, apparently glad that all of it was not asked. He has been a frequent offender of late, and was told that the next time he would be dealt with as he deserved.

John Ford, Ralph Cheyne and Thos. Holmes appeared on the charge of being vagrants. They pleaded not guilty and were remanded until Thursday. The came down from Toronto, got on a toot and were arrested. Chief Roszel's men got after them, and arrested them. They are young fellows and, apparently, companions.

Joseph Dineen, a youth of about 13 pleaded guilty to having struck James Eyres on the eye with a horse chestnut. The affair happened on October 3rd when young Eyres was walking along near the corner of Smith and Water streets, when he was hit in the eye and ran home in great pain. His father attended to him, and on Sunday took him to a doctor, who said there is yet danger that the sight may be injured. His Worship asked for further evidence but that was about the whole truth. The habit, the court said, is an abominable one, and is far too prevalent. Boys, without regard for others, throw stones, apples, etc., etc., without thought of the consequences. The case was enlarged for a week, when the injury of the eye will be considered.

Mr. William Eyres appeared for his son, saying that he has had to leave off his studies at the Collegiate and his sight may be destroyed in the injured eye.

Wm. Beck, guardian of Annie and Bruce Hamilton, two children about 15 and 13 years of age, respectfully, had a charge against John and George Russell, the former bing but six years of age, for using profane language towards the girl and striking the boy, Bruce Hamilton.

The smaller Russell boy was discharged as it was shown that he had committed no offence, but another boy, not summoned, was guilty of the filthy language. Geo. Russell, so young Hamilton said, kicked him and gave him a black eye. Russell told his Worship that he was the bully of his ward. He was fined $2 and was told that he had no business to kick the boy or in any way abuse him for nothing.

Mr. H. H. Hillier appeared on behalf of his little boy, who was summoned in this case, but had really nothing to do with it, being wanted as a witness. He was very angry with Mr. Mack, who he said, knew that his son had had nothing to say to the Hamilton children. He spoke of "going to law" about it if there was any ground for an action.

FOR PROTECTION TO THE CITIZENS

An Association Will be Formed With Object of Protecting Citizens' Interests

TO WATCH THE COUNCIL

The proposal to form a Citizens Progressive rotective Association will probably take definite form in the near future. To-day a gentleman who is taking a deep interest in the movement, informed the Examiner that he had found a general desire among the citizens for some such organization, and he anticipated that soon definite steps would be taken. He pointed out that organizations are formed by practically every body of men these days. The tradesmen have unions, the pressmen have unions, and he did not see why the citizens should not have an organization as well. He evidently looks upon the city council as a body worth watching, too, because the plan for the organization of the Protective Association, as he outlined it, provides for a representative of the Association to attend the meetings of the Council and guard the interests of the citizens generally in the deliberations of that body.

As the name implies, the new organization will be progressive. Part of its duties will be to secure new industries, but the protective feature is the strong point.

The position the gentleman who outlined the plan to the Examiner took was that while the council was elected by the citizens it was necessary to appoint another man to watch them.

LOOKING OVER POWER CONDITIONS

Engineer of the Hydro Electric Condition in the City To-day

OOne of the engineers of the Hydro Electric Commission is in the city today and this afternoon with the Mayor, Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Stevenson is investigating the power conditions here. It will be remembered that the city applied to the Commission some time ago for the right to acquire and develop power in the district. The Engineer is here for the purpose of looking over the power available and discussing the situation with the council.

PREACHERS INTERESTED IN SIX DAYS' CAMPAIGN

The address which the ministers of the city heard on Saturday night from Mr. G. H. Williamson, General Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., on the "Relation of the Churches to the Y.M.C.A.," has evidently borne fruit, for yesterday in the majority of the pulpits occupied by men who heard the address on Saturday, references were made to the excellent work being accomplished by the Association, and the present efforts to raise $1,500 from the citizens was commended. The ministers were told some things know before concerning the interest by the secretary which they did not workings of the Y.M.C.A.

A great scarcity of hay and roots is reported in the northern parts of Grey and Bruce Counties, and many farmers are selling their stock rather than attempt to winter them.

RAIN OF HOT METAL

Men Meet Fearful Death at Standard Steel Works.

FOUR KILLED—TWENTY HURT

Metal Pot Full of Molten Iron Upset —Burning Liquid Poured on Workmen—Explosion Followed Burying Many Under Wreckage—Injuries Were Fearful—Men Were Literally Cooked—Foreigners.

Butler, Pa., Oct. 7.—An explosion in No. 1 cupola of the Standard Steel Co. here late Saturday night caused the death of four men, fatally injured twenty and seriously injured ten others. Nearly all the men were foreigners. The large wheel plant, 150 by 100 feet, was demolished, causing a loss estimated at $100,000.

The condition of the thirty men injured is pitiable. The features of a majority are mutilated beyond recognition. The hot metal was showered over them, causing horrible injuries, and at midnight the physicians attending them said that at least twenty would die.

The explosion was caused by the upsetting of a metal pot in the cupola, which contained 5,000 pounds of molten metal ready for casting. A span of the pot broke, allowing the liquid iron to spill over the wet sand. An explosion followed so quickly that none of the workmen in the building had a chance to escape. Streams of the burning metal poured out on the workmen, some of whom were engulfed and literally cooked. Twenty men near the cupola had every shred of clothing blown off by the force of the explosion. Many were buried under the wreckage, and were not rescued for an hour after the catastrophe.

150 FALL WITH FLOOR.

Tragic Ending to Republican Rally—Lamp Fires Debris.

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 7.—During a Republican rally in the North End Athletic Club rooms Saturday night the floor collapsed, precipitating 150 men into the cellar of the building. By the explosion of a lamp the building was set on fire and the crowd of men struggled in the flames and debris almost helplessly.

The fire was extinguished in about an hour, and when the men were all taken out of the cellar it was found that one, Harry Dean, a well-known Republican worker, was perhaps fatally injured. He was hurried to the hospital.

Among those injured were John Oswell, Republican candidate for mayor, who had just spoken as the building collapsed, and Senator Irving H. Chase, one of the most prominent men in the city.

DOESN'T WORK WELL.

But Friction Over Modus Vivendi May Be Avoided.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The United States State Department has received word from Prof. Alexander, who is in Newfoundland waters looking after the interests of American fishermen, that the modus vivendi recently concluded [illegible]

Few of the American fishing vessels have arrived on the fishing grounds. Negotiations are on between the American fishing captains and the Newfoundland authorities directly, which, it is hoped, may remove any further friction, the basis of which is the purchase outright by the Americans of the fish caught by the Newfoundlanders.

Such an arrangement would, it is believed, largely meet the objection of Sir Robert Bond to the shipment of Newfoundland fishermen on American vessels.

SIXTY KILLED, MANY INJURED.

Terrible Explosion In Powder Factory at Osaka.

Tokio, Oct. 7.—A terrible explosion occurred Saturday morning at the Takatsuke factory, Osaka, while a number of girls were at work sorting shells and cartridge which had been condemned. Sixty-three of the girls were killed and over sixty others injured. As this is sent the factory is on fire, and a number of boats containing explosives were also burned.

Raided Orchards.

Belleville, Oct. 7.—Twenty men, women and children were up in the Police Court Saturday morning, charged with stealing fruit, they having stripped two orchards belonging to Messrs. Balls and Stewart of the Deaf and Dumb Institute staff. They were given a severe reprimand and fined in amounts ranging from $1.50 and costs.

Victorias and Peterborough's Clash Here On Saturday

The first rugby game of the season will be played on Saturday afternoon at Riverside Park, when the Toronto Victorias will meet Peterborough. A splendid contest should be the result. Vics. and Peterborough are old rivals, and may be depended upon to put up a hard fight on Saturday. There should be a big crowd of enthusiasts on hand for the contest, as one of the best games in years will be seen. The locals are in good shape, and with a week's hard practising will be in condition to go the limit. They are confident of beating the visitors on Saturday.

The Crescents and Karnots met in a practice game of rugby on the Oval Saturday afternoon and an excellent workout was the result. Both teams had full line-ups, but the Karnots were minus several of their heaviest players on the back division and also alone the wings. While no actual score was kept the Crescents managed to get over the line for five tries and also forced several rouges, while they kept the Karnots from the danger zone of their touch line. Porter, Gaele, Giroux and Johnston put up a good game for the Karnots, while Staunton, Ray, Ackerman and Jewel were there for the Crescents. MacDonald, a new man at the game, with more experience will make a good one. If it can be arranged these two teams will meet again next Saturday when a better game should be played. Mr. Horace Walkey handled the whistle, but was unable to follow the game closely enough to penalize for rough play.

THE TEAM HAD A FINE WORKOUT

Large Turnout of Kickers at Riverside Park Saturday

The rugby team had a great practice at Riverside Park on Saturday, when some twenty-five players chased the pigskin for over two hours. The form displayed was such as to delight the management and the handful of enthusiasts who had gathered to watch the practice. Colledge, Crowley, Quinlan and Evans were tried on the back division and worked well together. Colledge punted well and dropped a pretty goal from the field. Crowley and Quinlan worked in some dodging runs, while Evans caught and tackled well. Hurtubise, Deannard and Clarke formed the scrimmage, and the ball came out for the most part fast and clean, although, as there was no scrimmage against them, the test was not a good one. Among the players out in uniform were Crowley, Colledge, Hurtubise, Dillon, Evans, Quinlan, Lundy, Deannard, Clarke, Dickson, O'Connor, Crough, Hickey, Fitzgerald, Turner, Dontis, Conway and Walker.

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Colborne Wharf," will be received at this office until Thursday, October 24, 1907, inclusively, for the construction of a wharf and more approach at Colborne, County of Northumberland, Ont., according to a plan and a specification to be seen at the office of J. G. Sing, Esq., Resident Engineer, Confederation Building, Toronto, on application to the Postmaster at Colborne, Ont., and at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the form supplied, and signed with the actual signatures of tenderers.

An accepted cheque, on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, for fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500.00), must accompany each tender. The cheque will be forfeited if the person tendering decline the contract, or fail to complete the work contracted for, and will be returned in case of non-acceptance of tender.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order
FRED. GELINAS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, October 3, 1907.

BIG PRACTICE EXPECTED TO-NIGHT

Rugby Team Will Elect a Captain For The Season

A full practice of the rugby team will be held to-night at Riverside Park, and every member of the team is asked to be out, as some important matters are to be brought up, including the selection of a captain, which will take place to-night. The signals have been revised, and as the team plays its first game on Saturday it is necessary that the players should have them thoroughly mastered before that time. The back division will be singled out separately from the wings to-night.

Velvet Skin, Soft and Clear

What one or two applications of Dr. Chase's Ointment will do for rough, inflamed and irritated skin, is almost as wonderful as the complete cure of eczema by its persistent use. By its healing, soothing and antiseptic influence, Dr. Chase's Ointment quickly cures chafing and skin diseases, and eruptions and leaves the skin, clear, soft and velvety.

CRESCENTS LOST AT LAKEFIELD

Junior Team Was Defeated on Saturday by Grove School by Score of 28-5

On Saturday afternoon the Crescent III. went to Lakefield to play the Grove team of that place. They were beaten by a score of 28—5, but the game was not as one sided as the score might indicate. Glass of the Grove, was responsible for most scores by Dean made the only Crescent tally.

The teams wore—

Back, H. Morrow.
Halves, W. Perks, capt., V. McCabe, H. Matthews,
Quarter, C. Dean.
Scrimmage, W. Stevenson, K. Corkery A. Ackerman.
Wings, G. Matthews, G. Tovey, W. Stratton, M. Metheral, R. Donoghue.

TROUBLE ALREADY IN BIG FOUR

Argos and Montreal Disqualified by The C. A. A. U.

Trouble has already started in the Big Four Interprovincial Football League, and every player of the Toronto Argos and Montreal Football teams who played with or against Ernie Russell in the game at Montreal on Saturday, have been disqualified by the Registration Committee of the C.A.A.U. on Saturday night.

Before the game, however, the Argonauts Rowing Club decided to disown their team, and it will henceforth be known as the Torontos.

RUGBY

The rugby team will practice on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week in preparation for Saturday's game with the Victorias.

Dundas will withdraw from the O.R.F.U. because they are indignant at the executive for refusing them permits for Alex. Gillespie and Bert Cameron, of Peterborough.

KNOCKS THE SENIOR SERIES

Telegram Fearfully Regarding the Future Of The O.R.F.U.

The leading Canadian hammer, the Toronto Telegram, hands out the following knock to the O. R. F. U. senior series:

"The O. R. F. U. senior series has not the brightest prospect ahead of it this year. Made up of two divisions, with Victorias and Peterborough in one, and Kingston and Westmount in the other, it will hardly get enough football to keep up the interest among its own players, let alone the public. It cannot expect large gates for in Toronto it will be looked on as being what O.L.A. seniors in lacrosse are to the N.L.U., and the Toronto public will only pay to see what it thinks is the best. Peterborough never did furnish football crowds. The game has been asleep in Kingston for some years, and in Montreal it will again be over-shadowed by the Big Four.

"Of course the O.R.F.U. is to be admired for its pluck in going ahead with a senior series under such adverse circumstances. Everybody commends that pluck and hopes to be able to do as much for its judgment when the season is over. But with small gates and big railway fares one cannot help but fear for future."

THE TIGER SECONDS ARE SORE

Say That They Can Beat Either Victorias Or Peterborough

Hamilton, October 4. — The action O.R.F.U. executive at its meeting last evening in refusing the entry of the Tiger Senior O.R.F.U. team, and the Argonaut senior O.R.F.U. team, placing these in the intermediate series, has called forth a strong protest from the local players. They say that they were not officially notified of the meeting, and were not represented. They also say that their second team will undertake to beat the Victorias and Peterborough; and that they are fully entitled to participate in the senior series. The officers of the Hamilton Football Club regard the meeting as cut and dried, and are preparing to enter a strong objection.

SOME VERY VALUABLE INFORMATION

Rugby Guide is A Most Complete Manual —All The Rules

An advance copy of the official Canadian Football Guide, issued by the Spaulding Athletic Library, has been received, and a glance through its pages reveals the fact that it is the most complete manual of its kind ever issued by the company.

Some of the many features of the book are as follows: Officers, passed officers, champions, constitution, championship regulations and playing rules of the Canadian Rugby Football Union, the Ontario Rugby Football Union, and the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union.

It also contains half tone illustrations of the prominent Rugby teams throughout Canada, as well as all the officers of the Associations.

This book should be in the hands of all Canadian Rugby players. It will be sent postpaid to any address in Canada by the publishers, the American Sports Publishing Company 21 Warren street; or Messrs. A. G. Spalding & Bros., 413 St. James street, Montreal, Canada, upon receipt of the price, 10 cents.

POKER GAME WAS RAIDED

License Inspector and Police Invade a Local Hotel Early Yesterday Morning

WELL KNOWN CITIZENS

A raid on a local hotel and the consequent detention of seven well known Peterborough citizens indulging in a lively game of poker early Sunday morning has caused a sensation in the city. The round up was the work of License Inspector Joseph Stewart, and three members of the police force.

The raid took place at 2.30 o'clock Sunday morning and the inspector was accompanied by Police Constables Newhall, McDonald and Meharry. They managed to make their way into the hotel unseen through a cellar window it is stated, and going up stairs quietly opened the door of the room in which the party were and walked in.

There was confusion for a few minutes. The surprised players made a grab for the piles of money lying in front of them on the table, but were prevented from getting it by the quick action of the police. One man managed to seize some of the money and made his escape, but was captured afterwards. The police seized the remainder, however, with the cards that had been used and also the liquor that it is said, was being drunk.

The players were taken to the police station and after the Chief had been called up on the telephone, they were allowed to go to appear this afternoon, when the case will be heard in the police court.

Rosy Prospects For The Silver Lake District

Lakefield Mining Prospector Discovers Rich Vein of Gold And Copper Near Apsley---Mr. W. P. Gray, The Lucky Man, Who Has Been in Cobalt Three Years

Silver Lake district, in the township of Chandos, Peterborough county, according to Prospector W. P. Gray of Lakefield, promises to be a mining centre that will rival in importance even the famous fields of the world-famous Cobalt. Mr. Gray was in Peterborough to-day, and when seen at the Munro House by an Examiner reporter, told of a find he had made last week a mile and a half southeast of Apsley village, which, in his estimation, is a rich one. He is a mining prospector, who has spent the past three or more years in Cobalt, where he is well known as a mineral discoverer, having found the great Hudson Bay mine, the shares of which are selling around $180. He has made other important discoveries there, which have made him one of the best known mining men around Cobalt.

Gold and Copper

Mr. Gray has spent a couple of weeks in the Apsley section in search of the hidden treasure, and showed a few pieces of glittering ore that looked good to the newspaperman's eye. The prospector states that he has discovered an eight-foot vein of free milling quartz, containing gold and copper. He has purchased the land from the owner, Mr. Wilson, the purchase of which he registered in Peterborough to-day, and has staked his claim, which contains fifty acres bordering on Silver Lake in Chandos township.

The mineral which he brought to the city with him was found, he says, only four feet below the surface. He intends having an assay made of it in Belleville, and invites prospectors to look over the situation.

Mr. Gray deems the ore to be valuable enough to have a company formed to work the mine, and expects that this will be the case. Capital is required, and as soon as he is in a position to interest his Cobalt friends he states that the work will begin.

Corundum Ore

Mr. Gray also had a sample of corundum with him, which he discovered on the same property, and states that it is ready to be shipped out at any time. From the appearance of the rock the percentage of corundum is good. It is used for making emery stones, etc., and is a mineral in good demand. Silver Lake is about eighteen miles west of Coe Hill, through which runs the I. B. & O. Railway, and which is the nearest station to the mine.

The residents in the vicinity of Mr. Gray's claim, although few are excited over the find, are anxious that the mine be opened as soon as possible.

Easy Mining

The prospector, who, as stated above, has spent considerable of his time around Cobalt, has prospected along the Montreal River and in the Temiscamingue and Abitibee districts. He says that the facilities for working the Chandos mine are more favourable than in any of the places he has previously visited. There are no trees or shrubbery at Silver Lake as are to be found in the north, and transportation facilities are more promising.

Mr. Gray believes that the prospects for the Apsley district look rosy, and he expects to make silver Lake district as famous as those in the vicinity of silvery Cobalt.

The Fair Directors Have A Hundred Dollars To The Good

Hold Post-Exhibition Meeting On Saturday and Make This Discovery—Something Ready For Another Start

ACCOUNTS CHECKED OVER

A surplus of $100 is the amount the Industrial Fair directors will have left over after their expenses have all been met. The directors held a meeting on Saturday night in President Leary's office and the business in connection with the Fair wound up very satisfactory. Those present were President Leary, and Messrs. S. Devitt, S F Redmond, J C Garbutt, Wm. Collins, Geo. Elliott, G A Gillespie, Jno. Brown, W E Conway, J J Turner, Wm. Switzar and Secretary F J A Hall.

Accounts were checked over and the directors discovered to their joy that there would be about $100 of a surplus.

President Leary leaves to-morrow for the West and while he is absent the Vice-President, Mr. JJohn Garbutt will sign the cheques and look after the interests of the exhibition.

Despite the rain, there was a good meeting at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon, when Rev. A. H. Brace gave a stirring address on "The 20th Century Cultivated Sinner." The Misses Chasty sang a duet in their usual effective way.

A Big Lunge

R. H. MacDougall, while trawling near Fenelon Falls in a canoe, alone, hooked and secured a 34 1-2 pound maskinonge. Kawartha and Rice Lakes have produced far larger lunge this year. This fish is being mounted by E. Elcome, taxidermist.

An Explanation

By an oversight in acknowledging the gifts from friends of the Protestant Home, mention was not made on the list supplied the Examiner of the fact that the Home was indebted to St. Luke's Church for donations of vegetables.

Attended Communion

At the early mass at St. Peter's cathedral yesterday St. Peter's T. A. S. received holy communion in a body. There was a large attendance and a most creditable showing was made by their splendid appearance. The membership has increased of late, and it is hoped that it may continue to grow.

Offered Candlesbra

At St. John's church yesterday, the Rector announced that a lady, living out of the city, had offered to present, as a memorial to a departed relative, a brass candleabra to the church, and suggested that possibly a member of the congregation would be willing to make a similar offer.

RUNNING EPIDEMIC STRIKES CITY

Young Men in Offices in City Take A Notion to go For Early Morning Runs

Some of the young men of the city have developed a sudden inclination towards running, and a few of those who spend their working hours in offices have decided, as a means of developing the muscles in their pedal extremities, to rise early in the morning and go for a run. The programme was started this morning, and it will probably continue for a few days until the novelty wears off.

FEES PAY FOR THE SUPPLIES

And In View of This Fact Chairman Pringle Says North Enders Have No Ground For Complaint

The chairman of the Supervision Committee of the Board of Education to-day explained the position of the Board in connection with the complaint of the residents of the north end of the city, that they had been compelled to pay fees for their children when the school had been closed during a portion of the month. Mr. Pringle stated that the fees were not for tuition. They were to pay for books and supplies and these would be required if the pupils attended school only one day a month. In view of this fact he considered that there was no ground for the complaint.

How do you know you do not need

Bu-Ju
The Gentle Kidney Pill

If there is pain in the back and through the hips, you need Bu-Ju. If the hands and ankles are swollen, you need Bu-Ju. If there are headaches or neuralgia, you need Bu-Ju. If you are nervous and do not sleep well at night, you need Bu-Ju. If there is a constant desire to urinate, you need Bu-Ju. If the urine is reddish, cloudy, milky, hot and scalding, you need Bu-Ju. Especially if you are tortured with Inflammatory or Muscular Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, you certainly do need Bu-Ju.

If you have any of the above symptoms, don't hesitate; don't delay. Take Bu-Ju, and cure yourself.

Taylor St., Toronto.
I am anxious that you should know the relief and benefit I have derived from taking Bu-Ju. The effect has been marvellous. I had suffered severely for years with pain in the back, especially on rising in the morning, and I am pleased to say that the pain has completely disappeared. Before using Bu-Ju, I had tried every remedy I heard of for Kidney Trouble, without even receiving relief. I would strongly advise anyone suffering from Kidney Trouble to take Bu-Ju without delay. CHAS. B. LOTT.

It costs only 5c. a day to take Bu-Ju, and your money refunded if they fail to cure. 50c. a large box. At druggists, or sent on receipt of price.

Aldermen Talked Over The Assessment Problem

Matter Was Discussed At Some Length in Council Last Night—Views of Aldermen on The Subject Were Aired

NO ACTION COULD BE TAKEN

The trouble over the assessment question was again aired at the meeting of the City Council last night and came in for a lengthy discussion, with, of course, no result, as the Council claims to have no power nor responsibility in that matter. However, that did not prevent the aldermen from giving vent to their views on on the matter, and the discussion lasted for some time, until some one pointed out that the Council could take no action, and that it was useless to keep on talking about the question.

The matter was brought up by Ald. Elliott, who stated that he had been approached by many citizens, who complained that they were being over-assessed, and that the Council had ordered the Assessor to advance the taxes. He brought the matter up to clear the skirts of the Council in the matter.

Ald. Phelan agreed with the previous speaker that the Council was being wrongfully blamed in the matter.

The Mayor said that there was no foundation that the Council had given instructions to the Assessors in connection with assessment. He himself, as Mayor, had given no such instruction. Mr. McKee was founding his assessment on the fact that under the new Act he should base the assessment upon almost the full value of the property.

Ald. Elliott said that the progress of the city had been steady, and not of the boom variety, and that there was no reason for the big advance in assessment.

The Mayor said that the Council had no responsibility in the matter.

Ald. Johnston wanted to know whether the cost of the property or its actual value should be the basis of the assessment.

The Mayor thought that the proper basis was the the actual value of the property.

Ald. Elliott expressed the opinion that it would be wiser to raise the rate and keep the assessment lower.

This would, he said, bring the taxes of the average citizen to a more equable basis. The increase in the rate would affect the big manufacturing concerns having fixed assessments, thus benefitting the average ratepayer. He was a strong supporter of the principle of fixed assessment for industries, but thought that any increase in taxes on account of a growth in value should be borne equally by all parties concerned. A higher rate with a lower assessment would mean that those enjoying fixed assessment would have to bear their share of the increase in taxes.

The Question Of Making Beds Not Settled Yet

Firemen Will Do The Work Until The End of The Year---Committee of The Whole Council Discussed Matter---Nominal Rental For Boat Houses

"Who shall make the beds in the firehall?" is becoming as famous a question as "Who struck Billy Patterson?" and the Committee of the Whole Council, after dealing with it for some time last night, failed to come to any decision in the matter, and left it over until the end of the year. Nothing new came up in the discussion, which has been somewhat monotonous, having been already threshed out several times. Several other important matters came up at the session, which lasted over two hours.

When the question was brought up, Ald. Johnston expressed the opinion that the matter should be left over until the end of the year, when the Property Committee and the Fire, Water and Light Committee would take up the matter. He did not think that it was right to cut off the money from the fire drivers at such short notice.

Ald. Elliott did not think that it was right for Janitor Wilson to have to look after the beds in the firehall. He was of the opinion that he had quite enough to do in the city buildings.

Ald. McIntyre agreed with this opinion that the janitor should be kept in the city buildings.

Ald. Morgan expressed the same view as Ald. Johnston, that the matter should be left over until the end of the year. The fire drivers were not getting any too much and he did not think it right to cut off the money which they get for making the beds.

Ald. Elliott did not want to leave thhe matter over. "Let us take the bull by the horns and settle the matter to-night."

Ald. Morgan moved that Mr. Wilson be relieved of his duties in connection with the fire hall, and that the firemen be paid for making the beds until January 15th, 1908. This was seconded by Ald. Elliott.

Ald. Phelan moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Stevenson, that the matter be left in the hands of the Property Committee, and the Fire, Water and Light Committee, to meet forthwith.

The amendment was carried.

Street Extensions

The matter of the extension of Prince street as far east as George street and other extensions in that district, including Wescott street to Locke street, was referred to the Board of Works to report at the next meeting of the council.

In this connection Ald. Bradburn wished to know if the city had to accept streets where they were laid out at the option of the owners of property, without any regard to uniformity. He mentioned the streets running north and south between Weller and Sherbrooke streets, the jogging in which he said was ridiculous. He pointed out that there were Babb's Lane, St. Joseph street, the streets across the Burnham property, etc., not in line with each other.

Ald. Tovey agreed with this view.

The Mayor said that under the present law the city had no alternative in the matter.

Building Risks

The claim of Henry Carveth that he should not have to pay the builders' risks on the old fire hall was discussed at some length, and finally it was moved by Ald. Elliott, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that Mr. Henry Carveth be rebated one half of the amount charged against him in connection with the insurance risks on the new fire hall building.

The motion was declared lost on the casting vote of the Mayor.

Care of Old People

It was moved by Ald. Elliott, seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the Legal and Joint Committee meet in the County Council in connection with the case of the old people of the city in the House of Refuge.

Boat Houses on River

Ald. Bradburn moved that the city solicitor be instructed to notify all persons occupying portions of the water front for boat houses that they must enter into an agreement with the city to pay a rental of 25 cents a year for canoe boat houses and $1 a year for yacht boat houses and to admit the city's title to the property.

It was moved by Ald. Phelan that the question of making changes in the fire limits be referred to the Property Committee. This was seconded by Ald. Tovey, and carried.

There were present, the Mayor in the chair, Ald. Johnston, Elliott, Stevenson, Bradburn, Morgan, Duncan, McIntyre, Stevenson, Tovey.

The exercises in connection with the Graduating Class of The Nicholls Hospital Training School will be held in the Y. W. C. A. Hall, on Tuesday evening of this week at 8 o'clock.

Rev. J. R. Webb, will deliver an address to the Nurses. Representatives from the Medical Staff will assist and Miss Helen Davies, Miss Meldrum and Mr. Frank Bemrose, of Toronto, will contribute the Musical Programme. The public are invited to attend this interesting event. There is no charge for admission. 2d-82

Misses Ruby Buck and Una Driffield of Norwood were in town on Wednesday.

Health and Vitality for old People

As old age creeps on vitality is lowered, the heart beats more slowly; the blood becomes more thin, and watery, and the power of resistance is lessened. It is the old people, above all others, who require the new life and energy which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Thousands of old people depend on this treatment, because it calms and quiets the nerves, gradually and certainly enriches the blood, builds up the system and instils new life and vigor into their shrivelled arteries.

HON. MR. GRAHAM NOT COMING

Minister of Railways And Canals Not Able to Visit City

Hon. Geo. P. Graham, the Minister of Railways and Canals, will not be able to visit Peterborough this autumn to inspect the Trent Canal. It will be remembered that the city some time ago wrote Hon. Mr. Graham, inviting him to come here with the idea that he might be impressed with the need of completing the work. At last night's meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council, a letter was read from the Minister saying that he would be unable to come owing to the fact that he was tied up with work in connection with the opening of the Session.

INSPECTOR WANTS AN INCREASE

Mr. Thompson Asks That His Salary Be Raised To $600

At the meeting of the City Council last night a letter was read from the Plumbing Inspector, Mr. Peter Thompson, requesting that his salary be increased to $620. He stated that at the time he was appointed the understanding was that he was to be granted an increase at the end of the next year, but that it had not been made. Mr. Thompson's present salary is $500.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED

Kill the Germs by Breathing Hy-o-mei—Gives Quick Relief

Many people who have suffered with catarrh for years, naturally think that they cannot be cured, and become discouraged.

The reason they have failed of cure is because they have not treated the disease with the local remedy, Hy-o-mei, which is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, so that its healing, medicated air, reaches the most remote air cells, kills all the catarrh germs, and restores the mucous membrane of the nose, throat and lungs, to a healthy condition.

Catarrh is really a local disease and to cure it it must be treated by a remedy which reaches every spot in the nose and throat, where the disease germs lay. Hy-o-mei does this and gives relief from the first day's use.

A complete Hy-o-mei outfit costs but $1 and Mr. Madill gives a guarantee with every package to refund the money unless it cures.
